Carter System of Taxation Is Out--Sharp

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will not get a Carter tax system.

The radical reforms of the Carter royal commission on taxations are just too much for the country, Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday night in his budget speech.

He turned his back on Carter recommendations as the basis for forthcoming tax reforms, announcing that the government will choose instead to make Canada's existing system fairer.

NDP financial critic Colin Cameron immediately said the "throwing of the Carter tax report down the drain" was the most important feature of the budget.

The finance minister nevertheless ascribed "great value" to the work of the $3,500,000 royal commission "in helping us all to recognize the deficiencies in our present tax system and to devise sensible ways to reform the system."

It was news to warm the hearts of thousands of Canadian businessmen, when through their associations have implored the government to reject the Carter report.

Mr. Sharp said four points of public discussion on the report have weighed heavily in government thinking.

—The effect of the recommendations on the economy and various taxpayers is difficult to predict.

—The Carter tax system would differ markedly from that of the United States and other countries, creating economic difficulties and technical problems, particularly in respect to capital movements.

—Many people believe that the Carter system would not generate enough savings and attract enough foreign capital to provide for economic growth and development.

—Carter proposals could harm some regions, particularly those linked closely to the mining and petroleum industries.

Toronto accountant Kenneth Lem Carter and five other commissioners proposed that many forms of income now exempt from taxation should be brought into the tax base.

The commission asked for integration of corporate and personal income taxes, full-rate taxation of capital gains, higher taxes on gifts and bequests, and elimination of various tax advantages for mining, petroleum and life insurance companies.

The recommendations would also have meant lower taxes for most wage and salary earners. Most labor groups backed the report.

Liquor, Smokes Will Cost More

OTTAWA (CP) — Taxes on alcohol and tobacco go up by 10 per cent in Canada today. Personal income taxes will be hit with a five-per-cent surcharge next Jan. 1.

Finance Minister Sharp announced the increases in his budget speech Thursday night as part of the government's anti-inflation program.

The surcharge affects five of every six Canadians paying income tax. The other increases affect everyone who smokes or drinks.

More tax increases appear to lie ahead. The minister said tax measures will be required in finance medical care insurance due to come into effect next July 1.

Presenting his fourth budget in less than two years, the minister made it clear that the government is more concerned about the danger of inflation that about any economic slowdown that might result from tax increases.

He had a press conference after completing his 50-minute budget speech that a recession is inevitable if the economy continues to suffer from inflation.

In his speech, he said:

"The fiscal restraints that are essential now may limit somewhat the increase in our production next year, but such a limitation now is far better than a serious recession later.

"If we cannot, as individuals and organizations, exercise the restraint that now is called for in price, cost and wage increases, then there is no alternative but a collective fiscal restraint exercised by Parliament."

The personal income tax surcharge will apply only when a person's basic tax exceeds $100. The maximum additional levy is $900.

Mr. Sharp said a married man with two children and earning $100 a week will pay an additional 23 cents a week.

The increase levy on alcohol and tobacco comes into effect almost on the eve of the Christmas festive and gift season in which these commodities figure largely.

It will mean an extra 15 cents on a 25-ounce bottle of liquor, nine cents on a 24-bottle case of beer and one cent on a 25-ounce bottle of wine. All these increases are before provincial liquor commissions add their

Labor Faces Strife

LONDON (Reuters) — Trouble loomed on the left for the Labor government today after the disclosure that it promised the International Monetary Fund it would keep a tight lid on wages and spending in connection with a big loan.

The hard facts about Britain's economic future became clear Thursday when the government revealed pledges it made to the IMF when it sought a $1,-400,000,000 standby credit to back the pound in the wake of its Nov. 18 devaluation.

Roy Jenkins, the new chancellor of the exchequer, made public a letter sent by his predecessor, James Callaghan.

Jenkins, formerly home secretary, swapped jobs Wednesday with Callaghan, whose decision to leave the treasury post was linked with his long and fiddly unsuccessful struggle to avoid devaluation.

The letter not only confirmed deflationary steps announced along with devaluation of the pound by 14.3 per cent but included a promise to take whatever other measures might become necessary to obtain a balance-of-payments surplus.

Her Pride Is Hurt

PARIS (Reuters) — A 20-year-old French model is trying to recover a 10-square inch piece of her bottom which she claims is worth a lot more than 10,000 francs ($2,040.)

The model, Caludine Perot, said today movie-makers Jean Louis Le Del and Rene Marjac sold the skin off her left buttock, tattooed with a rose and an Eiffel Tower, to a collector.

Mini-skirted Miss Perot is suing the two men and their company, Ulysse-Productions, for a total 200,000 francs ($40,800) damages, alleging she was disfigured.

She said she was tattooed in 1966 as part of her role in the movie Secret Pris and the skin was later removed by a plastic surgeon as part of her contract.

"But I was 17 at the time and the contract is therefore void," she said. "I since heard the tattoo had been sold to a collector for 10,000 francs. But after all it's mine."

The case is expected to come up before a French court in about two months, when Miss Perot presumably would have to show court officials the extent of her loss.

Battles Rage on Two Fronts

Meanwhile, a Communist force continued to menace a U.S. infantry battalion at the Bu Dop U.S. Special Forces camp near the Cambodian border.

A company of marines searching for Communist troops northeast of Con Thien ran into heavy machine-gun and mortar fire from an entrenched North Vietnamese company, estimated at about 125 men.

Three more Marine companies joined the battle, giving the marines about 700 men. Maneouvring around the North Vietnamese flank, the Americans drove the Communists out of their heavily fortified positions in a four-hour battle.

At Bu Dop, three miles from the Cambodian border and 80 miles north of Saigon, a battalion from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division which drove off a hard assault early Thursday reported today that a large Communist force was still facing it.

U.S. Denies Deal With Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. embassy denied reports today that it had been dealing with the Viet Cong without telling the South Vietnamese government about it.

One such report, from well-informed sources, said a meeting between U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and a high-ranking representative of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front was thwarted when the South Vietnamese police arrested the Viet Cong emissary.

A Saigon newspaper said the meeting was arranged by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency without letting the South Vietnamese government know about it. A member of the South Vietnamese House of Representatives also implied that the CIA tried to set up contact with the Viet Cong without telling the Saigon government.

The embassy said the reports were "false."

"The U.S. embassy would, of course, not undertake any such contacts without the knowledge of the GVN (Government of Vietnam)," an embassy statement said.

Thant Helps Greeks Save Face

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — UN Secretary-General U Thant prepared a peace appeal today to Greece and Turkey, setting the stage for a face-saving agreement to close out the threats of war over Cyprus.

Thant's move was designed to lessen the prospect of adverse Greek public reaction. It was believed the Greek people would be less aroused by a positive response to an appeal by Thant than by outright capitulation to Turkey's demands.

Thant also was expected to announce plans to make fuller use of the UN peacekeeping force on Cyprus and possibly to expand it to about 8,000 men from 4,500. Canada has 900 men in the force.

This would be a matter for the Security Council. The current mandate for the force expires Dec. 26.

Thant in his appeal was to call for the terms worked out by the three international peacemakers who shuttled back and forth between Athens and Ankara this week, informants said.

Major points include the withdrawal of Greek and Turkish regular army troops stationed illegally on Cyprus, Greek compensation for 25 Turkish-Cypriots killed in fighting on the island Nov. 15, and an end to Turkey's threat to invade the island 40 miles off its southern coast.

Parks Board Vetoes Approval of Small Arena

Members of the Belleville Parks and Recreation Committee yesterday voted not to give approval at this time to the smaller type rink such as is being constructed in the city of Kingston.

The Parks Board recommendation not to go along with the pre-engineered type skating rink will result in no tenders for this type structure being called at this time.

Two weeks ago city council voted to call tenders for the smaller type rink, subject to approval of the parks and recreation committee.

At a previous meeting on the recommendation of Mayor Jack Ellis, council had voted to lay the arena-community centre project over for decision by next year's council.

There was a full fledged discussion on the issue at yesterday's parks board meeting before the recommendation by Alderman Donald Joss to withhold approval was finally passed.

An amendment to Ald. Joss' motion asking that council call tenders on the full fledged arena-community centre project and that the matter of the Kingston type rink be decided later, was defeated.

Ald. Joss' original motion was then voted on and carried.

Attending yesterday's meeting were city council representatives Aldermen Donald Williams, Donald Joss and Kenneth Sodeo, along with appointed members Robert Phillips, Donald Templeman and Richard Ellis.

Alderman Arthur Keegan, the fourth council representative, did not attend the meeting.

Chairman Donald Williams declined to give the vote breakdown, other than to say "It was not unanimous".

Dairy Princess Gives Views on UK Trip

A recap of a young girl's impression of the British Isles, and the story of the dairy industry in the state of Wisconsin which makes $50,000,000 pounds of cheese annually, were highlights of the closing session yesterday of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' annual convention.

Speakers at the session included Ontario Dairy Princess Miss Maria Battaglini of Campbellford, Verle Christensen, Marshall Dairy and Laboratory of Madison, Wisconsin, and Roland C. Behle, representing the Wisconsin Cheesemakers Association.

J. G. McMillan, grade in charge for the Belleville district, gave a report of the year's grading results.

Mr. Behle, executive secretary of his state's cheese makers' association which stages a world's cheese show every two years, told local cheesemakers that his state was well named as the top dairy state of the union.

He said that his state not only led in milk and cheese production but actually manufactured approximately 50 per cent of the cheddar cheese in the United States.

Within a few years time he said Wisconsin hoped to raise its cheese production to at least one billion pounds annually.

The Ontario Dairy Princess, who grew up on her father's 450 - acre farm in the Campbellford area said she was surprised to learn that Ayrshires, not Holsteins were the predominant dairy cattle breed in England. And by the way, those big black and white milk producers are known as Friesians in England.

Miss Battaglini spent a week in Old London, and divided the other two weeks with trips to rural England, Scotland and Ireland. She was the first Ontario Dairy Princess to visit Dublin.

She said she was greatly impressed with the century old buildings in the United Kingdom and by the fact that in England everything was "mini".

She said there were mini busses, mini markets, mini farms and of course in London, micro - mini skirts!. One mini farm which she visited had only 35 acres but ran a herd of 50 Ayrshire cattle.

The annual cheesemakers' convention ended last night with a banquet and dance at Club Canara. Prizes and trophies won at the British Empire Dairy Show were handed out as were past presidents pins to former presidents of the cheesemakers' association.

Will Enforce No Smoking in Hospital Rooms

TRENTON — Restrictions on smoking in hospital rooms here may be strictly enforced in the future.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said now, readily-noticable signs, approved by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, have been placed in each room at Trenton Memorial Hospital in an effort to warn visitors against smoking.

Hospital Board chairman S. O. Graham said there have always been "no smoking" notices posted in rooms at the Trenton hospital, but they have been virtually ignored.

The fire chief said a local bylaw contains provisions for prosecuting anyone breaking the hospital's smoking regulations.

A nurse said it has been difficult to enforce a universal rule against smoking in the hospital because doctors have advised against some patients stopping the habit.

Santa Claus Parade Tomorrow

Forty Floats Ready

Tomorrow they clear the streets of Belleville — only to fill them up overflowing with the spirit of Christmas.

The city is readying to roll out a welcome to Santa Claus with brigades of bands and beautiful girls, bushels of bunting and barrels of fun.

It'll be the biggest welcome of them all — a parade that's expected to flood the downtown area with thousands of spectators for more than an hour.

If earlier uncertainty about the future of the parade reached the Jolly Gentleman himself, he can relax at least for Saturday's event.

Last night, its organizers totalled up last-minute entries in the event and discovered they could launch a flotilla of 40 floats — the most ever.

The big mobile exhibitions are coming from as far away as Kingston to join the scintillating spectacle.

It'll be Mr. Duffy's job to get the parade moving from the West Moira Street fireball so it hits the Upper Bridge entrance to downtown Belleville as city clocks toll 10 a.m.

The marchpast then wends its way down Front Street, across the Lower Bridge and returns to its starting mark via Cedar Street.

Heralding its approach, 10 truck loads of candy will move off a half-hour ahead, scattering its goodies among the thousands of youngsters lining the route.

A Pressing Appointment

Santa Claus has a rendezvous with thousands of Quinte residents tomorrow as Belleville gets ready to roll a big parade and welcome him for another Christmas. To make sure he looks his best, Santa kept an earlier pressing appointment today — with Al Fox, owner of a city clothes-cleaning establishment — to make sure his creases were in the proper places.

Expect Big Vote on Monday

Political observers feel between 60 and 65 per cent of the eligible voters will show up at the polls in Monday's election in this city.

They point to extensive telephone campaigns by both mayoralty candidates coupled with a vote on Sunday sports and several controversial issues.

Belleville city clerk, Adam Stalker, said yesterday about 19,800 residents are eligible to vote. "About 1,200 of these are under the franchise act," he said.

In the 1965 municipal election about 53 per cent of the eligible voters turned out to support 14 candidates for council and two mayoralty candidates. About 9,500 electors voted in the election which also ratified Sunday movies for the city.

During the past two weeks seven incumbent councillors and nine newcomers have been hard at work campaigning on the issues. Experts feel this will be one of the closest races in the history of the city.

Interest by the electorate is high. Major issues facing the voters include the building of a proposed community centre, the priority of construction of a new bridge across the Moira River at Dundas Street and industrial expansion.

Looking back to the 1965 campaign the alderman topping the polls received 5,305 votes with the runner - up polling 4,318.

The third highest vote getter polled 4,311 votes with the next highest six receiving between 4,019 and 4,179 votes. The last place aldermen received 3,877 votes.

The four losers in the 1965 voting received from 2,052 to 3,429 votes.

Closing of Small Post Offices Deplored by Local Member

"Seven hundred post offices across Canada will be closed," according to Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South. Mr. Grills said that he "learned from the minister himself that it was the intention of the department to close some 700 of them."

Speaking in the House of Commons on Tuesday the member attempted to make the point that there are factors other than money involved when some of the small offices are closed.

He continued saying that "closing the post office is equivalent to destroying the identity of some of these small communities . . . the post office has a value which cannot be measured in dollars and cents alone."

Mr. Grills was referring to the fact that post offices will be closed according to the amount of revenue they are pulling in. Since a stamp was the only source of revenue the department recognizes it will make no difference how many people are picking up their mail at the office.

The member gave an example showing that two offices can be pulling in sufficient revenue but one may service 50 people and the other only two.

"Shouldn't we differentiate between these two," he questioned yesterday.

In the house Mr. Grills commented "I hope the minister will not be too hasty about proceeding in this direction . . . the social benefit which arises from the presence of these post offices is surely something which must be balanced against purely economic considerations."

Speaking yesterday about small offices in Hastings South the member pointed out that in his opinion there were offices that should not be closed and others that served no real purpose.

Mr. Grills also made the point that post office complaints must now be made to Ottawa rather than a district supervisor. "The service of investigation is slower, and it seems to me that the extra mileage cost must be considerable. As to the over-all service I have received more complaints in the last 12 months than I have ever received previously."

Income Tax Boosted Five Per Cent

The tobacco-tax increase will mean about two cents extra on a package of 20 cigarettes, again before provincial taxes.

Mr. Sharp estimated the surtax will add $25,000,000 to government revenues this year and another $185,000,000 in the next full fiscal year starting April 1.

The tobacco and alcohol increases will mean $20,000,000 more revenue this year and $95,000,000 in the next fiscal year.

In another move to increase government revenues, Mr. Sharp proposed changing the timing of the payment of corporation taxes.

The tax rate itself was not altered, but corporations now will start paying estimated taxes for their fiscal year in the third month of the year instead of the fifth month.

They will have to complete the payments by the second month of the following year, instead of by the fourth month as now is the case.

Mr. Sharp estimated this switch will bring the government an extra $290,000,000 next year.

Part of this additional revenue, however, will be used to start paying back to corporations the special short-term refundable tax levied on them in mid-1966.

Mr. Sharp said these repayments will start next June and be cleared up by May, 1976.

This tax, equal to five per cent of a corporation's cash profits, gave the government $230,000,000 while it was in force. It was introduced to cool down the economy, by reducing the amount of money business had to spend.

Mr. Sharp said repayments, including the five-per-cent interest the government promised the corporations, will cost $105,000,000 in the next fiscal year and $139,000,000 in the following year.

Without any tax changes in the current fiscal year ending next March 31, the government would have a deficit of $830,000,000, based on revenues of $9,070,000,000 and expenditures now estimated at $9,900,000,000.

The additional revenue from the changes, however, will net the government $450,000,000 this year and bring the deficit down to $780,000,000—close to Mr. Sharp's original estimate in his regular budget last June of $740,000,000.

Some reductions in government spending, to be announced next week by Revenue Minister Benson, will reduce the deficit further.

In the next fiscal year, Mr. Sharp estimated his budgetary deficit will be cut to $80,000,000, despite a forecast of a 4½-per-cent increase in government spending.

The minister said the additional tax revenue, combined with a drive to keep spending to essentials, will ease the pressure on Canada's money markets.

May Move Office to Kingston

The federal government's unemployment insurance office in Belleville may some day be moved to Kingston.

Present plans by the Department of Labor for its Unemployment Insurance complex across Canada call for consolidation of administration by 1970.

In recent years this has been Picton and Trenton offices centralized in Belleville.

Centralization also has changed claim-payment methods, now administered for the Quinte area through the mails from a regional office in Toronto.

No date has been set for the consolidation of the Quinte-area administration with the Kingston offices, but the national plan sets 1970 as a deadline, an official says.

Municipal Vote

On Monday Bellevillians go to the polls to cast their votes in the municipal elections.

It has been a spirited campaign, enlivened by a contest for the mayoralty between incumbent Jack Ellis and Dr. J. Russell Scott, and the appearance of a number of new faces competing for places in council. Among the latter is one woman candidate, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, home economist and a former teacher at Quinte secondary school.

There is no lack of talking points. There are a number of issues involving Belleville's future. They include the Dundas street bridge project, the prospect of a new community centre, recreational facilities, pollution control in the bay area, city services and of course industrial expansion.

The increased interest in the municipal scene reflected by the fact no fewer than nine candidates are competing with seven members of the former present council should evoke a corresponding response by the public in Monday's ballot.

In 1965, 53 per cent of eligible voters turned out. Then, as today there was a contest for the mayoralty. In 1964 only 25 percent voted. This year will likely match or even improve on the percentage of voters who responded two years ago.

The issues are important ones. They involve Belleville's immediate future and whether it is to make the kind of progress that for too long has eluded the city in the sphere of industrial expansion, meeting the needs of the growing number of young people and the provision of other necessary services.

Monday's vote will give Belleville a new council, to preside over the city's affairs for the next two years. These are testing days in the affairs of this community. But we feel confident that from the experience of men who have already served for a number of years and are offering themselves again, together with the infusion of new blood represented by the nine new candidates, will emerge an administration in which the people of this city can have confidence.

Robert McNamara

From U.S. defence secretary to President of the World Bank. That is the road for Robert McNamara, for long President Johnson's top civilian aide in the war against communist expansion in Asia and in Vietnam in particular."

Is Mr. McNamara being "kicked upstairs?" Apparently not, for Washington sources say there is no indication that his move to a new post will involve any change in the Government's policy on the war.

All the same, Mr. McNamara's transfer comes at a time when President Johnson's popularity has taken an upswing for the first time since his talks with Soviet Premier Kosygin last June. According to the latest Gallup poll 44 per cent of persons interviewed in a nationwide survey approve the way Mr. Johnson is handling his job.

Perhaps more than the president, Mr. McNamara has been in the hot seat over Vietnam for a long time. He has made numerous overseas visits to that war-scarred land and his reports to Washington have determined the manpower and equipment needs of the costly fight against the Viet Cong guerrillas and the North Vietnamese regulars who support them.

If the full facts were known, it would not be surprising if both the president and Mr. McNamara had reached the point where a parting of the ways was, at the least, politic. From this point on each may breathe a little easier.

Mr. McNamara's career thus far is in the typical American tradition. He went to the defence post from the presidency of the Ford Motor Company. As president of the world bank he will head a multi-billion dollar lending institution which plays a leading role in the economic advancement of under-developed countries.

He is the kind of man of whom Eric Hoffer (an intellectual and author who has spent a lifetime working as a longshoreman in San Francisco) spoke in a recent television program. The American genius, Hoffer said, is to be found in the widely-diversified talents of its people. McNamara is such a man.

Another French Veto

UK May Have to Await End of de Gaulle Era to Join ECM

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President de Gaulle's latest pronouncement on Britain's bid to join the European Common Market is in effect a veto which likely will withstand all the complaints and protests which his market partners can muster.

The door has been shut even though the Common Market council of ministers is still to meet in Brussels in three weeks to give a decision on the British application and Prime Minister Wilson insists the decision must come from all six Common Market members, in accordance with the Treaty of Rome which founded the economic community.

Wilson as well as the European leaders are aware that the pattern of the Common Market is too firmly sealed to be unravelled at this stage and, as much as some European countries may wish to see Britain in, they have too much at stake to begin a serious quarrel with de Gaulle.

Wilson's own position has been weakened by financial and economic problems. All his arguments that Britain has great benefits to offer Europe, through advanced computers and other sophisticated machinery tend to be offset by questions about Britain's economic future. Her critical testing time is still to come.

But while de Gaulle has secured an unprecedented ascendency over Europe, his desire to challenge the United States for the Western leadership appears to be hemmed in by European doubts about some of his more radical goals.

It appears certain that as long as he so chooses, the French leader can bar the European door to Britain. But events have shown there is a good deal of doubt that he can force the U.S. to double the price of gold and devalue the American dollar.

When French policy supported the huge wave of gold marketing that followed devaluation of the pound, some of France's own European partners worked behind her back to put the lid on speculation. This was done in the gold pool from which France withdrew last June but which still contains most of the Common Market membership as well as th U.S. and Britain.

France expressed resentment that this action was taken without consulting her. But despite a continuing temporary rise in gold buying in France, the speculation seems to have subsided. In effect, with the exception of France, the Common Market members threw their support behind the U.S.

This would suggest that the economic unity of the Common Market has not been completely solidified. Where many feel there are still breaches to be exploited, especially once de Gaulle, who is 77, leaves the political scene.

Quebecers Are Critical Of Premier Manning's View of Biculturalism

Ottawa Le Droit

What point is there in meeting and discussing if one insists his own ideas are the only valid ones? . . . Yet that is what the premier of Alberta, Mr. Ernest Manning, plans to do at the constitutional conference in January. . . .

"The government of Alberta," he wrote to Mr. Pearson, "does not accept the proposition that Confederation was a union of two races and two cultures."

Let us say he is right on this point. Confederation was a union of British colonies of North America, but these colonies were not empty territory. In them were people of two different ethnic origins, and if one of the two groups had rejected Confederation, it would not exist.

From a legal point of view, Confederation was not born of the union of two cultures, but, in fact, it was born of such a union. Too patiently, French-speaking Canadians waited almost 100 years before standing up for their rights. Enlightened English-speaking people today recognize these rights and are prepared to satisfy them, or at least that is what they say. Premier Robarts of Ontario is among them. . . .

The attitude of Mr. Manning and of those who think like him never ceases to be surprising. What would English-speaking Canadians lose if French-speaking Canadians could live everywhere in Canada in keeping with their culture and their traditions? Would it cost more to instruct a child in French than in English? Would it not be simple justice to permit an accused to defend himself before the courts in his own language, especially in a country of British tradition, as proud and so jealous of its reputation for equity and fair play?

Minibudgets, Medicare And the Taxpayers

Vancouver Sun

People do remember that in June of last year Mr. Sharp increased personal income taxes by 10 per cent. They also recall that, in his December mini-budget, Mr. Sharp doubled the old age security tax in its upper brackets and raised the sales tax. They are now flinching at the prospect of a further 10 per cent or so to be taken from them by mini-budget No. 2. And they are conscious of the fact that this latest levy is to be attributed to Mr. Sharp's misjudgment, in his main budget six months ago, of his capacity to borrow to finance a huge deficit.

On top of this, the public has now been told that the main budget next year will be 45 per cent bigger than the present one even before writing off the losses on Expo and before providing for medicare.

"There is no point in arguing about what proportion of the cost of medicare will be offset by premiums already being paid under private insurance schemes. The real point is that medicare, under state operation, will cost considerably more and the whole sum will show up in the citizen's gross income tax rather than as a miscellaneous payroll deduction.

There might be some excuse for the Liberal government's worship of "medicare" fetish, and the sacrifices to be made to it, if the health of the nation were in jeopardy. It isn't. The great majority of Canadians are already insured. Those who are not covered should be, and could be, cared for at a fraction of the cost of an ill-timed master plan. This is not a case of universality if necessary: it's one of universality, necessary or not, just because medicare is a magic word in the social planning textbook.

The wise course would be to postpone medicare until the country can afford to pay for the vast spending programs already on the government's books.

Rejoicing in Underworld Over Liberalization of Death Penalty Legislation

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste

The Commons has finally approved the principle of a bill aimed at limiting capital punishment to murderers of policemen and prison guards.

Our legislators have spoken: Then it was not how before their decision. The future will tell us if the decision was a happy one. One thing is certain and that is that the Peronell law will not change things very much, because since Dec. 11, 1962, no criminal has suffered the supreme punishment . . . Even now on the cabinet will have a very precise mandate and it will be difficult for it to commute the sentence of the murderer of a policeman or a prison guard. Otherwise the new law would be only a farce.

The stumbling block of the Peronell law is in the choice of untouchable persons. We cannot begin to understand why the criminal who assassin of a bank employee or of a storekeeper, should enjoy favored treatment. Certainly the greatest possible protection must be given to those who have the ungrateful task of guarding bandits. We are entirely in accord with the exception provided for in the Pennell bill. On the other hand, the exceptions should have been extended to cover many other persons . . .

It is said that capital never served as an example to criminals. Perhaps, but one thing is certain, it served at least to reassure honest people. The underground is rejoicing.

Population, Hunger, Tyranny

Brockville Recorder and Times

What is the future of our democratic society? Is it on its way out? Statements by a number of people of consequence suggest that if democracy is going to survive, we had better re-assess our understanding of our institutions, and then do something to save them from extinction.

There are aspects of the problem that have definite ethical overtones; and we might introduce any examination of the future of our political institutions by quoting a few thoughts expressed these last few days by Cardinal Maurice Roy of Quebec, on the occasion of his receiving an honorary doctorate in Humane Science, in South Orange, New Jersey. In substance what he said was that humanity must find a solution to the problem of hunger within the next 20 years. The affluent nations must assign at least one or two percent of their national raw produce to the assistance of under-developed countries. His point is that the population and hunger explosion is going to reach the point, soon, when it will engulf what we call the free world. When people, by the hundreds of millions are starving, they are not going to tolerate the status quo for ever. Cardinal Roy feels that the well-fed democracies have 20 years to bring about a solution through a sense of responsibility; otherwise the teeming millions of unfed people will take things into their own hands, and the solution will not be pleasant for the democracies.

Something else that has to be kept in mind is the relationship between democratic institutions and communistic systems. We shall hope to cite the opinions of some very deep thinkers who are convinced that the average citizen has only the vaguest idea of what either of these political philosophies really means. Indeed we do not need to go outside the city of Brockville to find Canadians who, having travelled behind the Iron Curtain, (Cuba, China, Russia, etc) are persuaded, by what they have seen, that Communism's way of life is the last-and-only way, with which true Democracy cannot co-exist. All of this has a bearing, of course, on our attitude toward the American involvement in Vietnam. Is it blasphemy, sacrilege, or is it a matter of grim necessity, if the free world is not to be overwhelmed by tyranny? It is not likely that any of us have all the answers; but obviously the whole future of civilization depends on finding the answer.

Canadian Tobacco Sales Lag

Brantford Expositor

The Canadian, chiefly Ontario, tobacco growing industry, has never been notable for export-consciousness, except when it had a surplus on its hands. Not surprisingly, therefore, it seems unimpressed by the size of the gap created in European and other markets by the UN embargo on buying from Rhodesia and by the export opportunity thus presented. While the Americans have seized this opportunity to make substantial gains in these markets, Canada's tobacco sales there have risen little.

Last year, the American sales increase to Britain, formerly a big buyer of Rhodesian leaf, was 12 times Canada's increase, and that to West Germany was 39 times as great as Canada's. In addition, the U.S. sold Japan 20 million pounds, against none the year before, while Canada sold none to Japan. And the Americans did all this in spite of Canada's seven cents on the-dollar export advantage.

It would seem that the federal and Ontario governments's export driver, possibly because of their emphasis on manufactures have either by-passed the tobacco-growing industry or left it virtually unmoved, though one remembers a Tobacco Market, ing Board mission's return from Yugoslavia waiving an order for a few pounds and telling of a sales pitch to Bulgaria.

The industry is disappointing response to the opportunity to replace Rhodesian leaf is probably less the fault of the marketing boards than of the growers themselves and must answer to. Most tobacco farmers are concerned only to raise a crop and preserve their monopoly through the system of planting rights and acreage quotas. If the price is down as they see it, they have little or no interest in where the leaf is sold. Fear of change is strongly reflected in their thinking. So too does the fact that their main market is domestic.

Yet, as Canadians with a product saleable abroad, they have some obligation to help the economy by increasing their exports, and thus Canada's overseas earnings, more than they have done since the Rhodesian market gap appeared. To fail to do so is to strengthen the case for amending a growing-rights scheme that was never intended to set up a privileged haven from which boosting Canadian exports could be treated as someone else's worry. It is the tobacco farmers' business too, and the Americans have shown that it can be a paying business.

Trenton Hospital Staff Holds Simulated Disaster Exercise

TRENTON — The local hospital staff had a Christmas rush of their own to cope with last night.

A simulated disaster exercise put the staff through their paces in a test of their co-ordination and planning abilities.

Ontario's Department of Health calls it a "Phase 2 Preliminary Exercise."

For doctors, nurses, and volunteers it represents a course of action to be followed in the event an emergency requires the admission of about 25 people to hospital.

At 8.15 p.m., the hospital's public address system requested visitors to leave the building, and that there was an exercise in progress.

This preliminary to the drill itself saw 90 per cent of peak-hour visitors out of the hospital within 15 minutes of the announcement.

At 8.45, a pre-arranged telephone "fan - out" system went into effect, notifying all off - duty hospital personnel that the mock emergency was on.

The telephone procedure is set up in a chain reaction form, whereby each person receiving a call notifies three others.

By 8.15, 139 off - duty hospital staff, including nine doctors had checked in for the exercise.

Mrs. Roberts noted that the personnel were prepared for last night's drill, and that its main function was to co-ordinate staff efforts once at the hospital.

Meanwhile, 15 volunteer "patients" began to arrive at the hospital's emergency entrance, where they were tagged according to "injuries."

The tagging process assists in the assessment of the drill after it has been completed, in tracing the progress of patients from admittance through treatment.

The exercise also simulates a patient-check by hospital medical staff, to determine which patients could safely be discharged to make room for emergency cases.

Complete surprise and simulated injuries (using makeup) are usually involved in a more elaborate "phase" exercise, says Mrs. Roberts.

"A hospital of Trenton's size could accommodate 40 emergency cases suffering from, say, food poisoning," says Mrs. Roberts. "But more than 15 or so victims of an air crash or an explosion, for instance, could probably not be handled."

An exercise of last night's proportion will likely be held, at most, twice annually, with the co-operation of local police and fire departments, as well as the area Emergency Measures Organization.

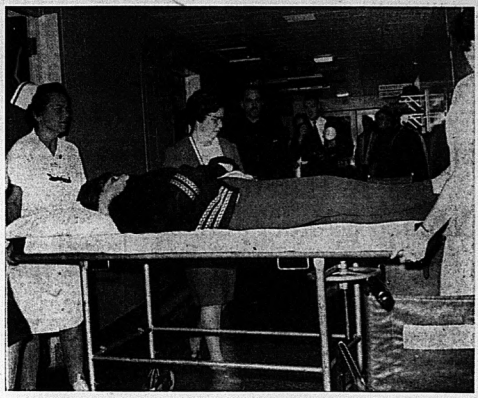
nurse assigned to them to avoid confusion with make-believe patients.



Even prior knowledge of last night's exercise did little to detract from the authenticity of the procedure.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate morning activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Among industrials, beverages showed the greatest decline, tying in with Finance Minister Sharp's announcement Thursday night he will increase federal taxes on liquor, beer and cigarettes.

Seagrams declined ⅛ to 28½ and Walkers ⅛ to 32¼. Canadian Breweries was unchanged at 23¾.

Inco and CPR were off ⅛ each to 122¼ and 59½, Bank of Commerce ¼ to 42¼ and Moore Corp. and Royal Bank ¼ each to 31¾ and 45¼.

MacMillan Bloedel advanced ⅛ to 24¾ and Massey-Ferguson and Noranda ¼ each to 16¼ and 51¼.

PROCLAMATION
"SAFE-DRIVING" WEEK

WHEREAS a nation's well being is usually gauged by the amount of security enjoyed by the citizens, and one of the major threats to Canada's population is the senseless killing and maiming that continues to take place on the country's highways and streets; and,

WHEREAS the problem is serious and must be solved, and we cannot expect any single individual, group or government to accomplish this alone since total participation by all is needed; and,

WHEREAS from December 1 to 7, the Canadian Highway Safety Council is again sponsoring "Safe-Driving Week" in an effort to impress on Canada's motorists and pedestrians the fact that they too must do their share; and,

WHEREAS it is hoped that every Canadian with a sense of responsibility will take it upon himself to support the Council in "Safe-Driving Week" and help free Canada's highways and streets from the stigma of death, violence and crippling injury that has come to characterize them;

I HEREBY PROCLAIM the week of December 1 to 7, 1967, as "Safe-Driving Week", and urge all citizens of Belleville to lend their interest; support and co-operation in making this observance successful in every way.

It's A Meany Budget Says Conservative Financial Critic

OTTAWA (CP) — It was announced as a mini-budget but it was nothing but a "meany budget" to Conservative critic J. Waldo Monteith.

"An irritating increase in income tax," Colin Cameron of the NDP said, and protested the decision against major tax reforms.

Opposition Leader Stanfield described it as "a costly price for the people to pay" for the government's earlier errors in judging the economy.

That summed up the major Commons reaction Thursday night after Finance Minister Sharp's budget speech announced a $320,000,000-a-year boost in taxation. Most of it will come from a surcharge on personal income tax.

Mr. Monteith, Conservative MP for Perth, was the only Commons critic to get the floor after the finance minister's 7,500-word speech.

"A very merry and prosperous Christmas to you, too," he called across to Mr. Sharp.

"At least it will be a somewhat less spiritless one," he added, referring to the increase of 10 per cent in federal taxes on liquor, beer and wine.

In a more serious vein, Mr. Monteith said the finance minister had failed to predict correctly what had happened to the economy for the last year. Only a year ago he had said everything was going well.

Now he was increasing taxes "almost on the eve of Christmas."

"When is this disregard for the plight of the taxpayer going to stop?"

Mr. Cameron, MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands and his party's chief financial expert, told reporters outside the House he was disappointed that Mr. Sharp had apparently thrown the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation "down the drain."

The Carter report had decided properly that people should pay taxes according to their financial ability. But the minister had decided to do nothing about it.

Mr. Cameron said the minister's "nuisance taxes" will not control inflation. They should have been imposed on insurance companies and other areas recommended in the Carter report, not on the ordinary taxpayer.

All in all, the budget merely added to the economic problem.

Mr. Stanfield said outside the house that the government had for some time been too complacent about inflation and the budget was a late attempt to restore public confidence in the federal handling of economic affairs.

New taxes were likely to accelerate a slowdown in the economy rather than produce expansion.

The new Conservative leader declined to say whether he approved the government's apparent rejection of the Carter report.

Real Caouette, leader of the Creditiste group, said the budget was nonsense and would invite an increase in unemployment.

"We are asking the Canadian people to pay more taxes when they don't have enough money to make a proper living," he said.

A. B. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, said the budget will fan the flames of inflation instead of dampening them.

'Excise A Hateful Tax' Claimed Samuel Johnson

His sentiments about excise may be shared today by Canadians who like a drink or a smoke as they painfully contemplate the 10-per-cent increases in liquor and tobacco taxes announced Thursday by Finance Minister Sharp.

There are two forms of excise in Canada, one levied only on goods of home manufacture under the Excise Act and the other on home-manufactured and imported goods under the Excise Tax Act.

Mr. Sharp used both acts, along with the customs tariff, to implement his tax boosts, effective today.

Some dictionaries give the general meaning of excise as any toll or tax. They add a specific meaning as a duty charged on home goods either in the process of their manufacture or before their sale to the home consumer.

This has led to an impression in some quarters that the word excise does not apply to imported goods. But it does in Canada under the Excise Tax Act, no matter where the commodities are from, right in line with Samuel Johnson's lament.

As long ago as 1215, when the Magna Carta was signed, people thought in terms of excise. That historic document contained a reference to payment of evil or unjust tolls on goods entering or leaving the country.

During the middle ages, the favorite targets for excise taxation were goods exchange in inter-regional or international trade.

Canada has levied duties under the Excise Act since Confederation on goods of domestic manufacture. The duty is levied on the commodities while in possession of the Crown and they remain in its possession until paid.

The government gets at imported goods of the type affected by the Excise Act under the customs tariff. It is set high enough to compensate for the excise duty rate on home goods, with something more added for protective purposes.

Budget's Virtues Scottish

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Thursday his budget would "display those virtues of thrift, caution and prudence" that are characteristic of the Scottish race.

His comment came in a light-hearted exchange a few hours before he brought down his budget.

It started when Angus MacLean (PC-Queens), describing himself "the self-appointed spokesman for one of the two great founding races of Canada" asked why Parliament sat on the feast day of one of the patron saints and not on the day of the other.

Government Will Try to Block Increases in Wages and Prices

OTTAWA (CP) —The government plans discussions with labor and management on a voluntary program to restrain wage and price increases, Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons in his budget speech Thursday night.

Assailing what he termed "clearly inflationary" wage demands and cost increases, he said there will be a determined campaign to slow them down.

Although Mr. Sharp did not use the phrase, officials said he was referring to some sort of guidelines developed by voluntary, co-operative action.

"To the extent that we can mobilize public opinion effectively in support of this objective, and against the actions of those who clearly exploit their market power to obtain inflationary increases, then we can have a higher level of employment, productions and incomes along with price stability," he said.

"The government is planning to organize a temporary program of this kind—after, we have done our part here in Parliament to restrain our spending and to impose the taxes necessary to finance, in a non-inflationary way, the expenditures which we in this House have judged to deserve the priority that is implied in our approval of them."

He said the government will "initiate discussions with leaders of labor, of management and other main elements of the economy, as to the manner in which we could most effectively organize this program of restraint."

Although he was critical of the increase both in wages and prices, the minister's speech hit particularly hard at the wage demands of organized labor, charging that big wage settlements in Canada are running at an average rate double that of the United States.

Imagine Increasing the Cost of Whisky on St. Andrew's Day!

By JANE BECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Imagine increasing the price of whisky on St. Andrew's Day," muttered a disgruntled Scottish tax expert. "Anything but that!"

This was a typical attitude toward Finance Minister Sharp's budget yesterday from business observers across the country.

Generally they were not pleased, but few were unduly disturbed.

Several admitted they had expected much harsher tax measures to do the job Mr. Sharp said must be done: Stem inflation without cutting into employment or causing an economic recession.

The budget was "a fairly moderate price to pay to sustain prosperity," noted the former director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, Ron Robertson.

Few thought the five-per-cent surtax on personal income taxes would work much hardship on the individual taxpayer. But several warned that the budget would do little to ease Mr. Sharp's fears of rising wages.

"If it does anything the tax will prompt new wage demands," said Harry Simon, Ontario director of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Ernest Carr, president of the Canadian Importers Association, also thought the budget would spark a spiral of wage demands, since manufacturers might increase prices to cover the added taxes.

Liquor and cigarette manufacturers weren't happy with the 10-per-cent tax hike on their products, which will add two cents to the cost of a package of 20 cigarettes and 15 cents to a bottle of whisky.

"If the market shrinks, Mr. Sharp may not get the full benefit of his tax increases in total tax dollars," said J. H. Devlin, president of Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd.

The smokers' bite cut deeper because both Rothmans and Imperial Tobacco increased their prices this week.

A number of observers took exception to Mr. Sharp's statement that making instalments on corporation taxes payable by Canadian companies two months earlier would not increase the costs of business.

"The extra tax demanded on corporations makes it clear this was a deeply earned budget," commented R. A. Engholm, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, Inc., and some others, said paying instalments two months earlier would simply add 16 per cent to taxes payable by corporations in 1968.

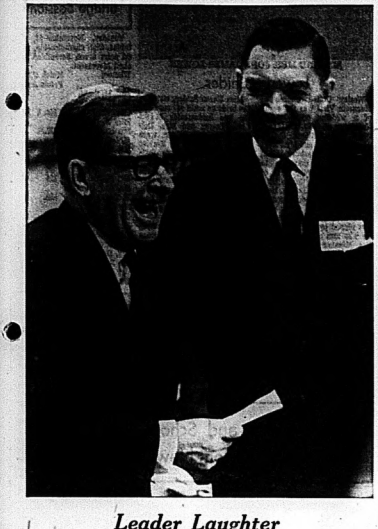
Most observers welcomed Mr. Sharp's announcement that the government intends to bring in tax reforms on the present basic taxation structure, rather than adopting the "radically different" approach of the Carter commission report on taxation.

But some called for the government to specify as soon as possible exactly what reforms it has in mind.

Murray Cotterill, public relations director for the United Steelworkers of America, said flatly that to increase income tax before acting on the Carter recommendations was a "sell-out."

Kenneth Carter, who headed the commission, took issue with Mr. Sharp when the latter said the commission would give Canada a tax system "quite different" from the United States.

In fact, said Mr. Carter, several of the proposals—instituting capital gains tax, taxing family units, and lowering personal income tax rate—would bring the Canadian system far more in line with the U.S.



But the recurring note was criticism of a free-spending government that had got itself into financial deep water, and now was turning to the taxpayer to bail it out.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce called the budget "a jolting reminder of what happens when the government overspends."

Ralph Loffmark, British Columbia trade minister, said it was a case of applying "old world fiscal policies to a brand new frontier economy." The huge problems of government overspending—often reflected in government programs that were "overstaffed and overpaid" was still to be attacked, he said.

But one investment dealer insisted on being cheerful.

R. C. Stone of F. H. Deacon and Co. Ltd., Toronto investment dealers, said, "I think it will be bullish for the stock market. This is the first concrete thing the government has done to combat inflation and reduce its enormous deficits."

Want to Try Asking Boss for A Raise So as to Meet Higher Cost of Booze?

OTTAWA (CP) — How can a man ask higher pay to meet increases in the cost of his booze and tobacco while his boss exercises that needing the demand would not be good for the economy?

That may have been in Finance Minister Sharp's mind as he selected liquor and tobacco as two prime targets for the tax increases he announced Thursday.

But he also has appealed to employers to use restraint in increasing salaries because of the pressure such increases would put on the economy.

Governments traditionally have found booze and cigarettes the easiest areas in which to increase taxes.

Ten-per-cent increases in taxes on those commodities plus a five-per-cent surcharge on personal income tax, were aimed at what the economists tend to call dampening down the economy.

To put it simply, the minister wants:

—More revenue so the government can come closer to living within its income;

—To reduce inflationary pressures by discouraging pressure for higher wages and other cost increases.

The five-per-cent surcharge on current basic income taxes is regarded as modest—only half of what President Johnson has unsuccessfully asked for in the United States and less than many observers here had expected from Mr. Sharp.

The surcharge, Mr. Sharp remarked in an aside in his budget speech in the Commons, means $64 a year for a married taxpayer, with two children eligible for family allowances who earns $10,000 a year. For the $15,000-a-year man with two children it is $145, less than 40 cents a day.

Mr. Sharp's objective is to increase the government's revenue so as to reduce its need to borrow funds to cover a deficit.

The finance minister told a press conference after his budget speech Thursday night he is hoping next year to cut his budgetary deficit to $80,000,000 from $785,000,000 this year.

This budgetary deficit includes only the money the government spends under parliamentary appropriation and statutory authority and what it raises by way of normal taxes.

In addition, the government pays out old age pensions and some other welfare benefits from what are called non-budgeting revenues.

Both budgetary and non-budgetary revenues and expenditures are taken into account to find the total impact of the federal government's operations on the Canadian economy The result is the so-called national economic accounts.

Currently these national accounts are running at a deficit of about $300,000,000 a year. This is what layman economists call pump-priming: Putting more money into the economy than the government is taking out. It has an incentive effect on the pace of economic activity.

The new taxes will convert this $300,000,000 deficit in the national accounts into a small surplus. Officials of the finance department are unable to say precisely how large this surplus will be in the new year.

But a surplus in the national accounts means the government is taking more out of the economy than it is spending. This has a restraining effect—a counter-inflationary tendency that Mr. Sharp feels is necessary now.

Income Tax Now Fifty Years Old

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp Thursday night marked the 50th anniversary of the start of personal income taxes in Canada by tacking on a special five-per-cent surcharge for five out of six taxpayers.

Low-income persons will be exempted from the new tax in two ways.

First, the surcharge will apply only to an individual's basic tax in excess of $100. Secondly, it will not apply to single persons with incomes of less than $2,000 annually, nor to a married man with two children earning less than $3,600.

Firms Have to Pay Sooner In Order to Get Taxes Back

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to take money away from Canadian corporations at a faster rate—partly so it can start paying them back what it owes.

Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday night in his budget speech that, while there would be no change in the existing level of corporation taxes, there would be a change in the timing of the payment of such taxes.

The changes in the timing will give the government a "substantial influence" in cash receipts next year, without adding to the costs of production or distribution.

One reason the government needs extra cash next year, he added, is that it will start next June repaying the five-per-cent refundable tax levied on corporations in 1965 to cool down the economy.

Under the proposed new schedule for paying taxes, corporations will send Ottawa the first instalment of their estimated bill in the third month of the tax year. They now start payments in the fifth month.

Mr. Sharp said they will be asked to complete payment of their estimated tax by the second month of the following tax year, instead of by the fourth month as now is the case.

U. S. Tax Boost Impossible This Year

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — While Canadians will pay higher income taxes next Jan. 1, Americans won't pay more taxes on their income this year but might in 1968 if President Johnson cuts spending enough, says the key man in the U.S. legislative taxing process.

Representative Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House of Representatives ways and means committee—where all tax bills originate, told reporters Thursday that it's out of the question for Congress to pass the administration's tax bill in the remaining week of the current session.

The Arkansas Democrat's remarks followed completion of his committee's hearings on Johnson's plan for a 10-per-cent surcharge on income taxes, combined with an administration spending cut plan.

In presenting the plan, Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler said it would be unthinkable not to start work on it immediately. But Mills let the hearings lapse without scheduling any working sessions.

The tax spending plan would require action by three committees—ways and means for the $7,400,000,000 tax increase; appropriations for spending cuts, projected at $4,100,000,000 but which Mills said should be greater; and government operations for a proposed, initiated by Mills, for a commission to make a long-range study of government programs.

Mills said he doubts even his committee could complete its part of the work by Jan. 1.

Mills said the administration should be able to cut expenditures by $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 more than its estimate, and that such a cut "would enhance the acceptance of a tax increase by the American people."

Mills also gave the administration a broad hint his committee may want to see the 1969 budget figures before deciding on taxes.

"I believe," he said, "that more . . . information is needed in this area before we can come to any conclusions on the tax increase."

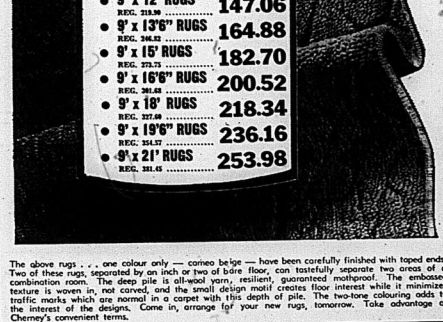
The old-fashioned balance wheel has been replaced in all Accutron watches by a tuning fork which vibrates precisely 360 times per second, thus assuring your accuracy.



ACCUTRON...The World's Most Accurate Timepiece!

That's the most an Accutron® timepiece will gain or lose in one month's time. And we'll put it in writing!
Accutron looks like a watch. But it isn't. It doesn't have a mainspring, a hairspring, or a balance wheel.
These parts make a watch run fast or slow. Accutron replaces them with an electronic-powered tuning fork. It splits each second into 360 equal parts. And makes the Accutron timepiece so precise, it won't gain or lose an average of more than two seconds a day. In fact, we guarantee accuracy to within 60 seconds a month.* Just one darn minute.

The above rugs . . . one colour only — cameo beige — have been carefully finished with taped ends. Two of these rugs, separated by an inch or two of bare floor, can tastefully separate two areas of a combination room. The deep pile is all-wool tyrenyl, resilient, guaranteed mothproof. The embossed texture is woven in, not carved, and the small design motif creates floor interest while it minimizes traffic marks which are normal in a carpet with this depth of pile. The two-tone colouring adds to the interest of the designs. Come in, arrange for your new rugs, tomorrow. Take advantage of Cherney's convenient terms.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Aunt Jane: "I couldn't wait to come and see the new baby and bring her a gift. Is she awake?"

Mother: "Oh, do come in and see her. She's just had her bath and is ready for company. She's such a good baby."

Use kindness and tact when admiring or showing off a new baby so the older child will not feel completely replaced and forgotten.

Aunt Jane: "Hello, Sue. Hi Ronnie. How are you today?"

Ronnie: "We have a new baby."

Aunt Jane: "I brought a present for you, too, Ronnie."

The women of the church are appreciative of those helping and to all visitors who made their day a success.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN JAMES LOWEN

Lowen – Snider

Wesley United Church at Mountain View was the scene of a wedding on Saturday, November 25, 1967, at 2 p.m., when Mary Elaine Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Snider of Ameliasburg R.R.1, was united in marriage to John James Lowen, son of Mr. Irvin Lowen, Collins Bay, and the late Mrs. Lowen. Rev. W. von Boetticher officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was played by Douglas Trumble who also accompanied the five Minaker sisters, Jane, Suzanne, Nancy, Peggy and Sally in appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie enhanced with lace jacket having batteau neckline and elbow length sleeves. A flowing train extended from the back waistline. Her bouffant two - tier veil was caught to a tiara of rhinestones and seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses mingled with stephanotis.

Miss Karen Snider, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the two bridesmaids Miss Linda Lowen and Mrs. Delbert (Sharon) Snider were identically attired in Empire styled floor-length gowns featuring deep red velvet skirts and white lace bodices. Each bridesmaid carried a nosegay of red and white carnations, while the maid of honor carried a crescent bouquet of red and white carnations.

For the reception in the church hall the bride's mother assisted by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. S. Chandler of Winnipeg, received the guests.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls and points in the United States, the bride donned a green and mauve double knit suit with matching mauve hat and a white orchid corsage.

Upon return Mr. and Mrs. Lowen will reside at Collins Bay, Ontario.

Devotions and program were conducted by Hattie and Lewis McMullen's group. Bill Lott and Don Dafoe were in charge of devotions. Florence Watson gave a reading and with the assistance of Annis and Art Dickens conducted a card trick. Skits were presented by Orlene Lott, Muriel Dafoe, Doug Watson, Lewis McMullin and Don Dafoe, Bill and John Townsend. Aileen Blakely sang a solo.

Home and School Association News

PARK DALE SCHOOL

B. A. Wright, principal, and the teachers of Park Dale School presented a program on audio-visual instructional material and its use at the Park Dale Home and School Association meeting Nov. 27.

The child can use these materials to teach himself, and thus at a faster pace a percentage of what he learns. Statistics show that children retain, over an extended period, 20 per cent of what they see, 30 per cent of what they see, 30 per cent of what they see and hear, 70 per cent of what they retell in their own words after they have seen and heard, and 90 per cent of what they see, hear and say as they participate.

Examples of the 400 film-strips and 200 films retained in a central library of the Belleville Public School board were shown. The multi-media presentation included magnetic, electric, flannel and bulletin boards, overhead and opaque projectors and 16, 8 and 35 mm films and filmstrips.

Mr. Wright thanked those parents who participated in the parent-teacher interviews which were scheduled recently instead of report cards for the primary A grades. Eighty-six per cent of the parents met the interviews and further interviews will be held early in 1968. It is felt both parents and teachers can learn more about the progress of a child through such interviews than they can through periodic report cards.

J. Cox, president, announced that the children of the school collected $167 for UNICEF at Hallowe'en.

Hikers Ask for New Suggestions

Dear Doris: My hiking group is made up of girls and boys from nine to 13 years of age. They love to walk a long way then build a fire and cook supper, if it is not too cold.

We have done some bird watching, but now I am looking for some new ideas or games to play along the way. — Hiker and Counsellor.

Dear Hiker: According to Luther Burbank: "Every child should have mud pies, grasshoppers, waterbugs, tadpoles, frogs, mud turtles, elderberries, wild strawberries, acorns, chestnuts, trees to climb, animals to pet, hay fields, pine cones, rocks to roll, sand, hornets—and any child who has been deprived of these has been deprived of the best part of his education."

I am sending you the name of a book which can lead your group into outdoor discoveries and fun which will keep you going until they grow out of your age range.

Traps, whistles, treasure hunts, games which call for high class observation, science projects — directions for all of them and many more are to be found in this volume — which comes well recommended by experts.

Dear Doris: I am only 19, and the way I'm putting fat on my stomach lately — it's simply ridiculous. (I'm a boy by the way). If I were 30 I probably wouldn't care as much. But being a teen-ager and with the "in-crowd" it's getting more and more conspicuous and embarrassing.

Jobwise, I do no exercise other than quite a bit of walking. I guess I eat a bit more than I should, but I'm no Roly-Poly.

Can you suggest a few exercises I might do that will not require purchasing any special equipment? Even if I should purchase them, how would it help? — Bulging.

Dear Bulging: Better act now if you don't want middle age spread at 30. Men get fat too. Replace sweets with fruits and add the exercise of pushing away from the table a little sooner.

My ten-cent-leaflet on spot reducing is on its way. Barbells might help you keep in trim, but weight won't come off unless you consume fewer calories.

Dear Doris: I'm going crazy. I was going out with this (not steady) guy. But I don't think he respects me. When I'm out with him—it seems he only wants one thing. The trouble is I'm afraid I'll give in.

Then he goes and tells all the guys. Then they get the wrong impression. This guy will never phone me up. If I'm at a dance he'll say "hi". It's after the dance that he'll offer me a drive home.

Then he only wants to go parking. I like him so much, but I feel he is just using me. Should I drop him? — Desperate.

Dear Desperate: Yes, like a hot potato. Would it be a "wrong impression" if he were abit to report to his pals that you did give in? He is up to no good.

American Clubwomen Produce Big Cook Book

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The General Federation of Women's Clubs in the United States has put out a cookbook far more ambitious than the customary club book.

America Cooks is a 750-page, all-purpose cookbook edited by Ann Seranne, a professional food expert. The foreward says she chose recipes and hints from 1,000,000 submitted by members of the federation.

It also describes the federation, founded in 1890, as the oldest women's service organization in existence. If the claim is accurate in the United States, it is not elsewhere. The YWCA and WCTU are older, both in England and Canada, and a University Women's Club was formed in England in 1887.

The book's recipes, as in less extensive club compilations, are chosen to represent all regions of the country and are identified by member's and-or branch name. Some are signed by well-known people such as Mrs. John Kennedy and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey.

The editor says they were also chosen to be prepared in a modern kitchen to please today's tastes. If any were grandmother's favorite recipes, they have been brought up to date.

One hint, for instance, suggests saving TV dinner trays for storing leftovers to serve when it's dinner-for-one night.

Another says you can store extra ice cubes for a party by putting them in plastic bags in the freezer.

If you want to ripen an avocado quickly, put it in a wool sock in a dark place.

America Cooks is published in Canada by Longmans and sells at $8.75.

QUESTION: I have been married only two years and as I am still working have not had too much experience in cooking . . . I volunteered to have my husband's and my families for Christmas dinner. FRIDAY
(Oven Dinner)

Dinner Menu

Salmon or Tuna Loaf; Tomato and Toast Points Casserole; Baked Potatoes; Celery Hearts; Baked Bananas; Scotch Shortbread (see Thursday); Tea.

STUFFED ROAST GOOSE
(12-lb. — Serves 10)

Stuffing:
½ cup butter
½ cup chopped onion or 1 tbsp. green onion flakes
2 tbsps. chopped parsley or bottled flakes
Grated rind 3 med. oranges
1¼ tsps. rosemary or crumbled sage
18 slices bread pulled into crumbs (9 cups soft crumbs)
Juice 1¼ med. oranges
1½ tsps. salt
2 cups cored, unpared, chopped apple (optional)
½ cup cut up tender prunes (optional)

Melt butter in very large frying pan and add chopped onion, parsley, orange rind and rosemary or sage and gently blend with butter. Add all remaining ingredients, tossing lightly. Stuff into oven-ready goose, skewering openings shut and tying legs and wings close to body with string. Place goose on rack in open roasting pan. Pierce skin with sharp skewer at 1½" intervals. Roast at 425 deg. F. 1 hr. Carefully tip off all accumulated fat. Sprinkle skin with salt. Cover bird with tent of foil. Reduce heat to 300 deg. F. for 4½ hrs. longer or until drumsticks will move easily in thigh joint. But every hour rub all upper skin with cut side of half orange, squeezing the orange to be sure juice covers all skin. This gives dark gold crisp finish.

Black and White Ensembles Today's Top Scene Stealers

By Reba & Bonnie Churchill

Quick, Watson, the camera! The fashion evidence is clear black and white ensembles are today's top scene stealers. The pant-dress, worn by actress Sherry Boucher, features bold, "jail bird" stripes that softly cling to the figure when worked in wool jersey.

The combination of inverted front pleat, wide leg openings and long zip back make for an easy "get away." Also capturing prime interest are a frilly, organdy jabot and a high-peaked Sherlock Holmes cap. The latter's twin-brim design detects a trend-in-the-making.

Another way to break into the style spotlight is via dramatic accents. In this instance, it's designer Margie Webb's adaptation of an avant-garde tuxedo shirt. The formal "stuff shirt," precision collar and fastidious bow tie are the perfect foil for the dress' tent shape. Balancing the exaggerated neckline are deep-cuffed sleeves that slant diagonally up the arm. Completing the total look is a wide-brimmed high-crown chapeau that repeats the grosgrain trim of the collar — without tipping it's a copy of a pampas hat!

Also casting its shadow on the fashion trail is a two-faced harlequin print. Front view, its high neckline, long sleeves, prim fit belies the dress' swinging back silhouette. This features a peekaboo opening, bow-belt and an Empire skirt. Super sleuth Sherry, who appears in the Universal TV film, "World Premiere: 'Prescription Murder'," stresses the diamond pattern with matching umbrella and flip-brim hat. The addition of a diamond lapel watch is another way to track down a complaint.

Husband's Idea of Fun Not Too Ridiculous

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night I walked past the bathroom and there was my husband, sitting on the rim of the tub shaving his legs. I was pretty shocked at this sight and asked him what in the world he was doing. He replied, "I don't think the hair would look very good under my nylon hose."

ANN LANDERS

Ann, I just couldn't believe my ears. I asked him when he planned to wear nylon hose. "Oh, tonight," he answered. "I'm in a little skit the lodge is giving. Tonight is a dress rehearsal. I'm Carmen." With that he reached for the artificial rose on the sink, put it between his teeth and began to do a Spanish dance, using his partial plate and a shoehorn as castanets.

He looked so utterly ridiculous that I walked into the bedroom and slammed the door. He left without saying goodbye so he is aware of my feelings. Now I need to know if I should insist he drop out of the skit. I hate to see him make a jackass of himself. The skit will be given before lodge members and their families only, but there are about 200 of us. Please wire collect. — MRS. CARMEN.

DEAR MRS.: If this is your husband's idea of fun, don't knock it, honey. I've heard from many wives who would be mighty pleased if their husbands changed hobbies with yours. Go to the meeting and laugh — if it kills you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please rearrange this letter and make it printable. I need your advice but I can't take a chance on having your answer come to the house.

I am 17 years old and have already gone to bed with so many guys that I cannot even remember all their names. I am not beautiful and my personality is on the quiet side, but I manage to attract boys and men of all ages. I never plan on going to bed with them, but it seems like I always wind up there.

Whenever a guy says a decent word to me I think I owe him whatever he asks for. I even find myself giving in to creeps just so they'll stop pestering me. I also give in to the pitiful types who don't appeal to me just because I feel sorry for them. I figure nobody else would and they must feel rejected. At times I feel I'm just too kind hearted for my own good. Other times I have a feeling I'm not too normal.

Please give me some help. — EVERYBODY'S GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: You are plenty sick and you need more help than I can give you. Talk to your school counsellor about therapy through a mental health clinic if you can't afford private psychiatric care. And get a physical check-up at once. Such promiscuity can lead to all kinds of physical problems.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are having a Bar Mitzvah supper for our son. I enclosed RSVP cards with each invitation. Several people have not answered. Would it be proper to telephone them or should I assume they aren't coming?

Some of the people who have not responded have college educations. How come they don't know better? — M. L. PITTSBURGH.

DEAR M.L.: Manners are not taught in college. By all means telephone the guests who have not responded and ask if they plan to come. This is the best way to protect yourself against winding up with 12 extra pounds of chopped liver.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS HARRY JONES

Jones – Fitzgerald

Suzanne Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Fitzgerald, Belleville, and Thomas Harry Jones, Brockville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones, Arnprior, were married by Rev. Allan Lauder in Christ Church, Nov. 25, 1967, at 1 p.m. John C. Withers was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length semi-fitted gown of white satin - backed brocade in bridal rose pattern edged in silver. It featured a high neckline and low back with two cathedral length streamers falling from a bow. A headdress of clustered organza petals and crystals held her elbow length bouffant net veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses, pink carnations and ivy.

Miss Shirley Brewster, maid of honor, wore a floor length dress of berry red velvet with long bell sleeves and square neckline. Her berry red velvet headpiece was similar to that of the bride and she carried a basket of white and pink mums. Attired identically to the maid of honor were the bridesmaids, Mary Agnes Fitzgerald, sister of the bride, and Sandra Fitzgerald, twin sister of the bride.

Ross McLean, Arnprior, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Jim Lang, Belleville and Dominic Deda, Renfrew.

The bride's mother was attired in a chocolate brown dress of lace over wool crepe with brown accessories and a corsage of tangerine and yellow rosebuds. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink two-piece Bellestta dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

On their return the couple will live at Apt. 4, Shoreview Terrace, Maitland, Ont.

Divorce Reform In Sight

OTTAWA (CP)—Little appears to stand in the way of the easy-speed overhaul of Canada's divorce laws within a few months.

The government plans to introduce in the Commons next week a resolution that will precede a divorce reform bill to be introduced later.

Justice Minister Trudeau has assured the Commons it is the government's intention to get the bill approved in principle before Christmas.

As a government bill, it will automatically receive powerful support from Liberal MPs although a free vote has been promised. And there's no sign of serious objection from opposition members.

Both factors point to a fairly easy ride through the Commons for the bill, which will greatly broaden grounds for divorce. The basic ground now is adultery.

Informants say the reform bill will largely follow the June recommendations of the all-party Ste-Commons committee on divorce. New grounds will probably include desertion, wilful non-support, cruelty and evidence of magistrate breakdown such as alcoholism.

The act may also make other changes to make divorce easier in the first major overhaul of divorce legislation in a century.

Once in the Commons, the bill may undergo some cross-fire on broadening the grounds. There 'is a group that prefers marriage breakdown as the prime ground for divorce, rather than the listing of specific grounds as the bill is expected to do.

If the bill wins speedy approval in Parliament, there appears to be no reasons to delay its proclamation as law promptly.

At moment it becomes law, it is thought many thousands will be able to take advantage of it.

Robert McCleave, Conservative MP for Halifax, estimates there are 60,000 cases of desertion that would qualify for divorce under the reform bill. He was one of the group that kept the issue alive in Parliament through the years.

Parliament will be under more than usual pressure to adopt the bill because of the all-party makeup of the committee that produced it, and because it is the result of exhaustive study by the committee, which feels its recommendations are a fair representation of public opinion.

La Marsh Defends Senate's Ability

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh and Richard Bell (PC—Carleton) clashed over the value of the Senate Thursday night as the Commons debated a bill to establish a corporation for administration of all national museums.

When the bill came up for second reading in the Commons,a six months after its passage by the Senate, Mr. Bell urged Miss LaMarsh to refer it to a Commons committee for study.

He said he has "the gravest possible reservations" about the bill because it would lump the National Gallery together with scientific and technical institutions under one administration.

Miss LaMarsh said the same no need for committee study. The Senate had examined the bill thoroughly and she had always been taught, from earliest childhood, to regard her elders as possessing more wisdom.

Mr. Bell said the bill got only "cursory examination" in the Senate, as did all other bills. If the Senate could not do better, it would forfeit the right to be considered a chamber of Parliament.

Miss LaMarsh said the board of trustees to be set up to administer all national museums, including the National Gallery, would be a board, "not of experts, but of generally cultivated people from across the country."

Mr. Bell said the National Gallery is one of Canada's most precious institutions, and he feared for its future if it was to be placed under an administration that had to manage entirely different kinds of institutions.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Roy Barton spent two weeks recently with her son Bruce, Mrs. Barton and family at Grand Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Petherick and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Morton, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jackson, in Oshawa.

Mrs. Essie Reid, Mrs. Percy Reid and Mrs. Walter Reid, of Rylstone and Mrs. Walter Watson of Petherick's Corners, attended a trousseau tea at the home of Mrs. Carl Sine, at Foxboro and Saturday evening in honor of her daughter Kathy Sine, a bride of early December. Mrs. Essie Reid, grandmother of the bridegroom-to-be, poured tea.

House OKs 5-year Test of Hanging Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — The paths of two unpopular figures crossed in the House of Commons Thursday. The hangman was pushed another step along the road to extinction, but the tax-collector reminded Canadians of his big, hungry and inevitable presence.

The Commons gave final approval, by 105 votes to 70, to a government bill limiting the death penalty to murderers of policemen and prison guards for a five-year trial period. The vote was held free of party lines.

This important step was overshadowed, however, by Finance Minister Sharp's supplementary budget, which announced increases of five per cent in the basic personal exemptions and of 10 per cent in liquor and tobacco taxes.

On third reading of the bill to limit capital punishment, 73 Liberals were joined in support of it by 17 New Democrats and 15 Conservatives, including former prime minister John Diefenbaker and the new Opposition leader, Robert Stanfield.

Voting against the bill were 47 Conservatives, 15 Liberals, six Creditistes and two Social Credit members.

The Liberal opponents included one member of the cabinet, Northern Affairs Minister Laing. State Secretary Judy LaMarsh had opposed the b/ll on second reading but voted for it this time.

Opponents of the bill made two last-ditch attempts to amend it on its ninth day of debate in the Commons.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) proposed that the death penalty be kept for murderers of children under 16. His amendment was beaten 109 to 68.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) moved an amendment to re-open the whole question of what murder cases should continue to require 'the death penalty. It was beaten 114 to 37.

Mr. Churchill's attempt to amend the death-penalty bill was supported by 45 other Conservatives, 14 back-bench Liberals, seven Creditistes and one Social Credit MP. But Mr. Diefenbaker and 14 other Conservatives, along with 76 Liberals and 17 New Democrats, stood against it.

Mr. McCleave had the support of 45 other Conservatives, six Liberals, four Creditistes and one Social Credit member. He was opposed by 80 Liberals, 17 power to commute death sentences and has used it liberally in recent years. There has been no hanging in Canada since Dec. 11, 1962.

Timbrell Report Promised Quickly

TORONTO (CP) — A judicial inquiry into the placement and removal of two foster sisters from the Preston house of Mrs. Arthur Timbrell concluded Thursday with a lawyer saying Mrs. Timbrell still wants to adopt the sisters.

The inquiry, which opened with public hearings in Preston and concluded with 1½ days of lawyers' submissions in Toronto, heard Thomas O'Neill, lawyer for Mrs. Timbrell, 43, year-old mother of nine, say she still wants to adopt Peggy, 5, and Valerie, 3.

Mr. O'Neill suggested the whole affair might be a good argument for the appointment of an ombudsman for Ontario. He said Mrs. Timbrell had tried to get in touch with persons in authority such as Prime Minister Pearson but "no one would talk to her."

Premier John Robarts ordered the inquiry, presided over by Judge Harry Walsbee, after a fracas occurred outside the Timbrell house Sept. 28 when Waterloo County Children's Aid officials came to remove the children.

In concluding the inquiry, Judge Walsberg said he would report to John Yaremko, family services minister, quickly.

"I will try to prepare the report as quickly as I can," the county court judge said. "I don't think matters of this sort should be in abeyance."

MP Asks for Check On Bell Practices

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP John M. Reid said Thursday the newly-created federal department of consumer and corporate affairs should look into charges of alleged discriminatory pricing practices of the Bell Telephone Co.

The charges were levelled at the Commons transport committee by DPC Systems Ltd., a Toronto firm of management consultants.

DPC President H. S. Gellman and manager M. V. Holt also told the committee a proposed government bill giving Bell the power to invest in companies other than communications common carriers would enable the company to acquire ownership or control of companies in the electronics, communications equipment or electrical manufacturing industries and in any other industry chosen by Bell.

This would enable Bell to establish an effective monopoly in virtually all areas of communications service and equipment, the DPC brief said.

"The effect of this could be a further deterioration in the communications services and equipment now available in Canada, particularly in the areas of computer data transmission and other advanced communications systems."

Bell has used its existing powers on occasions to restrict the development of advanced communications systems here through "discriminatory pricing practices to eliminate competitive offerings," the brief said.

Some Contents Saved From Burning Home

Neighbors fought a losing battle Thursday morning as they spent two hours trying to extinguish a fire three miles east of Stirling.

The blaze broke out about 9.00 a.m. this morning at the home of Francis Masterson and his neighbors and others tried to put out the fire themselves. They waited two hours before calling the fire department from Tweed.

The two - storey home was completely destroyed, although some articles were removed from the bottom floor.

Mr. Masterson, the owner, lost another home two years ago, also in a fire. He had just finished putting aluminum siding on his second residence.

It is believed that the blaze started in a wood stove. The house was insured.

Sunday School Lesson

What Does God Require?

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A good doctor not only knows what medicines to prescribe, he also knows what questions to ask to try to get at the root of his patient's illness. A clergyman is judged not only by the answers he gives, but also by the questions he raises. Clergymen are sometimes accused of answering questions no one is asking. This may mean they are out of touch with life. It may also mean that people are not asking the right questions.

The Hebrew prophets not only disturbed people by the answers they gave, but often by the questions they raised. Micah's question, "What does the Lord require of you?" is a case in point. (Micah 6:8 RSV) Not many people were asking that question seriously. Many who did, were giving the wrong answer. It remained for Micah to give the finest answer to that question in Old Testament times.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 3: "What God Requires Of Man," Micah 1 through 3:6.

Many wrong answers have been given to this question. Many people in the ancient world thought their gods, or gods, required human sacrifice. Thousands of tragic victims have been sacrificed to appease the imagined anger of a pagan idol. The story of Abraham's near sacrifice of Isaac in Genesis 22 is as much a repudiation of human sacrifice as a test of Abraham's faith. It is to the everlasting credit of Judaism that in a world where human sacrifice was widely practiced, it led people away from such an inhuman practice to a higher concept of what God required.

A great step forward was achieved when animals were sacrificed instead of people. The stones of thousands of ancient altars have run red with the blood of slain animals. This practice continued even into the Christian era, and posed a real problem for early Christians who felt they should not eat meat sold in the market-places if the blood of the animals had been offered as a sacrifice to idols. (I Corinthians 8)

Animal sacrifice played a large role in temple worship in Micah's day. By this means people sought to symbolize their own sacrifice to God. The trouble was that many worshipers put the whole responsibility on the priests. If a priest sacrificed an animal for their sins, they could go back into life and live the same greedy, selfish way they had before the sacrifice.

Micah knew that all the sacrificed animals in the world could not take the place of a contrite heart. A God of righteousness demands repentance, not appeasement. God wants pride, and lust, and greed, and malice to be sacrificed, not dumb animals. No one said this better than Micah. In very graphic language, he asked what pleases the Lord? Thousands of sacrificed lambs? Ten thousand rivers of oil poured on altars? Human sacrifice? In an unforgettable statement, Micah brushed all these aside. One thing only pleases the Lord. A person who does justly, loves kindness, and walks in humble reverence with God. (Micah 6:8)

Some religious leaders today have changed Micah's question. A new school of religious thought has come into prominence. It does not ask, "What does the Lord require of you?" but "What does the situation require of you?" The approach of these writers has been called the "new morality." It is also called "situation ethics." What is right or wrong, they say, is determined by the situation. What does the situation require of people? Some writers answer, "Love alone." Men, they say, do not need rules. They do not need absolute standards. Love will enable them to know the right thing to do in every situation.

These leaders are right in insisting that persons come ahead of principles. They are right in saying that right conduct must be related to actual situations, and must be motivated by love. But they overestimate people's ability to love wisely and unselfishly. A person may want to show love, and not know the best way to do it. People still need principles as guide-lines, and those principles must reflect the character of God. This is why people need to be pushed back to Micah's question, "What does the Lord require of you?"

YMCA Will Conduct Fitness Testing Clinic

How many will make the grade?

"Adults in the Quinte area are going to have an opportunity to determine accurately their level of physical fitness," says Glen Manthorne, men's program director at the local YMCA.

The question will be answered on Saturday, Dec. 9, when the YMCA is bringing an expert physical fitness testing team from the Ottawa YW-YMCA to conduct a Fitness Testing Clinic.

Under the direction of G. Donald Noble, physical director of the Ottawa YMCA, the test will start with a brief medical examination and then participants will proceed through 10 stations designed to test flexibility, agility, strength, balance, power and endurance.

The self conscious will be glad to hear that there will be no competition and the results will be known only to the participant and the director. The test results will be explained through personal consultation.

Registrations are already coming in from those interested and since the limited facilities restrict the number to 30, Mr. Manthorne urges those wishing to take part to register as soon as possible.

Male Wolf Shot on Huff's Island

A large male wolf has been shot in the Huff's Island area of Amelianburg township, just six miles south of Belleville.

The wolf was shot by Robert Weese, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, while driving his corn picker combine. Mr. Weese has been carrying a high powered rifle on the combine since a wolf approached to within a few feet of his machine a week ago.

The township annual financial report shows that an amount of $1,144 has been paid out to farmers in livestock losses this year.

Most of the livestock losses were sheep, believed killed by dogs, but it is not thought some of the losses may have been as the result of wolves.

Council Candidates Outline Their Priorities for Belleville

JACK ALLIN

A many years veteran of municipal politics with long experience both on city council and school board, Alderman Jack Allin is again offering himself for re-election.

Ald. Allin is a former mayor of the city (1950), and was also chairman of the public school board. After a few years absence he returned to city council as alderman six years ago.

He is in favor of a complete community centre for use by all age groups. But he wants to get complete details and costs for Municipal Board approval or for a vote by the people.

He considers the most pressing need in the city is the elimination of what he calls the "deathtrap" where North Front Street narrows from four to two lanes. Completion of the Riverside Drive is felt to be another need as is a stepped up road and sidewalk repair program.

Ald. Allin's stand on the Dundas Street project is to build the river bridge first with the "skyway" grade separation over the CPR tracks to follow after consultation with the Ontario highways department and the C.P.R.

DOUGLAS BOYLE

Alderman Douglas Boyle "stands on his record" as city councillor in his bid for re-election as Alderman in Monday's municipal election.

Alderman Boyle headed the senior citizens and low rental housing committee resulting in 60 rental houses and a multi-apartment senior citizens' housing unit being erected.

He is in favor of a community centre complex comprising skating and rink facilities, together with auditorium and believes that successful application can be made to senior governments for increased grants.

Improvement of the quality of water, provision for an ultimate supply of water and extension of the sewage disposal system is considered by Ald. Boyle as a pressing city issue.

Next in line is considered to be new industrial assessment and improvement and up-dating of services such as sidewalks, roads and sewers.

He believes all phases of the Dundas Street project must be done to avoid complete stagnation of downtown traffic, but is prepared to accept the traffic consultants' report as to phasing. This means the over-pass first, rebuilding of Dundas street and then bridging of the river.

GEORGE BROWN

George C. Brown, with three previous terms as city alderman, is again on the comeback trail after an absence of two years from city council.

A native of the city, Mr. Brown was first on council about 20 years ago, then, in his supervisory capacity with Ontario Hydro, was moved to the Ottawa area.

Mr. Brown's stand on the arena-community centre project is that while he feels such a facility is necessary for a progressive city, he feels that construction must wait for the future. He would like to see more accurate cost estimates and other details. He doesn't approve of the "Quonset" type rink for the fairgrounds.

Industrial expansion, feels Mr. Brown, is the most pressing city need. He says this is absolutely necessary to reduce the tax rate. He says there should be more co-operation between the city and senior governments and feels that overchanges should take a broader outlook in their advertising so as to entice more outside business to the city.

He feels the Dundas Street river bridge should be constructed within the near future and claims the present overpass over the CPR is "ridiculous" and unnecessary.

T. A. CARRUTHERS

A three-year member of city council and local dry cleaning plant operator and businessman, Alderman Thomas Carruthers is offering himself for another two year term.

A life resident of the city, he is a director on the Belleville Industrial Commission and as a member of the urban renewal committee would like to see this project carried forward.

He feels the proposed arena-community centre is "very desirable" but says the project requires much more investigation as to location, cost and grant structure. Also he feels that renovation of the present arena should be fully investigated.

In his opinion the No. 1 pressing matter for the city is urban renewal of the downtown area to revitalize the commercial assessment. Industry expansion is needed to increase the industrial tax structure and effect a better balance between industrial, commercial and residential assessment. The third need, in Mr. Carruthers' opinion is completion of the official city plan.

"We must have a planned community for all phases of development," he says.

He feels the city should proceed immediately with the proposed Moira River bridge.

ENOS DAVID

Alderman Enos David, with many years experience on city council, public and high school boards, and other community organizations, is again a candidate for city council.

A retired businessman, Mr. David was owner and operator of David's Bakery for 22 years. He sold the business five years ago.

Mr. David was a member of the city public school board for eight years, and served on the high school board for two years. He was alderman from 1954 until 1956 and has been in council continuously since 1963. In other community endeavors he has served as chairman of the United Appeal, as member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Horticultural Society and Canadian Club.

New industry is given as the most pressing city need.

The next pressing issues are felt to be the new Dundas Street bridge which he feels should be proceeded with now as the first phase of the overall project, and urban renewal for the downtown area.

RICHARD ELLIS

Although a newcomer to the aldermanic field, Richard Ellis, owner of Richard Ellis Printing, is no stranger in Belleville, having long taken an interest in community affairs.

Among his community interests are the YMCA of which he is a director and the United Community Services.

A devotee of sports, he has a particularly soft spot in his heart for minor sports activities and lists himself as sponsor of a variety of teams in the hockey, softball and bowling fields.

As a sportsman he declared himself definitely in favor of the arena - community centre project — with the proviso that it be properly managed.

He lists more industry as the city's most pressing need, followed by a stepped up street repair program and provision of sewers in unserviced areas.

What about the Dundas bridge concept? "I'm for the Dundas Street river bridge" he says "but I want more details before deciding on the railway overpass."

NORMAN HICKSON

Mr. Hickson first came to Belleville in 1939, then was out of the city for a number of years, returning five and a half years ago as the City Hotel owner. He also owns the Havelock Hotel.

He is a member of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, belongs to the Masonic Order and is a member of Eastminster United Church.

As a sports enthusiast and sponsor of several sports teams, he is fully in favor of the large community centre which he says could be used for many functions besides winter sports.

At the same time he feels the most pressing city need is to stop spending unnecessary money, and keep the tax rate down. The second most pressing city need in his view is to encourage industry to increase the city's prosperity. Special attention to Hillcrest and Foster Ward to promote better living conditions, and street repairs are necessary.

Mr. Hickson is in favor of the Dundas Street river bridge — but not the skyway over the CPR tracks which he says the city cannot afford at this time.

ROBIN JEFFREY

The lone woman candidate in this year's aldermanic contest, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey is a 10 - year resident of Belleville and coming here from St. Thomas, a sister railway town, finds herself "right at home" in this city.

She is vice-president of the University Women's Club and of the United Community services and served for two years on the women's advisory board of the Ontario Government department of economics and development.

Her stand on the arena - community centre project is that there must be a complete review of the subject based on adequate and detailed information from the parks and recreation committee.

In her view the most pressing issues in the city are the provision of running water in every home and sanitary sewers on every street; make the city attractive for industrial development and urban renewal, all in that order.

She is in favor of all phases of the Dundas Street project — with construction of the river bridge as the first phase.

GERALD JOYCE

Another newcomer among the aldermanic candidates is local realtor Gerald Joyce who nevertheless has been active in many phases of community effort.

For the past two years he has been on the public school board. He is a director of the chamber of commerce, has served on the Belleville Industrial Commission and is past president of the Belleville Real Estate Board.

As a supporter of amateur sport he has over the past seven years sponsored several softball, baseball and hockey teams.

Mr. Joyce is in favor of a community centre properly planned and properly managed and is convinced senior governments must be called upon for more substantial grants.

A "positive approach" to city problems is considered the most pressing city matter.

Mr. Joyce also feels the city must service industrial land at once if industry is to be attracted and says immediate steps must be taken to alleviate the serious traffic problem in the downtown area.

He is in favor of a bridge across the river at Dundas Street.

ARTHUR KEEGAN

A long time veteran in municipal politics, Alderman Arthur Keegan is again offering himself as an aldermanic candidate.

Ald. Keegan was member of city council for several terms many years ago and two years ago when the two year term for all municipal candidates came into effect, was successful in a come-back.

He feels that a public subscription campaign should be commenced to raise money for the arena and failing a favorable response the question should be put to the electors. If the subscription response is favorable the balance could be made up by the city.

New industry to increase the industrial assessment ratio is considered by Mr. Keegan as the most pressing city need. Storm sewers for Hillcrest and sanitary sewers from Adam Street to the disposal plant are considered a "must".

He is in favor of the Dundas St. river bridge only at this time with the arena project next on the list.

E. ARNOLD ORR

A retired educationist with 40 years experience as high school teacher and principal and former superintendent of secondary schools for the Bay of Quinte High School District, E. Arnold Orr is offering himself for election to city council.

A native of this city and married to a local girl, Mr. Orr is a graduate of Mc-Master University and taught mathematics in secondary schools in Ridgetown and Windsor before going to Sault Ste. Marie as high school principal. He returned to Belleville in 1954.

He is a former member of the Belleville Industrial Commission and is a member of the advisory board committee of Loyalist College. Last March he was awarded the Sir Mackenzie Bowell Award for outstanding service in education.

One of the two items which Mr. Orr places high on the priority list is the proposed Dundas Street bridge which he believes essential to the solution of the city's traffic strangulation.

He also feels a realistic assessment of the city's needs is required and that city council, in co-operation with its appointed officials, must do some long range planning on its capital works program.

IAN REILLY

Although a newcomer as a candidate in the municipal aldermanic field, Mr. Ian Reilly is no tyro in the art of catching votes at election time.

In civilian life, Mr. Reilly is widely known in the Belleville area as a labor organizer and twice in recent years has allowed his name to stand as New Democratic party candidate in senior government elections.

Now, having decided to make a try for city council, Mr. Reilly has made clear the stand he takes on civic matters now before the public eye.

He is completely in favor of the large community centre as opposed to the smaller sized rink. He feels more industry is the most pressing need in the community. "We need any and all the industry" he says. The second need is a halt to rapidly rising property taxes and the third a stepped-up street repair program.

He also feels the city needs the proposed new Dundas Street bridge with approaches, as soon as they can be built.

PAUL RUSSELL

Offering himself as an aldermanic candidate for the first time is Paul Russell, young Belleville lawyer who is a partner in the law firm of Temple and Russell.

A native of this city, Mr. Russell has lived his entire life in Belleville and this fall made an unsuccessful bid in the provincial election as Liberal candidate for Hastings riding.

He takes a keen interest in sports and recreation and acts as coach of one of the local softball teams.

As a sports enthusiast he feels construction of a complete community centre for use by all age groups and for varied activities a desirable project.

In fact he lists the proposed community centre as the most pressing need in the city, followed by the acquiring of new industry and construction of the Dundas Street bridge.

A keen sports and recreation enthusiast, he has taken an active interest in minor sports in the city. During the past summer he acted as coach for one of the local boys' softball teams.

He is married with three children and is one of the youngest aldermanic candidates feels it is time to "put youth in council."

BRUCE SMITH

Attempting a come-back in municipal politics following an absence of 12 years, Belleville businessman Bruce H. Smith is an aldermanic candidate in Monday's election.

Mr. Smith served four years on council following election in 1952 and during his term served as chairman of the public works, arena and welfare committees.

He has served eight years on the city parks board and is a long time member of the Moira River Conservation Authority on which he served terms as chairman.

He is in favor of a new community centre.

Most pressing needs in the city in Mr. Smith's opinion are two new bridges over the Moira River — at Dundas Street and at the top of Pinnacle Street, and new industry.

He opposes the proposed "skyway" grade separation over the CPR tracks claiming this is unnecessary.

Mr. Smith is wholeheartedly in favor of the proposed arena — community centre complex for the Belleville fairgrounds which he says is badly needed in the city. Only through the construction of such facilities, can the city expect to progress, he says.

KENNETH SODEN

Although earlier announcing his retirement Alderman Kenneth Soden will again offer himself as alderman with the view of carrying out what he feels is the most important issue in the city — that of a new community centre.

He says it is only fitting that the electors be given an opportunity to express their pleasure or displeasure on his stand.

First elected to council two years ago Alderman Soden has served on the parks and recreation committee and also on the arena committee.

Pressing issues are the installation of increased preliminary treatment facilities and construction of a secondary treatment plant to improve Bay of Quinte water and place the city in a better position to provide more serviced land.

He favors the Dundas Street project — with the three phases in the order proposed by consulting engineers Dumas and Smith. This calls for construction of the railway overpass as the first phase.

Installation of crosswalks at Campbell and Front and Campbell and Dundas Streets are felt to be a must in the interests of pedestrian safety.

DONALD WILLIAMS

A resident of Belleville for the past 45 years, Mr. Williams is sales representative for Mutual Life and has taken an active interest in community work.

As chairman of the city parks and recreation committee and of the city council arena committee he supports a new community centre.

"City council has voted in favor of the community centre; the recreation commission is in favor; the special committee is in favor — therefore I am in favor of a community centre," he says.

The three most pressing needs in the city (not necessarily in that order) are the reconstruction of West Bridge Street hill, sewers, bridges and more recreational facilities.

He is also in favor of the Dundas Street river bridge and railway overpass project and again is prepared to accept the advice of experts.

"Our city engineer has recommended the Dundas Street project and also our consulting engineers," he said.

He goes along with the consulting engineers' recommendation that the railway overpass should be constructed first.

I know, I know, its all cup clap-trap, as one guy puts it, but when hard-boiled hockey fans grab a telephone and ask for the National League scores, it's plain there's something on their mind, other than taxes, elections and the price of tiger milk in Bengal.

Perhaps Tiger-Cat blood is thicker than Saskatchewan Roughriders water but of late, very late, I've noticed a decided trend to the Tabbies on the part of football buffs who used to prey at the altars of any club but the finalists.

A lot of them have been reading the public prints stories spewing out from Hamilton and Regina and more recently from Ottawa where the East and West forces are in hiveoue and a host of desk-chair generals are calling the battle strategy.

Of course a lot of the talk is centred on George Reed, the crushing "unstoppable" Regina rusher but Tiger supporters here are either "whistling by the graveyard" or believing tripes from Hamilton that "we'll stop him, but good."

Others believe the more powerful Western offence will more than cope with the play-making tactics of the Tiger front four-some Barrow, Mosca, Locklin and Dave Viti with middle guard Ron Stewart there for extra measure and possible mayhem.

This possibly is an echo or offshoot of what the Stampeders Terry Evanshen, the country's top football player, said, Evanshen in Ottawa the other night to receive his award said he likes the Roughriders over the Tiger-Cats because of "man-to-man superiority."

He summed it up this way, "They the Roughriders, have a great offensive punch and plays they hardly used against us. They seem to rise to the occasion. They've got the best hits in the country. They just come at you — and keep coming."

But off to another tack, "uneasy is the head that wears a crown" or the toga of a football coach. Ottawa Rough Riders Frank Clair, is finding out the truth of the statement.

Last year he led the most exciting team to victories in front of record crowds. He saw the team humiliated by the hated foemen from the jungle lairs of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats. That was the straw that broke the backs of a lot of the Ottawa fans.

He was subjected to the attacks of armchair quarterbacks and others who wear the halos of experts, a lot of whom were more at home discussing the cost of living than masterminding a football team.

Now the Rough Rider gridiron Caesar is looking up at his latest critics with an "Et tu Brutus." It seems the Rough Riders board of directors have taken up the criticism cudgels in an enclosing assault.

Even Sam Berger, president of the Rough Riders, is quoted as saying "We were out-coached more than we were out-played." Other directors took up the cry but kept their names out of the prints.

There was even some talk of the club buying up Clair's five-year (four to go) contract for $100,000.

"That," opined an unnamed owner of another club, "is so much hooey, as far as meaning it is concerned. Two years ago they wanted to buy his last year with $25,000, but later they wouldn't pay it. Then he got into the Grey Cup and they couldn't fire him. They loved him then — and gave him a five year contract."

To more pleasant things, I hear they are quoting the Tiger Cats three to eight points favorites up Ottawa way.

The limb? Neutral. But I wouldn't exactly shed a tear if the Cats win. As a matter of fact the "change" would do me good.

Ontario Leads Tournament

FREEPORT, Bahamas (CP-AP) — Two Ontario teams held both the best-ball low gross and net leads Thursday in the Canada-Grand Bahama invitational team tournament which got under way at King's Inn Golf Club Tuesday.

A team from the Markland Woods Golf Club of Toronto, led by professional Al Balding, maintained its gross lead with a two-day low of 133.

The Alex Shields foursome from the Bowmanville, Ont., Golf Club mapped an opening-round three-way tie to take the low net lead with a 123 after 36 holes.

Forty-one teams are competing in the four-ball, 54-hole tournament. Each team includes one pro and three amateurs.

Big "M", Walton Pace Leafs 3-3 Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Happiness for Oakland Seals is a defenceman named Gerry Odrowski.

Playing in his 15th National Hockey League game this season, Odrowski scored two goals Thursday night to lead Oakland Seals to an upset 3-1 Western Division victory over Philadelphia Flyers.

The win marked the first road victory for the Seals in 11 games and boosted Odrowski's season goal total to three. In their previous 10 road games, Oakland lost nine and gained a 2-2 tie with Philadelphia.

In other games Thursday night, Frank Mahovlich and Mike Walton each scored a goal and an assist for Toronto as the Leafs tied 3-3 with Detroit and Montreal Canadiens battled to a 1-1 tie with the stubborn Minnesota North Stars in an East-West interlocking contest.

The Philadelphia-Oakland game was a David and Goliath contest. The Flyers were first in the West going into the contest and Oakland was languishing in fifth place.

Odrowski opened the scoring for Oakland at 17:37 of the first period when each team had a man in the penalty box. He slapped in Billy Harris's rebound.

At 7:20 of the second period, Gene Gauthier of Philadelphia fumbled a pass and Odrowski skated in alone to beat goaltender Bernie Parent with a 15-footer. Larry Cahan got the other Oakland goal late in the second period on a 55-foot screen shot.

Odrowski, 29, of Trout Creek, Ont., played four years in the Western Hockey League with San Francisco and California before coming to Oakland this year. He earlier played three years in the NHL with Detroit Red Wings in 1960-63.

Walton's goal was his 13th of the year for Toronto and it moved him into the NHL's top 10 scorers with 20 points. It came on a rebound after a slapshot by Duane Rupp of Toronto struck goaltender Roy Edwards in the head and he fell to the ice.

Edwards suffered a five-stitch gash on his nose and left the game. He was replaced by George Gardner.

Detroit had taken a 3-2 lead less than two minutes before when Gary Jarett scored his fifth goal of the season at 11:58 of the first period. Toronto had scored two quick goals within a 34-second span.

In Montreal, Ted Taylor scored the tying goal for Minnesota with five minutes to play. He converted Bob McCord's pass into the net and ended the Stars' five-game losing streak.

Yvan Cournoyer scored his 10th goal of the season for Montreal in the opening period and goaltender Gump Worsley nursed the 1-0 lead until Taylor connected for the North Stars, who have played six consecutive games against clubs in the NHL's established Eastern Division.

FRANK MAHOVLICH

Campbell On NHL

"An Illegal Operation"

TORONTO (CP) — President Clarence Campbell said Thursday the National Hockey League "may still be found to be an illegal operation."

Mr. Campbell, in a speech to the Osgoode Hall Legal and Literary Society, was explaining the financial and legal problems created by expansion to six new teams, all in the U.S., this year.

He said U.S. anti-trust laws against inter-state commerce have so far bypassed major professional sports.

When expansion was announced in June, 1965, the nature of the controlling organization had to be determined.

"We consulted legal counsel from many points, over and over again. In the end, we made no changes in the constitution formed in 1947."

He said the NHL would remain unincorporated in matters regarding the playing of hockey. But a corporation would be formed to handle related business affairs, such as promotion.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mike Walton, the peppery little centre for Toronto Maple Leafs, scored a goal and an assist Thursday night to move into the National Hockey League's top 10 scorers.

Walton, a major factor in the Leafs' 3-3 tie with Detroit Red Wings Thursday, has 20 points on 13 goals and seven assists. Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks still leads the scorers with 28 points on 19 goals and nine assists.

The only other new face to enter the top 10 Thursday was Dean Prentice of Detroit Red Wings. He has nine goals and 10 assists for 19 points.

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal moved up a notch in the list as the Canadiens tied 1-1 with Minnesota North Stars. He got a goal Thursday to bring his season total to 21 on 10 goals and 11 assists.

Mo-Hawks At Guelph

This Could Be Rough, Tough

Belleville Mo-Hawks hit the road for the first of two consecutive road games tonight with the hope of bringing home a few much - needed points.

They tangle with the rousing Regals in Guelph tonight in what could be a rough one, then visit their high - flying buddies, the Kingston Aces on Tuesday next.

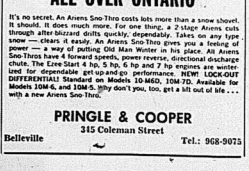
"I don't want to change a winning lineup and I was quite happy with their effort Tuesday. We could have had more goals but the team was hitting and that's one thing we have to do," Crawford said yesterday.



"That third line of Ralph Plate between Bob McAlpine and Mickey Chervesky was really checking and hitting, especially in the third period, and I was also pleased with the penalty - killing work of Wayne McConnell and "Shaker" Baker. We'll give them all they want up there Friday, especially if Bernie Gould, Bob Taylor and Greg Marchen continue to hit. Bernie played a whale of a game Tuesday, didn't he?"

Larry Holmes will make his second start in goal and can expect a busier night than here Tuesday when he faced but 25 shots.

City Athletes To Be Honored At Ontario Centennial Dinner!

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Monday, December 4th will be an outstanding milestone among the championship trails of nearly 800 Ontario amateur athletes.

They will be honored at a dinner in the Bayside York Hotel, Toronto, where they will be presented with special Ontario medals for excellence in sport in Canada's centennial year.

The event has been labelled as the most ambitious undertaking by a provincial government in the history of Canadian sport.

Ten amateur athletes from this city will be among the noble 800.

There may be more by the time this edition goes to press.

Five of the city athletes to be honored are individual champions in their respective fields. The others are members of championship teams.

Among the youngest athletes present, if not the youngest, is Peter Calvert, 14, of the Belleville Archery Club, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffry Calvert, who won the all-Ontario title this year.

The only woman champion is a club-mate of Calvert's, Mrs. Floyd (Carol) Armstrong, senior women's Canadian champion who won her laurels in August 1967.

Four members of the Apollo Barbell Club, three of them individual champions, and their coach will be present.

Both these youngsters hold British Empire junior championships.

With them will go Ken Carr-Braint, Canada's national weightlifting coach, veteran mentor of Pan-American, British Empire and Olympics experience.

"I do not believe I will be in line for an award," Carr-Braint said "as coaches are not included in the honors list."

Hockey-wise the Kingston Aces 1966-67 Ontario senior champions get the honors nod. Included are Davy Jones and Pete Weston, both of this city.

The city will be represented by one team of champions, the Belleville Lawn Bowling Ontario "Colts" champions of the year.

"Colts" are lawn-bowlers who have had five or less years experience in the sport.

The team won the "trebles" title and includes Frank Worrell, skip; Owen Gray, vice-skip and Bob Semple, lead. The first two have been bowling three years, Mr. Semple, two years.

The ground rules for those receiving the medals are simple — or are they?

1. — The best Ontario athletes in their sports up to junior classification, chosen by officials of the governing associations.

2. — Ontario athletes who win a Canadian, international or world title anywhere in the world.

3. — Ontario athletes and athletes from anywhere in the world who win a Canadian, international or global championship in Ontario.

The only hockey champions to be honored are the Kingston Aces, the Varsity Blues, the Toronto Marlboros junior "A's" and the Toronto Butter Peeps who won the Centennial Midget Tournament held in Kingston.

Apparently, other than the Butter Peeps, no minor sports champions have been honored, at least to this writing.

After all, this city had the best peewee hockey team in Ontario last year, the Smith's Fuels.

"Goofy, But Won't Change"

Barwell "Superstitions" Pay Off!

OTTAWA (CP)—Gord Barwell of Saskatchewan Roughriders admits "it's a little goofy" but he won't miss a step in his superstitious routine before the Grey Cup game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday.

"I guess I'm very superstitious," said the 23-year-old Canadian offensive end. "There's this whole list of things I do and you never know if they help but you still do them anyway.

"One of the things is that I won't step on a yard stripe out at practice; I don't know why but I make an effort not to. Another one is that I won't let anybody help me put my sweater on."

With increasing experience and practice evident between the boyish-looking Barwell and quarterback Ron Lancaster, Barwell this season caught 30 passes for 753 yards and five touchdowns.

A former junior hockey player and high school track man—he ran the 100-yard dash in 9.9 at school—he was a key receiver in Saskatchewan's success in the WFC finals.

"Actually, there is something to it—and I'm not going to say what it is—that might give me away on a play, I know what it is and I'm trying to do something about it.

"But I guess I probably do it as well when I'm not going to be in on the play and maybe that helps fool people. It's the kind of thing I have to watch for from the defenders, too."

Not only won't he step on yard stripes at practice and refuse help putting on his sweater, but he'll faithfully help Ed Buchanan put on Buchanan's "lucky" wristband.

"I helped him once and we won and ever since then I've always helped him put it on."

Game time Saturday is 1 p.m. EST and it will be shown on the CBC and CTV national networks.

Riders held a 90-minute workout Thursday, running through formations and plays. The practice was closed. They also watched Hamilton films and will do the same today.

Hawks Defeat San Diego Rockets

The St. Louis Hawks beat the San Diego Rockets 129-87 at San Diego Thursday night in the only National Basketball Association scheduled.

Unbeaten Picton Blanks CFB

Goals usually come at a fast and furious pace in the OHA Intermediate hockey league — but not in Trenton last night.

Picton's league - leading Merchants got shutout goaltending from Tom O'Halloran to down the CFB Flyers 4-0.

Tonight Belleville Oil Kings visit Campbellford.

It was a 1-0 contest in the first period when Larry "Pocket" Pero scored for Picton at 9:33.

Picton held the slim margin until late in the third period before a trio of quickies ended the Flyers' hopes for an upset against the unbeaten Merchants.

Roland Berry made it 2-0 at 12:45, Fred James scored at 13:17 and Billy Hopkins iced the cake at 14:32.

CFB drew five of the game's nine minor penalties but none figured in the scoring.

In a pair of games this Sunday, Campbellford and Belleville meet in a two o'clock game in Tweed while Picton plays host to Napanee Trentiers in an evening contest.

Ontario Racing Strike!

WASHINGTON (CP)—The possibility of a racing strike in Ontario, where the new season is scheduled to open in April, has been voiced by E. P. Taylor.

The prominent Toronto breeder and owner, at a panel discussion of the Thoroughbred Racing Association on high taxes, also suggested New York state tracks could be hit a month before Ontario.

The association, which re-elected Taylor to the board of governors, ends its meeting Thursday.

Taylor's critical remarks about high provincial taxes were in line with general association sentiment as expressed by president Louis Lee Haggin who said the sport appeared for some time that the taxes on thoroughbred racing's pari mutuel sales are excessive."

Miss Rough Rider Grey Cup Queen!

OTTAWA (CP) — Miss Ottawa Rough Rider, 19-year-old Julie May Dizie was received with applause and cheering from a packed coronation pageant crowd Thursday as the became Miss Grey Cup, 1967.

The petite, blonde school teacher, tears glistening in the corners of her blue eyes, stepped springlity along a ramp to wave and smile at more than 1,000 admirers.

Retreating to the stage, the happy winner in her floating red chiffon cocktail dress was almost hidden from view as her competitors pressed to offer congratulations.

"I can't believe it's really me. Any one of the other wonderful girls could have won it," she said in an interview after the hour-long pageant.

Miss Toronto Argonaut, 18-year-old Sue Rance of Toronto, was an excited runner-up, who beamed and rushed to clasp hands with the judges' third choice, Miss Winnipeg Blue Bomber, Anne Zelenyj, 20.

Mayor Don Reid of Ottawa crowned the home-town favorite; the mayor of, nearby Hull and an Eastview alderman placed tiaras on the princesses stylishly coiffed hair.

The girls were given huge sprays of red roses and decorated with centennial medals before receiving gifts which included a 1968 convertible for Miss Grey Cup.

"I'll have to get my dryver's licences first," Miss Dizie said as her proud mother and chaperone throughout Grey Cup Week, Mrs. John Dixie, watched.

Said Miss Winnipeg Blue Bomber: "The group was great. Each girl helped the others. They cared more about having fun than winning."

"Gab" Almost Drowns Out Awards

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the highlight events of Grey Cup Week almost passed unnoticed Thursday night as awards were presented to the outstanding players in the Canadian Football League.

Recipients of the Canadian Schenley Ltd. annual awards were Peter Liske, Calgary Stampeder quarterback as player of the year; Calgary split end Terry Evanshen, the top Canadian, and defensive tackle Ed McQuarters of Saskatchewan Roughriders, lineman of the year.

The three have been feted and featured throughout the week leading to Saturday's Grey Cup football final, in which only one will play as Saskatchewan defends its title against Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Lansdowne Park, starting at 1 p.m. EST.

The game will be televised nationally on the CBC and CTV networks.

Calgary was eliminated from the Western Conference final by Saskatchewan with Evanshen on the sidelines after suffering a broken left leg in the second game.

It was the final official event in a busy day for Canadian Football League executives as they broke an all-day general meeting for their annual luncheon then rushed through an afternoon session to make the awards reception.

But the tempo of activity outside the official functions picked up with the arrival of Saskatchewan Wednesday and Hamilton Thursday.

Hotel lobbies were cleared of furnishings, security guards and police went on extended patrol and revellers started their hunt for action.

The CFL meanwhile, named three oldtimers to the Football Hall of Fame, which still needs a home; set next year's Grey Cup for Toronto Nov. 30; and set over decision on a site for the hall until the Feb. 8-9 annual meeting at Vancouver when bids from Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver will be considered for the 1969 game.

Named to the Hall of Fame were Cut Cronin of Chicago, who played and coached at Winnipeg and with Hamilton Tigers between 1931 and 1938; Cap Pear of Orillia, Ont., who played with Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton between 1919 and 1932 and the late J. P. (Jim) McCaffrey, who managed Ottawa from 1921 until his retirement in 1959.

Pearson Picks Tiger-Cats!

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and Hamilton Tiger-Cats were the only ones that knew for some time that the Steelworkers tabbies were coming to Ottawa for Canada's annual cold bowl—the Grey Cup.

"The prime minister told me when I was in Ottawa three weeks ago that he would see you on Grey Cup weekend," Hamilton Mayor Victor Copps said Thursday.

"I told Mr. Pearson that our chances didn't look good, but he insisted that he would see me here on Grey Cup weekend."

Pearson since has picked the Ticats to win Saturday's Canadian final, matching the top teams in the Eastern and Western Football Conference, against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The game is scheduled for 1 p.m. and will be televised by both the CBC and CTV national networks.

Although it is not certain on what premise Pearson based his prediction, the Ticats' faith was based on the fact that the experts said they would finish last because of an aging offence.

Coach Ralph Sazio, who found himself faced with a major recruiting job at the season's start, brought in 15 new players that brought the average age of the club to less than 26 years.

The Hamilton club has only five players who are 30 years or over—Tommy Joe Coffey, 30, Ellison Kelly, 31, Angelo Mosca, 31, John Barrow, 31, and Tommy Grant, 32.

Another 13 players are between 25 and 30, while 14 are under 25, including rookies Gord Christian and Bob Sherey, both 21.

Hawks On The Climb!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks may be on the way from obscurity to a position of authority in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Hawks completed a two-game road trip Thursday night by beating Peterborough Petes 7-5 after tieing 3-3 with Ottawa 67's the previous night in Hull, Que. They now are undefeated in three games and share sixth place with London Nationals.

So special, in fact, that no one is allowed to enter our blending room except the handful of people who belong. After all, there's a whisky being born in there.

Because a whisky is born when it's blended. (Most whiskies are blended just before they're bottled. Like maybe last week.)

But Walker's Special Old was blended long ago. The very day that its ingredient whiskies were distilled. They were carefully and painstakingly combined.

Prebleended. To reach that elusive point of perfection that creates Walker's Special Old. Only then were they sealed in white oak casks. To age and mellow. Together. The result is incomparable bouquet, flavour, and character.

Our people take the longer, more difficult route to make Walker's Special Old. Because how else could we call it Special?

Positive Steps Urged

Provinces Form Committee to Study Problems

TORONTO (CP) — The Confederation of Tomorrow conference that ended here Thursday convinced provincial representatives a positive step had been taken toward solving Canada's constitutional, economic and language problems.

To make sure the first step would not be the last, representatives of Canada's 10 provinces formed a permanent continuing committee to study the problems and plan future meetings.

The committee, formed at a private meeting—the only one held during four days of talks, consists of the premiers of Quebec, Ontario, Alberta and Nova Scotia.

Premier John Robarts of Ontario, who called the conference, said the committee has not decided when it will elect a chairman.

Meanwhile its secretarial staff, on loan from the Ontario government until things get properly organized, was collecting papers and reports from the conference.

Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec told reporters the conference was "the beginning of a process which will eventually bring this country to revamp the constitution."

"I feel that from the opening session to the closing today we have all travelled quite a distance. . . . At least we have admitted that there is something wrong with our federalism."

During the sessions the provinces agreed constitution should be amended to help Quebec preserve its unique identity and to close the economic gap between Canada's rich and poor provinces.

And almost all of the provinces expressed a willingness to extend French-language rights within their borders.

But in the midst of all this agreement came a reminder Thursday that no solutions had been found or even sought to the urgent problems threatening Canadian solidarity.

"Immediate problems demand immediate action," Mr. Robarts told delegates. "Let us not wait until a crisis is upon us before we take action."

Mr. Johnson challenged all Canadians to work for a new constitution and criticized those who refuse to recognize rights of French-speaking Canadians in English-speaking provinces.

Mr. Robarts praised Mr. Johnson for his lucid presentation of Quebec's case and added:

"Mr. Johnson was facing a more difficult situation than those of any other premier, and sometimes was somewhat alone in the position he took."

Forum Got Grant Of $60,000

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec said Thursday the Estates General of French Canada "did not start out as a separatist organization."

Mr. Johnson made the comment at a press conference where he recalled that the Quebec government granted $60,000 to the privately-organized forum for constitutional change.

He said the government grant was made because the Estates General was "part of a process of consultation" under way before the legislature's constitutional committee.

An Estates General meeting in Montreal last weekend passed resolutions sketching out government powers of an independent Quebec.

A reporter asked Mr. Johnson if he was acknowledging that the Estates General was separatist.

"I didn't say they have become . . ." the premier said with a smile. "It seems their resolutions have a certain slant toward that."

The Estates General was formed in 1961 under the aegis of the St. Jean Baptiste Society. It is composed of elected representatives of organizations such as school boards, professional groups, patriotic societies, trade unions, municipalities and chambers of commerce.

It claims to be represented in all provinces.

Pearson Lauds Robarts

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday he has congratulated Premier Robarts of Ontario on the success of the Confederation of Tomorrow conference.

Replying to a question by Conservative Leader Stanfield, Mr. Pearson said his message was conveyed in a lunchtime telephone call Thursday.

Mr. Stanfield prompted the disclosure by suggesting the prime minister send a congratulatory telegram to Mr. Robarts.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) asked whether Mr. Pearson will copy the Toronto conference and hold next year's planned federal-provincial constitutional conference at least partly in public to acquaint people with the issues.

Nixon Says Conference Worthwhile

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon said Thursday he considers the Confederation of Tomorrow conference was "worthwhile on the whole" but he regretted that the federal government was not represented.

The second most important topic at the four-day conference, said Mr. Nixon, was equality of economic opportunity "which only the federal Jurisdiction can decide."

Mr. Nixon said New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud was the outstanding figure because of the way he injected his feelings into his speeches.

Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson "came through as a very thoughtful and responsible spokesman for his province" and Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia was "startlingly intellectual" in his approach, said Mr. Nixon.

Mr. Nixon attended the conference as an official observer.

Bail Totals $170,000 On 17 Bookmaking Charges

CALGARY (CP) — Sixteen of 17 men arrested in what police termed a major crackdown on organized crime in Canada will appear in court here today on bookmaking charges.

The 17 men were brought here Thursday by government-chartered aircraft from Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Vancouver and were ordered held in custody pending bail totalling $160,000.

Robert Miller, 24, of Montreal, was released Thursday night after posting bail of $10,000. He returned to Montreal where he is to be married Saturday.

Miller's case was adjourned without plea to Jan. 17.

Highest bail set was $20,000 for Patrick Perry, 43, a Toronto sales representative. Bail for 13 others was set at $10,000 each and two men will be required to post $5,000 each.

The men are all charged with conspiring to engage in bookmaking or the business of betting, and with conspiring to aid or assist in the commission of an offence under Section 117 of the Criminal Code dealing with betting and bookmaking.

Police said the arrests involved charges of illegal betting activities in horse racing, hockey and football. RCMP said eight of the men were arrested in Montreal by members of the Montreal morality squad which launched the investigation about 18 months ago.

Crown counsel Ed Adolphe of Calgary said the investigation involved the co-operation of "about 10 police forces and the RCMP" across Canada.

In Regina, city prosecutor Wilf Meagher said the arrests followed September meetings in Calgary between police officers and prosecutors from Calgary, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Montreal and Regina.

He said the RCMP co-ordinated the operation and raids were staged Wednesday night and early Thursday.

He said after the Calgary meeting, another session was held at Ottawa where more evidence was considered.

Alkenbrack Objects To Milk Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers in Eastern Canada who ship less than 50,000 pounds of milk a year are being discriminated against by the federal milk subsidy program, Douglas Alkenbrack (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox) claimed in the Commons Thursday.

He said he rejected the dogma that to be good, a farm operation must be large. The farmer who milked six to 10 cows and raised calves for the market was contributing as much to the economy as the large operator.

Bruce Beer (L—Peel), parliamentary secretary to Agriculture Minister Greene, replied that fam organizations agreed there should be a limit to the size of operation that receives a subsidy.

He argued the 50,000-pound minimum was misunderstood. This year, all farmers received the subsidy, but the Canadian dairy commission had announced that next year the 50,000-pound figure would apply. The commission has agreed to review the figure and its decision will be announced in the House as soon as possible, Mr. Beer said.

THANK YOU...
FOR THE ENCOURAGEMENT AND SUPPORT I HAVE RECEIVED RECENTLY FROM MANY CITIZENS IN ALL WALKS OF LIFE.

Below is a sample of one of the many letters I have received urging me to stand for Re-election.

39 Northwood Crescent,
Belleville, Ontario,
November 22, 1967.

Mr. K. J. Soden
27 Campbell Street
Belleville, Ontario

Dear Mr. Soden,

Please accept my humble congratulations and applause for the beautiful letter which you had the courage to write to the editor of the Intelligencer and which appeared in yesterday's edition of the paper.

I know, sir, that you have expressed very aptly just what has been in the hearts of many of us in this city, who — to use your phrase — are too full of hope in our fellow Bellevillians to consider this city "a cultural wasteland." In my own work as a music teacher, I come into almost daily contact with people who see a tremendous needs for a large community centre where THE REST in arts and sports can be performed. Most of the people I know are not cultural; they are starving for the best interpretations of the finest plays, music, etc. that the world's greatest artists have written. One idea that was the best could be studied in anyone's lifetime!" But how do we get to see and hear the centre for them.

My remarks seem mostly directed to the arts of music, threatre and ballet, but these are the cultural activities in which I am most interested personally. I agree with you, the centre should be made adequate enough for all the art forms and sports.

I regret that the editorial stated that you would not contest your aldermanic seat in the next election. We need men like you, Mr. Soden. We are hungry for the best. Is it to late for you to reconsider?

With much respect and very sincerely, I am

Lorraine Wardhaugh

Fire Fighters Mustangs Win "Gas" Games

Fire Fighters hosted Mulroney's Smoke T-1 and Mustangs downed Marysville 3-1 in last night's Gas House Hockey League action.

Fire Fighters scored a 1-1 count tieing to their win while Mustangs came from behind to grab their victory.

Talbot was the lone two-goal man for the Firemen with single goals for McGrath, Hurst, B. Brooks, B. Lloyd and Jr. Miller. Patterson collected four assists, Brooks and Hurst two each, P. Soule, R. Mambert and Talbot loners. Lambert from Bolt was Mulroney's scoring play, tying the game 1-1.

C. Millgate's undefeated goal for Marysville went for naught when J. Hughes, B. Hydeman and D. Sneldon blasted home Mustang markers. L. Holland had the game's only assist.

Major Baseball

"Confusing Off-Season Rhubarb"

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Major league baseball has a confusing off-season rhubarb on its hands today between players and their bosses.

"Somebody's lying. And I don't think it's the owners," said Paul Richards, general manager of Atlanta Braves. "If this guy continues these kind of tactics we just might have to get into the gutter with him."

Richards referred to Marvin Miller, former negotiator for the United Steelworkers of America who now is executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Miller and 21 players called an unusual news conference Thursday to express the players' "extreme dissatisfaction in the negotiations with the owners and representatives of the owners group."

The players gave the owners a "statement of policy" a year ago which demands, among other things, an increase in the minimum big league salary to $12,000 from $7,000 a year.

Joe Cronin, president of the American League, read a joint statement from the owners several hours after the new conference in which he claimed Miller knew beforehand the players would not negotiate with the owners here during the winter baseball meetings.

Cronin said there has been no mention of a strike despite unhappiness among players with their pace of negotiations.

"We were told further discussions would be needed in Mexico City," Miller said. "The only reason the players' are here is to conclude the negotiations. Now we're told the owners are too busy."

Part of the confusion was in the type of meeting referred to by Cronin. The league president's statement said managers had been advised before coming to Mexico that "no bargaining meeting could be held in Mexico City until after the players' conditions committee, representing all major league clubs, had received guidance from the 20 owners."

The players' negotiator said a mid-season survey showed that 6.1 per cent of the major league players make the minimum $7,000 salary. He said 28.5 per cent make $13,500 or less while 39.7 per cent make $14,500 or less. The median salary, he said, is $17,000 while the average salary is between $22,000 and $23,000.

"The owners are not paying any attention to the players' interests," Miller said. "Simple things which are accepted everywhere else have been turned down flat."

Other demands by the players include compulsory arbitration, consultation in schedule making and rules changes, a contract which spells out the rules binding on players and moving expenses when a trade forces a player to change his residence.

"What we are really trying to do is eliminate the inequities between clubs," said Bill Freehan of Detroit Tigers. "Some clubs pay everyone more than the minimum. But some others have a lot of players at the minimum."

Ivanhoe, Stirling Win Tilts

Ivanhoe Knights paddled their Centre Hastings Hockey League lead with a 5-1 victory over Madoc Marlboroughs Thunder-birds last night.

The league standing shows Ivanhoe with 14 points followed by Bata 10, Stirling 8, Cloyne 6, Foxboro 3, Wallbridge 3, Frankford 0 and Thomasburg 0.

The Rebels divided their goals among Don Potts, Les Fyfe, Myles McDonald, Ted Dobson, Don Armstrong and Glenn Spencer. Roger Robson saved the Warriors from a shutout.

The players' negotiator said a first to go into the field, beginning several years ago with Saturday Night at The Movies.

NBC has also pioneered with its world premier films, created by Universal for first showing on TV. Eight were presented last season, two so far this year. All have scored as well or better than features that had already appeared in theatres.

"The world premiere"—have Schlosser's spotlight for us," said Schlosser, "and we plan to do more of them."

Quinte Hockey League

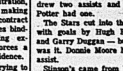
Belvedere Hotel built a 2-0 lead and turned back a late Alumnium Star rally for a 5-3 Quinte Hockey League victory last night.

In the other half of a double-header, Stinson Construction and Grant Realty battled to a deadlock.

The Holsmen got their big lead on single goals by B. Nolan, Frank Mahaffy and Bill Vesterfelt. Jack Lucas and Doug Hallam. Hallam, Lucas and Vesterfelt each drew two assists and Larry Potter had one.



The Stars cut into the lead with goals by Hugh Poitner and Garry Duggan — but that was it. Donnie Moore had an assist.

Stinson's came from behind twice to earn the split in points with Grant's.

John McKibbon and Don Forsythe bagged three of the Stinson goals and Rick Benard had a helper.

Court Bradley and Don "Widge" Adams were the Grant's markmen. Ron Archer, Albert Lentini and Bralley split assists.

Penalties were scarce in both games.

Popularity of Feature Films Changes Television Programs

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television programming, which has been wedded to fixed formulas for 15 years, is undergoing a small-scale revolution because of the popularity of feature films this season.

That is the outlook as seen from the vantage point of Herbert S. Schlosser, head of NBC Coast program vice-president for NBC is one of those who will decide what will appear on the home screen.

From the days of 12-inch screens, the half-hour program, particularly the situation comedy, has been a staple of television. This season the half-hours, particularly the new ones, have been hurting because of the competition of six nights of feature films on the networks.

"There will still be room for the half - hour show," observed Schlosser, "but the trend is toward fewer of them."

"The audience seems to be going more and more for the longer form. This means a continuation of the trend to movies, not only on regular nights but also as specials interrupting the regular programming, as was done with Hard Day's Night and River Kwai.

"Why have feature films proved so popular this season?

"Because the audience has been getting a general run of blockbusters," Schlosser said, said. "Many of them are only two years old, and that adds to the appeal.

"Also I believe the features are popular because the country is becoming more urban all the time. This means a more sophisticated audience that is receptive to feature film entertainment. You get a better audience profile for features; more people of higher income and upper middle - class- watch them than most other programs.

Schlosser said NBC was the

Fight Could Be Short

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Oscar Bonavena's promise to knock out Jimmy Ellis in the second round of their semi-final bout of the World Boxing Association tournament Saturday may be partially correct—it could be a short fight.

Ellis who has used classic boxing techniques to build up a 24-5 record, has always been a fast starter, and there's been no indication from his manager, Angelo Dundee, that Ellis will do anything different Saturday.

The added ingredient that could bring the fight to a fast close is the fact that Bonavena's manager, Dr. Marvin Goldberg, says Bonavena will start fast too.

"I want Oscar to start fast too. The first combination he lands will do the job."

Bad Teeth Can Damage Jaw

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My jaw has been going out of place on the left side. I have several bad teeth, especially my jaw teeth, and all four wisdom teeth. One wisdom tooth broke off on the right side and the gum has grown over.

I haven't visited a doctor about my jaw as I've heard there is nothing they can do, and also that my bad teeth are causing my jaw trouble. The jaw goes right out of place if I try to extend the lower forward or to the right. Can anything be done about it, or is it serious. — P. M. F.

You, sir, are victim of a notion which causes a good deal of trouble—staying away from the doctor because you have "heard" that this or that trouble cannot be treated effectively.

Too many people stay away from the physician or dentist until the trouble, whatever it is, becomes so severe that they have to ask for help. Too often they learn that treatment would have been simpler if they had received it sooner. Sometimes there has by then been damage that is beyond repair.

The above remarks do not apply just to your jaw trouble: Infections, digestive problems, ear ailments, skin disorders—all sorts of troubles are allowed to progress needlessly.

While treating, and if possible curing, ailments is a major responsibility of your doctor, do not lose sight of the fact that one of the very important services of a physician is to diagnose ailments and then tell you whether they can be treated effectively or whether they are something you will have to get along with.

Specifically, your jaw trouble sounds like something that might do damage unless corrected. It is quite possible, perhaps very probable, that your teeth are throwing your jaw out of alignment, but suitable dental care can correct this.

Without medical (or dental) attention, the misalignment can be expected to grow worse. The capsule of the jaw joint may well be damaged. Pressures may develop in such a way as to impair your hearing. The wobbly jaw, besides being annoying, may become painful.

I venture the opinion that a great deal can be done to help, and the sooner the better. Go to your physician if you choose: he can help decide how serious your trouble is likely to be. But in a case of this sort you may save time and money by going directly to your dentist.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Your booklet on pinworm said that in girls and women, frequency vaginitis or some form of vaginal or genital inflammation can result from the pinworm infestation.

However, it did not mention what treatment is indicated in such a case. I have heard other mothers wonder about the same thing. Should you see a doctor or is there some simple home treatment? — Mrs. K. T.

The pinworm breeds in the intestinal tract and that is where it must be controlled. The worms can sneak into the vaginal tract and cause irritation because the female anatomy makes that area easily accessible to them.

Ordinarily the vaginal trouble readily subsides once the pinworms have been cleared from the intestinal tract. If, after pinworm treatment, the vaginal annoyance continues, that's time enough to check with the doctor for some other vaginal disorder. To receive a copy of my booklet, "The Commonest Pest — Pinworm" — write to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that girls who use tampons have to go to hospital for a D and C? By using them is there a possibility that you do not flow as freely as normally? — J. A. M.

No to both questions.

• • •

Dr. Molner is interested in all his readers' questions, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters.

Dodgers Trade Johnson

Johnson, 34, hit .270 for the Dodgers in 1967. He suffered a fractured ankle in May and later was troubled with a knee injury.

Brought up by Los Angeles from Spokane of the Pacific Coast League in 1965, the journeyman outfielder became a Dodger regular and contributed several key hits in the Dodgers' pennant drive.

Sport Miniatures

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Jack Montgomery tamed the Oakbourne Country Club course Thursday with an eight-under-par 64 and grabbed the first-round lead in the $35,000 Cajun Classic golf tournament.

The 29-year-old Texan had eight birdies and nines of 31, 33 and over the par-36-36-72 layout.

• • •

NEW YORK (CP) — Panamanian jockey Jorge Velasquez, 20, rode two winners at Tropical Park Thursday to extend his 1967 victories to 402. On Wednesday he became the third jockey in racing history to ride 400 winners in one year.

• • •

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Warren Giles was re-elected president of the National League Thursday for a one-year term at his own request, terminating in 1968. His present contract will expire next year. The extension of Giles' contract will give him the longest term of office in National League history, 19 years.

Russ Crush Nats

LENINGRAD (CP) — The Russian second national team swarmed all over the Eastern Division of the Canadian Nationals Thursday, beating them 9-3 in an international hockey tournament.

The Russians, who rolled to a 3-0 first period advanced before the Canadians got on the scoreboard, led 4-1 after the first and 5-2 after the second period.

The third period was scoreless.

Senior "A" Scoring

'Moe', Mate Lead Pack

GALT (CP) — A pair of Toronto Marlboro line mates shot to the top of the Ontario Hockey Association senior scoring race this week.

Moe Galand, 27-year-old winger, displaced John Beechey of Galt Hornets as the leader. Galand got nine points and jumped from a tie for fourth place to the top rung.

Centre Gary Milroy added five points and has 11 goals and 15 assists for 26 points, two behind Galand.

Galand has a league-leading 13 goals and 15 assists for 28 points. Minnie Menard, tied for ninth in the points race, also has 13 goals. Dave McComb of Collingwood Kings climbed to third place with 25 points, one less than Milroy.

Beechey dropped to a tie for fourth place.

Ottawa Gets Grey Cup Fever

OTTAWA (CP) — Football fans from across Canada are streaming into the city today to bolster the Grey Cup spirit that finally burst to the surface Thursday.

Five special flights from Hamilton are due at Uplands Airport. There will be a special train from the West, as well as extra cars on regular trains.

Fears that 1967 might be the year of the quiet Grey Cup evaporated Thursday when a crowd of about 8,000 filled the three-block-long downtown mall for a Western Day celebration.

Most horses, riders, wagons and spectators were from the Ottawa Valley area, but acted as if they were away from home for the first time.

The horses and riders had the run of the streets, banks, department stores and any building with doors large enough to allow their entry.

"What can you do?" asked the assistant manager of one bank as three horses mingled with waiting customers.

"You just have to stand by with a shovel and wait to clean up after they leave."

Program for Disintegration

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If the Communists could have had the power to decide what the U.S. would do, they could not have composed a more agreeable (to them) program for our national disintegration.

For 1968, defence costs are estimated at $75 billion — about a third of that earmarked specifically for Vietnam. At the same time, public health gets less than $5 billion, education less than $5 billion, and housing, urban development and water pollution less, than $2 billion.

One can hardly imagine a shrewder scheme to be devised by the masters of the Kremlin — to keep the U.S. fighting an unending and unwinnable war, pouring more and more money and material into the quicksand of Vietnam, while the Russians send only the aid they can spare, without endangering either their foreign relations or their domestic policies.

Meanwhile, the U.S. has alienated or neutralized most of its "allies," lost the support of world opinion, been forced to engage in double-talk to justify enlargement of the conflict, and worst of all, has given china all the time it needs to mobilize its resources for some more important confrontation elsewhere.

At the same time, the domestic scene has been turned into an almost unrelieved canvas of discord, futility, and bitterness. Both political parties are split within themselves on the question of the Vietnam adventure, and can hardly patch up the profound differences before next year's conventions.

The huge investment in this hopeless war has forced the U.S. to abandon all pretense of rational priorities for coping with the grievous problems of air and water pollution; crime, inadequate housing, the corrosion of cities, and the explosive potential of racial antagonism. For all of these require at least as much funds and effort as are being poured down the Vietnamese rathole.

What sweeter plan could the Communists dream up to keep the U.S. fighting abroad and bickering at home, throwing billions into the swamps of Asia while neglecting the sorry state of domestic affairs, raising taxes and curtailing services, as well as outraging the moral sensibilities of millions of parents who don't want their sons killed in what, a few years later, may be admitted to have been a strategic miscalculation"?

If there is, as the right-wingers keep insisting, a Communist "plot" to undermine U.S. society, can you conceive a more cunning way to implement it than by keeping the U.S. involved in Vietnam?

OMSIP Advice Issued

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Ontario government has cancelled an unknown number of free and subsidized policies under its medical insurance plan because the holders neglected to re-apply before July 1.

Dr. John Johnson, medical director of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan, said Wednesday a number of people have gone to their doctors recently believing they were covered, only to discover their policies had been canceled.

He told District 4 of the Ontario Medical Association he had no way of knowing how many policies had been cancelled because OMSIP computers are not programmed to provide that information.

Affected are persons with little or no taxable income who must re-apply each year to show they need help to pay the OMSIP premiums.

Dr. Johnson said persons who are on welfare or certain pensions are covered automatically and do not need to re-apply.

Anyone who can give "a good reason" for not re-applying will have his contract reinstated, he said.

Inquiries should be addressed to Medical Services Insurance Council, 151 St. Clair Ave, West, Toronto, 7, said Dr. Johnson.

CBC Radio Service Questioned

MONTREAL (CP) — C. B. Delafield, director of the CBC's International Service, said Thursday the service "has been under review for the last few days" and its future is in question.

The service, whose budget this year was $3,790,000 with an additional $400,000 special Centennial budget, broadcasts radio programs to foreign countries 90 to 95 hours a week and sends taped radio programs to foreign networks.

Mr. Delafield said the service has a staff of 207 full-time employees, most of whom work in Montreal.

He said in an interview the service "had been making representations" to the federal government since its existence had been brought under review.

In Ottawa, two members of Parliament asked in the Commons Thursday whether there was any plan to drop the service. External Affairs Minister Martin gave no answer.

Reports said the federal treasury board, a cabinet committee which must approve all government spending, had recommended to the cabinet that the service be dropped, but there was no official confirmation. The cabinet has the final decision.

Treasury board tried to get rid of the service in 1964, but lost out.

Both the Fowler report on broadcasting and the government's white paper on broadcasting favored expansion of the service.

Record Muskie Landed By Pickerel Fisherman

The 36-year-old Toronto taxi driver made the eye-popping catch Nov. 23 in the Moon River in the Parry Sound district off Georgian Bay. The fish, 54½ inches long, went for a minnow-baited hook. Drysdale said it took an hour and 20 minutes to land the fish.

Field and Stream magazine, which records outstanding catches, said it was the biggest muskellunge reported caught in North America this year. The world record is a muskellunge of 69 pounds, 15 ounces caught in 1957 in the St. Lawrence River.

"We were really after pickerel," Drysdale said in an interview Thursday. "I thought I was snagged on a log until that 'log' moved and the battle was on."

He is having the fish mounted, of course.

This Is the Army Mr. Smith... You and Your Wife Won the Tiff

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. Army has surrendered in its battle to hold on to a draftee who spent 18 months of his military hitch at home with his wife, some of the time employed at part-time work at a job.

The army announced Friday that Pte. Joe A. Smith, 23, of Brownsville, Calif., would be released from active duty probably next month.

At the same time the announcement was made by the 6th Army, U.S. District Judge Robert C. Peckham was issuing a show-cause order for the army to explain why Smith should not be discharged. The judge laughed when he heard about the release.

Like all the other draftees, Smith received 30 days leave at the end of his basic training at Fort Hood, Tex., in November, 1965. He went to his Sacramento Valley home to await orders.

Smith waited . . . and waited . . . and waited. No orders. Finally, he took a $130-a-week logging job at nearby Yuba City to support himself an his wife, Glenda, 23.

He waited a year and a half. All the while, the army sent Mrs. Smith a monthly allotment check of $95.20—and in Smith's name They sent an $18.50 U.S. savings bond every three months. But he didn't get his private's pay because he wasn't at a post to sign for it.

Last June 13, Smith figured his time was up, donned his almost-new uniform and presented himself for discharge at the Oakland army base. There was a bit of a fuss.

"You've got to be kidding!" said an officer when he heard Smith's story. Smith said he wasn't.

The army wanted Smith to serve—for real—his 18 months, to return all the money they had paid in allotment cheques and bonds. The American Civil Liberties Union took up Smith's cause.

While the case was simmering, Smith was sent to the 6th Army presidio in San Francisco and employed as a runner. He even made private first class.

Smith said the army also wanted to charge him for desertion, but dropped it for insufficient evidence.

"I didn't expect trouble," Smith said when the case was first made public. He said he didn't try to hide the fact he was in the army.

Smith's release from the army means—like other draftees—that he still has the remainder of a six-year service obligation to serve. Active reserve for two years during which he will attend weekly drill, inactive reserve for another two. Then he gets h's discharge.

An army spokesman said he was "not certain" about what would happen to the army's demands for return of the bond and allotment money. But he said he expected the release to be "normal" and none of the money would have to be returned.

Johnson Places Bet On Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson Friday spoke out against separatism, said President de Gaulle does not consult him on public statements and confirmed plans for a joint meeting of French and Quebec cabinet ministers.

The premier spanked separatists in press conferences at Montreal and on his arrival here from the Confederation of Tomorrow conference at Toronto where he made what he calls "a bet on Canada".

At Montreal, Mr. Johnson said the Quebec government was not consulted before the French president forecast at a Paris press conference that the province will be elevated to the ranks of a sovereign state.

At Quebec City, the premier said declarations by Gen. de Gaulle should not be interpreted as support for any political doctrine, including the sovereignstate thesis of the former Liberal Quebec cabinet minister, Rene Levesque.

The premier said the co-operation of France is needed by Quebec no matter what kind of constitutional system under which French-Canadians live, and cannot be linked to any particular doctrines.

He said Quebec and French cabinet ministers will meet in Paris early in 1968 to discuss the rapidly developing France-Quebec educational and cultural agreements. The comments followed remarks at Montreal where Mr. Johnson criticized the sovereign-state proposal of Mr. Levesque as "a great risk" for the mass of the people in the province.

Mr. Johnson said separatism arises basically from dissatisfaction with the existing constitution which does not provide French-Canadians linguistic equality with English-Canadians across Canada.

He said separatism might not affect doctors, dentists and barbers for example because "they have a captive clientele" but this is not the same for such people as factory workers and farmers.

He said he does not consider separatism as the solution of French-Canada's problems "for the moment," but said it is a question of fact that "if the French-Canadian nation doesn't attain equality Quebec will obtain independence."

Mr. Johnson showed concern with the speed of events in Quebec by telling the Montreal press conference "it's going too fast." In an interview here, he said he sensed "a terrible responsibility" as spokesman for French-Canadians at the Toronto discussions.

He described the constitutional talks as a breakthrough in dialogue between French and English Canada and only the beginning of discussions he hopes will lead to a new constitution.

He said his "bet on Canada" is that English- and French-speaking Canadians will agree to a new constitution which would make Canada a country of two equal partners as well as a country of 10 provinces.

Medicare Won't Help MD Gap

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Normand J. Belliveau, president of the Canadian Medical Association, says the federal medical care program will enlarge existing problems of medical manpower.

One thousand foreign - trained doctors are required annually to maintain Canada's balance on one doctor to every 850 persons, he told a Rotary Club luncheon Friday.

But Canada cannot rely indefinitely on imported doctors, he said. Some countries, particularly Great Britain, are actively trying to prevent the drain of medical personnel.

Dr. Belliveau said Canada will not make progress in this or other problems as long as Canadians are "hung up . . . on social service concepts which do not fit the realities or meet the needs of today."

Pay Now, Go Later

DETROIT (AP) — Tickets for three-day weekends in space will go on sale within 20 years, an official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration predicted Friday.

Paul Haney, public affairs director of NASA's manned spacecraft program in Houston, made the observation in an address to the National Association of Travel Organizations in Detroit.

Haney said that predictions about progress in space have been too conservative in many cases. He said aircraft manufacturer James McDonald predicted in 1957 that manned space flight would be feasible by 1990, but within less than 10 years an astronaut was orbiting the earth in a spacecraft bui by McDonald.

Campus in Use Within 2 Years

The Belleville area has won out in its bid for Loyalist community college.

And swiftly-moving circumstances could see the core of its campus in operation within two years.

Since the college opened in September, Loyalist students have been housed in temporary quarters at Centennial Secondary School.

However, mounting high school and college enrolment may put pressure on Loyalist to find final accommodation for its campus before its two-year lease at Centennial expires, a college authority indicated.

The site falls within earlier predicted property lines — south of Sidney township's second concession, north of Highway 2 between Wallbridge and Avonlough roads.

It was made known late yesterday afternoon to board chairman Rev. H. J. Maloney, Bancroft parish priest.

The site was purchased from four property holders, Fr. Maloney announced — three of them named individually, the fourth as a property company.

Ontario-government approval follows agreement between Belleville and Sidney township to service the site with sewerage and water.

The agreement was signed at a special council meeting of both councils Nov. 9 and forwarded to Toronto.

Approval of the move was delayed by Confederation celebrations which took Mr. Davis to Scotland then back by this week's Confederation of Tomorrow conference, where the Minister's services were preempted on behalf of Ontario.

However, Father Maloney apparently went to the conference to buttonhole the minister for a decision.

He said he attended the assembly on its opening day — Monday — where he had "a nice chat with the Minister."

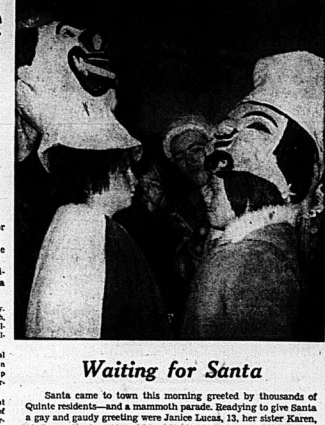
"It's hoped that now we can proceed with the building. It won't take them (the architect) too long to get rolling," said the board chairman.

Father Maloney also hoped Loyalist would be installed in its first core campus buildings by September 1969.



The deadline was indicated by climbing school enrolment at Centennial and signs of mounting interest in Loyalist.

This would mean the college may have to speed up its building program and find more accommodations as its registration swells.

While Loyalist holds a two-year lease on its temporary quarters at Centennial "we may have to consider some remedial action before this second year (of Loyalist's lease)," said Father Maloney.

Santa came to town this morning greeted by thousands of Quinte residents—and a mammoth parade. Readying to give Santa a gay and gaudy greeting were Janice Lucas, 13, her sister Karen, 12, Penny Hughes, 11 and Mary Hobbs, 12. For details see page 2.

Green Breath Test Cuts Accident Rate

LONDON (AP)—The threat of curbside "green breath" tests under Britain's new don't-drink-don't-drive law has cut road accidents, Scotland Yard figures indicated today.

Statistics showed a 42-per-cent drop in nighttime road accidents in London in the first month after the law went into effect Oct. 9. There was also a downward trend to other British towns and cities.

The law allows police to make random breath tests in which drivers exhale into a tube filled with chemically-treated crystals. If the crystals turn green, the driver is asked to undergo further blood-and-urine tests.

Cyprus Vetoes Accord

NICOSIA (CP)—Cypriot objections to the reduction of its 12,000-member Greek-Cypriot national guard today were believed to be holding up the peace agreement between Turkey and Greece.

President Johnson's special envoy, Cyrus Vance, met for three hours with Cypriot President Makarios Friday night and was scheduled to meet with him again today.

Vance's return to Cyprus came as a surprise as most observers expected an announcement Friday from the United Nations secretary-general, U Thant, stating that Greece and Turkey had ended their brinkof-war confrontation over the Mediterranean island.

Cypriot objections—are believed to centre around reduction of the Cyprus national guard, reported to be a basic constituent of the planned settlement. It would be cut to 2,000.

Cyprus also is understood to be displeased with the extent of powers given under the accord to the 4,500-man UN peacekeeping force on the Mediterranean island. Canada has about 900 men in the force.

Dr. Murray Agrees to Use Only "Ordinary Techniques"

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman at Toronto General Hospital said Friday Dr. Gordon Murray has agreed not to perform experimental operations on paraplegics at the hospital until a study has been completed into his controversial spinal surgery.

The spokesman said Dr. Murray, who set off a medical controversy with an announcement last month that he had found a way to repair a severed spinal cord in humans, will continue as a surgeon on the hospital staff with complete freedom to operate and care for his patients for all other purposes.

Experimental operations on humans at the hospital have to be approved by a committee of the University of Toronto research board. The committee was established last year to protect patients and has jurisdiction in the experimental use of drugs as well as surgery.

The spokesman said that until Dr. Murray made his announcement, the hospital and committee were unaware that he had been experimenting on humans. He had since agreed to limit his treatment to "ordinary, known techniques".

Dr. Murray could not be reached for comment.

The 73-year-old surgeon disclosed Nov. 14 that he had rejoined the severed spinal cord of Bertrand Proulx, 24-yarold Quebec truck driver paralyzed four years ago when he was injured in a car accident.

Later, Dr. William R. Drucker, surgeon-in-chief at the hospital, said X-rays and operation findings showed that Proulx' spinal cord was not cut and rejoined in an operation.

A review of the situation is continuing.

Santa Gets Warm Hello

Thousands of youngsters lined the city's downtown as the Jolly Gent officially hailed in the Christmas season in the Quinte district.

The weather was as sharp as his reindeers' antlers but the spirit of welcoming fun was just as brisk.

It...was a little quieter than other years—there were eight bands, fewer than recent parades—it still was the biggest parade yet.

Close to 40 floats and mobile displays wended through downtown Belleville, paced by high-bred horses, merry majorettes and candy-throwing clowns.

But the most jubilant response of all was saved for Santa himself, bringing up the end of the marchpast on his own special float.

Youngsters of all ages — began trekking toward downtown almost an hour before the parade moved off from the West Moira Street fire hall across the Upper Bridge.

Police issued all available men for crowd control, diverting traffic away from the city's main routes until the parade passed.

The marchpast took nearly an hour to wend its way to its stasting, raising happy reactions as the adults caught the infectious thrill of the event from the most important people at Christmastime — the youngsters.

Stone Age Fashion

No need to ponder the identity of these two characters. It's the famous cartoon Flintstones, rolling along through Belleville with today's Santa Claus parade.

Pick of the Pixies

Loyalist

day signalled the end to nearly a year of restrained, but breathless excitement among municipal politicians in the entire district.

It began when the Ontario Council of Regents — supervising authority of the province's community college movement — authorized foundation of a college in Belleville-Trenton-Quinte area — Eastern Ontario region of East-Central Ontario.

Immediately after the regional organization it was decided to split the institution and have a double campus — one each in the Peterborough - Belleville area.

Earlier this year it was agreed that the western unit — Sir Sandford Fleming Campus — would be located in the Peterborough district.

After that, the second unit — Loyalist — was conjectured as up for grabs.

Immediately after the decision to list the college in Belleville, Trenton and Sidney township got together. All three municipalities had an active interest in the township — 120 acres midway between Belleville and Trenton — and started plugging it with the college's board of governors.

However, it apparently became one of several sites listed for scrutiny by a property subcommittee in the Quinte region.

Development Firm Urged

Mayor Jack Ellis emphasized the need for a local development corporation at the board of directors meeting of the Belleville Industrial Commission Wednesday night.

He felt there was now an obvious need for such a corporation which could undertake the construction of building facilities for prospective industries at reasonable prices.

The directors of the industrial commission felt that the proposal was worthy of consid-

TRENTON — Almost overlooked in the shuffle of candidates for Monday's municipal elections here is a question to appear on the ballot for the approval of local voters.

The question was defeated last year by about a 70-30 percent margin.

Woman Claims $61 Stolen

TRENTON — Police are investigating a local woman's report that a prowler stole $61 from her room overnight.

Mrs. Mary McCauley told police she awoke to find a man in her bedroom around one a.m. today. She said she chased him from the room of the West Dundas St. boarding house and later discovered she was missing the amount of money.

Ray Brown, industrial commissioner, said "we should now take a positive outlook and learn from the incident."

"The city of Belleville should embark upon a program whereby we would service our industrial developments of the day with water, sewers, roads, utilities and rails along with other amenities inherent in the requirements of a fully serviced industrial community."

Mr. Brown criticized what he termed "negative thinking" by the city as a whole.

The commissioner was instructed by the directors to compile all necessary information on this type of corporation for further consideration at the next meeting.

Canned Tomato Industry Facing Serious Problems

J. Donald Baxter, vice-president of Baxter Canning Co. Ltd. in Bloomfield, has stated that the canned tomato industry is facing a critical situation.

He said imports of tomatoes for the first six months of 1967 totalled about 287,000 cases, compared with 157,000 for the same period in 1966.

Mr. Baxter's statement accompanied one by Joseph Taliano, president of Queensway Canning Co. Ltd.

Mr. Taliano explained that imported canned fruits from Australia are hurting Niagara Peninsula canners. He said that government - subsidized fruits from Australia are causing the biggest problems.

"The Australians buy their fruits at 8 to $1.25 cheaper per ton than we can. The government subsidizes them."

He said he has notified area growers that he will not need Bartlett pears next year. "My warehouse is loaded to the gills," he said.

BBC Turns Down Trenton Radio Bid

OTTAWA — The Board of Broadcast Governors has rejected an application to establish an AM radio station at Trenton.

"The board is not impressed with the need for another station in the area at the time," a ruling released Friday explained. "The board is also concerned to place no impediment in the way of establishing alternative television service in the area."

Rejection of the Trenton application was based in its proximity to Belleville, which is served by Radio Station CJBQ, operating AM and FM programs. The station also has studios in Trenton.

The application for a Trenton broadcasting outlet was opposed by CJBQ, Radio Station CHUC (Cobourg) Northern Broadcasting and CTV.

Morton Elected Reeve

Mr. Morton polled 425 votes to Mr. Clancy's 316.

Ray Sherry won the contest for deputy reeve with 418 votes, a 120 majority over his opponent, Murney Johnston, who polled 298.

James Spry, with 463 votes, and Wilfred Spencer, with 436 votes, were elected public school trustees. Third man in the running, Ross Kirn, polled 330 votes.

Trenton Election Profiles

Progress in Past Ten Years Best in History: MacDonald

Eight Years Long Enough To Attain Goals: Fraser

With Pic proof to desk please

"I hate to see our youth leave the community. We should be working toward the day when Trenton will have everything — industry, education, and so on—that our sons and daughters need for their future."

And he has a stake in attaining this goal. Jim and his wife Rene have five sons, ranging in age from 11 to 22.

A string of successes at local polls began in 1952 when he was elected to his first council term.

He remained in office until defeated in his 1958 mayoralty challenge against veteran Ross Burtt.

But, he stresses, it hasn't become merely a habit.

"We've accomplished quite a bit in the past 10 years — probably more than in any other ten-year period in Trenton's history.

"During that time we've gained half a dozen or more major industries, paved miles of streets and got our first municipal parking lot, just to mention a few things.

"We're going to get a badly-needed second town bridge, a new fire hall, and a gigantic marina alongside our new Centennial Park.

"These are all projects council has begun, and intend to see accomplished."

Future priorities high on Mayor MacDonald's list include a face-lifting of the Highway 33 northern approach into town from Highway 401.

"This entrance should be made into the beauty spot it could become."

Another program he endorses would involve striking a per-foot rate for sewer and water main installation, applicable anywhere in town.

At present, he says, residents in difficult - to - service areas are being penalized for wanting such basic necessities for their homes.

As far as current election issues are concerned, Mayor MacDonald stands by his original plan to have the old post office in downtown Trenton turned into a civic square, but says he will support the recommendations of an upcoming urban renewal study.

In addition to civic functions, he has lent his services to a variety of community activities — everything from supporting sea cadets to coaching hockey teams.

"The people of Trenton know me pretty well by now," he says.

Jim MacDonald And Customers

A man with a lot of municipal service under his belt at 36, D. R. Fraser offers Trenton voters a "new approach" in seeking the mayor's office Monday.

"Nick," as he is widely known locally, has served on the Hastings County Children's Aid Society, the local Community Gardens Board, and is a past-president of Trenton's Real Estate Board and Kiwanis Club.

In addition to serving as chairman of town council's important finance committee for the past two years, he has been a member of the Board of Governors of Loyalist college, and a vice-president of Trenton's Chamber of Commerce.

A number of business interests include the realty and insurance firms Mr. Fraser operates on Dundas St. east.

A member of town council for four years in all, "Nick" spends some of his leisure hours with a trumpet in his hand, as a member of Trenton's Citizens' Band.

In his initial bid for the mayoralty, Mr. Fraser says he is "only one of a number of young men in the community eager and willing to be of service to Trenton."

"I have every respect for my opponent, but I feel that eight years is sufficient time for anyone to accomplish his goals as mayor."

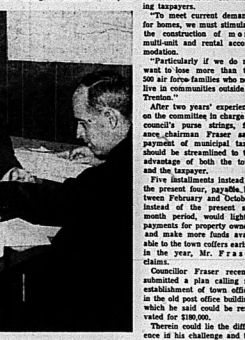
He sees Trenton's future growth dependent on more industry, and more appropriate accommodation.

His proposal of "Industrial Estates Ltd." would establish a company funded by an annual town council grant.

The public-owned organization would finance the construction of factory "shells" and the acquisition and servicing of industrial sites, in an attempt to boost badly-needed industrial assessment.

Dividends of the development company, says Mr. Fraser, could include more employment and population growth in addition to easing the assessment burden for existing taxpayers.

"To meet current demands for homes, we must stimulate the construction of more multi-unit and rental accomodation.



"Particularly if we do not want to lose more than the 500 air force families who now live in communities outside of Trenton."

After two years' experience on the committee in charge of council's purse strings, finance chairman Fraser says payments of municipal taxes should be streamlined to the advantage of both the town and the taxpayer.

Five installments instead of the present four, payable between February and October, instead of the present six-month period, would lighten payments for property owners and make more funds available to the town coffers earlier in the year, Mr. Fraser claims.

Councillor Fraser recently submitted a plan calling for establishment of town offices in the old post office building, which he said could be renovated for $180,000.

Therein could lie the difference in his challenge and the platform of incumbent Mayor MacDonald.

Nick Fraser and Election Worker

C. V. GRAHAM — 75, tard firm owner. Mr. Graham has served on every council committee since first being elected to office in 1946. He has only missed two years on council since then. Chairman of the public works committee for the past two years he says: "I'd like to see the completion of our sewer and water program in town — let's finish what we've started". — A former arena board chairman.

J. D. KINNEY—Mr. Kinney is seeking re-election to a second two-year council term. A former school trustee, and now a member of the local hospital board, this year he acted as chairman of council's welfare and community services committee. "I'd like to see a home for the aged and day care nurseries established in Trenton." At 51, he is retired and a resident of Marmora Street.

E. M. PARKER — With 16 years combined service on board of education, parks boards, Community Gardens board, and recreation commission, Mr. Parker feels he can make a contribution to "the next natural step" — town council. The 42-year-old president of Morton Parker Limited is concerned with Trenton's slow housing growth, "I think local government has a role to play in encouraging builders."

R. J. WHITLEY — "Split" council decisions are Mr. Whitley's main concern in offering himself once more for town council. "I don't think the mayor should have to cast so many deciding votes — councillors should show more agreement and unity for the community." The former parks board chairman, now 78, served on council in 1934, 1935, 1940 - 44, and in 1960.

G. A. WEAVER — A successful car dealer, Mr. Weaver's nine years of town council service fell between 1943 and 1964. He has some harsh words for existing local government. "Our problems should be solved by more sense and less nonsense," is his campaign slogan. In his fifties, Gerald says: "I believe Trenton can be a better place to live in."

ROSS BURTT — Seeking election after a year's absence from council, Mr. Burtt has 27 years' experience in local government, including six as mayor. Now 73, he says he'd like to see Trenton either get rid of the old post office property, or do something with it. "We're losing money on it everyday." Ross also says he argues with some existing procedures.

Seven Seek 4 School Seats

TRENTON — Monday's municipal elections here will include voting for four two-year terms on the board of education, and a single one-year seat.

The lowest vote-getter of the top five school trustee candidates will serve the year remaining in the term vacated by former board chairman E. M. Parker, who is a council candidate this year.

The seven candidates for positions on the board of education are:

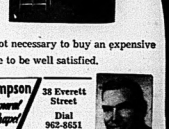
GEORGE GREER — a local post office employee, Mr. Greer has served as a school trustee for 11 years, takes pride in quality of existing town elementary and high school staff.

MRS. H. HUTCHISON — The lone woman candidate in this year's municipal elections, Mrs. Hutchison is seeking re-election to the school board after serving one two-year term.

T. S. KETCHESON — Says the school board needs people of experience in upcoming periods of change. Mr. Ketcheson has been a local trustee for 12 years — a former chairman.

GEORGE LEWIS — an accountant, Mr. Lewis is seeking his first term on the board. His interest, he says, stems from the fact he has two children in Trenton schools.

REV. D. E. MINOR — Seeking his first term as a Trenton school trustee, Mr. Minor says spiritual beliefs are the responsibility of church and home, not to be tampered with by educators.



L. G. PHINNEY — A former school board chairman, and a five-year member, Mr. Phinney pledges to do his utmost for both the youth and taxpayers of Trenton.

W. D. WHITLEY — With eight years' service as a trustee, Mr. Whitley says Trenton's future lies westward, away from the possibility of domination by Hastings County interests.

Mr. Sharp's Budget

Budgets invariably are bad news for the taxpaying public and Finance Minister Sharp's so-called mini-budget is no exception.

The details are out for all to see. There is a five per cent surcharge on basic personal income tax, effective January 1, for all but those in low income groups. Liquor and tobacco taxes are being increased by 10 per cent immediately.

Coupled with these revenue-raising measures, the Government is imposing some long overdue restraints in its spending program. Further expansion of the Civil Service, for long one of the most extravagant of administrative agencies, is being curbed. Capital spending, subsidies and lending programs, including housing loans are being reduced, as are capital loans to Air Canada. These are just some of the measures announced.

Essentially, the budget is the direct consequence of the almost unrestrained spending that has characterized both Government and private sectors for the past decade.

The public at large has gone merrily on its way, riding the crest of boom conditions and unlimited expansion which now must be slowed if the country is not to fall into a recession. Far from setting an example of restraint, earlier which could have been politically unpopular, the Government now realizes it must apply the brakes.

And yet Canadians at large remain puzzled by the sudden rap on the knuckles that the budget implies, as if the blame must fall entirely on their already overburdened shoulders. The economists at large have been warning Ottawa of its duty in this regard for some time. Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky and other eminent authorities have spoken out frequently against the dangers of inflation.

Regrettably, the axe always seems to fall at the 11th hour, (in this case only three weeks from Christmas), rather than at an earlier stage when cures for the country's trading deficit and other economic problems would have been all the easier to effect.

Ironically, it was a St. Andrew's Day budget. As one report put it, Mr. Sharp's message to the country is that it will have to practise more Scottish thrift to stop the rise in prices and get the economy in shape. There is no quarrel with that thought. Only the timing is wrong.

Less for the Public

Here is a cartoonist's view of the budget — as presented by The Globe and Mail's Reidford in a series of cameo portraits of Finance Minister Sharp and some imaginary budget observations by him.

"We will take more from you. Because we intend to spend less. And you will have less to spend. Thus prices will go down. So that you can buy more. Thus driving prices up. So that we'll have to take more from you. Because we intend to spend less. And you will have less to spend."

It is a tricky cycle!

One other costly aspect of this budget — and of further proposed increases in taxation next year — is the fact Mr. Sharp is proposing a reform of the tax system, but without any assistance from the elaborate and detailed recommendations of the recent Carter Royal Commission.

Here is a classic example of wasted effort — of Royal Commission investigation that has come to nought simply because the Minister of Finance is going to do it his own way.

Provinces Closer

The Confederation of Tomorrow Conference initiated by Ontario Premier Robarts and held in Toronto has been a turning point in Canadian politics.

The fact alone of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson's presence in such an Anglo-Saxon stronghold as Toronto itself is something of a triumph. It follows Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau's recent visit to the Queen City to discuss mutual problems (specifically the future of Expo) with Mayor Dennison.

The meeting of provincial premiers independently of the federal jurisdiction is not a new idea, but this was the first one called to discuss constitutional matters.

And while the leaders went home without resolving any issues, or leaving Quebec much happier with its lot, they did at least come to a better understanding of each other's problems. Communication between the country's various political entities has been improved immeasurably. And from this point may emerge ultimately a stronger and still united Canada, with Confederation intact.

Ottawa Offbeat

Infallible Prime Minister Proposed by Pearson

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA, — Well, what do you know — they have been turning Parliament into what former Social Credit leader Robert Thompson, not so long ago, with a fine sense of outrage, said was a "political cockpit."

Isn't that just awful?

Prime Minister Pearson thinks so, for under his own byline he has written a magazine piece complaining about it and suggesting how it might be "reformed."

He prefers a quiet, orderly place, with the government not only safe from the election peril of defeat on a confidence motion, but its cabinet secure even from all but tailored-to-its-taste Opposition questions.

His "reforms" could transform Parliament as the taxpaying public's test tube of the government's policies into something resembling a federal department, a sort of smug civil service harbor for the storm-tossed politicians of the administration.

It seems to assume that the prime minister — like father, knowing best — not only must not be challenged by a vigorous Opposition, but not even questioned.

The prime minister, who went directly from the federal civil service into the Liberal cabinet, never has liked the rock and roar of politics as played in Parliament.

He could never understand how it was that his own politically innocuous statements could be so wickedly — as he obviously regarded it — twisted by Dief into something so wildly partisan.

Dief used to have him slouching back, sort of protectively, in his frosthench seat.

And now Conservative leader Robert Stanfield has him slouching in the same behind-the-barricades way.

Most people, including thick-skinned politicians, are sensitive to criticism, but the thin-skinned ex-civil service diplomat is over-sensitive.

So now he sees a way out of his difficulties.

It is this, and in his own words: " . . . a government should be able to submit policy proposals to Parliament . . . and then be free to accept revisions without being accused of weakness or retreat . . . or reject them without having to face a no-confidence vote and a possible election if Parliament overrules the rejection."

" . . . a minister is now expected to answer every day, without notice, whatever questions may be put to him about his department.

"Many of these questions are not asked to secure information about the government, but to put the minister on the spot; to secure some partisan advantage."

"This provides an almost irresistible temptation to irresponsibility. . . .

"I think we should adopt something like the British system under which ministers are required to answer questions only two or three days a week; and where written notice of all questions is given, something that helps to ensure full and accurate answers."

Mr. Stanfield seems to have anticipated the prime minister's proposals, for in his recent attack on the government's "crucibility gap," as he called it, he took time out to warn against any tampering with the rules of Parliament lest its "freedom and flexibility" be restricted.

To give the cabinet protection from non-confidence votes on its policies and security from questions in the Commons would be to wring the life out of it, making it about as excitingly alive and usefully interesting as the Senate.

It would be a great insurance policy so the political life of the government, providing a sort of rest home for tired cabinet ministers.

But it wouldn't do much for Parliament or the taxpayer who pays Parliament's share.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 2, 1947

The Bay of Quinte District Funeral Directors' Association came into being at an inaugural meeting held in Belleville. Ralph Weaver of Trenton will act as the president of the new Association, with Winston Hicks of Picton as vice - president. John R. Bush of Belleville will act as secretary-treasurer.

Traffic lights in the downtown section of the city which have been in course of installation for the past several weeks were placed into operation early this week. The new lights were recommended by a special traffic committee appointed by council, working in conjunction with the police commission. The lights were installed by Northern Electric Company technicians.

30 YEARS AGO

December 2, 1937

Mr. and Mrs. L. Dainard of Salmon Point, Prince Edward County, celebrated their 61st anniversary of their wedding.

The Wharf Street Debating Club entertained the candidates seeking election at the coming municipal elections last evening and a jolly time was had by all. Eddie George, as usual presided and handled the evening well. The club room was packed with the candidates and interested citizens. The meeting closed with members and guests being served the regular "bunfeed" menu. The candidates will be entertained this evening by the members of the Belleville Yacht Club at their rooms when questions of the day will be discussed.

40 YEARS AGO

December 2, 1927

The local tourist camp took care of many visitors this past season and came through with a profit of $80. The camp was under the supervision of Ald. Russell Wotton, the chairman of the tourist and publicity committee in the city council. The total expenditure this season was $200 and this was paid out of receipts. In 1926 there were 478 cars and 1586 people registered and this season there were 1524 cars and 5549 people registered.

Bert Wells has returned home from Lindsay where he was connected with the CNR for several months.

50 YEARS AGO

December 2, 1917

The December session of the Hastings County Council will open at Shire Hall tomorrow afternoon with Warden McLaren, ex of Tyendinaga, presiding.

In a basketball match at the YMCA between the "Frenchies" and the "Sammies", the latter team won, the score being 11 to 6. For the "Sammies" Prindle was the star and McCabe and Palmer were the best players for the "Frenchies".

Blenheim Restores Town Bell

Windsor Star

It isn't long ago, in terms of decades, when a feature of most every Ontario town was its bell, normally situated atop the town hall. These bells rang out the time for generations of Ontario folk. There was more than 45 per cent missing when one was dismantled.

We note that Blenheim has a nice sense of history past by restoring its old bell and providing it with a fitting base outside the municipal building. This is no mean instrument, having been built in 1837, composed of 65 per cent pure copper.

We note also that one Henry Pekornik spent some 600 hours restoring this bell to proper form. We deduce from his name he is a "New Canadian," at least by extraction. When the local Rotary Club undertook the task of preserving the bell as a Centennial project, this man was proud enough of his Canadian citizenship to devote himself to it. His work will add meaning to the restoration of the bell.

Today in History

Dec. 2, 1967 . . .

The Israeli army said its forces had been withdrawn to positions more than 30 miles east of the Suez Canal 11 years ago today—in 1956 —in accordance with United Nations orders. Troops of a U.N. emergency force were to take up the positions of the withdrawing Israeli troops.

1954—United States President Eisenhower rejected a proposal to blockade Red China, saying it would be an act of war.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—British troops in the Ypres sector made gains near Passchendaele and Goeberg; it was announced that the British took 11,351 prisoners on the Western Front in November; Turkish attacks on British positions northwest of Jerusalem were repulsed with heavy losses.

Capes "In" For Women

Montreal Gazette

A warm welcome is being given the return of that dashing garment, the cape. Style centres across the world are offering them in a wide variety of lengths, colors and textures.

The only critical comment so far comes from romantic-minded males. The capes, so far at least, are for women.

The only males who still have capes are French gendarmes. And their capes are to be smiled away from them in another month or so in favor of "more practical" overcoats. Paris will seem strange without the gendarmes' capes — and what will France do for travel posters?

Dark and mysterious are the ways of the fashion world.

Letter to the Editor

De Gaulle's Racialism Reminiscent of Hitler Before European Coups

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

According to Thursday's newspaper reports, we are faced with another European attempt against the Monroe Doctrine in the form of a proposed annexation of all the French of Quebec, Continental France and the south shore of the St. Lawrence, plus Baffin Land, Labrador and the Continental shelf to be can find enough idiots here in Canada to listen to him.

Those of us who were around in the 30's remember another European mad man screaming about racial affinity to the previously peaceful Sudetenland Germans, happily resident in free and democratic republican Czechoslovakia.

A man called Winston Churchill, indubitably the greatest historical figure this world has ever seen, cried in the wilderness of opposition to warn us of the perils of such madness and did his best to put a little starch into the spineless democracies of the 30's. The voice of de Gaulle is the voice of Hitler. The call to blood and race is a call to hatred.

This man must be stopped in his tracks.

Let us hope that some senior good Canadian of French ancestry with a genuine love for our wonderful country, who places that love above ancestor worship as do the millions of good Canadians of Ukranian, Scottish, German, Czech, Dutch, Irish and 20 other races, will stand up to this man and tell him that the glorious democracies of North America are founded not upon racial hatred but upon a happy mixture of races each contributing of the finest of their energy and culture and leaving behind the horrors of their history. The diplomatic tap on General de Gaulle's wrist is as effective as Chamberlain's visit to Germany. There are times to be diplomatic and there are times to stand up and be counted.

France has already withdrawn from NATO and is no longer a military ally. Our trade with France is negligible. Although France apparently needed Canada particularly for her very existence in 1914 and 1939, we certainly have never received any reciprocal gesture of friendship or assistance from this country which in fact traded its territorial rights to Canada freely including the ancestors of our own Canadians in Quebec and for a semi-tropical island.

Let us tell this toothless wolf in sheep's clothing that we need his kind before and we do not propose to be bullied, cajoled or deluded by any dime store Hitlers or Bonapartes.

And let this be said by a French Canadian.

KENNETH G. M. ROSS, QC

Thieves Are Active at Christmas Time

Ottawa Journal

As the song lyrics go, it "is the season to be jolly," but it's also a time of criminal folly. The persons who dislike work still like to celebrate Christmas and the three months preceding Christmas is a busy season for the police department.

Nightfall comes earlier and the purse snatchers work later, finding rich pickings amongst late shoppers. Apartment breakins are also a major frustration for Ottawa police. Police say it is impossible to guard every high-rise hallway and once thieves gain entrance police must rely on tips from watchful residents.

The majority of thieves, police officials report, are young persons looking for easy money. Police feel organized crime is non-existent here. They say that when a robbery is committed the police usually know where to look for the culprits but they sometimes find it difficult unless a positive identification can be made by victims. Apprehending thieves is a police job but we can make the task easier by keeping our doors locked and our gifts unexpected especially over the festive season.

Student Loan Problem

St. Thomas Times-Journal

There is no solution that doesn't raise another problem. Take the problem of young people facing the tremendous cost of a college education and one solution would be — loans from banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions.

Government-guaranteed bank loans to college students may be "creating a new social problem on a new basis," warns Chicago banker R. W. Foote.

"I hate to think of some of our customers who marry each other," he says, "and each of them graduates with this payment over the bank for the ensuing five years (following graduation)."

Giving even greater pause, "the female students who graduated with a student loan debt over their heads will not be attracting the attention of dashing bridegrooms-to-be, since the husband will be assuming their educational obligation to a local lending institution."

Never Refer To A Man As "Average"

Windsor Star

The English language is remarkable in its scope. It can be used to say almost anything or everything. Yet it has its defects. It sometimes lacks a word or even a phrase, to describe precisely what is intended. That applies when we are alluding to man in the mass.

We are apt to say, for want of something better, that a man is average. Or, in alternative, we refer to the common man. But no man is average and no man is common — that is, common with all others.

This is hard if we appraise all our friends or acquaintances. The better we know them, the more we are aware that an individual is not average. He has a character, a personality and, often, talents which make him distinctive. He may have much in common with his fellowmen but still is different from all others.

Come to think of it, one way to insult a friend would be to call him "average" or "common." Certainly no individual thinks of himself as such.

Churches Face Recent Decline In Membership

After a post-war boom in church-going, membership and attendance are declining among many Canadian Christian denominations. This story tells what is happening.

By R. J. ANDERSON*
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Clergymen jest that there is no religion above the third floor.

But there is enough truth in the wry remark to cause concern among Canadian churchmen.

They concede that the tendency for more and more young couples to make their homes in apartments, whether by choice or necessity, has isolated many from the church.

"Few roots are set down," says Rev. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the general council of the United Church in Canada. "You cannot reach people in apartments. Many are indifferent, even hostile."

One clergyman with a first-hand knowledge of the situation is Rev. Clifford Johnson, assistant pastor of a west-end Toronto Presbyterian church that is surrounded by high-rise apartments.

Of the apartment-dweller who won't go to church, Mr. Johnson says:

"He is a lonely person but he won't admit it."

The drop in church membership is a relatively recent development. In the years immediately following the Second World War, church membership increased sharply. A surge of religious fervor was a factor, some clergymen say, but the real reason was suburbia.

Returning servicemen set up homes in the burgeoning suburbs, determined to put down roots after five years of war. New congregations were established everywhere. Sunday schools were filled and teachers were relatively easy to obtain.

Then the pattern changed. The babies of the late 1940s and early 1950s grew up and drifted away from the church. High-rise apartments were magnets for couples who were wed in a church but seldom went back.

Middle-aged suburbanites fled back to the city and closed their doors to the church.

Not every denomination reports a membership decrease —there are gains in one or two—but the over-all picture is one of decline, not catastrophic but significant. Churchmen are worried but some say it is a passing phase.

Archbishop H. H. Clark, primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, maintains that "the statistics about the decline in church membership do not necessarily say anything significant about the real stag of Christian faith."

Of the major denominations, only the Anglicans, Presbyterians, United Church and some Lutheran churches keep up-to-date central-office lists. They report membership as of Dec. 31, 1966:

Presbyterians: 200,125 communicants, a drop of 356.

Lutheran churches in Canada break down into four main branches: the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Canada, its congregations located mainly in Western Canada; the Lutheran Church in America, with three Canadian divisions; the Lutheran Church-Missouri synod with four districts, and the synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

The four list a total of 361,228 baptized members in 1967. This compares with 299,183 in 1956, an increase of 2,045.

Lutheran church membership benefited from heavy post-war immigration from such countries as Germany and The Netherlands.

The Roman Catholic Church maintains no records of declines or increases. The 1966 yearbook of the Canadian Catholic Conference lists 7,871,962 Roman Catholics—French-Canadians 5,240,398; English-speaking Canadians 2,457,182; Ukrainians 150,726; members of the armed forces 121,550.

The Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, an evangelical Protestant denomination with a membership of 63,000 as recorded in the 1961 census, estimates its 1967 membership at more than 100,000. Rev. Tom Johnstone, general superintendent, puts the figure as high as 140,000 and says:

"We are the fastest growing Christian church in the country. We hold to the old historical biblical evangelical position."

The Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Churches in Canada, another evangelical group, reports an increase. Rev. Charles Tipp, editor of the Evangelical Baptist magazine, gives the members at the beginning of 1967 as 30,000 adults, an increase of 1,000.

The Observer reports that in Britain the Methodist Church lost 19,950 members in 1966 to an all-time low of 800,000. The weekly newspaper notes that Congregational Church membership now is under 200,000, also a record low, and that Church of England confirmations in the last three years fell to 156,000 a year from 191,000.

It finds the Roman Catholic Church in Britain in a "standstill position" with the loss of converts estimated as high as 14,000 a year.

Those who say the declines in membership do not necessarily mean a loss in religious interest draw some support from sales of the Bible, still the world's best-selling book.

The Canadian Bible Society last year distributed 94,000 Bibles and 82,000 New Testaments. Figures for 1965 were 92,000 and 78,000.

Sales of a paperback edition of the New Testament, first published 18 months ago, topped 5,000,000 throughout the world in its first year.

Wedding Forms Part Of Church Service

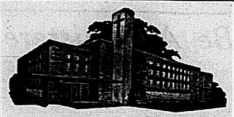
PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The congregation at Knox United Church was given a surprise one recent Sunday morning when the church organist broke into a few bars of Here Comes the Bride.

At first, they thought there had been a mistake. But down the aisle came pretty Margaret Floyd, 20, to exchange vows with 23-year-old Richard Arnett.

Rev. R. H. Taylor said he had had the idea in mind for a long time. And when the right couple approached him, he suggested a ceremony performed as part of the worship service. Why?

"We have so many marriages in this church, mostly of people not connected with the church. Sometimes we feel we're simply carrying out a ritual which is quite unrelated to the total worship of the Christian church."

Mr. Taylor said he hoped other ministers would perform Sunday marriages, although they should not become a common practice.



He suggested they should serve as a symbol of the fact that marriage belongs in Christian worship.

When the brief Floyd-Arnett ceremony ended, the couple took part in the remainder of the worship service, which included two congregational hymns and a sermon on Christian marriage.

In the United Church, marriage is not officially considered a sacrament, as in the Roman Catholic Church, but Mr. Taylor said it is "of sacramental nature."

The bride said she liked the idea because it brought "all our friends together."

It's the kind of wedding that seems to have a little more meaning to it than most," she added.

National Museums, Gallery to Be Administered by One Body

OTTAWA (CP)—A single corporation will be set up to administer the National Gallery and several national museums, but each will prepare its own budget under legislation approved by the Commons Friday.

Secretary Judy LaMarsh, who steered the bill through the Commons, assured members she would try to ensure that cultural matters would not receive any harsher treatment in the present austerity drive than other departments.

"I will defend this as a mother cat defends her kittens."

The bill was passed over the protests of opposition MPs who wanted the legislation to be studied by a Commons' committee before final passage.

Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton), who argued hardest to get the bill referred to committee, said he would continue back fighting if it appeared the National Gallery would suffer under the joint administration.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said his cohorts would be to see that the natural history museum didn't suffer.

The House also pushed through a new bill clarifying the legal position of visiting armed forces personnel in Canada. The bill repeals three previous acts which dealt independently with Commonwealth, United States and NATO forces on Canadian soil.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) Tory defence critic, said it was the first defence department bill to pass the House in four years without stirring a controversy.

Labor Minister Nicholson introduced a resolution calling for changes in the Canadian Labor Relations Board and Justice Minister Trudeau introduced a resolution that will bring the proposed changes in divorce legislation before the Common.

The resolutions, first stage of legislation, will be debated Monday and Tuesday before the House returns to the budget debate on Wednesday.

Included under the corporation will be the National Gallery, the War Museum, the Air Museum, the Museum of Science and the National Museum, all in Ottawa. It also provides for liaison with universities and other museums across the country for the purchase and leading of objects.

In launching his protest against processing the bill through the Commons without committee study, Mr. Bell found himself Thursday involved in light-hearted exchange with Miss LaMarsh about her "grandchildren."

Mr. Bell said the National Museum is something our grandchildren will regard as one of the great assets of the nation.

"My grandchildren?" Miss LaMarsh queried.

"No the minister's great-grandchildren," said Mr. Bell.

"I had better get started," Miss LaMarsh replied.

"I am getting in deep," Mr. Bell said.

The exchange had its sequel on Friday when a child in the gallery cried, "Mommy."

"I can assure you he is not referring to me," Miss LaMarsh quipped.

Lutherans Ask Talks With RCs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Initial steps will be taken this weekend to open the door for formal national-level theological discussions between the Lutheran and Roman Catholic churches in Canada.

Rev. Earle Treusch, executive director of the Lutheran Council in Canada, will approach Roman Catholics in Eastern Canada to set the stage for the discussions.

"His intention is to make initial contacts to find out through whom we proceed in the Roman Catholic Church," Rev. Louis N. Scholl, executive secretary of the Lutheran council's division of theological studies, said in an interview Friday night.

The suggestion for a dialogue between the two churches was put forward by the Lutheran Church in America-Canada section, one of four participating churches in the Lutheran council. It was adopted by the division of theological studies at a Nov. 7 meeting here.

"It is part of the whole quest for better relationships between church bodies," Mr. Scholl said.

"We hope the discussions will be on a national level, involving scholars on both sides."

UN Dilemma
Aggression Hard to Define

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada still believes it is impossible to draft a definition of aggression which will win general acceptance, the United Nations General Assembly was told Friday.

Hugh Faulkner, Liberal MP for the Ontario riding of Peterborough, said Canada had expressed reservations before about the possibility of obtaining agreement on such a resolution and, indeed, of the desirability of continuing the search. Her views had not changed.

Fleurent was speaking on a resolution advocating the need to expedite the drafting of a resolution on aggression in the light of the international situation.

The search for an acceptable definition goes back 40 years to League of Nations days, he said. Such a resolution would have meaning only if agreed upon by the Security Council, including all the permanent members, and by at least two-thirds of the General Assembly.

He said Canada opposes a Soviet proposal for creating still another special committee, simply to handle the definition problem. He said the job should be left with the special committee on friendly relations, which since 1964 has been studying the UN charter principles, the threat or use of force and non-intervention.

Faulkner said the Canadian delegation believes the proposed definition is not needed. The UN charter leaves to the Security Council the decision as to what constitutes a threat to peace, a breach of peace or an act of aggression in each individual case that comes up.

Resolution in Air

Reuther Won't Attend Union Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The United Auto Workers president, Walter P. Reuther, says he will not attend the annual convention of the AFL-CIO. As a result convention leaders are faced with the problem of how to deal with his resolution demanding "internal reforms" to make the AFL-CIO more democratic.

Reuther said Friday he would not attend the convention and asked that the resolution be withdrawn from consideration at the 14,000,000-member organization's convention that opens next week.

But AFL-CIO sources said the organization's constitution has no specific provisions for withdrawing a resolution whose sponsor did not show up.

AFL-CIO President George Meany declined to comment on Reuther's letter informing him Reuther would not attend.

The resolution might be shunted to a committee, the sources said, but some delegates may insist upon acting on it.

Many labor leaders want a showdown at the convention on Reuther's long attack on the policies and leadership of Meany.

The resolution charges that the "AFL-CIO lacks the social vision, the dynamic thrust, the crusading spirit that should characterize the progressive, modern labor movement."

After a meeting of the UAW's General Motors Council in Detroit, Reuther also announced that no strike deadline would be set against GM until after the New Year holiday.

A well-placed federation source said: "The General Motors negotiations gave Reuther an excuse for ducking the fight of his life."

Some other union chiefs said Reuther's decision to bypass the convention because of the auto negotiations is understandable. Reuther, earlier this year, quit the AFL-CIO's policy-making executive council, calling it "that private club of the ancient men of labor."

Carol made this dress for $13.65

$13.66 if you include the electricity

Sewing isn't the only bargain you get with electricity. Today, it has hundreds of uses that didn't exist a generation ago. Yet, surprisingly enough, the average unit cost is less now than it was then. As a matter of fact, you pay less for electricity in Ontario than you would almost anywhere else in the world. That's why electricity is the biggest bargain in your family budget.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Half a million small children drink poison accidentally each year. Often, it's because the poison is in a pop bottle and the child thinks it is a soft drink.

Keep insecticides, barbecue lighter fluid, paint thinner in their original containers and keep them locked up or on a high shelf that small children cannot reach.

Poison should never be disguised. Not only a tiny child but an older one as well may take a swallow of something that is in a familiar looking bottle.

CHRISTMAS TRADITIONS

"Some like to add new tributes to traditional Christmas decorations. The garden is a treasure-trove. Evergreens, seed pods, acorns, rose hips, dried grasses, berries and cones can all be used." — Margaret Perry.

* * *

Belleville has welcomed and received many people from distant lands into its citizenship and is the richer for it. These newcomers to our midst not only adjust to our way of life, but cherish certain tradition of their homeland, among which is the way the beautiful spirit of Christmas is expressed by symbolic customs, often strange to us.

In Holland, people on their way to church, welcome each other by the cheery greeting "Vrooiyk Kristmus." They do not return from worship to eat a special Christmas dinner, but enjoy a pastry with an almond filling known as "Krist Krans" which is a special treat.

In Poland, there is a traditional supper held on Christmas Eve and festivities begin when the first star twinkles in the sky. The family gathers and the head of the household spreads a piece of holy bread with honey, allotting a portion to all present along with good wishes for the coming year. At the supper table that follows, there are a dozen different dishes in memory of the 12 apostles. Christmas is a sacred day, a day of worship and as the worshipper attends church the crisp cold air echoes with the greeting "Weselych Swiat Bozego Narodzenia."

In Yugoslavia, the children go from door to door singing carols and ringing bells. With them are four small boys who carry a manger depicting a nativity scene. On Christmas eve, the greeting, "Froehliche Weihnachten is heard everywhere.

The twinkling Christmas tree did not become a part of the Christian Christmas celebration until the early part of the 16th century. Martin Luther is said to have introduced it into the home.

A popular tale is that while he was coming home one Christmas eve, treading over snow-covered ground, the sight of the stars shining through the fir trees attracted his attention and reminded him of the first Christmas eve of Christ's birth. He cut down a small fir tree, took it home and decorated it with candles, which gave the effect of stars, and this became a Christmas custom in the Luther household. Gradually, others adopted it as a part of the Christmas custom in Germany and it spread to other countries and was introduced in England by Prince Albert, the husband of Queen Victoria.

Once again, Christmas will be celebrated all over the world, and it is fascinating to know, in many different ways with age-old customs and traditions, in the celebrating of the birth of Christ, in the little town of Bethlehem centuries ago — a birth that changed the world.

One Bellevillian notes:

"For me, Christmas is the old-fashioned, do-it-yourself kind. At home, as a youngster, we started decorations for the tree two weeks before Christmas. We popped a huge pan full of popcorn. We took a needle and thread and carefully, painstakingly, strung the cranberries (of which we had plenty) into long strands.

"With these garlands of red cranberries and white popcorn we gaily decorated the tree on Christmas Eve. (My only small criticism is that it always seemed a great waste of good, edible popcorn).

Then we used to light the tree with real candles, and a fire-hazard they may be, but they smelled great — a lovely smell that only comes with that kind of do-it-yourself-Christmas."

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WI

Perhaps the final centennial event of the year for Tyendinaga Township was held in the Community Hall last Wednesday evening, when the Melrose Women's Institute sponsored a successful Centennial euchre.

Baskets of red apples and small Centennial and Canadian flags were placed in each window. A colorful arrangement of flowers, apples and flags adorned the linen-covered table on the platform.

President, Mrs. Don McLaren welcomed all and Mrs. D. Doyle gave instructions to the players previous to the euchre.

Mrs. J. McLaren and Mrs. D. Doyle awarded prizes to the following: Mrs. G. Hagerman; Mrs. Cecilia Walsh and Mrs. C. Hagerman; Cecil Matier, Leslie McLaren and Edward Lanier; lone hand went to Jack Sherman and the door prize was won by Mr. Harold McAvoy.

A women's lucky ticket was won by Mrs. C. Bates, Jr., and a man's lucky ticket by Leonard Walsh. All prizes were in keeping with the Centennial theme.

A bountiful lunch which included old-fashioned cookies and home-made doughnuts was served.

Eastminster Church Women Hold Yule Bazaar and Tea

Black and white was the foil used by the women of Eastminster United Church to display traditional Christmas decorations at their bazaar and tea Friday afternoon.

A black lattice fence with coach lantern entwined with holly was placed at the entrance where Mrs. A. McDowell, Mrs. H. Edey, Mrs. H. P. Swann and Mrs. J. W. Platt received the guests.

Paper flowers touched with red and black, and cones and Christmas tree ball suspended from the ceiling, added to the holiday mood of the tea room. The tea table was covered with a white damask cloth and centred with a black bowl holding pine cones and red, silver and green Christmas tree balls. Black wrought iron candle holders held thin white tapers.

Those pouring tea were wives of local ministers: Mrs. A. S. McConnell (St. Thomas); Mrs. R. Crooks (Tabernacle); Mrs. H. M. Davis (Bridge St.); Mrs. J. Dunlop (St. Margaret's); Mrs. S. Gentile, (St. Columba); Mrs. Roy Vessey (College St.); Mrs. J. W. Lamb (Shelluey); Mrs. A. Lavis, (Albert College).

The individual tables were festive with white cloths, red serviettes and fat white candles, trimmed with Christmas balls, in black wooden holders. Tea room conveners were Mrs. Owen Clarke, Mrs. Reg Varcoe, Mrs. John Cameron, and Mrs. Lloyd Lantz.

Mrs. Ron Oleson was in charge of the decorating and over-all conveners were Mrs. Robert Graham and Mrs. Linton Read.

Christmas cookies were the feature of the bazaar. Tables and their conveners were: home baking, Mrs. John M. Locke; cookies, Mrs. Stan Armstrong; crafts, Mrs. Robert Lovering; children, Mrs. Stephen Choma.

Ann Landers

Son Resents Mother Talking of Her Youth

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter from the woman who always compared her children. I have a problem that is worse. My mother keeps comparing me to herself.

When I brought home my last report card my mother said, "So you got a D in arithmetic! I never got a D in my life." Well, maybe she didn't, but they probably worked with Roman numerals when she was in school.

Last week I had to have a pair of boots. They cost $16. My mother gave me a 10 minute lecture on how it was when she was my age. She said her mother fed a family of five for a week on less than $16. Talk like this can make a kid feel real inferior. It's not my fault times have changed. Please straighten the older generation out, will you, Ann? — OUT OF TOUCH.

DEAR OUT: O.K. Stuff some cotton in your ears, kids, this message is for your parents.

Dear Fellow Antiques: The one phrase that kids simply don't want to hear is, "When I was your age." In the first place they don't believe you ever were. In the second place they couldn't care less about what was. Comparisons are not only boring, they are meaningless.

It's a different world today than when you and I were growing up. While our kids have it easier in some ways, they have it tougher in others. One thing is for certain. I'm glad I'm not in high school today. I don't think I could make it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The gentleman I have been going with for several years says a man and woman do not need a legal ceremony in order to be man and wife in the eyes of God. He claims many people who go together treat one another better and are more faithful than a great many married folks. According to him the ceremony is a mockery and he doesn't want any part of it. Please express yourself. — SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLD.

DEAR GOLDIE: It is true that some people who go together treat one another better and are more faithful than a great many folks who are married, but this does not mean that marriage is a mockery.

In our culture marriage is a part of the social structure. It also has built-in legal safeguards which can prove mighty helpful, particularly when there are children. No home should be without it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for your advice to the neighbor who wants to know what to do about the seven-year-old girl who was being beaten repeatedly by her parents. Every time I read a story like that I cry my eyes out.

A person who has not experienced these episodes can't imagine what goes on in the minds and hearts of these unfortunate kids. Although I was only seven when I was removed from my parents' home I can still remember those beatings as if they were yesterday.

Please print my letter as another reminder to those who may be inclined to close their eyes to such situations simply because they don't want to become involved. Abused children need your help. They are powerless to help themselves. — FORMER VICTIM.

DEAR FORMER: Thanks for writing and now I'll repeat my advice. Call the police or the child welfare agency the moment the beatings begin. Parents have a hard time denying the charges in court if the authorities testify that they witnessed the brutality.

Belleville needs a mayor who would represent ALL the people. Dr. Russell Scott as mayor would give the same full attention to the problems of home owners as to those of big business and all taxpayers would receive equal attention whether their difficulties be large or small.

As alderman for the past two years, Dr. Scott has won wide admiration for this policy which he would follow if elected as effectively as the "people's" mayor.

Dr. Scott is committed to progress . . . but with the taxpayer in mind. With his outstanding record of business and administrative ability he is capable of streamlining city hall to operate more efficiently and at less cost to the taxpayers. Routine city affairs could be speeded up in all departments thereby avoiding costly delays to home owners and others seeking city services.

Dr. Scott is aware of the importance of increasing employment opportunities in the area and would do everything possible to bring new industry to Belleville. You can be sure that Dr. Scott's record of sincere type, would be sought after and given his full support. He would also institute close liaison with federal and Ontario governments to enable the city to achieve needed expansion at minimum of cost.

Regarding recreation, Dr. Scott feels that there is a need for the establishment of neighborhood "friendship" parks for the benefit of our older citizens.

Belleville taxpayers should get what they pay for! At present they are paying the salary of a city manager who are not receiving the full benefits of this man's training and ability. Dr. Scott would return the authority to the city manager — which he is being paid to use — resulting in a more efficiently run city at no added expense.

Since the mayor of a city is elected by its citizens, it is the mayor's responsibility to conduct city affairs in their best interests. As mayor for ALL the people, Dr. Scott would follow this policy so that all citizens would receive equal consideration with favoritism towards none.

Need for More Legal Protection

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Re grandparent's distress over basten child: A case like this might interest both the doctors at the children's hospitals and also the Vanier Institute in Ottawa.

In about 1946 I was in charge of a Poppy Day Fund. One of my contacts was a young war veteran. On his return home he developed such brutality, under the name of "discipline", to his two small children that his wife had to take refuge with her elderly father. He was allowed to take to his wife and children on a park bench but was not allowed in their home.

After a few months his instability became more pronounced and he was placed in an Army Hospital for the mentally disturbed, and as far as I know never again was accepted as a husband and father. Of course it is unlikely that he was ever again of any financial use to his family but his children survived and grew up free from fear.

The women of Canada should have more legal power in cases like this. In Toronto many children die every year from mistreatment and only one in many parents is punished. — Veteran of First War.

Dear Veteran: Yet our child care authorities do a great deal to identify cases and act on behalf of the victims; obviously an area in which our Vanier Institute of the Family might well do important research.

Dear Doris: I wrote to you about a new chesterfield suite that was giving off an odor. We did as you advised and talked to the store manager. We now have a new and odorless, chesterfield, thanks to you.

Some salesmen try to talk you out of your complaint once they have sold you an article. Just goes to show that if you do go to the head ones you get/things done.

We sure had the best of British luck! — British Immigrant.

Dear British: I'm glad. Most merchants will make good their merchandise. Else how can they hope for good will to grow and business to expand? Repeat sales are the life blood of any retail store.

Dear Doris: I am 15, and I am crazy over two guys. I don't know which one I really like the most. When I see one my heart melts and I forget about the other.

I don't know what to do. They said they both liked me and if I go with one I'll hurt the other. They both treat me very well.

Should I forget about the two of them or should I just like one? — Mixed Up.

Dear Mixed Up: Just a normal red-blooded Canadian girl! Don't limit yourself.

Next thing you know, another handsome stranger will come along and add to the turmoil in your heart. Enjoy yourself. You're younger than you think.

(We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope for private reply.)

Fruit Cakes for Yule Tree

BY MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Last year a friend of ours had individual Christmas cakes tied with red bows on her Christmas tree and gave one to everybody who called. My husband loved the idea — he really does not like fruit cake much but this pleased him and he asked me to trim our tree with some this year, but I have a special recipe? — Lilliam F.

ANSWER: Yes, they are called Fruit Cake-ettes or

CHRISTMAS TREE FRUIT CAKES (these are lightish in color)

½ cup margarine
½ cup light brown sugar (packed)
1 cup canned fruit cocktail-drained (from 15-oz. tin)
1 cup California raisins
¼ cup unsweetened apple or orange juice
1 teaspoon rum extract
one 8-oz. package (1 cup) candied mixed peel
one 4-oz. package (⅛ cup) candied citron peel
2 beaten eggs
1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
one-sixteenths or one-eight teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ to ½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup corn syrup (optional)
red and green gum drops or candied cherries (optional)

SATURDAY
(Grey Cup Buffet — Guests)

Dinner Menu

Canned Baked Beans with Frizzled Smoked Bacon or Ham (see Tuesday); Boston Brown Bread or Honey Muffins; Cole Slaw; Lemon Meringue Pie; Coffee.

Into a large saucepan measure the margarine, brown sugar, drained fruit cocktail, raisins and juice. Stir over medium heat until boiling. Remove from heat at once. Add extract, peel and citron and mix well then beat in eggs and cool mixture. Sift over this cooled mixture the flour, spices, salt and baking powder and stir in.

Line 27 medium-sized muffin tins with 27 medium-sized fluted paper baking cups. Neatly spoon in cake batter to fill each two-thirds full. Put water pan in bottom of oven. Bake little cakes at 300 deg. Fahr. about 35 minutes or until firm to touch. Cool in paper cups.

If desired decorate tops with sliced red and green gum drops or candied cherries stuck on by dipping in heated corn syrup.

When tree trimming time arrives tie each cake-ette with broad band of red satin ribbon with long loop to slip over tips of tree branches.

NOTE: This is a good and easy light fruit cake that may be baked in loaf pans — but longer — about 2 hours.

The flag served as a background for this political poster of 1864. Col. J. C. Fremont was nominated by the Republicans but he withdrew in favor of Lincoln and never actively campaigned for president.

Collectors Are Searching Out Unusual Campaign Posters

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Campaign posters have not changed through the years. The patriotic motifs, and the red, white and blue stars and stripes are still featured on most posters. Collectors are now searching out the unusual relics of past campaigns. What could be rarer than the posters of a candidate who decided not to run?

One famous political banner is unusual for two reasons. It says "Republican candidates Pres. Col. J. C. Fremont, Vice Pres. William L. Dayton." The words are printed on a replica of the American flag.

Use of the flag in this way is illegal today but perhaps it was just unlucky for the candidate when this banner was printed in 1864. Although Fremont was nominated, he did not run. Instead, another candidate named Abraham Lincoln was chosen.

Q. What are "Billikens?" They are pictured on a dish I own.

A. The Billiken was first made in 1908 by E. I. Horsman. It was a doll with an unbreakable head, cloth body, and any of several costumes. The grotesque, statue-like doll with the large head was considered lucky by those that were superstitious. It was used as a radiator cap ornament to help guard against disasters and accidents.

The Billiken was sold with a poem that told children to obey their parents. The poem encouraged many parents to purchase the Billiken.

The doll was in huge quantities and was a great success. A sister Billiken and several imitating dolls were made about the same time.

Q. The "Picnic Party" is a color Currier and Ives print that I have had for many years. Is it rare?

A. The print named the "Picnic Party" is not listed in any of the main source books for Currier and Ives. It is possible that some unlisted prints exist but if this is so, they would be extremely rare and valuable.

Does your print actually have the name of Mr. Currier and Mr. Ives on it or does it just look like a print of the same type. Many hundreds of firms made lithographs similar to the fine Currier and Ives prints of the 19th century.

Women's Study Guild Debates Merits of Social Security

Social security, bane or blessing? was the topic of discussion at the Women's Study Guild meeting Nov. 27 at the home of Mrs. E. A. Fleming.

In presenting the topic, Mrs. George Wishart said looking back to 1867 can be an analytical exercise as well as a sentimental journey.

She listed the following questions for consideration in 1967: "Do we expect too much today for us? What are our standards? Is social security costing too much: Is the incentive to help oneself gone? Are we taking away characteristics that made us what we might be? Are being kind to the younger generation? Does social security abrogate our rights to suffer, to work, to danger, to sacrifice and self-discipline?"

Mrs. Wishart said land speculation has forced the price of houses beyond the means of average workers and made housing a community responsibility. This and hidden taxes affect the independence of the individual.

Among factors concerns she mentioned lack of dental care, prospect of more unemployables and maintenance income.

Mrs. R. H. Roulet based the worship service on the writings of Michel Quoist on social conditions.

They're Not Really Studying...

. . . but Jerry Joyce and Al Miller, two of the individuals influential in obtaining school texts for the Barbados, found yesterday that reading was much more enjoyable than sorting the books out. They finally did get the job done though and now all that remains is shipping the books to the Caribbean.

School Books for Barbados

Books, books and more books . . . once again an organization in town has been asked to supply old school texts for use in the Caribbean.

The request originally was made to Al Miller, past deputy grand master of the Belleville Oddfellows, by Clarence McInerney, a lecturer at Barbados Teachers College, who used to be a principal at Haliburton. Because of humidity and fungus, bindings on books deteriorate very quickly in the Caribbean climate and school texts are always in demand. Mr. McInerney said that they had absolutely no usable books.

Mr. Miller and his organization thought the project was worthy and approached Gerald Joyce of the school board to see if there were any texts available. It didn't take long before a ton or so of texts were piled up in the basement of Queen Victoria school.

The books are those which on instruction from the Department of Education are no longer suitable for our local curriculum.

There is only one problem left . . . getting the books down to the Barbados. The Oddfellows can afford to ship the books by water. That does take time and so Mr. Joyce intends to approach Air Transport at Trenton to see if they would take the books on a flight that was not full.

Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, said that he would also make representation to the Department of Defence on behalf of the combined Oddfellows, ann school board project.

"After the books are packed and sorted," Mr. Joyce said yesterday, "it doesn't appear we will have any problem getting the texts to Mr. McInerney if the government co-operates."

Buy Time Dosco Bill Is Planned

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia legislature will reconvene here Monday to debate a bill which would "buy time" while the provincial government seeks a long-term solution to the steel problem at Sydney.

The bill, asking legislature approval of a tentative agreement made last week between the government and the mill's owners, Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., was introduced Friday by Premier Smith.

The legislation would keep the steel mill in operation until April 30, 1968. Dosco announced last month that it planned to close the plant next April 30, putting 3,200 men out of work.

The bill also provides for a Crown corporation to operate the plant. It would consist of a president, chairman and three to five directors all appointed by the governor-in-council.

In introducing the bill for second reading, Premier Smith said no one can say when a long-term solution would be found or what its nature would be.

"I can and do say that no effort will be spared in the search to find it."

Gerald Regan, leader of the Liberal Opposition, said the members would have to give the bill careful study to ensure that the interim action would not be detrimental to long-term solutions to the problem.

It was the Liberal leader's first speech in the legislature since winning a seat in the general election last May.

The bill provides that Dosco operate the mill until Dec. 31 when it will be purchased by the government. Dosco will then operate it as agent of the government until April 30, 1968, when it will be taken over by the government or its nominee until April 30, 1969.

Premier Smith said the cost of the take-over will be determined by negotiation and agreement and if this is not possible, by a method similar to arbitration.

"All I can do is say that the consultants advise me that in their opinion the total value of all assets is likely to be within the range of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000."

He said operating losses at the mill would be $1,626,000 from Jan. 1 to April 30, 1968, and $3,345,000 from May, 1968, to April 30, 1969.

The agreement also provides that Dosco will purchase from Sydney at competitive prices, a substantial part of its semi-finished steel for use in its other works.

The premier said meetings are planned with Prime Minister Pearson to persuade the federal government to share in the costs incurred after April 30, 1968. He said the government has already agreed to share in costs of keeping the mill in operation between Jan. 1 and April 30, 1968.

Man Able to Outrun Horses Gets Tests by Researchers

OTTAWA (CP) — A 64-year-old man said to be able to outrun horses and run great distances without stopping for rest is being tested here by University of Ottawa researchers.

Jean-Baptiste Beland, a grey-haired bachelor who lives in a home for elderly men in St-Ephrem-de-Beauce, Que., demonstrated his endurance for reporters Friday by spending 34 minutes on a treadmill.

The treadmill, set to run at five m.p.h., is set up in the university's school of physical recreation.

Dr. Guy Metivier, associate professor of the school, is conducting research on Mr. Beland to try to establish endurance levels. He wants to find out what is physically different about a man who has exercised all his life compared to the average man.

He learned about the aging runner after a student's study of the bones of legendary Alexis Lapointe, who was reputed to have outrun trains, caught the attention of Mr. Beland's townsmen.

Lapointe was a French Canadian who lived from 1816 to 1924. He is buried at Malbaie, Que. Mr. Beland might be a modern Lapointe, they thought.

The physical characteristics and accomplishments of the two men are said to be similar, five feet, five inches tall, weight about 145 pounds, and both able to accomplish great feats of speed and endurance running.

Unlike Lapointe, however, Mr. Beland earned money from his ability: For years at carnivals and public events he has put on a horse costume, hitched himself to a cart and taken people on rides.

He smokes cigarettes, cigars and pipes and his favorite food is hamburger.

Freighter Attacked - Peking

TOKYO (AP) — Peking's official news agency said today U.S. aircraft "savagely attacked" a Chinese freighter anchored in Hong Gai, North Vietnam, last Saturday, "wounding eight crew members and damaging the ship."

The New China news agency said the foreign ministry issued a statement in Peking today "strongly protesting" the bombing.

The agency said U.S. aircraft dive-bombed the Chinese freighter the same day the ship arrived at Hong Gai from Haiphong.

I BELIEVE IN BELLEVILLE...

I BELIEVE...

It's a great city in a fine location in the banner province of Ontario in one of the great countries of the world. I came here with my family 17 years ago, successfully established myself in the retail business, sold out five years ago. I wish to continue to live and work here. I represent UNITED ACCUMULATIVE FUND LTD., one of Canada's largest and fastest growing Mutual Funds.

I BELIEVE...

It is the duty of any citizen who derives benefits from a community to offer his talents in some manner in the service of that community. This I have tried to do sincerely and honestly and I am grateful that you, my neighbors, have honored me by election to many high offices such as the Board of Education, the High School Board, City Council many times, President of the Chamber of Commerce, Chairman of United Appeal, now serving on the Board of Children's Aid Society, the Hastings and Prince Edward Board of Health, the Canadian Club, the Horticultural Society and Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

I BELIEVE...

That in a democracy all levels of government are important, and your own municipal government should be your first concern to elect people with ability, integrity and a broad outlook to consider the whole needs of the community, not just people with a one track mind.

I BELIEVE...

That then you should keep informed on how they perform. Don't hesitate about expressing your honest criticism before public meetings and conversely, a commendation is welcome when you approve.

I BELIEVE...

That the greatest assets of a community are its human resources. Therefore, the soundest investment we can make are those which contribute to the health, education and welfare of our children and adult population. I served for many years in Education. I worked for the establishment of the Bay of Quinte High School Board. I served on the first Board. I was on the original committee that worked on the Minister of Education regarding the establishment of Loyalist College. It is gratifying that it is now operating. I worked with many people in the promotion of better health services. We are now one of the best functioning districts in Ontario and saving about $30,000 a year for the taxpayers in Belleville.

I BELIEVE...

In the worth and dignity and rights of all human beings. I am grateful that I played a part in the upgrading and improving welfare services in this city.

I BELIEVE...

You cannot have any of these desirable services unless you have a sound tax base. I have taken a leading part in the acquisition of industrial land by the City and aggressive efforts to attract new industry, and the expansion of established ones.

I BELIEVE...

In the intelligence of the electors to decide whom to elect when the true facts are made available. You should know that next year the following additional expenditures will appear in the budget for the first time.
450,000 annually for sewage treatment.
50,000 annually for additional dept charges.
25,000 additional charge for Hastings Manor and Belleville General Hospital.
This represents about the mhimum 5 mills.

I BELIEVE...

That urban revival is a must to reverse the downward trend of assessment in some parts of our city. There are so many needs in our city and so many demands on our tax dollars, it requires wisdom and understanding and experience to make these decisions.

I hope I shall continue to merit your confidence to work on this team.

Scott:

City Hall Administration Should Not Be One-Man Show

At one time it was almost imperative for any candidate — in any election — to promise a reduction in taxes.

The reality of complicated community living today has retired this item from the campaign stock of most candidates.

Nowadays, it's hardly considered rational for a candidate to quicken support with promises of instant tax reductions.

Bellevillians have an indication of the political realism the times demand in the attitude of Dr. J. Russell Scott.

Not only does Dr. Scott refuse to trot out the reduced-taxes - right - now - if - I'm-elected cliche. He warns that city taxes are bound to increase — even if he is successful in his first mayoralty campaign.

"The mill rate is definitely going to go up five or six mills next year, even if I am mayor. I want them to know that," he states bluntly.

A city physician for more than two decades, his resignation to the increased-costs factor is prompted by background knowledge: He is campaigning for the mayoralty after two years of sharing municipal problems as a city councillor.

The inevitability of the 1968 mill increase is guaranteed by city projects. First payments are falling due next year, says Dr. Scott, on debentures underwriting road improvements, hospital and school expansions.

Just as inevitable are the increased costs of civic administration, he feels.

"One-Man Rule Must Go"

However, if it's no longer easy to make promises with basic appeal, Dr. Scott is not short on criticisms of the of one-man rule at city hall, what the doctor calls a "dicfects of administration symbolized by his opponent — Mayor Jack Ellis.

Among these are charges of dictatorship" which has replaced the city-manager form of local government designed for city's road system has deteriorated, bulging with traffic troubles, says the doctor.

He wants a system of priorities established to organize city schemes relative to cost-benefit factors.

Yet the sophistication of the modern municipal environment again complicates issues that once were political plums relished by campaigners, savored by their audiences.

Like industrial development.

"I think everybody is concerned about industry and I don't think this should come into the realm of local politics. It shouldn't be kicked around. We all want it — it's not a debatable subject, it's just a case of how you go about it.

"I think the industrial commission as it's now set up is doing an excellent job. I do think they might report more frequently to council, as the representatives of the people."

Dr. Scott has two immediate suggestions of how to go about it.

The first is development of more serviced land — one of his "priorities."

What he claims is "an exodus" of industry from Quebec offers new opportunities for possible prospects.

"I think we should be down knocking on doors in Quebec — and other places. They (industries) are going from Quebec and they are going to other places. It's unfortunate that they are, but we have a lot to offer them."

Neither, he indicates, does he place industries in categories of desirability.

"Regardless of size or type of industry, they'll be given a greeting and a welcome hand. I don't care what it is — we want industry."

Municipal government, however, is also the management of more mundane problems— home improvement, recreation, sidewalks, roads.

Dr. Scott has these criticisms and comments:

Roads — "We must bring our streets and sidewalks up to standard. They're in a worse condition now than they've ever been in 25 years. I think the people know that. If we don't get something done soon, we're going to have a whole rebuilding job on our hands. We have traffic bottlenecks scattered all over the place."

Homes — "Legislation has become so complicated on matters like home improvements, I'd like to see an expediter at city hall to look after the public — help them through the ropes and the red tape. It affects people and is a source of irritation in our community. We're overplanned and under-developed."

Recreation — "We've almost 5,000 high school students in our city; it would be impossible to have a building for recreation for that number-

Let's Give Industry A Greeting

They must be organized and led — through city recreation working in closer co operation with other recreation organizations. Particularly the girls — we don't have enough organized recreation for teenage girls."

Among his strongest complaints — if the number of times he has stated it publicly is a criterion — can be stated simply: The way things are run at city hall.

By implication, he infers his opponent has usurped the functions of city management unto himself.

"Let's give the city-manager form of government a trial. The way it is now it's a city mayor form of government," which is not according to the bylaw or the private (government) bill authorizing Belleville's system of administration. Instead of the city manager carrying out the policy laid down by council it's the mayor who's running things."

Were he elected, says Dr. Scott, he would institute what he prefers to call "informal briefing meetings" of city council between its regular sessions.

In fact, as mayor his first move would be to call "several informal meetings" to draw up a list of projects according to priority.

The signs of change for Ontario's municipal governments are now predictable. Like it or not, local administrations must now prepare for the complexities of regional government.

However, aiming for Belleville as his bailiwick, Dr. Scott says: "I feel before we take on regional government we should clean up our own backyards. We haven't yet digested the annexation of some years ago (1958.) And we have to settle down to proper budgetting and expenditures on a priority basis — put first things first."

Ellis:

Belleville Must Show Leadership For Quinte District

Jack Ellis was the first mayor of Belleville to hold a two-year term of office.

His mayoralty thus began with change.

Now, at the end of four years and bidding for a third term he foresees more change.

"While I'm proud of my record, I'm not running on it, but using it as an indication of what I can do and intend to do to build a better Belleville," he says.

Belleville, he believes, must hold itself ready for a greater transformation — not instigated by the municipality itself, but involving his city because change is the trend of the times.

"My whole concept of the future of Belleville is as a leader in the Quinte district. And I mean that — as a leader in industry and commerce and also in the fields of recreation and the arts."

Belleville, as the most concentrated population unit in Quinte's municipal complex, is the natural magnet of the district's way of life — commercial and cultural.

"This is what I foresee, this is what I've been trying to do," says the mayor, "I have a thought of Belleville as a part of a metropolis — maybe known as Quinte — in which with proper planning we can lead the way for Ontario."

Regional government already has been promoted as a

We Can Lead The Way For Ontario

cal government already is seen projected in the province's decision to amalgamate school boards.

Belleville, he sees as the core of the new community.

"In a year or so, the first Loyalist (community college) buildings will be up; some of our traffic problems will have been solved; our urban renewal proposals will be in. With all this coming we'll be on the threshold of a real must by the Ontario government's Smith report. The breakdown of traditional municipal patterns — and the death-knell of small unit lo-

"We've started a trend in becoming a mature, well-rounded community — we're just sort of in the embryo stage. We're just bursting into the open in industrial development and growing in education.

"Belleville will become the hub of the Quinte area and regional government is the one goal I see we have to strive for," says Mayor Ellis.

He fears lack of planning now may result in costly adjustments later.

Absence of co-ordinated growth spells higher taxation in later years, he warns.

The mayor has presided over administrations that have approved changes bringing such inevitabilities as the biggest hospital expansion in city history, a new high school, a newer, bigger bridge over the Moira River.

For the first time in living memory freight trains quit running on Pinnacle Street (although the cleanup was instigated earlier); the city's police finally found adequate quarters; the main northern link with provincial highways — North Front Street — was rehabilitated.

The demand of the times has meant change. But someday the financial demand falls due. The bills of change blow down every taxpayer's street.

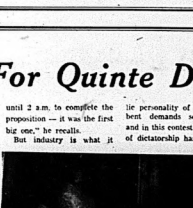
Yet Mayor Ellis believes the end is near for higher municipal taxes.

The reason? The provincial government may finally be realizing the municipal responsibilities to come to the aid of its municipal offspring.

"I don't think that the level of municipal real estate taxes will go up in proportion to the cost of living," he says. "I think the provincial government has realized realty taxes are as high as they can go."

The senior government now is appreciating the need to "allow a municipality to grow without having to increasing the municipal tax rate," he says.

Indicative of the coming enlightenment may be Queen's Park decision to amalgamate the separate school boards and allow it to establish education costs separate from municipal budgets.



The tax rate is based on assessment and the more equalized the assessment the better.

Here industry — and industrial development — has a special place for the mayor in what he considers his successes.

During his first term the present industrial commission was formed and he can admits one of his greatest satisfactions in office was the commission's first real triumph—Superior Electronics, now building in the city's north end.

"We worked one morning until 2 a.m. to complete the proposition — it was the first big one," he reveals.

But industry is what it

Getting Industry Is Hard Work

means — hard work.

"It's extremely difficult, industrial promotion. You don't just go out and ask them to come in to the town," he says.

The commission, considering its short term in office, he says, has achieved "successes out of the ordinary."

In a local election the public personality of the incumbent demands scrutiny — and in this contest the charge of dictatorship has been levelled against him.

To this, he recently answered at a Hillcrest rateprayers meeting that no one person rules city council "but there are times when leadership is necessary."

Now in the first mayor in years who entered an election year by committing his party politics to the municipal fashion. He ran for the local provincial Conservative nomination — and lost.

Closer to election time, his employer — Wilson Concrete — this fall was involved in a fairly-bitter (for Belleville) strike. The mayor — a plant production manager and salaried staff member — roused violent labor condemnation for crossing the picket lines, later loading a pickup truck in view of the strikers.

At a broadcast meeting of city council Mayor Ellis later flipped into a city labor council representative who sought his resignation. Neither the mayor nor city council acted on the suggestion.

But the year was more than politically busy, for Mayor Ellis led the city's administration during its planning and celebration of Centennial Year.

Among his verbatim conclusions of those terms: "I sometimes think I can plod along and put in hour after hour in meeting after meeting like everyone else. And, sometimes you think is it rapid enough? Then you look at four years achievement and you realize we've done this much, and that much, and it's quite a bit — and now with any luck we can continue. . ."

Market Ends Week with Rally Following Sharp's Budget

By FRITS ROOS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices were down in moderate activity on Canada's major stock markets this week.

However, the week ended with a small rally following Finance Minister Sharp's call for increases in income, liquor, beer and tobacco taxes and a speed-up in payment of corporate taxes.

Analysts said the increases came as no surprise and seemed reasonable. Some said they actually might help the stock markets.

The increases were the government's first concrete anti-inflationary measure, taking away some investor uncertainty and relieving the current pressur on the bond market, one analyst said.

High interest rates, partly caused by repeated capital demands by the government, had been forcing investors to bonds from stocks.

Markets slipped at the start of the week and dipped Thursday as professional investors consolidated their positions to be prepared for all eventualities in Mr. Sharp's mini-budget. They rallied Friday.

Except for Thursday, Toronto's western oils were strong throughout the week. The group index hit a 220.74-point all-time record Wednesday and closed at 219.68, up 7.14 points over the week.

Brokers said the advance reflected investors' high expectations of the winter drilling season now getting underway in oil-hot Northern Alberta.

"This season's results are expected to be at least as good as last year's," one analyst said.

Hudson's Bay Oil soared 3¼ to 43¼, Home Petroleum 2¼ to 55½, Scurry-Rainbow 2¼ to 44¼, Great Plains 1½ to 21¼, Canadian Gridoil 1¼ to a high of 12 and United Canso 75 cents to 4.60.

Oil refineries, which have a sizeable stake in the western oil fields, shared in the advance. Imperial Oil was up 1½ to 69¼, Shell Canada 1¼ to 31½ and Texaco 1 to 32. Petrofina jumped 2 to 32 at Montreal.

Vancouver's most active oil stock was Bata which closed at 91 cents, up 1 cent.

Golds, which surged last week after the devaluation of the British pound and a rush on gold bullion in European markets, dropped sharply.

The decline was launched by profit takers and carried on at the announcement by international banks that they would support the U.S. dollar at its present parity. It levelled off by mid-week."

McIntyre fell 5 points to 82, Dome Mines 4¾ to 53, Campbell Red Lake 3¼ to 73¼, Sigma 1.00 to 4.50 and Giant Yellowknife 50 cents to 7.80.

Beverages showed the largest decline among Toronto's industrial groups. Molson A fell 1¼ to 18 (before Mr. Sharp's announcement), Seagrams 1 to 28¼, Walkers 1½ to 33¾ and Labatts ¾ to 14¼. Imperial Tobacco slipped ¾ to 12¾.

Consolidated-Bathurst fell 2¼ to 24¼, Inco 1¼ to 123¼, Dominion Textile 1¼ to 18¼, MacMillan Bloedel and Falconbridge 1 each to 24½ and 87, Bank of Montreal ¾ to 11¼ and Domtar ¾ to 19¾.

Massey - Ferguson rallied 2 to 17¼, IMC 3½ to 31, International Utilities 2¼ to 40¾, Cominco 1½ to 28¾ and Capital Building 25 cents to a high of 1.30 in a 219,000-share turnover.

At Montreal, Canada Cement fell 2¼ to 30, Asbestos Corp. 2¼ to 20¾, Phillips Cable 2 to 8½, Domtar 1¼ to 19¾ and Dofasco 1¼ to 19¾.

Inco climbed 3½ to 122¾ and Cominco 2¼ to 28¾.

On the Vancouver market, RWA was off 50 cents to 11.00 and Cunningham Drugs 25 cents to 12.00. Okanagan Helicopter gained 25 cents to 3.75.

Denison suffered the largest decline among Toronto's base metals with a drop of 3½ points to 79. Hudson Bay Mining was down 1¼ and Pine Point ¼ to 50.

Pyramid Mining jumped 2.20 to 5.50 after Ottawa announced it would drop a $16,000,000 tax claim against the company. Preston Mines advanced 1½ to 20½ and Granisle 95 cents to 9.65.

In the specs section, trading was halted Friday afternoon in shares of Ideal Uranium, the week's most active mine with a turnover of 1,095,000 shares. The stock jumped 17 to 37 cents. The TSE said trading was suspended because of "irregular trading practices."

At Montreal, Hollinger advanced 1¼ to 27.

Vancouver's most active mine this week was Rodstrom, which closed at 62 cents, up 12 cents. Largo gained 5 to 9 cents.

On index, Toronto's industrials slipped 1.26 to 162.03, base metals 2.22 to 93.05 and golds 13.89 to 177.45. Volume totalled 14,707,000 shares compared with 13,775,000 last week. Declines outnumbered advances 442 to 286 while 181 issues remained unchanged.

At Montreal, the industrial index was down .40 to 167.42. Volume was 6,079,000 shares compared with 5,807,000 last week.

Veteran Blanks Mo-Hawks 1-0

Regals "Boat" Wins Duel Of Goalies

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Staff Sportswriter

A few short games ago the club was scoring quite at a second-place rate in the OHA Senior "A" loop — but couldn't prevent other clubs from doing the same.

Now, for the want of a goal, the well has again run dry.

Lady Luck rode a "Boat" named Hurley to an outstanding effort. The Belleville club did everything but put the puck behind the veteran goalie.

He kicked out 38 shots without a flaw to enthrone a fine performance at the other end by Mo-Hawk Larry Holmes, who faced 33 drives.

The Mo-Hawks may also be facing an internal problem.

Team captain Lionel Bolly bandied the club but could or would not disclose the reason.

"Floyd asked me to run things today. You will have to get any more than that from Floyd or Temple," he replied when questioned.

General Manager Bob Temple did not accompany the team here but this is not unusual. The players were surprised at Crawford's absence.

The team is slated to practice at 8.30 Sunday morning and has home-and-home games with Kingston Aces Monday and Friday next week.

Guelph scored the game's only goal at 13.22 of a wild first period that opened and closed with swinging fists.

Holmes had robbed George Montagna on a break-in pass seconds earlier. Regal playing coach Butch Martin started Bio Caron on a rush, and the defenceman beat his man before drilling a goal-mouth pass to Montague just as he arrived at the opposite side of the net. It was in before Holmes could make a move.

The game's next 44 seconds old when Mo-Hawk defenceman Bernie Gould and Regals' Terry Oliver clashed near the Belleville blueline. When peace was restored, Gould had drawn a fighting major and charging minor. Oliver took a fighting major, another major for high sticking and a misconduct. Gould suffered a cut head and a hospital examination also turned up a dislocated shoulder, leaving the team with three defencemen for the entire game.

Hurley robbed the Mo-Hawks time and again on sharp deflections as well as steering goals from Bob McAlpine on a quick thrust and Lionel Bolly, moving in quickly after an interception, had the puck dancing on the line and all around Holmes without success.

A Rift In The Mo-Hawk Lute?

Speculation was rife in city hockey circles today as to the tenancy of Coach Floyd Crawford's position as coach of the Belleville Mo-Hawks.

Crawford did not accompany the team to Guelph last night. He has been playing coach since its organization.

Contacted this morning both general manager R a l p h Temple and Crawford refused to make any definite announcement.

Rumor street had it the two officials had clashed.

"We have had a difference of opinion and I hope we will settle it over the weekend one way or the other" was Crawford's terse comment.

Said the general manager "I want to talk to Floyd personally. I will not elaborate on the matter now."

Aces Widen Margin!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some hockey experts claim the slap shot is, at best, an erratic method for scoring goals. But you won't convince Kingston Aces of that.

The Aces used the slap-shot to edge Collingwood Kings 6-4 Friday night in one of three Ontario Hockey Association Senior games.

Tied 4-4 going into the third period, Aces sewed up the game at 16:35 when Bob Rawsen scored on a slap-shot from 25-feet out.

The Aces opened up a three-point bulge in first place with their win at Collingwood. Charlie Convery scored twice for Kingston with other goals going to Johnny Mererer and Jim Gilbart.

Gerry Sharp scored three goals to pace the Alcans. Jerry Hanigan, Hal Goetz and Dan Mahoney also scored for Woodstock. Earl Balfour scored twice for Toronto and Gerry Draper once.

Crushmen Lived Up To Name!

By GEO. H. CARVER

Sparked by chief Crusher Scott Seagrist's four goals, the orange - clad youngsters tucked away a 9-3 victory to piggy - back Kingston into third place in the Eastern Ontario Junior "B" standing.

It was practically over but the shooting in the first period when the Crushmen grabbed a 4-2 lead. They added a couple in the second frame and three more against a single return in the final chapter.

And goalie Paul Smith kept the score to what it was with several key saves. At the other end Bryan Rose turned in a sterling effort whenever the Belleville shooting eyes were on target.

The winners outshot the city crew 33-30.

Oshawa drew 10 of the 14 penalties but Belleville failed to capitalize except twice on the manpower advantage. They failed to get organized on power plays and their defence was wobbly at times.

Seagrist's fourmore, plus one Oshawa attack with Mike Keenan coming up with a goal and four assists. Other Oshawa scorers were Prentice, Knowles, Blanchard, and McNamee.

6 Reilly had three assists, with Sawyer, Bradley, Bedard, and Knowles getting singles.

Ricky Rosebush potted a pair for the losers with Larry Poachman getting the other. Ray Summers had two assists and Reid Mallory one.

Oshawa's seventh goal fired by Mike Keenan was one for the book. The player let go from the left boards standing on an extended goal line. It was an impossible angle but the puck found a hole between Smith's arm and the net. An official examined the net to see if the puck had slipped through the webbing.

The game was only 12 seconds old when Oshawa's Prentice flashed that light from a neimouth scramble, the first play of the game. Two minutes later Seagrist got his first marker on a passing play with Bedard and Keenan.

Seagrist hung up his second goal tucking in Knowles right wing pass to up the score to 3-0.

Oshawa commanded the play to this point when the city crew came to a sudden if temporary life. Ricky Rosebush drew a cheer from the bakers dozen crowd when he sunk Mallory's pass from the wing.

Early in the second game Keenan freak goal and the Oshawa penalties began to parade, but Blanchard found time to poke in a passout to give the visitors a 6-2 edge.

Knowles upped it to 7-2 after three minutes of the final frame. Bedard got the gate and Larry Poachman handed home Ray Summers rebound for the third and final Belleville goal.

Oshawa's Bedard got the gate at 12:57 and Doug Potts skated through the entire Oshawa team into a corner but there was nobody there to take a perfect goalmouth pass.

The winless-in-nine-starts Juniors trek to Cobourg Monday night to take on the clanging Cougars of the lakeside town.

Bruins Go-Go Line Ready To Host Hawks At Boston Puck-In

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seth Martin was perfectly happy working as a fireman in British Columbia, but the 34-year-old goaltender couldn't resist the lure of the National Hockey League.

"I had a reasonably good job," the easy-going St. Louis Blues' rookie said. "I knew where I lived, liked my job and liked playing hockey. I got my kicks playing hockey, but it was secondary."

Martin was a standout goaltender on Canada's National team the last five years, but he admitted the chance to visit Europe was one of the reasons he played.

He says he plays hockey because of what it has to offer—not because he is obsessed with the game. That's why he didn't turn professional until this year.

"Before it seemed there were more hockey players than chances. But with expansion a whole new world opened up. So I got a leave of absence from my job. If I don't make it I can go back. If I'm going to play it's going to be in the National League."

Martin shares the St. Louis netminding duties with veteran Glenn Hall and with 9½ games under his belt, he has a goals-against average of 2.25 a game.

"Glen gives me confidence. He tells me how guys like to shoot and how to play a certain man, but you only learn with experience and you make mistakes on the way."

The Blues, currently floundering in the cellar of the NHL's expanded Western Division, are at home tonight to Minnesota North Stars, fourth in the West.

In other games, Los Angeles Kings meet the Canadiens at Montreal, Oakland Seals play the Maple Leafs at Toronto, New ork Rangers are at Pittsburgh Penguins and Chicago Black Hawks take bn the red-hot Boston Bruins.

Sunday, Montreal is in Boston, Los Angeles in New York, Pittsburgh in Detroit against the Red Wings,' Minnesota visits Chicago and St. Louis goes to Philadelphia.

But the big game tonight is the Chicago-Boston clash. The surprising Bruins are first in the Eastern Division with 28 points and Chicago, after a dismal start, has moved into fourth place with 23 points.

Boston's success can n be summed up in three words—Bucyk, Stanfield, McKenzie. The go-go line of John Bucyk, Fred Stanfield and Johnny McKenzie has scored a total of 27 goals—nearly one third of the Bruins' total output.

Dave Keon, out since Nov. 5 with a leg injury, is expected to be back in the lineup tonight for Toronto, but Montreal will be without the services of Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and John Ferguson.

His absence will enable Ron Attwell, a centre obtained from St. Louis earlier this week, to make his debut with New York

The Rangers also announced Friday the return to their Buffalo American League affiliate of defenceman Allan Hamilton because Wayne Hillman, a regular rearguard, has recovered from a left leg injury.

In other developments around the NHL Friday, Pittsburgh Penguins sent defenceman Dune McCallum to their Baltimore farm club in the AHL and Minnesota sent centre Murray Hall to its Memphis farm club in the Central Pro League as a replacement for Andre Pronovost who was promoted last week.

Bobby Hull's World Of Hockey

By BOBBY HULL

After 21 years, Detroit Red Wings still expect as much of Gordie Howe as I did one night 16 years ago, when I was 12.

My father brought me in from Point Anne (Ont.) for a game in Maple Leaf Gardens between Toronto and Detroit. We hung around later with the crowd waiting for the players to leave their dressing rooms.

Finally Howe and Ted Lindsay, his old linemate, came out of the Detroit room together. They were mobbed by autograph hunters.

"There he is!" my dad whispered to me. "There's the great Howe! Go get his autograph on your program."

I was a little shy in those days. "No, sir," I said, "I'm not going anywhere."

But finally, with my dad's prompting, I got enough nerve to ask Howe for his autograph. He obliged all the kids and I remember he had a sort of little half smile when he signed for me.

On the ice, though, Howe's no smiling matter. He is the Detroit leader, no matter who the junior pros are — and they've got some good young ones. Paul Henderson has a lot of the characteristics to be like Howe, except he seems to lack the ability to score in close.

Howe can score from anywhere, of course. He creams up that little half-slap, half-wrist shot and it's gone before a goalie can wink one eye.

The question keeps coming up: how long can the Wings keep building around Howe? The answer probably is until he retires to coaching.

I guess Gordie has slowed down, and he may be prone to more trifling injuries than when he was younger. But last winter, when he was 38, he still played 69 out of 70 league games and scored 25 goals. He finished in a tie for Detroit's top in the scoring with Kenny Wharram, which tells you just how durable the big guy is.

TODAY'S CUE FOR KIDS: Strong wrists and arms like Howe has are important in shooting. Great scorers are adept at slapping the puck, or shooting the money shot — the wrist shot. A good shot is made, not born, and any boy can develop one if he'll work at it. For you kids who live on a farm as I do, you've got a break. Believe it or not, you're lucky if you milk cows. But any exercise is valuable, like squeezing a small rubber ball, or doing push ups on your fingers instead of the flat of your hand. Almost any manual labor where you lift or shove or push will develop muscles in the wrist and forearm.

Ellis Girls Shade Landscapers

Two evenly-matched teams of the Belleville Girls Hockey League gave a highly entertaining display prior to the Junior "B" game last night.

Ellis Printers and Barrage Landscapers topped 140 minutes of fast hockey, the Printers edging the Landscapers by a 1-0 score.

Meribeth Colden got an assist on the goal scored at 3.22 of the third period.

Minor Hockey

The Hornets ran wild over the ANAF Dukes in novice action here last night tucking away an 11-1 victory.

Male came up with five goals with Fabey getting two. Mafino and M. Bennett getting singles.

Bourdeau and A. Bennett each had two assists.

On Friday night the Peterborough Kinsmen edged Richard Ellis 4-3 in an exhibition tilt.

Nats Defeat Poles 5-3

LENINGRAD (CP) — The eastern division of the Canadian national team Friday defeated the Polish national team 5-3 in their second game of a hockey tournament commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

Six teams from four countries are competing.

The score was tied 3-3 after the first period and Canada scored once in each of the next two.

For Poland it was Nowak, Kilanowicz and Bialynicki.

Canada fired 39 shots at the goal, 12 in the first period, 16 in the second and 11 in the third. Poland made 36 attempts, 13 in the first period, 10 in the second

In other games in the tournament, the Russian first-team beat the Russian second team 5-2 and the Czechoslovakian first and second teams drew 3-3.

Rangers Trounce Marlies

Red Wings Clip Flyers!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In sports, the lucky break is often the product of hard work.

Hamilton Wings proved that Friday night when they clipped the mighty Niagara Falls Flyers 5-1. They outshot and outshot the first-place Flyers 39-20—on Niagara Falls ice—and their three goals, all scored by Dan Lawson, were of the fluke variety.

In other games of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, Kitchener Rangers trounced Toronto Marlboros 7-4 while London Nationals and Peterborough Petes played to a 4-4 draw.

Lawson's first goal bounced into the net off goalie Phil Myre's pads. His second came as he stood by the side of Myre's net. A puck fired 50 feet by Rick Middleton hit Lawson's body into the net.

The third was scored into an empty net after Flyers had pulled Myre for a sixth attacker late in the game.

Gary Swain scored for the Flyers, who have a six-point lead over Kitchener and Hamilton, tied for second with 26 points each.

In Kitchener, the Rangers turned on the power in the third period and scored five goals in Myre's net. A puck fired 50 feet five minutes before 3,652 cheering Ronald Leclere bounced off ing fans.

Mosca Flattens Rough Rider In One-Punch Fight!

OTTAWA (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats today challenged Saskatchewan Roughriders for the Grey Cup in the first East-West football final between Hamilton and Regina clubs since 1932.

Each team had described the other as "very much like us" and oddsmakers held a similar view before the Centennial Year national title, setting odds at 6 to 5 and pick 'em.

One surprise set the teams apart Friday — a one-punch fight in which Angelo Mosca of Ticats flattened Jerry Selinger of Ottawa Rough Riders, who lost to Ticats in the Eastern Football Conference final.

The 270-pound Mosca hit 235-pound Selinger with a right outside the Hamilton dressing room at practice. Mosca said the encounter stemmed from the last game of the finals.

Later, in a move not related to the fight, players were restricted to their downtown hotels for meetings and preparation for what one called "a battle of psychology as much as strength."

As ever, the rival coaches were quiet about what apparent weakness each had seen in the other's play and were quick to offer complimentary assessments of the opponent's strong points.

Eagle Keys, Roughriders' head coach, said TiCats' offence had perhaps been under-rated. Ills Hamilton counterpart, Ralph Sazio, reiterated his club would have to stop Riders' full-back George Reed.

The field was reported in good condition but frozen as workmen cleaned it up Friday. Both clubs were prepared for hard ground with a variety of rubber-soled shoes and boots.

The weatherman Friday night predicted a game-time temperature of about 32 degrees. The forecast was for early sun with increasing cloudiness in the afternoon and winds of up to 15 m.p.h.

The game was to start at 3 p.m. EST and be shown on the CBC and CTV national networks.

The Mosca - Selinger fight broke up what was otherwise a quiet day for the clubs. Each held a practice session and took long last looks at each other's performances this year on film.

"He called me a big . . ." said tackle Mosca, "so I flattened him." He admitted elbowing Selinger in the final because "I didn't like what they were doing to Joe (Zuger)."

Baltimore Favored

Classic; Cowboys Clash With Colts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dallas Cowboys, one victory short of clinching the National Football League's Capitol Division title, face an uphill battle Sunday in Baltimore against Johnny Unitas and the unbeaten Colts.

The Cowboys, whoses offence caught fire Nov. 23 in a 46-23 triumph over St. Louis, are 8-3 and lead second-place Philadelphia by three games in the Capitol race with three to play.

Baltimore, however, is favored to corral the Cowboys in their second regular-season meeting between the clubs. The Colts won 45-7 in 1960, then trounced Dallas 35-3 in the 1963 Playoff Bowl.

Unitas and Co., who have registered nine victories and two ties in 11 games, can't afford to let up. The Colts hold only a one-game edge over Los Angeles Rams, 8-1-2, in the Coastal Division title chase.

The Rams entertain Atlanta Falcons, New York Giants visit Cleveland Browns, New Orleans Saints are at St. Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Eagles at Washington Redskins, Chicago Bears at San Francisco 49ers, Green Bay Packers at Minnesota Vikings and Pittsburgh Steelers at Detroit Lions in other games.

Unitas, who failed to throw at least one touchdown strike for the first time this season in last Sunday's 26-9 victory over San Francisco, still tops the NFL passing parade. And he'll have additional help against the Cowboys in veteran receivers Raymond Berry and Jimmy Orr, who return after long injury layoffs.

The Rams, triggered by Roman Gabriel's passing arm, are solid choices to repeat an earlier 31-3 romp over Atlanta, which has won only once in 11 starts. Gabriel has fired 17 touchdown passes.

Meets Bonavena Today

Oddsmakers Favor Ellis

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Argentina's Oscar Bonavena and hometown boy Jimmy Ellis climbed into the ring this afternoon in quest of a final berth in the World Boxing Association heavyweight tournament.

Ellis, a former choir boy and the son of a Baptist minister, is a complete contrast. He is a speedy, classic boxer, having learned his business as a sparring partner for former champion Cassius Clay.

The oddsmakers went along with Ellis' skills and made him an 8-to-5 favorite.

The fighters battled for a spot opposite the winner of the Jerry Quarry-Thad Spencer out. The finalists will meet for the WBA heavyweight championship, declared vacant when Clay refused to be inducted into the army.

Both fighters predicted victory. Bonavena said he would knock out Ellis in the second round but said he was confident of victory.

"Ellis is only a poor imitation of Cassius Clay," Bonavena said, adding, "I must win this fight. If I lose, I don't get to the finals and if I don't get to the finals, I lose $125,000."

That's the automatic guarantee for the championship match which will be staged next year by the WBA.

"I just want to win this one and one more and be a great champion," Ellis said. And a great champion to him means "someone kids will want to be like."

Both fighters were expected to be near the weight recorded at Thursday's weigh-in ceremonies, Ellis at 194½ and Bonavena 206½. No weigh-in was scheduled today.

Meilleur Stopped By Perez

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — Danny Perez of Puerto Rico beat Canadian middleweight Jimmy Meilleur when the referee stopped the fight in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round fight Friday night.

Perez, ranked seventh in world junior middleweight standings, weighed 159½. Meilleur, top-ranked Canadian middleweight challenger, was 161.

Meilleur, a Windsor, Ont., native now fighting out of Newark, N.J., and Perez both suffered cuts at the start of the sixth round after they bumped heads. For the rest of the round, they slugged it out toe-to-toe but referee Tommy Walsh stopped it at the 2:46 mark after examining a gash over Meilleur's left eye.

Major Baseball Leagues Make Plans For 12-Club Flag Races

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Expansion, rule changes and player trades dominated baseball's 68th winter meetings with both major leagues making plans for 12-club pennant races.

The American League, which indicated before the meetings started it would expand in 1969 to Seattle and Kansas City, conditionally approved a franchise holder in Seattle and set up a definite date to choose a group to replace the Athletics taken to Oakland by Charles O. Finley.

National League owners voted to expand not later than 1971 and appointed a pair of owners to study expansion. Six cities, including Toronto and Montreal, have made formal application for the two proposed National League spots. The Canadian bidders were unidentified.

Seattle's Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., was given conditional approval for a 1969 entry into the American League. The conditions include passage of a $40,000,000 stadium bond issue, start of construction on the stadium by the end of 1970 and adequate interim playing facilities.

Before the baseball men left they made deals on 33 players, got into a brief squabble with players and outlawed the type of trades which involve "a player to be named later."

They also set the major league player limit at 25 a club —down from 28—for the majority of the season and agreed irrevocable inter-league waivers of $20,000 must be obtained before a player can be released.

The squabble involved what the Players Association said was delay on the part of the owners in negotiating a statement of policy which would increase the minimum salary $5,000 to $12,000 a year. That apparently was resolved with an agreement to meet in New York Dec. 13-15.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, had indicated his group would not rush into expansion just because the Americans had announced plans for 12 clubs in 1969. But the pressure on the National League owners was tremendous because of many awkward complications if one league operates with two more clubs than the other.

San Diego, Calif., Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas, Buffalo, N.Y., and Milwaukee, Wis., as well as Toronto and Montreal, have made application for the two franchises. Denver has submitted an informal bid.

San Diego, Calif., Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex.; Buffalo, N.Y.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Toronto and Montreal have made application for the two franchises. Denver has submitted an informal bid.

There was no indication from the American League which of four Kansas City groups has the inside track for that franchise. Ewing Kaufmann, head of a pharmaceutical company, reportedly brought a $4,000,000 cheque with him as earnest money.

The other bidders are Richard Stern and Crosby Kemper bankers; Alex Barket, another banker, and John Latshaw, vice-president of an investment firm.

Lotz Pots 67, Leads

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — John Lotz, a touring pro from California, fired his second straight five-under-par 67 Friday for a 36-hole score of 134 and a one-stroke lead in the $35,000 Cajun Classic golf tournament.

At 135 were Marty Fleckman and Laurie Hammer.

Lotz has missed only two greens in two days and his card Friday over the 6,500-yard Oakbourne Country Club course, which plays to a par of 36-36—72, showed six birdies and a one-over par—the same as his first round.

The day's best round was turned in by Bert Yancey. His sizzling 64 gave him a 137.

The 11 Angry Men Meet Protectors

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 11 Angry Men meet the Protectors and the outcome of their battle could determine the American Football League's Western crown.

Oakland Raiders, who have never won a division title, carry a half-game lead into San Diego where the challenging Chargers are waiting in Sunday's AFL showdown.

The Raiders have climbed to the top of their division with a six-game winning streak and the best defence in the league.

The 11 Angry Men have dumped enemy quarterbacks 60 times in 10 games and lead the league in pass defence, rushing defence and—naturally—over-all defence.

The Protectors—the Chargers' offensive line—have made life easy for quarterback John Hadl. They've allowed enemy rushers to reach Hadl only eight times in 10 games.

To The Citizens Of Belleville...

For the past three years I have had the privilege of serving as a member of your city council. A period marked by steady development and growth. I have served as council's representative on the Industrial Commission, and while this Commission has been criticized, the facts are that during this period of time, we have secured four new industries and through expansion of our established industries, the industrial tax assessment has increased considerably. This in turn increased the working force in our community.

Since being elected to council, I have been concerned about the need for re-development of our down-town area. A year ago I was appointed chairman of a special committee to look into the development of the Riverside Drive. As a result, through our committee's work — together with the study made by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, an urban renewal committee has been formed of which I am a member. Urban renewal in the down-town area will re-vitalize the commercial tax assessment which our community so desperately needs.

In appealing to you for your vote for Alderman, I wish to emphasize that I am vitally concerned about the success of urban renewal of the down-town area, industrial expansion, a properly planned community through an official plan, a home nursing care program, not to forget water pollution control in the Bay of Quinte.

During the past three years I have gained valuable experience as a member of your council. I have supported all programs which I felt were good for our community, and in my opinion, we could afford. I have sought acceptable alternatives for needs where the original proposal was clearly beyond our means. I have worked tirelessly to aid the industrial and commercial growth of our community.

Let us not forget what a fine community Belleville is — Schools, Churches, Hospital, Parks and Recreational Facilities — a fine community in which to live with our families.

For continuance of this kind of representation, I respectfully solicit your vote for Alderman on December 4th.

Broken Homes and Divorces Growing Concern in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) —The Soviet Union has growing problems with divorce and broken homes, a Soviet philosophy teacher says. He gives a main cause as a failure by young people to see the difference between sex and love.

The broken homes result in "new cases of hooliganism, drunkenness and other social ills," teacher U. Sidorenko writes in Komsomolskaya Pravda, voice of the Communist Youth League.

He also blames a "loss of feelings" and says Soviet schools encourage children to be overly cold and rational, rather than "cultivating emotions."

In a Volga farm region northeast of Moscow, he says, 20 per cent of all marriages ended in divorce last year, a sharp jump from 18 per cent the year before.

While giving a frank look at family problems that usually are hushed up in the Soviet Union, Sidorenko does not report the national divorce rate. He said that, in general, "the relative number of divorces is growing."

Up-to-date national figures are hard to come by. The most recent official statistic, for 1965, shows 18.2 per cent of Soviet marriages ending on the rocks. Sidorenko's comparable 1965 figure for the Kostroma area was 16 per cent.

A Soviet scientist said last year, in reporting an earlier rate of 11 per cent, that most divorces were caused by drunkenness.

A new law last year making divorces easier was another factor possibly explaining the rapid rise in the reported rate, observers said.

"Love lies at the basis of any great accomplishments," Sidorenko says, adding: "One way or another, man's happiness is connected with sex questions."

Soviet young people think love is the basis for their marriages, he says.

Also, very frequently a person turns out to be unprepared and considers love to be the ordinary sex impulse."

Sidorenko calls for special marriage-preparation courses to be taught in the second year of the Soviet equivalent of college.

He does not elaborate, but presumably the course would include sex education, a controversial subject here. He complains that high school avoid this "extremely delicate" subject.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Mrs. Herb Brooks celebrated her 96th birthday Sunday and was guest of honor at a family party at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bert Walters and Mr. Walters. Mrs. Brooks is still active and seldom misses a Sunday at church.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster and Miss Darlene Foster attended the Piston Pushers motorcycle club banquet at Roland's Steak House, Saturday night.

Mrs. David Leavitt entertained at a demonstration party Tuesday night.

Activity Marks United Church Anniversary

NAPANEE — Since the period of exceptional activity centring around its 125th anniversary Grace United Church has even yet not settled down to its normal busy life.

Planning began months ahead when 16 teams made up of over 100 men of the congregation were ready for their mission of visiting every family in the congregation, with as many as possible called on that day, and the work completed before the following Sunday. As Grace Church has 339 families, a membership of 935 and a Sunday School of 400, this was no small task.

The work of that stewardship organization will come to a formal end next Sunday when the executive of the stewardship program committee will hold its final meeting.

Anniversary Sunday ushered in a week of concentrated activity. Large congregations attended both services to hear Rev. H. K. N. McLean of Chalmers Church, Kingston, special music by the choir and the guest soloist, Mr. John Carnegie, also of Kingston.

Monday evening saw approximately 600 people fed at an old-fashioned tea meeting. There were three sittings in hour apart, beginning at 5.00 p.m., with pictures shown in the church proper for those who were waiting. Each sitting was a separate unit, with its own committee to look after all the arrangements. Mrs. Ralph Andrews was in charge of the planning.

Senior citizens were honored Wednesday evening. The Couples' Club, whose presidents are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Marks, sent out about 50 invitations to church members who were 80 years or more, and about half were able to attend the dinner. Five were over 90, with Mr. Ryerson Pringle, at 95, heading the list. To him went the honor of presenting each of the guests with a Centennial declaration from the Federal government signed by the late Governor-General Vanier. To each of those invited, whether present or not, went a carnation.

On Friday Open House was held with emphasis on the history of the church. Each UCW unit had been asked to display at least six heirlooms. Most of these were on view in the Sunday school auditorium; while and on the platform was a display of books and documents from the church archives, with Judge C. F. Smith in charge. All the displays attracted a great deal of attention.

Saturday evening was given over to the young people for a hootenanny. The young folk, about 300 of them, gathered from as far away as Trenton and Kingston, and, by all accounts, the event was a "Hoolieg" success. Credit goes to Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Boomhour for organizing this event.

Run for Your Life Episode Tells Many Stories at One Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Run For Your life, now in its third season on NBC, remains one of the best constructed shows on the air and its star, Ben Gazzara, one of television's most quietly effective performers.--

Wednesday night's episode concluded an interesting two-part story which by using a switch on the old Grand Hotel plot technique, managed to tell a number of stories at one time.

The device was a multi-car crash that cost some lives and sent a number of survivors to hospital. Our hero, Paul Bryan, had been driving the car that caused the pile-up because of a faulty mechanism—and he was playing out his drama opposite the insurance company.

One victim was a young girl with a greedy uncle eager to get hold of her insurance settlement. Another vignette concerned a girl who was running away from an impossible love affair.

There was even a shoot-out because a young thief was trying to retrieve some stolen money from a hiding place in one of the banged-up automobiles.

It is an intelligent action adventure series, but, unfortunately, there's a pretty good chance that when Paul Bryan disappears from television, it will not be his fatal illness that carries him off but generally unimpressive Nielsen ratings.

ABC, for the third and it hopes last time has set a date for its Carol Channing special—Feb. 29. The first two dates were cancelled because of complications arising from a strike of union technicians against the network. ABC has also announced that its two-hour production of Laura, starring Lee Bouvier Radziwil, Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, and Robert Stack, will be shown Jan. 12.

Scouting in Good Hands In Prince Edward County

PICTON (Staff) — Scouting in Prince Edward County is in good hands if a meeting held in United Church Hall in Picton is any indication. The occasion was the annual meeting of the Prince Edward District Scout Council held Wednesday night. Reports of the various committees were made and indicated a successful year both for events and financial benefits.

Centennial year provided many extra events in which the Scouting movement was involved. This colorful year saw Scouters participating in events which may well make up some of this county's most important history, to date. The official opening ceremonies of the new "Quinte Skyway" bridge saw Scouts on duty as did Loyalist Days, Remembrance Day, and many other events. Some 15 major Centennial events in the county saw Scouts, Cubs and others connected with the Scout movement involved.

District Commissioner for Scouts Joe Webb, who had a large group of Scouts to the World Jamboree at Farragut State Park in Idaho this year was present for the meeting last night and showed a large selection of color slides of the Jamboree and the activities that were held there.

Also present for the occasion were immediate Past President of the District Scout Council Mrs. Russell Kingston. Mr. Rogers was presented with a fine travelling case by President Andrew Kingston.

Mr. MacIntosh was re-elected president for the Prince Edward Scout Council for the coming year, at last night's elections held during the meeting. Vice Presidents are Vice Presidenti, Vic Lord and Colin Cherry; secretary Mrs. S. Spiller; treasurer Mrs. Howard Seeley. Nominating committee consisted of Vic Lord and Paul Aman.

Recommendations were made that the Jamboree serve as District Scout Commissioner for another term. District Commissioner for Cubs is Bill Haynes and Assistant District Commissioner for Scouts is Ken MacDonald.

Chairmen of the various committees were also elected at last night's meeting. Camp chief post for the evening was District Field Executive John Pettifer of Port Hope, Ont.

Yule Doll Display Shown At Library

DESERONTO — Christmas and dolls seem to go together, and so Mrs. Tunnicliffe, the Deseronto librarian, has a display of dolls to remind visitors that Christmas is almost here. All have been lent by local residents.

Nora Witkowski is sharing her collection of dolls dressed in the native costumes of various nations represented. Japan and several European nations: Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Switzerland, a century-old doll from Italy and one from Ireland, the latest in her collection.

Mrs. John Hinje, Sr., and her granddaughter, Kathie Bean contributed four dolls to the show dressed in costumes found in different parts of Holland. Marina Jackson's 14 dolls are dressed in the latest modern fashions. Pamela Armitage has added her Raggedy Anne to the display, and Mrs. Fran Walker a teddy bear.

Mrs. Michael Ryan's contribution is two dolls which are in direct contrast. One is a doll, at least 100 years old, with china head and feet, wearing the original clothing. She under wear all trimmed with crocheted lace. The second is one of today's favorites, a Barbie doll, with various changes of costumes, including a knitted outfit made by Mrs. Ryan.

The Canadiana which has been so conspicuous during the year, has been replaced by All sorts of Christmas books.

Also prominently displayed are books and magazines about dolls, lent to add interest to the doll themselves.

4-H Club Members to Receive Awards

Tonight is "graduation night" for approximately 200 Hastings county boys and girls who will receive prizes and trophies at the annual 4-H clubs' county awards night at Madoc secondary school.

Members of 23 4-H agricultural clubs and 25 girls homemaking clubs, will receive awards for completion of club projects.

Mr. Owen Ketcheson of Moira will act as chairman for the awards' night program with Mr. Bud Bracken of Belleville, adult re-training program co-ordinator as the guest speaker.

Peterborough Group to Take Part

Organizer of the Silver Arrow Majorettes, 18 - year - old Sonia Liberico, is a former drummer of the Miss Canada baton twirling title, and captured about 30 trophies in her seven years of competition.

Chamber of Commerce manager Bert Saint said the Peterborough group will likely be allowed in the parade in conjunction with a local marching band.

With the parade barely two weeks away, the Chamber is anxious for prospective floats-builders to volunteer their services.

The "Santa Shop" adjacent to the Chamber office is in place, and Saint Nick will be available there to local children before the parade date until Christmas.

Chamber of Commerce downtown will conduct a call for the erection of two large Christmas trees, and the installation of floodlighting for the former post office.

Dynamite Blast Rocks Union Hall

SUDBURY (CP) — Two dynamite blasts 20 minutes apart early last night rocked a downtown hotel and the union hall of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America.

There were no injuries. Police said there was no immediate explanation for the blasts.

The explosion at the union hall destroyed one late-model car and damaged the entrance to the building. Police said dynamite apparently was placed under the car on the parking lot of the hall.

There was no immediate estimate of damage. The first explosion occurred at 6:30 p.m.

A detective said: "There doesn't seem to be any connection between the two. It may be some sort of out."

Staph Germ Usually Cause of Boils

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I have asked people what causes boils on a person's body and have received different answers. One says, it's a germ in your blood. Others say it is like a virus or cold.

What does cause them and how do you get rid of them? If a person has a lot of them, does it mean you have sugar? I understand, that if a person has sugar it takes a sore or cut longer to heal. Am I wrong about that?

If a person ate or drank something after a person who has boils, can you catch them? Or aren't they catching? — Mrs. G. F.

Boils aren't from "germs in the blood" and they aren't related to viruses or colds.

Boils are local infections started by bacteria on the skin. The staphylococcus (or "staph") germ is the usual culprit, although other types of germs sometimes are involved.

The staph germ is known for its habit of lingering on the skin (or often in the nose) and if the germ can work its way into or through the skin and establish a nest of infection, that's a boil.

For some reasons not altogether clear, some people are more resistant than others to these surface infections — which merely means that the person who gets boils must be that much more careful in having them treated.

Keep in mind that the "boil" is a spot at which the germs have formed a sort of colony. The germs multiply at a rapid rate: your body, meantime, is trying to subdue them by the bloodstream carrying white corpuscles (the germ-fighting particles) to the site.

If there is drainage from a boil, live germs will be in it. Thus a boil should be kept covered with a gauze bandage to keep germs from being smeared into surrounding areas of skin, with the risk of new boils forming. That is why a person often has a whole crop of boils.

If drainage from a boil is transferred to another person, then the boils may be catching. I dare say it would be safer for a person not to use a plate or glass that has just been used by someone with boils. There might be the pesky germs.

But the important precaution is to keep boils covered, preventing the germs from being spread around on your own skin or possibly someone else's.

Meantime, of course, have your doctor treat the boils. The modern antibiotics are effective in subduing such infections. Saying that it's "just a boil" is no reason for not having such treatment. Just for the sake of your own comfort, you want to destroy the germs and let the boils heal as soon as possible.

But there is a further reason. Sometimes a boil can become quite large (when a group of boils form in one place it is called a carbuncle.) This not only can be very painful and can sap your energy, but in extreme cases the infection can overcome your body's defences and the result is blood-poisoning.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can I use to get dirty knees clean? I've tried everything in the line of soaps. — Miss K. K. K.

I presume you mean that the skin is rough and grime gets ground into the crevices. Have you tried a brush? Some cold cream to keep the skin softer and supple will probably help.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my boyfriend had a malignant salivary gland tumor removed from his palate. Is there any danger when he kisses me? I don't know how to cope with this without hurting his feelings. — A. S.

There is no danger that you can acquire a malignancy from another person.

Watch Out for Swindlers

With the nearness of Christmas City Police officials are warning citizens of phone calls from phoney "bank inspectors."

It's all part of a swindle that has occurred a few times before in this area.

A person pretending to be a bank inspector calls a citizen (almost always an elderly person) and informs him or her that the bank is trying to catch a dishonest teller.

The inspector suggests that the person he has phoned assist him by going to the bank in a taxi supplied by the firm to withdraw money.

The money is supposed to be, after it is withdrawn, turned over to the inspector outside the bank in a white envelope. The money, explains an inspector, will be returned. In actual fact, it isn't.

There are other pretexts for getting the victim to withdraw money. The inspector may suggest that someone has been writing fraudulent cheques on the victim's account.

For one thing, according to the police, there are no bank inspectors. Secondly, it is not real bank procedure to send a taxi. Real bank officials would prefer you to get to the bank under your own steam.

Thirdly, it is not bank procedure to involve the public in a personal problem such as a dishonest employee.

The Belleville Police Department warns that after a person receives a call from a bank inspector, he should listen for a dial tone on the phone before calling the bank.

Some of the callers never hang up so that your telephone line is still connected with them.

Government Not Facing Challenge Says Hees

PICTON (Staff) — George Hees, Conservative MP for Northumberland, said Friday night if government spending continues to increase and productivity remains stationary Canada soon will face the same kind of economic crisis as Britain.

Mr. Hees, former president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, said in an address to the warden's banquet here that the federal government must drastically reduce spending and introduce tax incentives which will increase productivity.

The government so far has been unwilling or unable to face up to this challenge, he said.

Viet Cong Emissary Arrested in South

SAIGON (AP) — A high ranking emissary from the Viet Cong guerrillas' National Liberation Front has been arrested by South Vietnamese police, informed sources reported Friday.

Their account was that the emissary was on his way to a meeting with U.S. embassy officials in Saigon, but the embassy denied this.

A member of South Vietnam's House of Representatives, Phan Xuan Huy, told the House of U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had been trying to set up a contact with the National Liberation Front without telling the Saigon government. He said the arrest of the Viet Cong emissary and U.S. embassy pressure on the national police director to release the man had led the director, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, to offer his resignation last week. The resignation was not accepted.

December 2, 1967

Dear Fellow Citizens:

On December 4th, you will be going to the polls to elect a council to serve you for the next two years. I am offering myself for the position of Alderman, and I am asking for your support.

Like you, I am keenly interested in the affairs of our City. My wife Rosemary and I were born in Belleville as were our three children. I was educated in the Belleville Public School system and attended B.C.I.V.S. After attending Queen's University and Osgoode Hall, I returned to Belleville to practise law.

I am a member of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, as well as being a local director of the Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled. In 1965 and 1966, I managed the Ellis Juniors' Softball Team and in 1967 managed the Richard Ellis Senior B Ball Team.

I believe we should maintain the committee system of government; each committee to work with the City Manager to investigate matters and to report and bring proposals to City Council. In this manner, your elected representatives will be able to protect your interests.

As we know, our community requires industry. If elected, I will do my utmost to establish a feeling of harmony and co-operation between Council and the Industrial Commission, or whatever body may be established to promote industrial development in Belleville. The result of this would be that Council would be made aware of the requirements necessary for industrial development and could attempt to meet these requirements so that there would be no obstacles in the way of industrial expansion.

At the present time, our city is embarking on large capital expenditures. I realize that all of these are necessary. I do feel, however, that Council must decide on a system of priorities so that too great a burden is not put on our taxpayers at one time. I would say at this time that I feel a community centre complex should be the number one priority.

In closing, I would appreciate the opportunity of serving as your Alderman, and I humbly request that you vote for me on December 4th.

Yours truly,

Paul D. Russell

FACTS and FIGURES

RE NEW MODERN

BELLEVILLE COMMUNITY CENTRE

To be located at Belleville Fairgrounds as per Plans and Specifications prepared by Watson & Weigand, Architects and as recommended to Council by The Special Committee of Council and the Belleville Board of Parks Management and the Belleville Fair Board.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Estimated Building Cost | 677,000.00 | |
| Extra Equipment | 40,000.00 | 717,000.00 |
| Costs due to delays | | 71,700.00 |
| Furniture | | 73,000.00 |
| Architects Fees | | 51,702.00 |
| Total Cost | | 913,402.00 |
| Regular Grants available from Community Centres Act, Agricultural Assistance Act and Winter Works | | 230,000.00 |
| Balance to be provided by the City of Belleville | | 683,402.00 |

During the time that we will spend arranging the calling of tenders, getting further Municipal Board Approval and the commencement of construction we expect to have:

1. Offers from our five service clubs in Belleville to make club projects the providing of much of the equipment or furnishings.

2. Every avenue of possible Special Grants from Ottawa and Queen's Park investigated; and

3. A Citizens and Commerce and Industrial Fund to accept gifts to the City of Belleville — This fund is now set up — started by a donation of $200.00 by Alderman Ken Soden — all donations to the City of Belleville are deductible for Income Tax purposes which means individuals can include these donations with their regular church and other donations for credit in computing their taxable income. Business men and Corporations can include as expenses of their businesses such donations (to 10% of their net income).

For purpose of the following however, I am not including any amounts that we may receive from the 3 sources listed above — for our figures we will say that the balance to be provided by the taxpayers of the City of Belleville is $700,000.00.

To provide this sum at 7% over 20 years, an annual payment of $66,675.00 for interest and principal will be required.

Now let us relate $66,075.00 to the individual taxpayer

| IF YOUR ASSESSMENT IS | Present Tax | New Tax Due to Com. Centre | Increase in Tax Per Year |
|---|---|---|---|
| 10,000.00 | $360.00 | $366.00 | $6.00 |
| 8,000.00 | 288.00 | 293.20 | 5.20 |
| 6,000.00 | 216.00 | 219.60 | 3.60 |
| 5,000.00 | 180.00 | 183.00 | 3.00 |
| 4,000.00 | 144.00 | 146.40 | 2.40 |
| 3,000.00 | 108.00 | 109.80 | 1.80 |
| 2,000.00 | 72.00 | 73.20 | 1.20 |

To those who say we cannot afford to give the Citizens of Belleville the same opportunity to enjoy their leisure hours that are available to other Canadian Citizens in cities and towns, some much smaller than Belleville, I say we can no longer afford NOT to provide our people, young and old, with these facilities.

Alcan Lays Off 113 in Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — The Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. announced today a further layoff of 113 production workers at its Kingston plant, effective Dec. 6.

The cut-back brings to 250 the number laid off since September and represents about 20 per cent of the total production and maintenance labor force at the plant.

The company employs 1,750 workers, 500 of them classed as staff and management.

F. C. Whitney, personnel manager of the Kingston plant, said no further layoffs would take place before the end of the year.

In a statement, the company said "the general softening of the Canada-wide demand for aluminium extrusions used primarily by the construction industry," was the reason for the slow-down.

My Neighbors in Belleville

In the last few days most of you should have received a personal letter from me asking for your support at the polls on December 4th, and outlining my reasons for doing so. On this page, in other advertisements, and through the press generally, I have stated my platform.

No one person can or should try to take credit for all of the actions of any body such as Belleville City Council and I do not. However, I think it fair to say that leadership given must have some bearing on the outcome.

I deplore the personal character assassination that has been attempted during this campaign and I refuse to answer it. I also dislike the insinuation that the people of Belleville are anything but the friendliest.

My whole campaign is based on, as have been my efforts in office to date, building a better Belleville. My family and I enjoy living here and I am sure there are many who will agree.

I respectfully request that all of you who want Belleville to grow and prosper place your X beside Jack Ellis for Mayor on Monday, December 4th.

Yours sincerely,

Jack Ellis

'I'm Feeling Much Better'

Dead Woman's Heart Is Pumping South African Man's Blood

CAPE TOWN (CP) — A middle-aged South African man with the transplanted heart of a 25-year-old woman pumping his blood spoke today for the first time since Sunday's medical breakthrough of a human heart transplant.

"I am feeling much better," Louis Washkansky, 55, a Lithuanian-born businessman, told doctors at his bedside at Groote Shuur Hospital where the first successful human heart transplant was performed.

Heart specialists around the world were waiting to see if Washkansky's body would accept or reject the heart of Denise Am Darvall, an accounting machine operator killed in a car crash.

"The longer Washkansky goes on, the better," said Dr. Jacobus G. Burger, medical supervisor of the hospital, "although that does not mean the heart will not be rejected later. The body could decide in five or 10 years' time that it doesn't want this heart."

Washkansky has a tracheotomy—a breathing tube inserted in his throat—and could not speak although he was reported fully conscious Sunday afternoon after the five-hour operation.

He was being fed anti-coagulants to prevent blood clotting. Dr. Burger said that without the transplant Washkansky would have been dead within a few days because his heart's muscle was worn down.

The landmark operation was supervised by Dr. Jan H. Louw, the hospital's chief surgeon, with Professor Chris Barnard performing the main surgery.

Surgeons removed the heart from Miss Darvall's body first and kept it going by a mechanical pump while they took out Washkansky's damaged heart. They then transplanted the girl's heart into the man's chest and started it beating with jolts from electrodes.

"It was like turning the ignition switch of a car," said Dr. Louw.

Denise gave not only her heart. Her kidneys also were removed and taken to another hospital to be transplanted into Jonathan Van Wyk, a 10-year-old colored boy—mixed race under South Africa's race laws.

"It sounds to me like a damn good job—scientifically valid," said Dr. Norman E. Shumway, head of the cardiovascular surgery division at the Stanford University Medical Centre in California.

He said his staff is ready to perform the same heart operation when the right combination of dying patient and donor—whose heart must be taken no later than half an hour after death—occurs at Stanford.

Dr. Shumway predicted that within 10 years doctors will be transplanting hearts with the same frequency they now transplant kidneys. About 600 persons throughout the world were living with transplanted kidneys as of last February.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, who led the development of the heart pump, said in Houston the transplant "certainly would be a great achievement if they're able to overcome the rejection."

Dr. Kenneth Sell of the U.S. Naval Medical Research Institute said there was "quite a definite chance" Washkansky might survive two years or more since several dogs which have received heart transplants still are alive two years afterward.

One abortive heart transplant effort was made in 1964 at the University of Mississippi. Surgeons there kept a patient alive despite a failing heart in a long but futile wait for a suitable human donor. In desperation they finally transplanted the heart of a chimpanzee, which failed after one hour.

The greatest obstacle to success in heart transplants is the human body's own defence mechanism against foreign objects. To suppress this mechanism so it won't attack the transplanted heart, doctors were giving Washkansky a number of drugs.

But such drugs so depress the defence mechanism that such harmful foreign objects as germs thrive more easily, creating another hazard.

The Bay Closes Down!

Winter is closing in on Bay of Quinte waters, freezing out traffic for another year. However, there is still much to be seen — in the contemplation of winter's mood of scenery. At least, this lone observer seemed to find it so yesterday, after an early-morning snowfall near Point Anne.

Heavy Turnout Of Voters Seen

One of the heaviest turnouts in years was expected today as city voters went to the polls to elect a new mayor, 10 aldermen and a new separate school board.

Also to be decided in today's election was whether Sunday sports will be permitted in the city.

The two seats on public utilities and membership of the public school board were decided earlier by acclamation.

This morning at 11 o'clock — just one hour after the polls opened — poll clerks and deputy returning officers in various parts of the city, reported a "slow but steady" turnout of voters.

At the above time about 50 voters had turned out at the Parkdale Community Centre, where there are three polls with a total of 909 names on the lists.

"But we expect a good turnout, it is a beautiful day," was the poll clerk's comment.

Down at the No. 2 firehall, where there is a double poll, the turnout was not quite so good, with only about 20 voters casting ballots in the first hour.

Over in Hillcrest, 33 had voted in the first 75 minutes with returning officers saying this was very good for the district.

And about the same ratio appeared to be holding true for the East Hill district. One poll reported 24 out of 175 having voted another 11 out of the same total list.

Generally the feeling is that the election has been hotly contested by the two mayoralty candidates, as well as by the aspiring aldermen.

Mayor Ellis, on the other hand, has pointed to past accomplishments coupled with an appeal for the return of an experienced council head to ready the city for future expansion.

The 16 candidates for the 10 aldermanic seats have also conducted an aggressive campaign for votes.

Indicative of the expected big vote was the greater than normal turnout at the advance poll.

This year 305 voters cast at advance ballots at city hall as compared with 232 votes at the 1965 advance polls. The overall turnout two years ago was 53 per cent.

This morning city returning officer Adam Stalker was not available for comment.

He was out making a round of calls at city polling booths, where a bit of trouble was being experienced in balloting.

The fact that there are four sets of ballots — mayoralty, city council; separate school board and Sunday sports, adds to polling booth confusion and delays.

One veteran returning officer who has supervised provincial and federal elections in the village, reported a line-up at his poll from early morning and said it was the heaviest election turn out he has ever seen.

Voting response is in sharp contrast to the attitude to municipal affairs a year ago.

It was public disinterest last year in nominating candidates that led to a majority of women seeking election and later taking over local government.

Battle of Sexes in Tweed Draws Heaviest Vote in Years

Municipal electors went to the polls today to vote on eight council candidates — four men opposing the return of this village's all-woman council.

Viet Cong Force Trapped

SAIGON (AP) — American Infantry and South Vietnamese marines boxed in a Viet Cong battalion in the Mekong Delta today and reported killing 200 in a day-long battle that raged into the night.

Initial field reports put U.S. casualties at four dead and 38 wounded, South Vietnamese at 15 killed and 50 wounded.

The elite battle coincided with more of the Communist artillery and rocket attacks which have become the prevailing pattern of the Vietnam war in recent weeks. Communist troops shelled a U.S. destroyer, killing two Americans and wounding fifteen, made a bazooka attack on the U.S. Army headquarters just outside of Saigon, sank one cargo barge and set another afire, and ambushed an army convoy.

"President de Gaulle still refuses to come!"

Thant's Peace Plan Accepted 'in General'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Makarios of Cyprus accepted "in general" today United Nations Secretary-General U Thant's peace proposals for the eastern Mediterranean island, diplomatic sources reported. The proposals omitted provisions of a Greek-Turkish agreement to which Makarios had objected.

The Cypriot reply to Thant's appeal came a day after Greece and Turkey had accepted the proposals. In a preliminary reply Sunday night, Cyprus called Thant's program "particularly constructive" and promised a more detailed answer within 12 hours.

The sources said the more detailed reply, handed to UN undersecretary Jose Rolz-Bennett of Guatemala by a member of the Cypriot UN mission, expressed Makarios' understanding that Thant's proposals meant complete withdrawal of all non-Cypriot forces from the island, except those of the United Nations. The reply was not made public immediately.

The Turkish reply to Thant's proposals expressed reservations over two sections that were dropped—one calling for a broader function for the UN peace force in Cyprus and one providing special rights for the Turkish - Cypriot minority.

Record Books Tell Tale

And the financing of education has come equally as far.

This is graphically illustrated in the minute books of a Thurlow township school section dating back to the late 1850's which along with other momentoes of the historic past, was on display Saturday night at the Harmony Public School for the official dedication of the Thurlow Township history "The Rambling River."

The school minute book for 1859 showed school finances still being listed in pounds, shillings and pence. The transition to the dollar system was made the following year.

Today's teachers with their monthly pay checks, are lucky both in the frequency of payment and in the size of their paycheques.

Back in the days before Confederation the policy was to pay teachers but once a year — at the end of the term.

Of course if the teacher was completely strapped for finances there would be one or two advances of from $15 to $20 earlier in the term, but the balance of payment was made in December.

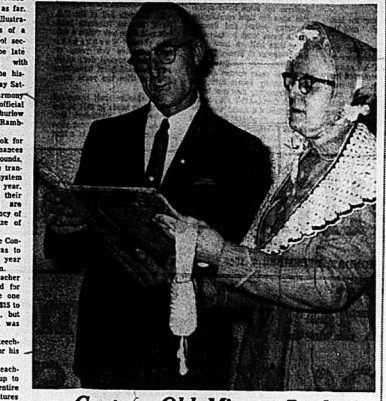
By the year 1883 the teacher's salary had soared up to around $300; with the entire year's school expenditures still only about $420.



The government grant for the school section that year was $35. It appeared that the school section levied its own taxes while a grant of $36 was received from the municipality.

The cost of a broom and mop for cleaning out the school was listed as 30 cents.

And it appears there were disciplinary problems in school then as now.

One item in the minute book indicated that one pupil refused to accept orders from the teacher and also refused to go home.

35 Head of Cattle Lost In Fire Near Bloomfield

Damage was estimated between $35,000 and $40,000 after fire completely destroyed the barn of R. W. Conley of R. R. 2, Bloomfield early last evening.

The fire, which broke out sometime after eight o'clock, was reported by John Barrett, a Wellington resident returning home.

Mr. Conley had been in the lower part of the barn at eight p.m. and there were no signs of trouble. He left to visit some friends and by nine p.m. the 75-year-old building was destroyed.

The largest part of the damage was due to the loss of 18 milking cows, a tractor, 4,000 bales of hay, 1,000 bales of straw as well as all his milking equipment.

No cause of the fire has been determined but a spokesman for the Fire Department mentioned the possibility of spontaneous combustion in the upper levels of the barn.

Woman Running for Office on Mohawk Indian Reserve

TYENDINAGA — Feminine zeal for public office has blossomed on the Mohawk Indian Reserve here.

For the first time in their history, the Quinte Mohawks have the choice of selecting a woman to help run their affairs.

She is Mrs. Audrey Maracle, nominated Saturday with six men to seek a seat on the four - member council which administers reserve affairs.

Wouhha, everywhere, says Mrs. Maracle, a mother of six children, just don't seem to take sufficient interest in public affairs.

"Usually, we just want to sit back and find fault with the men. So I just figured I should get in there and work as well."

Response to her candidacy, she said last night, has been "very good", even though she is setting a precedent in a realm which has hitherto been male-dominated.

But she is pleased "with the men's reaction to a woman running for council."

Mrs. Maracle has lived all her life on the reserve where her husband, Herbert, is a full-time farmer.

The couple have six children — three sons and three daughters — ranging in ages from four to 24 years.

Mrs. Maracle also is a presser and expert silk finisher for a Deseronto dry-cleaners.

While it's something new on the Tyendinaga reserve to find a woman seeking office, other Indian bands have elected women councillors — and even women chiefs, she says.

If elected she hopes to give her ideas on how best to direct reserve affairs.

"I think a lot could be done for agriculture and recreation. We don't have any organized sports here," she says.

She insists, however, she is not running just because she's a woman, but as an "individual interested in the reserve."

The Dec. 18 election also will see a contest for the Mohawk chieftainship — since Chief John R. Brant is retiring this year after two two-year terms of office.

Also running for council are Bennett Brant, Carl Brant, Charles Maracle, Nelson Green, Clifford Maracle, Glen Hill and Willard Hill.

Thurlow Township History Dedicated

How do you go about dedicating the history of a municipality whose early beginning dates back a couple of hundred years or so.

When it is the township of Thurlow that is concerned, you extend a public invitation to the ceremonies, then keep the formalities to a bare minimum and proceed to have a ball reliving some of the happenings of which history is all about.

At least that was the program Saturday night at Harmony Public School when "The Rambling River" the centennial history publication of Thurlow township was officially dedicated.

Close to 500 people jammed the school auditorium where, after the formalities were over, they saw the re-enactment of an old time council session, enjoyed a song fest featuring old time favorites, and heard an ex-county warden reel off a few tunes on the fiddle.

Then to conclude the evening's fun they saw the centennial birthday cake cut by the only woman ever to be a member of Thurlow township council and enjoyed luncheon served by township ladies in period costume.

There was the customary chain of presentations of the history from the printer to the author, to the chairman of the centennial committee and to the reeve followed by a talk on what history is all about by Mrs. Ralph Sills, area Women's Institute historical curator.

Copies of "The Rambling River" were presented to each of the platform guests and also to the school's grade 8 pupils from the D. R. Atkins public school, St. Anne's Separate School at Point Anne and Harmony Public School.

Mrs. H. Harrison, dressed in period costume, led in community singing and also acted as pianist for the rendition of old time dance tunes played by the orchestral combination of former county warden Clayton Hall and Grant Kerr as fiddlers and Ernie Baker as guitarist.

Keeping time with flashing feet was Miss Sandra Mooseau who did a series of step-dances. The school choir led by Mrs. Groom sang several numbers.

But one of the highlights of the evening was the old time council session with members donning frock coats and sprouting instant whiskers for the occasion. Reeve Thompson strove almost in vain to maintain order during the boisterous re-enactment of old time government in action.

Cheap Canned Import Tomatoes Squeezing P.E. County Producers

The shores of sunny Italy are casting foreboding shadows on the Quinte district's most luxuriant farm area — Prince Edward County.

Canned goods are pouring in from Italy, with producers being paid 18 per cent subsidy by the Italian government to open up competition in North America.

But the opening has proved a serious wound to the local canning — industry — one of Prince Edward's economic props.

It's having a depressing effect on the industry as a whole," says J. F. Hepburn, who has his own canning operation at Wapoose and is president of the Ontario Food Processors.

Mr. Hepburn says the industry is worth about $5 million annually in the country — about a third of which is shared by the farm producers.

He says the threat of cheaper goods also is coming from subsidized South African and Bulgarian farmers, while the government also is entering the tomato business in Portugal.

In Ontario, processors on one hand have marketing boards to strengthen farmers' demands. They also must compete with products from around the world.

Mr. Baxter emphasizes the threat of foreign competition with statistics.

Imports of tomatoes in the first six months of 1967 totalled 287,000 cases. This compared with 157,000 cases for the same time 1966. It's close enough to being doubled to cause Prince Edward growers worry.

However, if the situation remained unchanged "we'd be forced out of business," he warns.

He says processors now have been seeking federal government attention on the import problem.

The situation also threatens in the Niagara Peninsula where canned Australian fruit is hurting local canners.

Bloomfield Girl Killed In Marysville Crash

A Sunday afternoon drive abruptly ended in tragedy for a Bloomfield girl yesterday when her boy friend's car was involved in a fatal collision at the intersection of Highways 49 and 302 at Marysville.

Sharon Cole, 20, suffered critical head injuries in the smash and was rushed to hospital in Kingston. She died about three hours later.

Her friend, Gordon Leverton, 20, of Kingston, was also taken to Kingston General Hospital with head injuries after his small European car was wrecked in the broadside smash.

Provincial Police say Leverton was northbound on Highway 49 when his car collided with an automobile driven by George Partridge, 21, of Montgomery Blvd., Belleville, who was proceeding west.

Damage to his car was estimated at $1,500.

Prince Edward County Warden's Banquet Held

PICTON (Staff) — Well over 200 guests feasted Friday night at St. Mary Magdalene Church Parish Hall. The event, hosted by Prince Edward County Warden Robert Boyce, was the annual Warden's Banquet.

County Clerk, Thomas Walker, chairman and toastmaster for the evening, introduced the head table guests — and included were Carl Bateman of Hastings County; Mr. and Mrs. A. Douglas Aitchison; Rev. and Mrs. Truax from Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker; The Hon. George Hees and Mrs. Hees; Norris Whitney M.L.A. and Mrs. Whitney; Mayor and Mrs. Jack Ellis of Belleville; Warden of Hastings County, William Shannon; Mayor and Mrs. H. J. McFarland and Warden Robert Boyce and Mrs Boyce.

From all sides, congratulations were on hand for a job well done. Robert Boyce, after introducing his family and immediate relatives, who were all present for the occasion, thanked all those who supported him through his term for their magnificent job.

"To the Warden," said Reeve Bernard Hepburn "we owe our thanks. He has been a magnificent Centennial Warden — he has approached his job with great integrity., honesty, and has run his council as he would a business. He has built up County Council, made it respected and kept all working in harmony." Reeve Hepburn added, it has been a privilege to have worked with this calibre of man. None but the highest praise was heard from the many who spoke, councillors and others associated with Warden Boyce, heaped praise upon praise for this man's work during the Centennial year.

Modestly addressing the large crowd, the Warden expressed his appreciation for the wonderful support he received during his term of office. "It has been an honor and a privilege to be your warden for the Centennial Year 1967," he said. "It has been a busy year, but an easy one. I have received excellent co-operation from everyone and it has made this job a "cinch."

In the county, he continued, we are seeing more and more of regional government, our associations with our neighbors, Trenton, Belleville, and the County of Hastings have been strengthened and our future looks bright. We have amalgamated our health unit and it is working out great. Now with our new access roads to the county on the West and the new bridge on the East we at in a wonderful position. ## Korea and Vietnam

In 1951 General Douglas MacArthur was removed from command of the United Nations forces combatting the North Korean and Chinese troops attempting to take over South Korea.

MacArthur, in a bold campaign that had pushed back the communist invaders across the 38th parallel dividing north and south, wanted to pursue the Chinese across the Yalu river to their bases in Manchuria. He had also threatened the Chinese with air and naval attack.

The general's hard line did not find favor at home and he was warned to clear all announcements of policy through Washington. When he persisted in going his own way he was removed from his command by President Truman and replaced by General Matthew Ridgway.

Now, nearly 18 years later, we have none other than former President Eisenhower speaking in almost identical terms to MacArthur with regard to the war in Vietnam.

Eisenhower, who led the Allied forces in the liberation of Europe, says he believes U.S. forces should ignore arbitrary frontiers, including those of Communist China, when in "hot pursuit" of their foes in Vietnam.

Eisenhower and Omar Bradley, America's only other living five-star general, agreed in a special telecast that the United States should pour reinforcements into the Asian country to "clean this thing up more quickly."

Bradley, who returned recently from a tour of Vietnam, said: "I sometimes think we talk too much about trying to get them to the negotiating table . . . They take it as a sign of weakness."

The big question of course is, how would the Chinese react to such a violation of Asian frontiers, notwithstanding the fact they are not averse to crossing a few borders themselves when it suits them?

Eisenhower's answer to this is that he discounts "any attempt by either Russia or China coming into this war on a major basis."

"Communists operate on the basis of their own plans," he said. "They do not do this by reaction, or some firm action they see elsewhere."

Well, MacArthur had similar ideas. He wanted to end the Korean war quickly by what today is called, "escalation." And look what happened then. The Chinese came into the fray and MacArthur was fired.

In Vietnam, the United States likely does not need more men to effect a military decision against the communists. But the consequences of further escalation of the war at this point could be more serious than either Generals Eisenhower or Bradley predict.

Recreation

Belleville has reached another stalemate on the issue of recreation facilities.

The parks and recreation committee has voted not to give approval at this time to the introduction of small ice rinks of the type being constructed in Kingston.

The committee had the rinks under consideration after city council's vote two weeks ago suggesting tenders be called for ice facilities of this type.

But final say was left with the parks board and their vote brings the city back to where it started in the long drawn out investigations that began with the arena and community centre project.

The smaller type rinks were being considered as a substitute for the arena-community centre project which had mushroomed into a costly enterprise the city decided it could not afford at this time.

The smaller rinks surely would have been better than nothing as a supplement to the existing inadequate facilities. As we have noted, the city is now back where it started.

Fashion Calamity

With miniskirts nowhere left to go, since they have reached the end of the (hem) line, the ultimate fashion catastrophe is expected to hit Britain — which started it all — next spring.

Yes, it's on the way — a return to the styles of the thirties. Inspired by the movie, Bonnie and Clyde, a London fashion house has created the thirties mood in a new range of outfits for next year.

The two-piece dresses (which from a male standpoint are scarcely worth a second glance) were modelled recently in London and are of crepe, with hemlines well below the knee.

What a prospect for 1968 after an anticipated long winter. As the saying goes, there is nothing new under the sun. It's full circle again.

Cyprus Issue

A Political Victory for Turks in Dispute with Greeks

By HAL McCLURE

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Turkey apparently has won a smashing political victory—if perhaps a short-term one—over Greece in the Cyprus crisis that for a few hours nearly plunged the eastern Mediterranean into war.

But the peace agreement reached between Athens and Ankara, details of which have not been made public, apparently did little toward getting the feuding Turkish and Greek communities in Ilve peacefully together on the tragic island.

The pact reportedly does give wider scope to the United Nations peacekeeping force on Cyprus. This could give both communities time to reach a detente by themselves, particularly if they know that neither Athens nor Ankara is eager to war on their behalf.

While the over-all mood in Turkey is relief, sectors of the army and Turkey's right-wing extremist movement are disappointed there was no "final solution" to the Cyprus question.

A number of junior officers in the Turkish Army—honed to a fine edge in expectation of an invasion of Cyprus as war fever mounted—have been heard openly criticizing Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel's government. Talk of a coup is discounted, however. The chief of Turkish general staff, Gen. Cemal Tural, has backed Demirel, as have other senior officers.

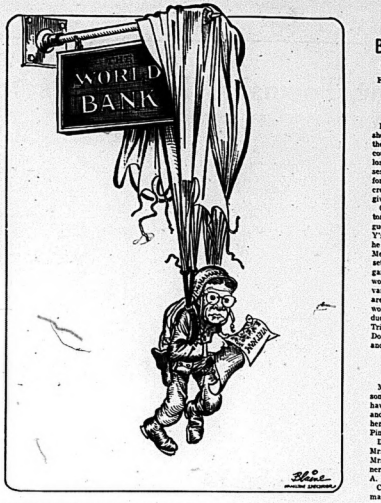
There is a strong suspicion, too, that the average Turk—particularly the peasant who only earns $200 a year—couldn't care less.

Available sources indicate Turkey feared an invasion might antagonize the United States and disrupt these strongly friendly ties with the Soviet Union.

One Ankara diplomat commented: "Turkey solved the problem without war and, looking at it from this point of view, it must be considered a victory for Ankara."

Saskatchewan's Compulsory Car Insurance Plan In the Public Eye Again



Peterborough Examiner

Car insurance is at the stage where the insurances companies are supposedly having a hard time making ends meet, premiums are becoming prohibitively high, and the court dockets are so crowded with suits for damages that they are slowing the business of courts. These are some of the reasons why there is mounting pressure for governments to enter the automobile insurance business.

It is therefore understandable why there is mounting interest in the Saskatchewan Government's policy. The province's compulsory insurance coverage provides for quick payment of death and injury benefits to the parties involved without regard to who is at fault in an accident. There is no waiting for long periods for busy courts to fix liability for the accident. If the accident victim feels the compensation is inadequate he can sue for additional compensation at a later date. The province's compulsory plan provides liability compensation up to $35,000

What is even more encouraging about the Saskatchewan plan is that it is working on a basic premium of close to $65 a year. It is only natural to think that private insurance companies could also make a similar plan work because of their proficiency when compared to a government organization. No-fault auto insurance has been urged by University of Illinois and Harvard University professors and more attention is being paid it by such noteworthy business papers as the Wall Street Journal. The Wall Street Journal took a first - hand look at the Saskatchewan plan and came away favorably impressed.

Now that the plan has received this pinnacle of acceptability some insurance firms might follow suit. It would be one method of reducing dissatisfaction with the present system and reduce the growing pressure for government control.

UN Food Organization

Financial Post

"If they lose faith, these Canadian taxpayers, in the efficiency of our endeavors, if they cease to believe that their taxes are adding to the bureaucracy, or to the pile of papers in some murky vault, they will lose the will to participate."

This warning was uttered recently by Agriculture Minister J.J. Greene. Ironically, however, his target was not his own government's spending habit. It was the United Nation's Food and Agriculture Organization with headquarters in Rome.

Greene told the FAO annual conference that Parkinson's Law seems to have found the organization one of its most willing victims. Its staff since 1957 has increased 300 percent and most of its people seem to work nowhere near the world's starving peoples.

There are, Greene says, endless stream of papers and studies, a plethora of programs and agencies, vast borders of public relations men wandering the face of the globe to talk about FAO. Yet it really necessary that 12 different FAO departments stamp a single report "top secret"

FAO's administrative budget now costs $60 million a year and Canada contributes 4.1 percent of that. Greene is not right to criticize the apparent waste and inefficiency and suggest some stringent changes.

Thinking, no doubt, about conditions at home, Greene added: "Governments are hard to come by and a dollar saved is a dollar earned."

This is an excellent prescription for Ottawa as well as for Rome.

Oh That Gobbledygook!

Christian Science Monitor

About every six months, somebody should protest against governmental gobbledygook — the gibberish language of those who strain for fancy, pretentious ways of stating the ordinary. It happens in the halls of government and the corridors of MIT.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara is guilty when he says the United States must "attrite" the war in Vietnam.

It's bad enough to talk of "escalating" a war, or "extrapolating" the battle. But "attriting."

Some of the mod phraseology is useful. Such as "in-depth analysis," or "interdisciplinary" studies, or "overview." We get the hang of what's intended here.

But readers have written in to protest when we ourselves use such words as "decisioning" and "upcoming."

What's wrong, the readers ask with "deciding" and "impending?"

English is a superbly flexible language, and it readily accommodates itself to new flights of fancy.

Ten years ago whoever heard of "hippies," "smoking pot," "teeny-boppers," or the "nitty gritty sound" of music! (Some hope they won't hear of them much longer.) But at least they are colorful terms.

Less defensible are such words as "conceptualize," "finalize," and "maximize," or the scrumptious — derived jargon which uses "structured" for planned and "commonality" for co-operation.

If you're a Pentagon whiz kid, maybe you can maximize with this language; ordinary folk merely sound pedantic.

Bronx Kids Take Up Swahili

New York Times

The announcement that William Howard Taft High School in the Bronx plans to offer instruction in Swahili as an elective is a prime example of how not to improve the educational opportunities of the city's Negro youngsters. Despite the current fly fashionable interest and emotional talk about the need to nurture in Negro youths a pride in their ethnic past and traditions, the manufacture of artificial linguistic and pseudo-nationalistic rallying points is a demeaning flight from reality. Those who are justly critical of the curriculum for its frequent lack of relevance to the needs of the disadvantaged ought to pause before making sin-truction even more irrelevant by

Alaska Highway Still Unpaved

Peterborough Examiner

Twenty-five years ago this week the Alaska Highway was completed — a colossal undertaking that might never have been attempted had it not been deemed a military necessity. From Dawson Creek, B.C. to Fairbanks, Alaska, its 1,500-mile length twists through some of the most rugged, spectacularly scenic country on the North American continent. Costing some $139 million, it links Alaska with the U.S.A. "mainland" and, more important from Canada's viewpoint, opens up the Canadian northwest for mineral, timber, oil and tourism development.

What concerns many today is that this magnificent highway is still unpaved except for a 271-mile section in Alaska itself and 83 miles running northwest from Dawson Creek. Dust-blown in summer and treacherous in the winter its gravel surface repels all but the most intrepid motorists.

Hopes that the Alaska Highway might be paved were dashed in 1965 with the publication of a report by the Stanford Research Institute that claimed that the potential growth of the area did not warrant the cost of paving, estimated at about $100 million. The projected benefits of paving, the report says, must be measured against the long construction period — probably 12 years.

The 1961 Batelle Report was much more encouraging, however. It predicts that the highway, if paved, would be travelled by 70,000 Americans and 250,000 Canadians by 1980. Tourist spending would total close to $130 million and the federal purse would be fattened by $133 million a year in tax revenues resulting both from tourists and development of the area fed by the highway.

It would seem clear that paving of this Highway would do much to open up the Canadian northland. While the U.S. might be content to let nature do the construction work, Canada might be better to pay the entire cost (with B.C. and Alberta sharing) and recoup some of its outlay by charging a toll on those using the road.

Measles Immunization

Hamilton Spectator

Eleven thousand children came to the temporary clinics for free injections. Between 2,000 and 6,000 did not. Their absence is a sad indictment of many — too many — Hamilton parents. It also makes a strong case for a compulsory immunization program.

At a cost of $33,964 the city set up 12 clinics for the immunization of all city children between one and 12 years old. Excepted were boys and girls advised not to take the shots for medical reasons. But they can account for only a minor percentage of the thousands not vaccinated. Nor is it likely that other reasons prevented many from coming to the clinics.

Perhaps the parents who did not take advantage of Sunday's program were either unaware of it or shrugged off measles as a simple childhood ailment that doesn't cause any real harm. Most of the time measles incurs no more than a few days of misery.

But the disease has caused death — 1,000 Canadians in 10 years, blindness, paralysis and brain damage. Even the educational opportunities of the city's Negro youngsters. Despite the currently fashionable sentimental and emotional talk about the need to nurture in Negro youths a pride in their ethnic past and traditions, the manufacture of artificial linguistic and pseudo-nationalistic rallying points is a demeaning flight from reality. Those who are justly critical of the curriculum for its frequent lack of relevance to the needs of the disadvantaged ought to pause before making sin-truction even more irrelevant by asking parents to call and make arrangements.

Mothers and fathers who could not get their children to a clinic Sunday may take advantage of this.

Shoplifting Exacts A Heavy Toll

Windsor Star

Shoplifting is an increasing menace to society. Though individual thefts usually are small in the aggregate they involve tremendous losses.

One reason it is becoming more prevalent is that modern merchandising methods allow more opportunities for it. Another is probably a decline in moral standards where a person consider it a sort of game.

There are those, in impoverished conditions, who are tempted to steal something they cannot afford to buy. But a substantial proportion of shoplifters are people who can afford to pay for what they need or want.

An ultimate example of this occurred recently in Somerset, England, where Lady Newry and Mourne, aged 23, was charged with stealing three tins of tuna from a supermarket. One can reasonably assume she could afford to pay. "I must have been absent-minded," was her excuse.

The real kleptomaniacs are not absent-minded. They have an overpowering impulse to steal, do so deliberately and often with skills resulting from practice making perfect. These people are found in all sections of society.

People Will Still Smoke And Drink

Vancouver Province

Now, of the measures introduced by Finance Minister Thursday evening will halt inflation. What are needed are made and the government spending. How does adding a two-cent tax increase on a package of cigarettes hold down prices? How deflationary are higher taxes on drinks? How will accelerating corporation tax payments hold down the cost of doing business, a cost that has to be passed on to the customers? Theoretically the taxes on tobacco and liquor are supposed to reduce spending on those luxuries. But there is precedent in the tax history to suggest what they do.

Age of Comfort Brings New Ideas in Retail Shopping

FREDERICTON (CP) — The way to the retail dollar is air conditioning, quiet music and a pleasant atmosphere to pamper consumers in shopping centres, says Deputy Finance Minister John Paterson of New Brunswick.

This is the age of comfort, he says, and "the retailer is dedicating himself to this image" with plans of shopping centres "beyond one's imagination."

Mr. Paterson says expansion of that scale carries built-in problems ranging from investing to a subsequent new breed of small retailers.

Original shopping centres consisted of 15 to 30 stores but the modern giants have more than 100 specialty stores serving economic regions of several hundred thousand persons.

Factors in this trend include a larger buying public with more spending money, the rural-to-urban population shift, an explosion of new products and advanced merchandising techniques.

"With the introduction of an advanced technological society," he says, "we have been provided with an avalanche of new products and tremendous diversity in style.

"But warehousing and distribution have reached such vast proportions that retailers do not know where to turn. Regional warehousing will play an increasing role in providing service to the new type of store with which we are being confronted.

"This is the area which has caused the margin of profit in most retailing to decline during the past few years and it is the area where the manufacturer must assume his fair share of the cost."

Mr. Paterson says inventory control and warehousing soon will be by electronic data processing.

Retail sales boomed across Canada last year, especially in New Brunswick where total retail volume contributed $364,000,000 to a gross provincial product that climbed past $2,000,000,000.

In the face of increasingly large competition from shopping centres, the small retailer must select a small segment of the market and specialize, says Mr. Paterson.

He is also a director and an executive committee member of Indian-Eskimo Association.

Brighton Police Busy

At 4:30 Saturday a single car accident in the Colbourne area was investigated by Brighton OPP. Damage to a car driven by 24-year-old Richard Dickens of Colborne was estimated at $400 after it left the township road and struck a small tree and a large rock.

The driver received medical attention for head lacerations in Colborne. Two passengers were uninjured.

Two hours later police were called to the scene of a two-car accident on Wooler Road near Stockdale. Police said $200 damage was caused to a parked car owned by John Hanoski of Stockdale after it was struck by a car driven by Lawrance Stacey of Frankford.

Damage estimate to the Stacey vehicle was at $500.

Charges are pending, a police spokesman said.

At 6:30 p.m. the detachment investigated an incident on Highway 2, just east of Colborne.

Barbara Anne Whaley, of R. R. 4, Colborne, told police her car was side-swiped by another car that failed to remain at the scene of the accident.

Police activity left the highways later the same evening.

A spokesman said a Brighton township resident was charged with keeping liquor for sale — an offense commonly known as "bootlegging".

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "I wish we could just skip Christmas this year. With Danny in college, we really can't afford to spend a lot on gifts."

Mother: "We've always made such a big thing of Christmas. Everyone will be disappointed if we don't this year."

You can keep a fairly tight budget without dimming the fun of Christmas if you enlist the family's co-operation ahead of time, so the children will know what to expect.

Mother: "We'll have to cut down on the cost of gifts this year — but we'll decorate the house and have the family dinner here as usual."

Daughter: I'm going to make some gifts. There will be something good for everybody."

WEDDING

BURLEY — STORMS

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the scene of the marriage, Nov. 25, 1967, at 2 p.m., of Beverley Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Storms, Belleville, and Victor Howard Burley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burley, Belleville. Rev. A. S. McConnell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless street-length dress of peau de soi with a Chantilly lace long-sleeved coat. Her shoulder length veil was held with a crown of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and fern.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Bonnie Joslin, wore a long sleeved lace turquoise dress with matching rose headdress and carried a nosegay of yellow poms.

Stanley Joslin attended the bridegroom and the ushers were the bride's cousin, Carl Rushlow, and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Menno Hovinga. Richard Storms, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

At the reception at Parkdale Community Centre, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a royal blue suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. To assist, the bridegroom's mother wore a black and gold A-line dress with matching hat and corsage of white carnations.

The couple will live in Belleville.

Dial-a-dish Service Boosts British Food in Daily Menus

TORONTO (CP) — If you don't know what to have for dinner and you live in Britain, you can dial ASK ROY and get a recipe designed for whatever day your quandary occurs.

Valerie March, one of the home economists who develops the recipes, says about 2,000,000 people use the service every day. The number has tripled and dreamed up about 900 recipes in the six years it has been in operation.

On a visit to Toronto she explained the system to interested Canadian home economists and demonstrated recipes to consumer groups.

The service is called dish of the day. Its purpose is to persuade British cooks to serve British produce. The recipes are planned to be within the budget and skill of the average home maker. They make use of seasonal produce available in the dishes area and follow a pattern that suits British food shopping habits.

"The dish is a main dish for a family of four. Each recipe is selected to fit a day of the week. A British housewife usually shops every day rather than once a week as you do here.

"She'll probably have a roast on Sunday, so we do a supper dish that can't stop Sunday, so we base it on something she'll probably already have in the house.

"Monday is often a dish using a cold roast. Monday is wash day and there isn't time to worry about food.

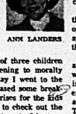
"Thursday may be a cheap dish because it's the day before pay day. Saturday may be a little more, perhaps using a drop of wine."

Mrs. March works for the British Farm Produce Council, an association of about 30 food produce groups. Whenever possible, she must work with their produce. For instance, she may not use pasta or rice because council members grow potatoes, but she may use lemons because they don't represent competition.

The recordings are done by the General Post Office which operates Great Britain's phone system. It makes its profit on the calls.

Mrs. March says eight recipes are prepared for the 30 areas where the dial-a-dish service exists. The spare allows for weather changes or changes in the availability of some ingredient. The wholesale markets in each region are checked every day.

Mrs. March says each recipe is home tested, rather than laboratory-kitchen tested. She says she tries them out on her husband and children, Simon, 6, and Lucinda, 4.



"If I've tried unusual ingredients and it doesn't come off, we don't use the recipe."

One recipe recommended for high tea or supper is a toad in the hole. To make it you first make a pouring batter of 1 cup flour, 1 tea spoon salt, 1 egg and 1¼ cups milk.

Prick 6 pork sausages and put them in an ovenproof dish and into a 425-degree oven for about 15 minutes, until th efat begins to run and the dish is hot. Pour in 1¼ cups of the well-beaten batter. Return the dish to the oven for about 40 minutes or until the batter is risen and golden.

Ann Landers
Reader Thinks Airline Pilots Talk Too Much

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say a word about airline pilots who think they are disc jockeys. I travel a lot and I'm sick and tired of those chatty fellows up front who sound as if they're auditioning for a talk show. Thanks a lot. — TWO BOURBONS TO BUFFALO

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BUFFALO: I'm with you. I enjoy hearing the pilot give the passengers a friendly hello after takeoff. It's reassuring to know there's somebody up there. But after we get off into the wild blue yonder it just as soon be tended to his navigation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As the mother of three children I am gravely concerned about what is happening to morality and simple decency in this country. Yesterday I went to the market to buy the week's groceries. I purchased some breakfast cereal with lettering indicating "surprises for the kids" inside." When I reached home I decided to check out the "surprises." This is what I found: An assortment of buttons which read, "My mother is a swinger," "Send your parents to camp" and "God is not dead, he just doesn't want to get involved."

I telephoned the manager of the market and asked him if he knew what was in the cereal boxes. He said, "Yes, buttons. All the kids are wearing them." I told him my kids would not be wearing them because the buttons, in my opinion, were atrocities. He replied, "Those buttons are filld compared with some I've seen. Yesterday a woman walked into the store wearing a button which read, "Lee Harvey Oswald, where are you now when we need you?"

Please tell me, Ann Landers, am I a batty old woman or are those buttons an insult to the dignity of decent people? — CONNECTICUT YANKEE.

DEAR CONNECTICUT: The buttons in the cereal box are, to my way of thinking, not amusing and in bad taste. Why on earth the cereal company thinks it's smart to encourage kids to ridicule parents and make jokes about God is beyond me.

The Oswald Button is more than bad taste — and I can't believe it came in a cereal box. It is a vicious insult to our President, and anyone who thinks it is funny possesses a sick, sick sense of humor.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I are in our middle forties. Mel is a brilliant man even though he has had only one year of high school. He knows all about law, medicine, religion, space and so on. Mel works in a factory although he feels the job is beneath him. He says he wants to keep his mind free from pressure.

Last year I had a female operation. Mel says that after such an operation a woman is as good as dead. He never was very enthusiastic when it came to love-making. Now he shows absolutely no interest at all because he says I have nothing to give.

Frankly, I feel more romantic now than I did when I was 21. Will you please explain why my husband has these peculiar ideas? — A VERY LIVELY CORPSE.

DEAR LIVELY: Your husband is trying to transfer the blame for his inability to perform. The female operation you describe in no way diminishes a woman's sexual capacity. In fact, it often increases it. Your husband should see a doctor and learn why he is as good as dead at the time in his life when he should be in his prime.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS IRVIN POTTS

Gwenyth June, daughter of Mrs. Reginald Coombes, R.R. 3, Frankford, and the late Mr. Coombes, was married in a candlelight, double ring ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, to Douglas Irvin Potts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Potts, R.R. 3, Stirling. Given in marriage by her brother, Roger Coombes, the bride wore a semi A-line velvet gown with wrist length sleeves trimmed with fur. A bouffant elbow length veil was caught to a fur headpiece and she carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Marie Collins, Smithfield, was maid of honor and the bridesmaid was Miss Linda Potts, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Elizabeth Harris, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They were gowned similarly in semi A-line dresses of peacock velvet with bell sleeves and white fur trim. They wore wedding ring hats of white fur and carried bouquets of white and blue mums.

Fred McAdam, R.R. 3, Stirling, attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Roscoe Morgan, cousin of the bride, and Donald Potts, brother of the bridegroom.

At the reception in St. John's Church hall, the bride's mother received the guests, wearing an emerald green suit of wool knit with white accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a winter rose wool knit suit with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip to western Ontario the bride chose a gold crepe dress, brown accessories and a corsage of bronze roses. On their return the couple will live at R.R. 3, Stirling.

Married Man No Use to Single Girl

Dear Doris: Recently I have been friendly with a married man. The reason for this is, my boy friend has been taking me for granted and seeing other girls. This man, although married, I seemed to like his personality and friendliness, as a result I found myself falling in love with him. We planned to stop seeing each other but before this my boy friend found out.

Now my boy friend seems to have changed completely and is now propoing to marry me. I know I should because I have a baby by him. But do you think we can find real happiness?

Incidentally, do you think I can forget this married chap? All I do is think, think, think, about him. He is continuing to tel me I will forget but I am just not doing it fast enough.

Doris, please print my letter as advice to single girls: Married men are of no use to the single girl but only heartaches. In my experience it's just like a raw sore that will never heal. — Can't Have Him

Dear Can't: Same old story: boy-girl friendship far too steady and intimate, far too young. There is no guarantee that having a baby insures married bliss with baby's father — far from it!

Yes, you can forget your married friend; and if you go by me you'll make a tremendous effort to detach yourself from both of them. You need a time to take stock; to make new friends and to have a good time with others.

Two or three years from now you'll know a good deal more about the kind of a man you'd like to spend your life with. A lifetime is a long time to squander with the wrong man.

• • •

Dear Doris: There's a girl I'd love to ask out but I hesitate since I feel she wouldn't want to go out with a loner like me.

It seems I'm always waiting for the phone to ring, yet I can't get up enough nerve to phone others. When I do go out I usually enjoy myself very much. Sometimes when I go out two or three days in a row I feel I have the world on a string. But when I sit around the house I sometimes get very depressed.

I try to be religious and lead a good life, and find that sometimes when I think I'm going to crack up from boredom I say a little prayer and it helps me out.

I'm neat, well-groomed, and don't have bad breath so I can't understand why people seem to avoid me.—Painfully Shy.

Dear Painfully: Half the world is longing for the love and friendship the other half could give. What holds them apart? Sometimes, self-consciousness. Another way of saying, "concentration on self."

Try, once, believing that the other fellow needs what you have to give. Find a club or group to join where your gift for sports or art or cabinet making can be shared. Your local YMCA is bound to have a hobby club to suit you.

Then every time meeting night comes around you'll have something to do without having to initiate it. Take the plunge now.

• • •

Dear Doris: We live in a mobile home and move two or three times a year. Would this hinder our application to adopt a child? — Childless

Dear Childless: No indeed. People are on the move these days, and this won't not necessarily hinder an adoption. The main consideration is what kind of people you are.

A social worker from your adoption service would help you look at the idea from all angles.

Chicken Breasts al a Secord Belong in Gourmet File

By MARY MOORE

By the time Chicken Breasts Laura Secord had been served three days in succession to two different people in three different hotels it dawned on me that there must be a really good reason for them.

By good luck at the United Gas Company's annual dinner for Home Economics teachers I sat between Iris Gillespie and Dorothy McKaig. We all served Chicken Breasts Laura Secord. Iris told me she had been served the same dish at another hotel the previous noon. Next day in another city at an Ontario Food Council luncheon we were served — you guessed it—Chicken Breasts Laura Secord.

Dinner Menu

Crumbed Veal Kidneys and Liver; Creole Sauce; Buttered Noodles; Shredded Green Beans; Crispy Greens with Roquefort Dressing; Angel Cake with Tutti Frutti Topping; Tea.

So I telephoned Iris, invited her for dinner Sunday evening and asked her to help me work on the recipe at home. We ended figuring it out together.

CHICKEN BREASTS LAURA SECORD
(Serves 4)

NOTE: There is a dividend: You get a wonderful pot of chicken soup from the breast bones.

4 large single chicken breast
4 wafer-thin slices boned cut ham (about 4" diameter)
2 small wedges Swiss cheese — each sliced 16 two to make 4 pieces
1 cup chicken broth from boiling bones (see below)
1 tsp. chicken bouillon granules (or 1 chicken bouillon cube)
2 tsps. corn starch

If you are confident bone out your own chicken breasts. If not, ask your butcher to do it. My package of boned out breasts with bones and 4 thin ham slices totalled $1.50. I asked my butcher to give each breast one whack with the flat side of his cleaver.

On each breast put a slice of ham. At near end put 1 thin wedge Swiss cheese. Fold side in to secure cheese (which eventually melts) and then roll tightly. Allow to rest one-half hour, open side down, to settle into shape of roll.

Place on trivet in large frying pan with lid. Add ½ cups water but not enough to surface above trivet and touch chicken rolls and steam over low heat 1¼ hrs. If desired slip off skin then. The hotel chefs removed the skin but I like it better on. Remove to baking dish in which rolls will fit fairly snugly. In small saucepan combine chicken bouillon granules and corn starch, then stir in broth from boiling bones or liquid below trivet on which rolls were steamed, and cook until thick, stirring. Pour over chicken rolls. Sprinkle very sparingly with 1 tbsp. sifted cracker crumbs or grated dry mild cheese. Bake until heated through and tops are delicate gold, basting carefully once.

British Railways Hit by Slowdown Over Status of Trainmen

LONDON (CP) — Britain's lagging economy was threatened again today by another labor dispute, a railway slowdown which Labor Minister Ray Gunner called "the silliest dispute of the decade."

The country's 36,500 locomotive engineers began working by the book, observing strictly every point in their 241-page rule book including lengthy inspections of all equipment before moving.

The engineers were protesting government-led attempts to streamline British work habits in the railways.

Scores of freight and passenger trains were cancelled. The nationalized railway said up to 25 per cent of all passenger services might be cancelled.

Roads into London were jammed even more than usual by traffic 50 per cent above normal. Automobile associations organized car pools and commuter pickup points.

Army trucks may be used to haul essential goods and RAF planes to fly the mail.

The engineers claim that trainmen, members of the rival National Union of Railwaymen, should not be enlisted to ride in the empty cabs at the rear of locomotives. The Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen said the trainmen —known as guards—belong in cabooses which were discontinued at midnight Sunday to save $600,000 a year.

The engineers see the move as a threat to their special status in the railroading hierarchy—the first step towards placing trainmen in line for some of their jobs.

Transport dislocation was further aggravated by municipal bus strikes in Cardiff, Nottingham, Southend and two North London suburbs.

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss: — • • •

My Uncle Duk was at the Clam-and-Eel Motel over the weekend. He's the one from Richards, Iceland Derry, as Jim Coleman says they don't put olives in their martinis because they take up too much room.

Sports-wise, Uncle Duk is so dumb he thinks a completed pass is when the blonde in the next seat smiles back at him and a full back is a drinking companion of the light end.

Duk showed early signs of mental retardation when he wrote in an examination paper that the Boston Tea Party was a gaggle of golfers taking a pre-game snort.

He still thinks that a kick to the end zone is what he would like to give to some guys he dislikes, and that a halfback is equivalent to two quarters.

But Duk has his brighter moments. He once got a job as a night watchman because he was used to sleeping so much in the daytime.

However, boss, Duk was in Ottawa Saturday to see the big game and if you looked closely at your television picture you would have seen him rushing out on the gridiron two or three times trying to snatch the ball off the field.

The police shook him down after the ground just in case, but they failed to ruffle his beard where he had parked one of the Tiger-Cats pigskins.

I don't know where he got the words but he said the Tiger-Cats were welded into a football machine that could not do anything wrong while the cowboys from Regina couldn't do anything right.

He said they did a magnificent job both coming and going and overshadowed the Roughriders in every department.

He said the big surprise to everybody up Ottawa way was the final score, a lopsided count that wasn't forseen by anybody except you — and you had a dream Friday night that it would happen but didn't catch the name of the topside club.

Duk is a bookie up there in Richlavit and every year he sets the odds for the annual Walrus-Seal Igloo Classic. He say's there's a lot of blubber changes hands after the game and even the polar bears get into the act.

He said that up to Saturday morning you could pick up a bet giving Hamilton three peluts but later the flashy backers wanted 7-4 odds or seven or more pouts.

There wasn't much money changed hands at these figures, but Duk opined the Regina backers had a sense of foreboding. They shrank back into their fur beanies, grabbed a flagon or two of Ottawa's Gallon-ese dew and started betting among themselves.

They say in sports, boss that the best defence a team can mount is a good offence. But when you toss both in at one serving it is a gourmet meal for the winners.

As the television announcer said, Hamilton proved in the chips-down game they were a magnificently-coached club and a lot of kudos go to that chief coach who held the reins for his charging Tabbies.

Even at that, boss, the big surprise as Duk said was the one-sided 24-1 score. Anybody even suggesting such a thing before the game would have been regarded as big a nut as those who bet the L.A Dodgers would drop four straight to Baltimore in the 1966 world series.

Oh, well, boss you can now collect your ill-gotten gains. Let's see: — 25-50-75-5-10-25-50, that's assorted 'n' 88.65. Not bad for a plunger like you.

A BAD BREAK

Garry Alexander of the sports staff will be sidelined indefinitely after suffering a serious accident Saturday. He fell and sustained a double fracture of a leg at a staff party. He is in the intensive care unit of the general hospital and underwent successful surgery on Sunday.

Sport Miniatures

WEST END,, Grand Bahamas (AP) — Butch Baird of the United States slipped to a four-over par 76 Sunday but managed to win the $20,000 PGA West End Golf Classic by a stroke over American Bert Weaver. Baird's 76 gave him a 279 total.

• • •

PITSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates of Baseball's National League said Saturday night they have sold catcher Jim Pagliaroni to Vancouver, top farm club of the Oakland Athletics. The Pirates did not reveal the price, but said it was more than the $25,000 waiver price.

• • •

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues said Saturday they have signed Dickie Moore, former Montreal scoring ace, to a one-year National Hockey League contract. The 36-year-old Moore retired in 1964 after a season with Toronto Maple Leafs.

MOSCOW (CP) Reuters — Rev. David Bauer, adviser to Canada's national amateur hockey team, said Sunday that Canada' the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia will be the three top teams at the Winter Olympics in Grenoble, France, next year. Father Bauer's comments were contained in an interview with the Soviet magazine Moskovskaya Pravda and reported by the Soviet news agency Tass.

Tiger - Cat Crushers Capture Cup!

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

OTTAWA (CP) — George Reed, the Saskatchewan Roughrider fullback picked by experts as the player to watch, raised his head in the dressing room and summed up the 1967 Grey Cup football game in seven mournful words:

"Barrow," he said, "called a hell of a game."

That was it in a nutshell.

Not for six games had defensive captain John Barrow and his front line allowed a touchdown,—not for 17 years had a team been held to five thousand six points in a Grey Cup game.

There were 1,003 pounds of tough meat and bone along that Hamilton defensive line in the persons of Barrow, Dave Viti, Angelo Mosca and Billy Ray Locklin.

Not only did they hold the West to a single point, but Locklin picked up a loose ball and romped 43 yards for a touchdown.

It was a rugged game, played in running shoes along a frozen field, and while the Roughriders stayed reasonably close in the statistics, they were never in it on the scoreboard.

The tone of the game came on the first scoring play.

In the second sequence after Hamilton got their hands on the ball, quarterback Joe Zuger hammered up the middle for the final 2½ yards and a touchdown—and rebroke the nose he first smashed a week before in the Eastern final against Ottawa Rough Riders.

With the temperature in the mid-20's and the wind 15 miles an hour out of the east, the sellout 31,022 who turned out saw a typical Hamilton game—crushing line play and a hammering defence.

Reed was held to one pass reception for nine yards and 21 carries for 92 yards.

It was Ed Buchanan who ran wild against the Tiger-Cats on one of the most frustrating afternoons a football player has ever had.

Buchanan went 99 yards on the four passes he caught. Ramming the line and running the ends, he hit for 13 yards in six tries.

Yet time and again the ball skidded off his outstretched hands or bounced off his chest on plays that ha "touchdown" labelled all over them.

And in the dying minutes of the game, taking a handoff from quarterback Ron Lancaster, it was Buchanan who dropped the ball, allowing Locklin to pick it up and lumber into the end zone on only the third touchdown the 242-pound man has scored in seven years of professional ball.

Cleats came out in running shoes on the frozen field. The Roughriders tried a variety of footgear. Steats wouldn't catch on the iron-hard turf and rubber soles jeped off the basketball boots—but Hamilton taped them back on and kept rolling.

Zuger, voted by sports writers as the game's most effective player, got the first Hamilton touchdown himself. He passed to end Ted Watkins for another and watched from the sidelines as Locklin score the third.

Zuger punted for three singles. End Tommy Joe Coffey converted Zuger's and Watkins' touchdowns and picked up a single on a field goal try that went wide from the 42-yard line.

Saskatchewan's lone point came when halfback Allan Ford pounded a quick kick from his own 31-yard line that took a psychedelic hop into the Hamilton end zone. Hugh Campbell tackled defender Garney Henley as he tried half-heartedly to run it out.

Barrow, who lost out to Saskatchewan's Ed McQuarters in the voting for Canadian lineman of the year, said he and his three defensive linemates "went out and did the job of five because we had to contain Lancaster," a scrambling quarterback who began rolling out desperately in the second and third quarters.

Ralph Sazio, the Hamilton coach who called most of Hamilton's plays from the sidelines during the season, said Zuger "became a man" in Saturday's game.

When Zuger felt Sazio was calling the wrong play, Zuger over-ruled it, the coach said afterwards.

Hamilton led 7-1 at the end of the first quarter and increased the margin to 17-1 by half time. There was no scoring in the third quarter.

Zuger's first-quarter touchdown came after Saskatchewan's Bob Kosid was called for pass interference on Dave Fleming on the 2½-yard line at 6:02.

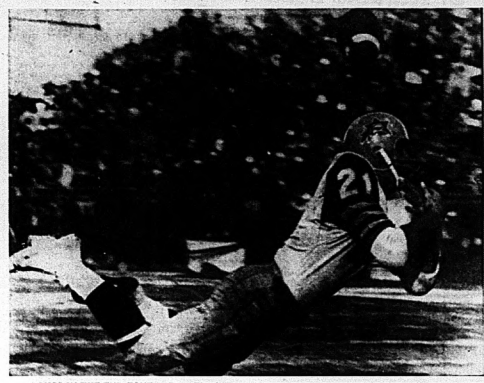
In the second quarter, Zuger saw the Roughriders go into a zone defence. Watkins was in the clear and Zuger threw down the middle from the Hamilton 39-yard line to hit the lanky end perfectly.



Watkins, traded to Hamilton by Ottawa earlier this year, took the ball the rest of the way —71 yards on the pass-and-run play. Coffey converted it at 5:45.

Less than three minutes later, Coffey had to settle for a single when his 42-yard field goal try went wide.

Zuger quick-kicked from the Saskatchewan 39-yard line for a single at 13:36 and followed up on the last play of the half with a 48-yard punt for another single.

Saskatchewan's Jack Abendschan mounted the only scoring threat of the third quarter when he set up for a 52-yard field goal try, Garney Henley took the ball beneath the uprights and ran it out for 13 yards.

In the fourth quarter, Zuger's third-down punt went 37 yards into the end zone for a single at 4:28. Nine minutes later, Locklin picked up Buchanan's fumble to end the scoring.

How They Scored!

OTTAWA (CP)—Following is a brief resume of scoring plays in the Grey Cup football game Saturday between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

First Quarter

Hamilton scored on their second offensive series, quarterback Joe Zuger building his way to a touchdown from the 2½-yard line at 6:02. An interference call against Bob Kosid of Saskatchewan set up the score when he jostled Dave Fleming on a pass play that started at the Saskatchewan 31. Tommy Joe Coffey converted after changing to standard football boots from the running shoes he was wearing on the frozen field.

Saskatchewan got a single at 14:06 when Allan Ford quick-kicked from the Saskatchewan 31 and got a long roll deep into the Hamilton end zone. Garney Henley gave up the point when he was tackled by Hugh Campbell.

Saskatchewan 1 Hamilton 7

Second Quarter

Hamilton increased its lead to 14-1 when Zuger utilized the Saskatchewan zone defence and found Ted Watkins clear for a 71-yard pass and run touchdown at 5:45. Starting at his own 39, Watkins broke clear, took the pass at the Saskatchewan 50 and wasn't challenged all the way into the end zone.

Coffey converted but was wide on a 42-yard field goal attempt at 8:18 for a single point when Gene Wlasiuk conceded.

At 13:36, Zuger quick-kicked from the Saskatchewan 39, getting a single when Bruce Bennett conceded in the end zone, then made the score 17-1 for Hamilton with a 48-yard punt single, conceded by Wlasiuk, on the last play of the half.

Saskatchewan 1 Hamilton 17

Third Quarter

No scoring.

Fourth Quarter

Hamilton went ahead 18-1 at 4:28 when Zuger's third-down punt from the Saskatchewan 37 went through the end zone for a single.

The final scoring play of the game came off a fumble when Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan dropped Ron Lancaster's handoff. Billy Ray Locklin of Hamilton picked it up and went 43 yards to score at 13:25.

Donnybrooks Feature Brawling Battle Between Habs, Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Every player except a spare goaltender was on the ice Sunday night as Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens turned a National Hockey League game into a Pier 6 brawl.

When it was over, one league penalty record was tied, three others threatened and Boston was the game 5-3 to move into first place in the NHL's Eastern Division by two points over idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

Referee Art Skov handed out 33 penalties totalling 139 minutes—including a record-tying 37 minutes to Boston defenceman Don Awrey, ejected three players and cleared the ice after donnybrooks in the first and second periods.

In contrast, other league action Sunday night was mild. New York Rangers downed Los Angeles Kings 4-2, Detroit Red Wings crushed Pittsburgh Penguins 6-1, Minnesota North Stars surprised Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 and Philadelphia Flyers defeated St. Louis Blues 4-2.

Saturday it was Los Angeles 3 Montreal 2, Toronto 3 Oakland Seals 0, New York 4 Pittsburgh 1, Chicago 4 Boston 4 and Minnesota 3 St. Louis 1.

Skov's whistle total included two misconducts, 11 majors, 17 minors and game misconducts to Awrey, Dick Duff and Jacques Laperriere of Montreal.

Awrey fought with Duff in the first period and with the Canadiens' Bryan Watson in the second to accumulate two misconducts, three majors and one minor penalty. He tied the infamous 29-minute mark Reg Fleming, then of Chicago, in 1960.

The Bruins, who extended their unbeaten streak to six games, drew 18 of the game's penalties for 70 minutes in infractions. The 33 separate penalties were only three short of the league record for two teams set by the Canadiens and Maple Leafs in 1953.

The total penalty minutes of 139 were 65 short of the minute-mark set in the same Toronto-Montreal battle. And Awrey's total of six penalties was only one short of the league mark for one game.

So what happened?

At 14:23 of the first period, Montreal's Ralph Backstrom jammed Awrey and goaltender Ed Johnston in the Boston crease. Backstrom dropped from a blow to the body and Duff stepped into take his place.

Awrey and Duff started trading punches and both benches emptied as reinforcements came over the boards. Montreal's spare goaltender, Ernie Wakely, was the only player on either side to watch.

Boston's Ed Westfall and Montreal's Ted Harris tangled in a major battle while Ted Green of the Bruins and Terry Harper went at it toe-to-toe a few feet away.

Peace was finally restored and Duff, Harris, Harper, Westfall and Green got majors and Awrey picked up a double.

It happened all over again in the second period.

This time Awrey took on Watson and they were both given major penalties. Awrey also picked up an automatic game misconduct with his third five-minute sentence.

John McKenzie scored two goals for the Boston victory and Fred Stanfield, John Bucyk and Bobby Orr added one apiece.

Montreal rookie Mickey Redmond scored twice for the Canadiens, his first NHL goal coming at 2:55 of the opening period, and Jacques Lemaire got the other.

Boston now leads the East with 21 points on a 16-5-3 record, followed by Toronto, Detroit, New York, Chicago and Montreal. Philadelphia's victory moved the Flyers into first place in the Western Division with 26 points, one more than Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh is third with 21 followed by Minnesota, Oakland and the Blues.

Score Was 7-0

Russ Blank Nationals

MOSCOW (CP) — The eastern division of Canada's national hockey team collapsed before a second-period Soviet onslaught Sunday night and dropped a 7-0 decision to the No. 1 Soviet Union team in an international exhibition hockey tournament.

The Russians scored five goals in the second period and one each in the first and third to advance to a second-place tie—with four points—with the Soviet No. 2 team in the six-team tournament.

Czechoslovakia's No. 2 team is leading with five points. The No. 1 Czech team has three, Canada two and Poland none. Each has played three games in the round-robin event, dedicated to the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

A crowd of 14,000 filled Lenin Arena in Moscow for the Canada-U.S.S.R. match and cheered delightedly as the Russians outskated, outchecked and outsmarted the visitors.

The game was relatively clean until the last period, when tempers began showing. Eleven of the 14 minor penalties were in the third period, with forward Gary Dineen of Winnipeg getting three of them after a series of encounters with Soviet players.

Violence Rampant

Manchester U. Regains Lead Margin

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United restored its two-point lead at the top of the English League's First Division Saturday as violence again marred the Old Country soccer program.

Arsenal captain Frank McClintock and fullback Peter Storey were sent off in the First Division game against Burnley.

Huddersfield forward Jimmy McGill was banished in the Second-Division game against Aston Villa and Mansfield goalkeeper Dave Hollins was expelled in a Third-Division match against Kilmarnock.

In the game between Liverpool and Fulham in Division 1, a fan ran on the playing field and attacked Fulham forward Les Barrett. The aggressive spectator was surrounded by 30 policemen and carried off struggling.

Rough play also marred the Scottish League program. Willie Wallace, Celtic's international centre-forward, was ordered off six minutes from the end of the game against Dundee United. Hearts' Norwegian outside right Jensen was sent off in the game against Dundee United, fresh triumph over Sarajevo, defeated West Bromwich Albion 2-1. George Best scored both United goals.

Liverpool and Manchester City, both involved in 1-1 ties Saturday, are one game behind United. A goal from Tony Hateley in the 32nd minute gave Liverpool a tie with Arsenal.

Fullback George Cohen injured a knee and is considered a doubtful starter for England against the Soviet Union Wednesday.

Alan Oakes scored the goal that gave Manchester City a tie with Sheffield Wednesday.

Infiesta struck down seven Leeds United players, but Leeds managed to beat Stoke City 2-0 and strengthen its hold on fourth place.

Alan Birchenall, bought by Leeds for £100,000 ($257,000) from Sheffield United last week, needed only five minutes to find the net for his new team, which downed Sunderland 3-2.

Oil Kings Picton Win Tilts

Picton defeated Napanee 8-2 and Belleville Oil Kings turned back Campbellford 6-4 in OHA Intermediate League fixtures.

Campbellford and Belleville split two goals in the first period with the city crew scoring three goals against a lone return in the second frame. Each team scored twice in the last period.

Mills, Scott, Faulkner and Fry andBelleville Oil Kings turned scored for the losers with Stewart getting two assists Bartsch and Meeks getting singles.

Keller and Bryant each scored twice for the Oil Kings with Woodcock and Meems hitting for singles.

Scott, Meeks, Rowbotham, Jones, Meems, Shurrard and Boehmbower had assists.

Pero had two assists with James, Scott, Wrese, Faulkner and Brady getting singles.

The teams divided two goals in the first period with the Merchants exploding for four in the second. Napanee added their last goal in this frame and the Merchants tucked away the win with three in the third period.

'Dentist' Barrow Pulled Sasky Teeth, Then Filled The Holes!

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders came out of the Grey Cup game Saturday with the impression they'd visited a dentist.

John Barrow, Hamilton Tiger-Cats defensive captain, pulled most of their teeth and capped that by coming in to fill up the holes.

Barrow helped Ticats extract a 24-1 victory in the centennial Grey Cup game and Roughriders agreed later that his operation had hurt them.

"Boom," muttered fullback George Reed of Riders in a graphic description of what happens to a 208-pound fullback when he hits into the line and meets an inspired 248-pound Barrow.

"He called a hell of a game," said Reed later.

Reed was held to 92 yards on 21 carries. But that was only half of the truth in the contest and Roughriders in their dressing room couldn't tell a lie.

"We didn't deserve to win," said one player and head coach Eagle Keys added: "This one wasn't ours. Our offence didn't go to well'and we didn't score when we had opportunities."

One fan seemed to think the same way.

An unidentified youth who managed to slip on to the field, when the Ticats were leading 17-1, told Hamilton fullback Willie Bethea:

"I guess you fellows have it made today."

"No," said Bethea, shifting his eyes to the scoreboard.

"It won't be over until the gun goes off."

That summed up the attitude of the entire Hamilton club. They never let up, although the Roughriders already appeared defeated.

"That's the big difference with this club," said 10-year football veteran Ron Brewer, who had just played for his first Grey Cup winner.

"If this team had played a 14-game schedule the way they finished the season, they would have gone down in history as one of the greatest football clubs of all time.

"We've played six games without allowing a touchdown. We've only given up 17 points during the time. That's less than a field goal a game."

Brewer, 28, the Toronto native whose off-season business is merchandising turnips near Walkerton, Ont., had never been on a Grey Cup winner during his nine seasons with Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos.

He joined the Ticats late in the season.

Rams Whip Falcons

Packers Clinch Division Crown

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Los Angeles Rams want it because they need it. Green Bay Packers want it simply because they're Green Bay Packers.

And Baltimore Colts? Well, they won't have anything to do with it but they're sure interested.

"It" is victory in next Saturday's National Football League game between the Rams and Packers in Los Angeles.

"I guess we'll have to do it ourselves now," Coach George Allen said Sunday after the Rams beat Atlanta Falcons 20-3 to remain one game behind unbeaten Baltimore Colts in the Coastal Division with two games remaining.

It's going to take some doing because the other team the Rams have yet to play is the Colts—23-17 winner over Dallas Sunday—whose only other game is against lowly New Orleans Saints next Sunday in Baltimore.

Green Bay already has clinched the Central Division title and doesn't need another regular-season victory.

But a remark by coach Vince Lombardi following Sunday's 20-27 victory over Minnesota clearly reveals the Packers' attitude toward any game:

"Winning is what counts."

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, Cleveland Browns topped New York Giants 24-14, St. Louis Cardinals won over the Saints 31-20, Washington Redskins tied Philadelphia Eagles 35-35, Chicago Bears downed San Francisco 49ers 28-14 and Pittsburgh Steelers upset Detroit Lions 24-14.

Roman Gabriel passed for two touchdowns, Bruce Gossett kicked two field goals and the defence did the rest for the Rams, who appeared to have their minds on the Colts-Dallas game.

"Somebody told us the score when Dallas was ahead, but nobody bothered to tell us who won the ball game," said Allen, who heard the news when he reached the dressing room.

Dallas led 17-10 with touchdowns on a Don Meredith pass and Dave Edwards' pass interception and a Danny Villanueva field goal, when the Colts' Lou Michaels set the stage for Moore's winning touchdown by booting three-pointers of 53 and 27 yards.

Despite the loss, Dallas clinched the Capitol Division championship because of the Philadelphia-Washington tie.

Navy Team Shades Army 19-14

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tennessee Volunteers and Oklahoma Sooners, moving toward an Orange Bowl collision on New Year's Day, completed their regular schedules in the U.S. college football season Saturday with impressive victories.

Tennessee clinched its first Southeastern Conference crown in 11 years by bombing Vanderbilt 41-14 while Oklahoma, which had wrapped up the Big Eight crown a week ago, swamped Oklahoma State 38-14.

Alabama and Mississippi were the only other bowl-bound teams to play on the final Saturday of the regular season and both had close calls.

Alabama, which meets Texas A and M in the Cotton Bowl, needed a last quarter touchdown to beat Auburn 7-3. Mississippi, headed for a Sun Bowl date with Texas-El Paso, got past Mississippi State 10-3.

In other regular season windup games, Navy held off Army's late rally to beat the Cadets 19-14; Boston College tripped Holy Cross 13-6; Tulsa defeated Louisville 35-22; Rice nipped Baylor 27-25 and Southern Methodist defeated Texas Christian 28-14.

Houston Wins

Raiders Blast Chargers!

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oakland and Houston gained important American Football League victories Sunday, but whereas the Raiders played before a hostile crowd in San Diego, the Oilers were viewed by a friendly hometown audience. Maybe a little too friendly.

In the third quarter of Houston's 37-14 victory over Miami Dolphins—which, coupled with Denver's 33-24 upset over New York tied the Oilers with the Jets for the Eastern Division lead—Hoston was driving for a score when an interference penalty was called.

This so upset Dallas nightclub entertainer Bubbles Cash that she ran out on the field to personally present her case to the referee who was pacing off the yardage.

Wearing a low-cut sweater and tight red skirt, Miss Cash gripped the official's sleeve, but he ungallantly brushed her aside. Defeated, she returned to the stands from which she and an unidentified male friend were ejected for her transgression.

Nothing quite so untoward occured at San Diego where Oakland pasted the Chargers 41-21 and just about wrapped up the Western Division title. With three games left for both clubs, the Raiders lead the Chargers by 1½ games.

Daryle Lamonica threw four touchdown passes, two to Billy Cannon, for the Raiders, who saddened 52,601 Charger fans, the largest crowd to see a sports event in San Diego.

At Houston, Hoyle Granger and Woodie Campbell ran for touchdowns, but John Witlenborn's 20-yard field goal in the second quarter was the margin of victory.

Wants Bleachers Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Additional bleacher seats should be eliminated from future Grey Cup games, unless police are prepared to get tough with fans, Allan McEachern, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Sunday.

He was commenting on crowd control at Saturday's Grey Cup game in which Hamilton Tiger-Cats thrashed Saskatchewan Roughriders 24-1.

Mr. McEachern counted four interruptions in play when fans dashed out on the field.

He pinpointed the cause as 4,000 bleacher seats set up on the running track "which provided easy access to the field area."

"In future games, I would not recommend extra bleachers . . . unless police are prepared to hit people with night sticks or something."

Late in the first quarter, a young fan scampered out on the field, stole the game ball and threw it into the end zone grandstand.

He eluded police for several minutes before he was ejected from Lansdowne Park. No charges were laid.

San Diego Clobbers Kings 8-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

East is east and West is west and Springfield Kings probably wish today they had stayed home Sunday night.

First-place club in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, Springfield ventured into the Western Hockey League Sunday night and got a rude reception from San Diego Gulls.

The result was an 8-1 victory for the Gulls, moving them into a second-place tie with Portland Buckaroos. The loss still left the Kings in first in the East with 25 points, three more than Hershey Bears.

In other action Sunday, Cleveland Barons strengthened their hold on first place in the AHL's Western Division with a 3-3 tie with Buffalo Bisons, Providence Reds downed Quebec Aces 4-2 and Rochester Americans whipped Baltimore Clippers 6-2.

Saturday, Baltimore nipped Phoenix Roadrunners of the WHL 5-4, Cleveland defeated Rochester 5-3 and Quebec downed Hershey 5-4.

Hamilton Honors Tiger-Cats

HAMILTON (CP) — Nearly 2,000 fans met the triumphant Hamilton Tiger-Cats when they arrived Sunday from Ottawa with the 1967 Grey Cup.

Compared to the wild homecoming given Saskatchewan Roughriders, when they won the cup last year, Hamilton's official reception Sunday night was respectable and orderly.

Kinsmen Win 8 In Row

Belleville's bantam Kinsmen chalked up their eighth OMHA straight win blanking Trenton Kiwanis 6-0 yesterday.

The Kinsmen divided their goals among six players Doug James, Jim Richardson, John Malvihill, Rob Foster, Cliff Janitsch and Rick Meagher.

Eric Powell, Tony Meagher and Steve Kirby got the others.

Dusie and Brown scored for Picton.

Wins Volleyball

TORONTO (CP) — Balmy Beach of Toronto won the Ontario open volleyball championship Saturday by downing Columbus, Ohio, two games to one.

The Toronto team, Canadian closed champions, won the first game 15-5, lost the second 10-15, then won 15-7.

12-Round Decision

Ellis Stops Bonavena!

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — still "a qualified contender." He said there were at least two possibilities as future opponents.

"We might go against Buster Mathis in the new Madison Square Garden," Goldberg said. "There's also been some talk about a fight with George Chuvalo in Texas."

Goldberg said Bonavena definitely would be fighting again despite Ellis's unanimous 12-round decision over Bonavena in their semi-final bout of the WBA tournament Saturday.

Bonavena took the loss without much emotion.

Roughies Get Warm Welcome At Regina

REGINA (CP) — "Welcome home, Roughies—we still love ya," read the sign on the airport road Sunday as Saskatchewan Roughriders arrived home from their 24-1 defeat in the Grey Cup at Ottawa.

This attitude was typical of Roughrider fans who met the team at the airport and then trooped to Exhibition Stadium to show their appreciation.

Although there were only 400 people at the airport and 5,000 inside stadium, they more than made up in noise what they lacked in number.

Head coach Eagle Keys said the Roughies might have done better had they not had to play five games in 21 days in the playoffs.

"And unfortunately, we had a good team to beat."

Canadians Ready to Give French Wider Rights: Stanfield

MONTREAL (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield says most Canadians now are ready to accept changes giving French - speaking people wider rights across the country.

"We English - speaking Canadians are trying to convince you that Canada belongs to you too, and that your sons have equal changes to play leading roles at all levels," he told the annual convention of the Quebec Progressive Conservative Association.

Quebecers should be patient, however, in pressing for increased rights across Canada, Mr. Stanfield conceded that appeals for patience were nothing new to French - speaking Canadians, but said "now I think you have better reasons for being patient."

Enthusiastic applause greeted the Saturday night speech which Mr. Stanfield delivered mainly in French—his first address to Quebec Conservatives since becoming party leader three months ago.

Both Mr. Stanfield and Dalton Camp, national PC president, urged Quebec members to work together and to beef up the party organization in the province, and several hundred delegates responded by choosing themselves a new "united front" president at the closing session Sunday night.

Campaigning successfully on the party unity slogan was lumberman Leopold Carriere, former mayor of Lachute, who told delegates "it's high time we acted in a spirit of co-operation."

Mr. Carriere succeeds the outspoken mayor of Granby, Paul O. Trepanier, who stirred controversy among delegates with his public pronouncements on sensitive issues and with his personal anti-Diefenbaker campaign during the party leadership convention last September.

Mr. Trepanier did not seek re-election, but withdrew in favor of Montreal lawyer Claude Nolin who lost to Mr. Carriere by what party sources said was a narrow margin.

Mr. Stanfield told the closing session of the convention there is "a great deal of work to be done to assure the success of the party in Quebec," where Conservatives hold only seven of the province's 74 Commons seats.

"I know we will have here a united party," he said.

In his keynote speech, the Conservative leader said demands for French - language rights outside Quebec should be tempered by two considerations.

Woman and Daughter Die in Toronto Fire

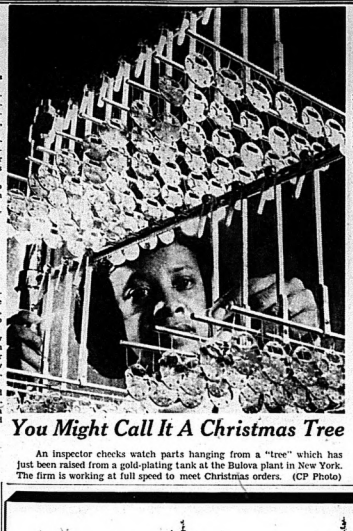
TORONTO (CP) — A woman and her five-year-old daughter died early Sunday in a fire that swept through their home, and an eight-year-old son died Sunday night of burns and shock suffered in the fire.



Mrs. Helen Daigle, 44, and her daughter, Sharon Neff, died in the fire, the fourth to take place in their home in nine days.

A second son, Richard, 14, escaped by jumping from a second-floor window. Another occupant of the house, Eugene Hunt, 38, suffered minor burns.

Chief William Carson, director of investigation of the Toronto fire department, said all four fires were started by careless smoking.

Mrs. Daigle moved to Toronto from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in July.

'Of Course I'm Drunk It's Grey Cup Week'

OTTAWA (CP) — "Of course I'm drunk, it's Grey Cup Week isn't it," said one Ottawa teenager Saturday during the celebrations for the Canadian Football League championship game.

And he was a good indication of the hoopla that followed for nine hours after Hamilton Tiger-Cats battered Saskatchewan Roughriders 24-1 in the annual East-West final at Lansdowne Park.

The youngster was on Ottawa's Sparks Street shopping mall, the centre of downtown activity, a few hours after the game, and was indicative of the mob scene that followed the national championship.

But there was more noise than trouble during the post-game celebrations.

"Actually it was a pretty good night for us," a police spokesman said.

The crowd, mostly youngsters with apparently nowhere else to dissipate their energies, milled through the downtown area. There was some minor damage.

A two-inch snowfall started about 2 a.m. and put a chill on outside activity.

Police Chief Ab Catchen said after it was all over:

"I'm glad it turned out the way it did."

Most of the out-of-town fans were on there way home by mid-day Sunday to Hamilton and Regina. Some activity continued downtown but it was mostly the result of young Ottawans looking for some Grey Cup action.

Weekend Death Toll Reaches 46

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed 36 of 46 accidental deaths reported across Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday, local times, also showed four deaths in fires, three in miscellaneous accidents and one drowning.

Ontario had the highest death toll with 10 killed in traffic mishaps, four in fires and one drowning.

Nine died on the road in Quebec, one person was shot, one died in a fall from a window, and another person choked to death.

One person died in New Brunswick as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning. Neither Prince Edward Island nor New Brunswick had any road fatalities.

Nova Scotia and Alberta had five traffic deaths each, Saskatchewan and British Columbia three each and Newfoundland and Manitoba one each.

Millions Overtaxed

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Carter, whose royal commission report on taxation was almost ignored in last Thursday's budget speech, said Sunday most of the opposition to the report has come from a minority that "felt their interest was in jeopardy."

In an interview on the CBC television program The Way It Is, Mr. Carter said speculators and promoters are a main force behind the opposition.

Although not commenting directly re in detail on the budget speech of Finance Minister Sharp, Mr. Carter said he is still concerned that "there are millions and millions of Canadians who are being overtaxed . . . and several thousand undertaxed."

He said he would like to see the government "lift the burden of taxation" from the overtaxed" and "move a lot of that" to such financial centres as Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Among recommendations contained in the Carter report was one for a capital gains tax. Canada is one of the few industrialized countries without such a tax.

Mr. Carter said petroleum, mining and insurance companies are among firms opposed to the report.

Cable Car Runs Amok, 27 Hurt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With passengers screaming in terror, a cable car ran wild down one of San Francisco's steepest hills Sunday night, ramming a car which exploded into flames and crashed into nine others.

Ambulances took 27 persons, most of them from the cable car, to hospitals with burns and bruises. Critically burned was James Van Baalen, 30.

The six-ton Hydro Street Cable car, nearing the end of its two-mile run from Powell and Market streets in a heavy downpour, rolled onto the steep grade and went forward out of control on rain-slick tracks.

Passengers said the cable car careered for 1½ blocks down Hyde. Some passengers jumped off. At Bay Street the car rammed an auto which bounced off others as its gas tank ruptured.

"A big sheet of flame hit the cable car," said Jim Kosek, 22. Kosek, just returned from serving in Vietnam, said the cable car seemed to have "lost its brakes."

Several persons were injured in the autos that were hit after the initial impact.

Another cable car passenger, Lorena Matson, 29, said: "As the cable car started down the steel hill toward Bay Street, the driver said, 'Oh, oh, it looks like we're gonna lose our cable.'

"We thought he was just kidding the tourists a kind we laughed. Then we just kept going. Some people jumped off, screaming. There was a white car at Bay Street. Then things were falling. There was fire."

Officer Frank Coombs said he believed the cable car had lost the grip on the sub-pavement cable that pulls the cars up the hills of the city.

The car is moved by an underground cable coursing along a slot between the tracks at nine miles an hour. A gripman operates a steel grip which extends down into the slot and grasps the moving cable.

Four devices can be used by the gripman and the conductor to slow or stop the cable car.

A wheel brake clamps a metal shoe down on the front wheel truck. Two 20-inch-long wood blocks press down on the two rails by a lever operated from the rear. An emergency brake drives a guillotine - like piece of metal down into the cable slot. Or the cable itself is used by the gripman to keep the car from gaining too much speed.

LBJ Ready to Allow Nuclear Inspections

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Johnson has pledged to allow international inspection of all non-military nuclear activities in the U.S. as soon as other nations accept safeguard provision of a nuclear non-proliferation treaty now under negotiation.

He said the U.S. is not asking any country to accept safeguards that it is unwilling to accept itself.

"We do not believe that the safeguards we propose in that treaty will interfere with the peaceful activities of any country."

Johnson spoke Saturday in a television hookup from the White House to Chicago for a ceremony marking the 25th anniversary of the first sustained nuclear chain reaction.

The president's remarks represented a new appeal for international acceptance of the treaty, already drafted by the U.S. and Russia but now bogged down because of disputes over safeguards and inspection procedures.

Johnson said: "I am today announcing that when such safeguards are applied under the treaty, the U.S. will permit the International Atomic Agency to apply its safeguards to all nuclear activities in the U.S. — excluding only those with direct national security significance."

Pravda Calls McCarthy Intelligent and Witty

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda praised U.S. Senator Eugene J. McCarthy (Dem. Minn.) Sunday for his attack on U.S. Vietnam policy but avoids direct comment on the presidential candidate's proposal for gradual de-escalation of the war.

Calling McCarthy "intelligent, witty," Pravda says: "He likes modern poetry and has a broad range of views."

The official Soviet Communist party newspaper says McCarthy's philosophy is that of "a typical modern American liberal."

"It is not for the unconditional withdrawal of American occupation troops from Vietnamese soil, but for gradual de-escalation of military activities."

CHICAGO (AP) — The Conference of Concerned Democrats shouted a unanimous endorsement Sunday of Senator Eugene McCarthy for the Democratic party's 1968 nomination for president.

The 450 to 500 delegates from 42 states approved without dissent a resolution that said the Minnesota senator could provide the "dynamic leadership" it asserted is lacking under President Johnson.

Results of Enzyme Treatment For Leukemia Are Favorable

NEW YORK (AP) — An experimental treatment with an enzyme has shown favorable — but tentative — effects in a handful of children and adults with one form of acute leukemia, a group of New York scientists said today.

Researchers said they were encouraged, but they pointed out how early the results were, that the results were similar to those attained with standard treatment, and that only small doses of he drug have been given.

On the other hand, they said seven out of seven patients with acute lymphoblastic leukemia showed a prompt response when treated with the enzyme, L-asparaginase. This common form of leukemia is, however, most responsive to standard treatments.

Most important perhaps is that the enzyme is a natural antagonist to a protein building-block or amino acid produced by normal cells. Some cancer cells cannot produce the amino acid, and must absorb what they need from body fluids.

One theory indicates that destruction of the amino acid in the body fluids could then selectively hamper cancer cells.

The report on the clinic trials was made at the annual meeting of the American Association of Hematology in Toronto by a group of researchers from Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases, and the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research, New York City.

The report was released simultaneously in New York. The work involves the amino acid asparagine—originally found in the vegetable asparagus from which it derived its name.

Only small amounts of the drug have been used. Furthermore, researchers are only beginning to test the toxicity of higher levels of the drug on human patients, after extensive animal trials.

So far, the researchers have given the enzyme to 14 persons. Of these eight showed favorable responses. Of the eight, seven had acute lymphoblastic leukemia. Of the seven, the longest response so far has lasted about six months. The other cases have produced responses lasting for weeks, so far.

Three other forms of leukemia diseases were treated with only one temporary response in a case of acute myelliastic leukemia. Three other patients with the same form of leukemia showed no response.

Only Quebec Raises Prices of Liquor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Except for Quebec, liquor prices across Canada will not be affected immediately by the 10-per-cent increase announced last week by Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp.

Liquor prices were raised in Quebec Friday, but no decision has been reached in other provinces about increases.

The tax increase is at the manufacturing level, so that stock now in retail outlets likely will not be affected except in Quebec where the provincial government decided to charge the 10 per cent anyway and keep the money.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said Saturday the Ontario cabinet will meet this week to discuss liquor prices.

Brig. J. G. Sprague, general manager of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, said there will be no tax increase on the estimated 16,000,000 bottles of wine, beer and liquor now in stock.

He estimated it would be two or three weeks before taxes are increased in Ontario.

N. E. Rodger, chairman of the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission, said the increase will be applied to liquor as it leaves the distillers and existing stocks will not be affected.

Peter Elliott, chairman of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, and L. S. Moyer, chairman of the Saskatchewan LCB, said it would be about a week before their boards know when the price increase will take place. Mr. Moyer said the tax will be applied only to new stock.

Attorney - General Robert Bonner said that British Columbia government also will not know until this week when the prices will change.

Higher liquor prices likely will not hit Nova Scotia until early in the year, said Donald Smith, administrator of the Liquor Control Act there.

Blake Wood, chairman of the Prince Edward Island LCB, said a meeting will be held there next week to determine when the increase will become effective.

Chairman Gerald Leblanc of the New Brunswick Liquor Control Commission said the consumer will not feel the increase there until "at least Jan. 1."

Canadian Schooner Lost on Reefs Off Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — The Canadian-owned schooner Ramona, destined for the Caribbean cruise trade, ran into reefs seven miles off Bermuda Saturday night, and half the 19 persons aboard lost their lives including a Canadian doctor.

Among the five survivors were three Canadians including a young Halifax widow who shipped aboard the 70-foot three-masted steel-hulled vessel as a member of the crew.

The English-built ship had undergone extensive refitting at Lunenburg, N.S., and was bound for the tiny island of St. Lucia to work in the West Indies cruise trade.

The Ramona is owned by the Vagabond Cruises Ltd. of St. Lucia, Walter Boudreau of Sydney, N.S., is president of the company, but he was not aboard the vessel when it ran aground at North Rock.

Among the dead was Dr. Kenneth McIntyre of Montague, P.E.I., who began medical practice in Lunenburg two years ago. Dr. McIntyre, 27, had two brothers who are dentists in P.E.I. and his father is a practising physician on the island.

Four West Indian crew members died. The bodies of the dead were recovered from the sea.

Officials said one survivor was found aboard and the other four were picked up from a raft.

The drowned West Indians, all from St. Lucia, were Joseph Modeste, 32, mate; Louis Martin Francis, 16; Hendrickson Rene, 24, and Thomas Simon, 17, the cook.

One skipper of a rescue craft said many of the dead were wearing lifejackets of the type that laced at the bottom. If not properly tied the jacket turns the wearer upside down.

The survivors were Mrs. Penny Gudgeon, 20, the Halifax widow; Capt. William McKay, 35, of Pictou, N.S., the skipper; Bernard Beaupre, 28, King City, Ont.; Joel Dressel, 27, York, Pa., and Harold Rosemond, 32, of St. Lucia, a crew member.

Distress flares were unnoticed and the schooner was not spotted until Sunday. A search operation was begun from Bermuda and included helicopters and rescue craft from U.S. installations on the island.

Officials said the vessel ran aground between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, but it was not until 7:45 a.m. Sunday that her plight became known. Her radio had been wrecked by a hurricane-force storm.

Mrs. Gudgeon said in a telephone interview from a hospital bed in Bermuda that Dr. McIntyre had tried to swim ashore for help Saturday night and was drowned in the attempt.

She said Dr. McIntyre apparently believed the grounding had occurred only a few hundred yards from shore.

Mrs. Gudgeon said the vessel was battered for three days by the storm and everyone aboard was seasick when Capt. McKay decided to make a non-scheduled stop at Bermuda to give the passengers and crew a rest.

Anglican Bishop Backs Catholic Critics of Millie

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuters) — Millie Jolly swearing macaw whose bitchering oaths got her thrown out of Expo 67, has nothing in common with Christmas, a church leader says.

Joining the church-state row over Millie's portrayal on two special Christmas issue stamps, Most Rev. Alan John Knight, Anglican Archbishop of the West Indies, indicates he agrees with the Roman Catholic Church view that the bird's stamp appearance is blasphemous.

"Millie and Christmas have nothing in common," the archbishop writes in the December issue of the diocesan magazine.

"I cannot believe those responsible for this misalliance deliberately set out to offend Christian susceptibilities or that they intend to be irreverent, but I am shocked by their lack of understanding how their act must be regarded by religious persons of all faiths at home and abroad."

Guyana's communications minister, Eugene Correia, says he does not agree with "this sort of puritanism" and that the stamps are bringing Guyana good publicity revenue.

Millie's portrayal has started a postage stamp boom in her native Guyana, despite the national row over the issue. One postal official said the rush of orders for the stamp included one from a philatelist archdeacon who wrote: "God bless Millie—send me some stamps please."

Millie was banished from Expo 67 because of the string of bilingual profanities she learned from workmen at the Guyana pavilion. She still languishes in the Granby zoo near Montreal where she was left as a gift.

Tweed

TWEED — Carl Gordon, former chairman of Elzevir and Methorpe School Board, was elected a member of Hastings County School Board No. 2 by acclamation at Thursday night's nomination meeting in Actinolite. Since the reeve and council were elected for a two-year term in 1966, no contest will be held this year.

Members of Olden Township council were returned to office by acclamation at the nomination meeting, recently in Mountain Grove Community Hall. Returned to office were Reeve Frederick Smith; councillors Alexander Drew, Reginald Barker, Ilhmer Bender and Dale Hartwick; public school trustees Russell Drew and Ray Cousins.

The first degree team of Thomasburg 100F Lodge, under the direction of the degree master, Harry Cousins, visited Trenton 100F Lodge to confer the first degree on candidates of that lodge.

Mrs. Alberta Gregg, Vancouver, Mrs. Alberta Gregg, Yenachar, celebrated her 99th birthday recently. Mrs. Gregg is confined to bed, but enjoyed calls from relatives and friends.

Melrose 4-H club members held the closing meeting of the unit, A World of Food in Canada, in the form of a family dinner party.

Winners of prizes at the Melrose WI centennial euchre held in the township hall Wednesday night were Lorraine Blatherwick, Mrs. F. Walsh, Mrs. Clarence Bergman, Cecil Mather, Leslie McLaren, "Edward Lazier and Harold McIlvoy.

New York Mourns Cardinal Spellman

NEW YORK (AP) — Dressed in the white, red and gold splendor of a prince of the Roman Catholic Church, the body of Francis Cardinal Spellman lay in state in St. Patrick's Cathedral today.

Thousands of mourners filed by the catafalque, some pausing a centre aisle, after a solemn high mass of requiem sung Sunday night by Archbishop John Maguire and nine concelebrants. Archbishop Maguire has been named administrator of the archdiocese by Pope Paul to serve until a successor is named.

The great bronze doors of the cathedral remained open throughout the night and early morning hours for mourners wishing to view the body.

Four New York City firemen and policemen stood guard over the coffin of African mahogany lined with bronze which will remain in place until funeral services Thursday for the cardinal, who died Saturday of a stroke at the age of 78.

All seven surviving American cardinals have been invited to the Thursday services.

The six archbishops currently in the United States have indicated they will attend, but whether Francis Cardinal Brennan, one of the Vatican's Sacred Rota, would return from Rome was not known.

As mourners filled the cathedral and messages of condolence poured into the chancery —including those from the Pope and President Johnson—speculation began on who would succeed Spellman.

Although the selection of a successor is finally made by the Pope, this will be the first major American church appointment under a new nominating system set up to give American bishops more say in the choosing.

First, the bishops of each of the country's 28 provinces will meet with their governing archbishop and agree on a list of names.

These will be given to a new committee of seven bishops from different areas of the country, named last spring, to draw up a consensus of local nominations. This was formerly done by the apostolic delegate in Washington.

These names will be forwarded to the Pope who will thus have a chance to get clear evidence of the bishops' feelings.

The New York Times said Most. Rev. John F. Dearden, 60-year-old Archbishop of Detroit, was considered a leading contender for the post.

Another possibility, The Times said, is Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, highly regarded by the Vatican and a strong supporter of the Pope's stand on race relations and criticism of U.S. actions in Vietnam.

French Withdrawal Leaves NATO'S Flank Isolated

PARIS (Reuters)—French withdrawal from the NATO military structure has left the southern NATO flank geographically isolated, says a report to be given to the Assembly by the Western European Union here today.

The report criticized France and says a build-up of Soviet navy forces in the Mediterranean threatens vital Mediterranean sea lanes.

A four-day assembly meeting begins today to discuss a British bid to join the European Common Market and European defence. They hear a report supporting the British application, despite French opposition.

U.S. Tries to Block Steel Price Boost

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The American steel industry, faced with dwindling profits and the uncertainties of new labor contract negotiations, remained silent during the weekend as the U.S. government tried to head off a new round of price increases.

Industry sources said another price increase is a virtual certainty if the increase announced by U.S. Steel Friday withstands government pressure.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of President Johnson's council of economic advisers, said Saturday the industry's "costs and prices are already too high—not too low."

The new contract won by the United Auto Workers union in Detroit was "equally disturbing," Ackley said. "Recent events clearly make it more imperative than ever that we arrest the wage-price spiral which is in progress."

U.S. Steel's response—and that of other producers—was a resounding "No comment."

Other producers said they are studying the No. 1 steel-maker's announcement that it will increase prices on the cold-rolled sheets used in cars and appliances by $5 a ton.

Ackley said: "I urge each day the industry's "costs and prices are already too high—not too low."

To Your Good Health

Electroshocks Break Emotional Ruts

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me about electroshock treatments that doctors have on some people take.

Are they dangerous? I have been told that if people have something on their minds that worries them, the treatments make them forget it. What would happen to a person with a good education?

Do they consider a person insane when these treatments are advised? —Mrs. R.W.

Electroshock (or electroconvulsant therapy), called ECT, has been in use by psychiatrists for about 30 years.

Frankly, not much is known about how it actually accomplishes things, yet it does.

In the earlier years the danger consisted of muscle sprains and sometimes even a broken bone because of the muscular convulsions that accompanied the electroshock. Since then improved equipment and techniques have controlled that danger substantially, and I would have to reply "no" to your question of whether it is "dangerous" now.

The benefits sought with this treatment involve the mind and emotions, not the body.

We simply do not know a great many things about how the brain and emotions behave but the best explanation I have heard of the usefulness of ECT is that in some way it breaks up the patterns, the emotional "cramps" if you want to call it that.

For example, a person nurses some fear, worry or anxiety, and in time it becomes such a habit that even the faintest reference to a touchy subject throws the person into deep and usually unreasoning fear.

Breaking up these emotional patterns with ECT often lets a person go back to a more rational outlook on life; the anxiety no longer paralyzes his thinking.

Another very valuable use of ECT is in treating severe emotional depression. Again, it presumably works by breaking up emotional patterns.

Your question of whether treatments are advised only when a person is "insane" is difficult to answer because "insane" really is a very vague word.

We certainly would not call a person "insane" because he is severely depressed, yet ECT

Dr. Molner welcomes all mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Chapel Dedicated by Bishop

PICTON (Staff) — At a Service of Dedication and Blessing of Gifts The Bishop of Ontario, The Rt. Rev. K. C. E. Evans officiated last night at St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington.

The Sanctuary of the original St. Andrew's Church was consecrated in 1852 and during last night's ceremony Bishop Evans named and re-dedicated it as St. Andrew's Memorial Chapel. Included on the Chapel Altar were a Laudian Frontal and Book of Remembrance.

Other memorial gifts presented and placed on the High Altar were a Frontal of Portuguese Tapestry in Memory of Karl and Georgia Morden, collection plates in memory of the late Rev. John J. Rogers, a pair of Cruets and Lavabo Bowl and Pitcher.

One of the oldest and most beautiful Anglican Churches in Prince Edward County St. Andrew's last night held a large congregation to witness the re-dedication of the Chapel and Blessing of Chapel gifts by the Bishop.

The Blessing of Sanctuary Gifts was performed by the Dean of Ontario The Very Rev. R. G. Fleming.

Rev. J. M. G. Soutter, Rector of St. Andrew's was in attendance last night to receive his certificate of license to serve the combined Parishes of Wellington and Ameliasburgh.

ANAF News

On Saturday Nov. 25th the Duke of Edinburgh Unit played host to dart teams from H.M.C.S. Cataraqui, a naval base at Kingston. There were six two man teams and Belleville soon had their teams ready to play them. There were a series of round robin matches that went as follows. 1st round Kingston 4, Belleville 2; 2nd round, Belleville 4, Kingston 2; 3rd round, 3-3 tie; 4th round, Belleville 4, Kingston 2; 5th round, 3-3 another tie and 6th round, Belleville 5, Kingston 1. Belleville won by a score of 21 to Kingston's 13. After the third round the Belleville players were hosts to the navy boys with sandwiches and refreshments. There were some high scores and all games were real close and the afternoon was enjoyed by all.

Angus McDowell, president of the Kingston club thanked the Belleville president and sports chairman for their hospitality and comradeship and vowed that the tables would be turned when Belleville visits his club for a return match early in January.

There will be an added incentive to this match as Cdr. Ray LeCraft has donated an inter club trophy to be played for. Cdr. Angus extended an open invitation to any of the unit members to visit the Kingston club any time they happened to be in town. The next Mr. and Mrs. dart matches will be held next Saturday, Dec. 9th. Please be registered by 8.30. This has the Harold Dracup Memorial Trophy at the final winners so come on down and maybe yours will be the first name to be inscribed on this Trophy.

The entertainment chairman and his assistants are really busy getting everything ready for the Christmas Party and New Years Eve Ball. Tickets for the Ball will be on sale this week. Be sure and get yours. Sgt. Bob Hamilton reports that following comrades still in the Belleville Hospital, Johnny Tuson, room 220, and R. C. Wood room 120, both coming along alright. Cdr. Bill Hurd is still at Sunnybrook. All have been visited and looked after.

The membership chairman is now accepting the 1968 dues, Thursday Dec. 14th will be the next general meeting night and candidates will be nominated for the next executive so be sure and turn out for this very important duty and make sure the comrades you would like to see on the executive are nominated.

Yule Decor Highlights UCW Tea

DESERONTO — All members of the Deseronto United Church Women assisted with the bazaar last Wednesday, although, roughly, the afternoon unit was chiefly responsible for the afternoon tea, and the evening unit, for the bazaar. But each assisted the other.

The decorations told of the near approach of Christmas, with a decorated and lighted tree on the platform and Christmas garlands festooned above the doors of the small classrooms, each with its side tables. The tea table was centred by an arrangement of red and white carnations, flanked by white candles in silver candelabra, with a silver tea service at either end.

Mrs. Rockwell Hawley who convened the tea, and Mrs. William Hendley, the minister's wife, welcomed the guests, and Mrs. Thomas Jackson received the admission fees.

Pouring tea were representatives from other churches of the town: Mrs. Boyce Moore, Mrs. Mervin Sherman, Mrs. Robert Tucker, Mrs. Kay Hood, and Mrs. Stafford Clasp, Sr. Guests were seated at small tables, their white cloths centred by a red or a green candle in a crystal holder placed on a red doily.

Convening the country booth, Mrs. Percy VanVlack was assisted by Mrs. Harold McCaul, Mrs. Maurice McLaughlin and Harold Piercy. Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth was in charge of the tempting baked goods and Mrs. Russell Boyce, Mrs. Garnet Shea, Mrs. Norman Davis and Mrs. Roy Robertson were her assistants.

Each unit had its own booth with a great variety of sale items, mostly needlework, aprons and knitted things. Mrs. W. C. Cochrane, Mrs. Jack Reynolds, Mrs. Luther Gaylord and Mrs. Maisie Pettis were in charge for the afternoon unit and Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe and Mrs. Sidney Brown of the evening unit.

Mrs. Harold Transue sold parcel post items, Mrs. George Stuart looked after miscellaneous items. Mrs. William Sills sold greeting cards, mostly for Christmas, and church calendars.

Following the tea boxes of good things were taken to 15 shut-in members of the church in town and the balance of the boxes were sent to four others in Hastings County Manor, Belleville.

Recreation Director Urged for Napanee

NAPANEE — Napanee has a pressing need for leadership in the recreational field.

The decision was made by a group of 20 people, including council members, service club representatives, school officials and government employees, studying the town's recreation programs and needs at a town hall meeting Wednesday.

The group agreed programs were needed for senior citizens, teen-aged girls and young women. Others who could benefit from organized activities are unemployed youths, single working youths and adults whose children have grown up and left home.

Sugested at the meeting were a drop - in centre for senior citizens, parkland and playground development, a tennis court and shuffleboard.

The town could have hired a qualified $7,000-a-year recreation director for $1,400 in tax money but the parks and community service committee waited too long, chairman William Charlton revealed.

Gibbard Furniture Shops Ltd. president R. Bruce McPherson offered last year to pay $3,800 a year-for two years if a qualified director was hired. Grants from the province for an approved director would pay $1,800 ,allowing the town to hire a man for $5,600 without dipping into tax money.

Last fall council passed a motion to hire a director for two years provided his salary would not be raised by taxation.

The director mentioned by Councillor Charlton requested a salary of $7,000 and car expenses to move to Napanee from Montreal.

"We didn't feel we could pay this much," Councillor Charlton said.

Hospital Officials Refuse To Comment on Condition

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP — Folksinger Jimmie Rodgers was reported well enough to make telephone calls from his hospital bed today, although his manager said he is still "in very serious condition."

"He insists on making telephone calls to friends and they are letting him do it rather than get all worked up over it," said Seymour Heller, Rodgers' manager.

Hospital officials refused to comment on Rodger's condition.

Heller said the 33-year-old singer could be in hospital "anywhere from a week or two to a couple of months."

Rodgers was found unconscious and beaten along a freeway early Friday. He suffered a skull fracture. He had apparently been attacked by a blunt instrument during a robbery attempt, said his physician, Dr. William L. Denham.

Heller said Rodgers has no recollection of Friday. He said the only thing that remains is "the impression that he was hit with a tire iron."

Rodgers was taken to his home after the incident, but was placed in hospital after he complained of severe headaches. At Glendale Community Hospital, x-rays showed the skull fracture.

Heller said he hoped Rodgers will still be able to appear in the film Catch a Robber by the Toe, scheduled to begin shooting in Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 11. He is cast as a singing star.

He was scheduled to appear on the Joey Bishop Show and the Pat Boone Show next week, but both appearances have been cancelled.

New Computer Can Diagnose Wide Variety of Car Woes

By RAY STAPLEY

Levy Industries Limited and Allen Electric and Equipment Co., between whom there is a proposal to merge, demonstrated an ingenious computerized auto engine analyser in Toronto on Nov. 28. The device which sells for approximately $10,000 in the U.S. (Canadian price not yet available) can be hooked onto the engine to be tested in minutes. The purpose of this computer is to provide more accurate diagnosing with the minimum of technical training on the part of the operator. The ever-increasing complexity of modern vehicles, plus the drastic shortage of skilled diagnosticians, prompted the development of this revolutionary device. Rather than a battery of dials such as tachometers, volt meters, amp meters, etc. a digital readout indicates bolts, amps, degrees, etc., or gives an instant display of the results of a particular test.

For example, a button is pressed and figures appear expressing exact conditions of battery (i.e. 12.17 volts) and recommending the remedial procedure, if any, should the battery be below par.

It is not necessary to remove spark plugs for a compression reading. The computer shorts out each cylinder individually and records any drop in efficiency. Provided the drop is equal in all cylinders, obviously there could be little variation in the compression readings of each cylinder.

The machine tests every component in the electrical and fuel circuits, including combustion efficiency.

The engineer demonstrating the equipment gave me a prime example of the value of this machine. A brand new car was returned to the dealer with a malfunctioning engine. Nineteen hours had been wasted trying to locate the miss. Later the car was checked out by the computer which immediately condemned the distributor cap. A new cap was installed, but the motor still missed and the machine still insisted the cap was at fault. After installing the fourth new cap, the motor smoothed out and the computer finally gave the car a clear bill of health. But think of all the aggravation that could have been caused had the mechanic installed the first cap and felt that he had at least eliminated that component as a troublemaker. It turned out that there had been a bad run of distributor caps from the factory.

Undoubtedly the primary cause of aggravation between the garage and the motorist is the inability of some mechanics to pinpoint a problem correctly. It's a boon for the motorist that electronics engineers have turned their talents to perfecting this approach to troubleshooting, which I am sure will minimize the degree of human error.

Bad Drivers to Be Required To Serve on Coroner's Juries

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — A Vancouver Island magistrate says he plans to provide a coroner with the names of persons convicted of impaired and dangerous driving so they can be empanelled to serve on coroner's juries investigating traffic deaths.

Magistrate Eric Winch made the comment Saturday when he fined Richard William Rayner, 19, $275 for impaired driving, being a juvenile driver without insurance and leaving the scene of an accident.

Magistrate Winch said he will give a list of persons convicted of serious driving offences each month to Coroner Russ Inkster. The magistrate said those empanelled will be called on to view the bodies of persons killed in accidents and to give judgment on causes of accidents.

Mr. Inkster said he has followed a similar procedure with the co-operation of the police for two years "with good results, I can tell you."

"I can name four people whose experience has turned them around," said the coroner. "One hasn't had a drink since."

He said he welcomes the first formal recognition from the courts of his practice.

"If they won't listen to the magistrates and safety experts, maybe seeing is believing," he said.

Advocates of Spanking Cure For Delinquency Ignoramuses

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Two of my children were playing carelessly on the stair-landing to the third floor and they broke a window. When I came home that evening, I decreed that each of them would be fined half a weekly allowance until the new window was paid for.

Each protested that it was not "my fault," and they protested to be disgruntled. But I could tell that secretly they were pleased. The decision was firm, but fair — and all children who have not been corrupted have a fierce inner sense of fairness.

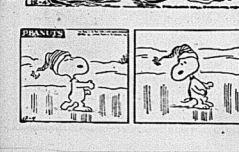
And this is why I find such dangerous nonsense statements like "The old-fashioned 'woodshed interview' between Dad and son would cure 90 per cent of our delinquency," which I recently read in a Texas paper.

It is nonsense, of course, because it is not true; and it is dangerous because it makes the false assumption that spanking can have a beneficial effect upon a delinquent — or delinquency-prone — child. As I have said before, the only child who can benefit from a spanking is one who doesn't need it very much. And 90 per cent of modern delinquency is impervious to spanking, or punishment of any sort.

My children thought the window - breaking fine was fair, and were even gratified that I considered the matter by adjudicating the matter as I did. If, however, they were full of frustration, resentful, and anti - social feelings, neither fining nor spanking them would have made the least bit of difference — indeed, the harsher the punishment, the more justified they would have felt.

Genuine delinquency apart from its psychiatric roots — springs from the child's alienation from his family environment, and his growing lack of respect for the values he sees around him. It has little to do with the "firmness" or "softness" of the way the child has been treated — and everything to do with the quality of feeling behind the treatment.

Most lower-class delinquents have been brutally treated; most middle- or upper-class delinquents have been inconsistently treated; in both cases, however, the quality of feeling has been deficient — for abusing a child and spoiling a child are equally symptoms of a poor parent-child relationship. They are both forms of uncaring.



The "woodshed" advocates are mischievous ignoramuses, who provide over-simplified answers to complex problems. I have no objection to whacking a child of mine who gets out of line, but I am also aware that it does no good more good than it does him.

Keegan Delivers Foster Ward Gives Scott Victory Margin

The man who calls himself "the mayor of Foster Ward" today is being given the credit in some circles for electing J. Russell Scott as mayor of Belleville.

Dr. Scott won the mayoralty race over incumbent Jack Ellis by 143 votes, seven less than the margin he earned in Arthur Keegan's "stamping grounds" — Belleville's ten-block Foster Ward area below the CPR tracks.

Scott's 150-vote margin in polls 1 and 2 is a greater majority than either he or Ellis gained in any other two side-by-side polls in the city.

The margain becomes even more significant when the poll returns for Ward 1 show that Ellis more than held his own in the rest of the ward.

Scott carried the ward 853 to 779. Subtracting the "Foster Ward" total from these tallies showed Ellis had a 620-616 margin in the other polling subdivisions.

But for "Foster Ward," Ellis would have won the entire south side of the city. As it turned out, the Foster Ward margin was the key to victory, for Scott's margin in the northern half of the city offset Ellis' margin in the southern section.

Dr. Scott has been paired with Ald. Keegan on many key issues over the past two years. On many of them they opposed incumbent Jack Ellis. This, coupled with the fact Keegan actively campaigned for Dr. Scott in Foster Ward, is credited with giving Scott his winning margin.

Ellis Edged By 143 Votes

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Barring the possibility of a recount— which at this point seems unlikely — Belleville is to have a new mayor for the next two years.

He is Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott who following a cliff-hanger election that saw the result in doubt until the last poll yesterday, ended the four-year term of incumbent Mayor Jack Ellis.

The vote withjall polls in and retabulated at the clerk's office was Ellis 5,304 and Scott 5,447, for a majority of 143 votes.

Last night Mayor Ellis declined to concede the victory to Dr. Scott, stating that because of the close vote he wanted to have a look at the figures this morning at city hall.

Today Mayor Ellis said he had still not conceded.

But in view of the late retabulation of poll returns last night, Mayor Ellis said shortly before noon today that there was not likely any point in calling for a recount.

And unless a recount is demanded, the final count in the mayoralty race will remain at the above figures which give Dr. Scott a majority of 143 votes.

City Clerk Adam Stalker said this morning that only a recount could change the figures.

The mayoralty race between incumbent Jack Ellis and Dr. Scott followed closely the generally predicted pattern. But few predicted it as close as it turned out.

Initial returns gave incumbent Ellis a slim lead which was not overcome until the counting of the advance poll.

The lead then see-sawed back and forth as the polling returns filtered in and it was not until the polls were almost all in that eventual victory for Dr. Scott seemed evident.

Generally speaking Mayor Ellis captured the polls in the city's west end, in the southern part of the old West Hill area, the East Hill and east end of the city, comprising mainly polling divisions 6, 2 and 4.

Dr. Scott made an almost clean sweep of the north end of the city, extending north from Catherine Street through Park

Tally keepers Sandy Fortin and Marianne Scott give out with yell of jubilation as advance poll count gives Dr. Scott election lead for the first time.

Sunday Sports Get Big Backing

Sunday sports are "in" in Belleville.

Yesterday citizens gave overwhelming support to Sunday sports, voting more than two to one in favor.

The vote was 7,629 for and 3,105 against.

In previous votes the Sunday sports issue was defeated. Two years ago Sunday movies were approved in the city.

Percentage Of Voters Up

Voting across the city in yesterday's municipal elections showed an increase of two per cent over the previous poll in 1965. About 55 per cent of the 13,700 eligible voters turned up at the polls.

Yesterday 10,731 voted. This compares with 9,500 out of a possible 18,000 eligible in 1965 or 53 per cent of the vote.

Only 25 per cent of the eligible voters supported candidates in a municipal election in 1964.

Aldermanic Poll Shows No Key for Victories

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's upcoming city council will be headed by two newcomers who readily swept aside political veterans and fledglings alike to head the polls.

But it's not so easy to find root reasons for individual victories.

The electorate balanced five newcomers with five sitting councillors. Some of the winners ran contrasting campaigns. Others already have been recorded as council rivals.

For instance, city printer Richard Ellis headed the polls with 6136 votes and established a record high for council election. He ran a wide-open campaign, pulling out the stops on newspaper and leaflet promotion. He estimates he had about 50 people working for him throughout the campaign.

Retired secondary school superintendent E. Arnold Orr was second popular choice with 5,563 votes.

By contrast, Mr. Orr ran a fairly conservative campaign advertising regularly but with restraint.

Both men will head a council equally divided between sitting councillors and newcomers.

It also includes its first female figure in local government for eight years.

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey is also a newcomer to city council With 4,933 votes she placed fourth on the 16-member election slate.

Mrs. Jeffrey, a home economist and mother of a six-year-old daughter, cited dissension on council as her inspiration for seeking office.

"Councillors must realize they should criticize policy, not personality, she warns.

"I hope to bring a little dignity back to the (council) chamber," she says.

Ahead of Mrs. Jeffrey as the people's choice is Ald. Arthur Keegan.

Ald. Keegan, a core figure in much council controversy in the past two years, was a major election figure last night and took

The Long Wait...

Mayor Jack Ellis is in pensive mood as he waits break in election clouds at committee rooms last night. While prospects briefly brightened, the big voting break never came to give him election win.

Man With Second Heart Eating

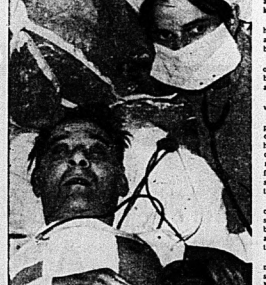
CAPE TOWN (CP) — The transplanted heart of a dead girl beating steadily inside him, Louis Washkansky was put on a diet of soup and a soft-boiled egg today, and one of his doctors said he is gaining ground. "All is going as well as any open heart operation can behave," said Dr. S. C. W. Bosman heart surgery registrar at Groote Schuur Hospital, where the 55-year-old businessman received the heart of Denise Ann Darvall, 23, in a five-hour operation Sunday. The girl was killed in an auto accident.

The respirator machine that helped Washkansky breathe after the landmark surgery has been removed.

"He's breathing under his own steam now," said Dr. Jacobus Burger, medical supervisor at Groote Schuur.



"I am quite positive that he will survive."

Washkansky, who doctors said probably would have died today or Wednesday of a deteriorating heart without the transplant, drank water, orange drink and milk Monday. He also spoke his first words since the surgery, saying, "I am feeling much better."

Heart specialists say the next crucial challenge to Washkansky should come from his body's defence mechanism against foreign objects toward the week's end.

To suppress the bodily mechanism that naturally tries to destroy foreign objects—such as Miss Darvall's heart—doctors were giving Washkansky a number of drugs. One danger is that these drugs reduce a patient's ability to combat other harmful foreign objects, such as germs.

"If the heart is rejected by the patient," said one specialist, "we are at the point of no return."

News Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis, taking the witness box in his own defence, testified Monday that he never offered Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne a $20,000 bribe in the Lucien Rivard affair three years ago.

"I swear on the Holy Gospel that I have never offered money to Mr. Lamontagne," Denis said.

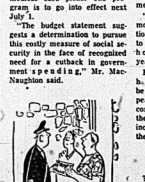
OTTAWA (CP) — The government has taken no decision to abolish the international service of the CBC, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday. He said if a decision is taken in future, MPs will have a chance to discuss it.

Ontario to Insist On Using Medicare Funds for Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton warned Monday that if Ottawa insists on going through with a national medical care program Ontario will demand that it be allowed to use the money for other purposes.

Mr. MacNaughton, in a statement, expressed disappointment that federal Finance Minister Sharp had given no indication in last week's budget speech that Ottawa was reconsidering its medical care plans. The program is to go into effect next July 1.



"The budget statement suggests a determination to pursue this costly measure of social security in the face of recognized need for a cutback in government spending," Mr. MacNaughton said.

"I suggest that when the finance minister indicates that medicare will take priority over programs such as manpower training, resource and economic development, this is in direct conflict with the aspirations for economic expansion which he sets out in his budget."

He said if Ottawa implements medical care Ontario will insist that it be allowed to use the federal money for housing, education, and economic development.

"This requirement is made more critical by the clear intention of the federal government to reduce funds available for housing during the coming year."

He found it difficult "to see how the federal government will be able to make an effective appeal for restraints on prices and costs by the private sector of the economy if it insists upon increasing the pressures from the public area."

Nixon Differs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Monday disagreed with Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton that federal medical care insurance funds should be used to alleviate the housing shortage. Mr. Nixon said housing funds should come from some other source.

Johnson Wants Sovereign State But Seeks It Outside Separatism

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Monday he agrees with the theories of sovereign state status for Quebec suggested by the advocates of separatism—but he sees a different way of obtaining it.

Speaking on a program of the French network of CBC television, the premier said it was imperative to obtain for Quebec "all the sovereign status that one can hope for in a world of interdependence."

He added that this can be accomplished "in the interior of the house."

Mr. Johnson said, however, that he could not be described as a separatist, and that "separatism in itself is not a remedy."

He said that unilingualism is impossible in Quebec but that the government will soon launch a program by virtue of which all those who receive high school diplomas must speak French well enough to be able to integrate into the French-Canadian community.

Commenting on the constitution conference in Toronto last week, Mr. Johnson said that some barriers were broken. He said the conference served as a "revealer."

People across the country are better informed now and have a greater understanding of the problems, he said.

However, the premier said that if Canada does not change, Quebec will separate within 10 years.

Robin Jeffrey Jubilant After Win; Promises to Work for Council Dignity

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Robin Jeffrey discovered last week she was a born campaigner.

Last night she learned she has the winning way that leads straight down the campaign trail into a city council seat.

Mrs. Jeffrey, a newcomer to civic politics ran fourth in the aldermanic poll to become the third woman ever elected to Belleville's council.

But before the certainty of election victory hit her at 10 p.m., when she moved from fifth to fourth place in the race, Mrs. Jeffrey sat out a tense three hours.

"This proves Belleville has no bias against women," she told supporters gathered in her living room, as she contemplated her position among the top five.

Mrs. Jeffrey ran on the slogan, "Don't miss the Mrs. on the ballot," and as her friends reminded her, the voters didn't.

Finally, at midnight, after a long five hours of listening to the radio and tabulating scores, Mrs. Jeffrey squeezed into a packed council chamber to publicly thank those who had voted for her. The voters' confidence in her, she said, indicated there would be room for two or three women on council in a few years time.

Although delighted with her victory, Mrs. Jeffrey was not surprised at the feminine support she drew.

"In all my door-to-door campaigning," she said, "I met only one woman who said she was of the old school and believed a woman's place was in the home."

Mrs. Jeffrey belongs to the new breed of women who believe women's place is in the community.

"A university graduate has no right to just sit home and raise children," she declares.

"She must contribute to society."

This conviction, plus a life-long interest in politics, led Mrs. Jeffrey to run in the municipal election after a 10-year residence in Belleville.

She grew up on a farm in the St. Thomas district, graduated in home economics from the University of Guelph and worked as a county home economist in Frontenac and Leeds before marrying Roy Jeffrey, a drug salesman and Belleville district native. Her grandfather was a mayor of St. Thomas, her uncle is now mayor of Bracebridge and her mother was always active in political associations.

Her vague interest in civic affairs crystalized this summer into a decision to seek election. Since moving to Belleville she has prepared herself for responsibility by serving as an executive member of the University Woman's Club, Bridge Street United Church Women, and United Community Services and a sorority. Last year she formed a women's investment club with 10 members, an experience she feels will help her in weaving through the maze of city financing.

In her ambitions, Mrs. Jeffrey had the support of her husband and 6 - year - old daughter, Alison Robin. Alison's support was more than moral. Permitted to stay up past her normal bedtime to hear the first returns, she asked for a scribbler and pencil and began to keep a personal score for her mother-as the long evening wore on Mrs. Jeffrey confessed he regretted not having given a firm husbandly "no" at nomination time two weeks ago, and spared himself the anxiety of the five - hour wait for returns.

Mrs. Jeffrey gave concern about dissension in council as her reason for running at this time.

"That's we don't need," she said. "Aldermen should realize they must criticize the policies of other aldermen, not the men themselves. I hope to bring a little dignity back to the chamber."

Among her friends, Mrs. Jeffrey is noted for her boundless energy and diversified interests. Her hobbies she lists as antique collecting, auction going, oil painting, sewing, cooking, vegetable and flower growing, golfing and bridge playing.

"But above all, I love to talk politics," she says.

Last night, the people of Belleville gave her a mandate to do just that, on their behalf.

Poll Reveals No Key to Victories

He led the polls through much of the evening and — as a recognized opposition leader to Mayor Ellis on council — probably was a major contributor to the mayor's overthrow.

By contrast — and again compounding the impossibility of garnering a clear - cut election trend — was the re-election of Ald. Ken Soden.

Soden — with 4,672 votes — emerged as the hardest-hitting fighter in the campaign, bluntly stating a vote for him was a vote for a new community centre. He also appealed to the electorate to throw out some standing members of council in favor of newcomers. Immediately before the election he had named Ald. Keegan as an opponent of the community centre. Sixth on the ballot was city realtor Gerald Joyce, accorded 4,285 ballots.

Mr. Joyce although never before an alderman, is no newcomer to local politics. A member of the city's public school board, he also has been a campaign manager for the Progressive Conservative party in the Belleville area.

The next two councillors again emphasize contrasting choices by the electorate.

Ald. Douglas Boyle with 4,077 votes and Ald. Enos David — 3,907 votes — elected this year were pitted against each other in a welfare department inquiry. Ald. David won council over to his minority viewpoint, after Ald. Boyle had introduced a committee report on the investigation.

City lawyer Paul Russell, ninth choice of the voters with 3,913 ballots, also is no freshman to politics. He had his baptism of political fire earlier this year as an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Hastings riding.

A veteran of four years service on council brought up the rear of the new council at the polls. He is Ald. Don Williams, fourth board chairman, re-elected with 3,895 votes.

Victory Margin Is Slim

In effect the mayoralty race was decided in the old Foster Ward area which gave Dr. Scott a lead of 130 — or just about the over-all victory margin.

For the electors, Mayor Ellis insisted in a four-year record of getting things done for Belleville. Mayor Ellis also stood for early completion of the Dundas Street bridge project and "B.U.I.L.D." program for more industrial development, and stressed a need of economy in plishments which he claimed was unmatched for success.

On the other hand Dr. Scott charged "unwise spending" was forcing up the city's debenture structure. He called for an end to what he called the "dictatorship" form of government at city hall and appealed for a return to the council-city manager form of government for which the people voted.

He also called for more industry and for more co-operation with senior governments in grant requests and for "co-operation among ourselves."

Appearing as immediate election issue was an early start on the Dundas Street Bridge and roadway project, with the two candidates taking different views as to the order of priority.

Mayor Ellis supported the Railway overpass just west of the Devil's Elbow as the first phase of the project.

Dr. Scott favors construction of the river bridge as the first phase.

And he feel this is the attitude taken by possibly a majority of the aldermanic candidates.

"But we will have to get richer and figure out our spending on a priority basis," he said today.

But the mayor-elect remained non-committal on the much discussed arena-community centre proposal.

"That's a matter for next year's council," he said. "I am quite certain that on an expenditure of this magnitude that the Ontario Municipal Board will demand a public hearing and my feeling also is that a vote of the people could be asked."

According to Dr. Scott the matter will be settled in the coming council in for an informal caucus session "some time before the end of the year."

Santa Visits Napanee

NAPANEE — Santa's visit to Napanee last Saturday afternoon was greeted by crowds lining the streets the full length of the parade, which was sponsored by the Jaycees.

Santa Claus was preceded by a parade of considerable length. Clowns seemed to be everywhere. Most of the organizations in town sponsored floats, or entered those which they had made themselves. There were three bands: the Kingston Grenadiers drum and trumpet corps, the boys and girls drum corps sponsored by the Kingston Kiwanis club, and the Napanee drum and fife band which preceded the colorful Gail Chapman Belles from Belleville.

Nursery rhyme and fairy tale character were also there: the Queen of Hearts, the Snow Queen, the Old Woman and her big family who lived in a shoe, the pie filled with blackbirds, Tayland, and many more. The YOOF and the Rebekahs had an impressive Christmas float, and the Hi-C's and the Hay Bay Community Church were also represented.

The Napanee Antique Car Club displayed its shining cars of yesterday and one very old car was followed by about a dozen old models of the same make. There were also a number of horses in the parade.

Old Santa's sleigh journey were followed by modern makes. One entry which evoked smiles was a small horse-drawn milk wagon, with the Bosebay Dairy passing out milk to the children.

Scoring-the Family Way

Home League Holds Tea

Richard Ellis' 6,136 Votes Highest Ever Recorded

Belleville businessman Richard Ellis received the highest number of votes ever given an aldermanic candidate in a city election when he topped the poll with 6,136 votes yesterday.

Political observers said last night no other candidate ever received this number of votes in a municipal election.

The Ellis support was city wide although he scored major gains over other candidates in Foster Ward, Hillcrest and Parkdale areas. He is a newcomer to city politics.

Retired school superintendent E. Arnold Orr, another newcomer in the political arenas, tallied the second highest number of votes with 5,563 — about 550 less than Mr. Ellis.

He was followed closely by incumbent alderman Arthur Keegan who polled 5,463 votes. Keegan received support throughout the city but scored heavily in Foster Ward where he and Ellis received double the number of votes awarded to other candidates.

Orr's support came from all areas of Belleville.

A third newcomer, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, the lone woman candidate in the election, placed fourth with 4,933 votes .She was followed by incumbent Ken Soden with 4,672 votes and newcomer Gerald Joyce who polled 4,285 votes. Incumbent alderman Doug Boyle received 4,077 votes.

Alderman Enos David received 3,907 votes and Paul Russell, a first time candidate polled 3,913 votes.

Jim MacDonald Wins Easily Against Challenger Fraser

Guess Who's the Winner ?

TRENTON — Supporters of D. R. "Dick" Fraser shook their heads in disbelief last night as Jim MacDonald hurled predictions of a close mayoralty race.

Elected to his fifth consecutive two-year term, Mayor MacDonald topped the polls with 1,853 votes, an even 700 more than Mr. Fraser's challenge mustered.

Mr. Fraser — a four-year member of town council — conceded the election at 7:40 p.m., 40 minutes after ballots in Trenton's 22 polls began to be counted.

"It' was a first-class race. It's never enjoyable to lose an election, but I concede gracefully to Jim. Anyone the town is in good hands," Mr. Fraser said.

"He has my best wishes for the coming term, as well as any support he requires."

Was his vote lower than he expected?

"Hell, yes!"

Although it was a MacDonald victory, with the incumbent mayor elected to serve his 15th and 16th years in local government, Mr. Fraser's defeat at least shared the election-night spotlight.

In his election to council two years ago, Councillor Fraser had catapulted the mayor's support.

Mr. Fraser has served as chairman of council's important finance committee for the past two years, and has been a member of the public works committee.

His local popularity, and acknowledged administrative abilities as a councillor led to predictions of one of the closest races in memory for the town's top office.

Even Mayor MacDonald expressed surprise at the victory margin.

"After a vote like this, I can't say how pleased I am. I'm extremely proud to be asked to serve the people of Trenton in the future.

"I'm sincerely sorry for all those who failed to be elected tonight, but we can be thankful that everyone who will serve has had previous experience."

Not one of the 22 polls went to Councillor Fraser, although early returns had him leading in two in his west Trenton neighborhood.

The first poll result tallied on a large blackboard in the town courtroom read: Fraser — 47, MacDonald — 90

And that's the way it stayed until, despite protests from supporters, Mr. Fraser conceded.

"There's no sense in dragging this out," he said, indicating obvious disappointment with the result of his first mayoralty challenge.

Mayor MacDonald had conducted a low - key campaign, to say the least. He told an audience at last week's ratepayers' meeting he wanted to continue with the programs he has supported in council during his eight years as mayor.

Much of his electioneering came in the form of informal chats with customers at his Front St. hardware store.

His victory margin last night was similar to one that beat down the challenge of councillor Duncan McDonald two years ago.

Mayor MacDonald's first bid for office came after six years on council in 1958, when he was defeated by veteran Ross Burtt by the slimmest "of margins - 47 votes.

A victory in December of 1960 marked the first time a Trenton mayor was to sit for a two-year term, and the first of Mayor MacDonald's current string of five successes.

Mr. Fraser's campaign called for changes — in ideas, approaches, and priorities.

"Eight years is long enough for anyone to achieve his goals as mayor," said Mr. Fraser.

Although the two candidates differed radically on one issue — the fate of the old post office property — the mayoralty race failed to focus on any particular questions.

There was no "wait until next year" sentiment from Mr. Fraser.

There is no mayoralty election until 1968, and the defeated candidate last night announced he would take a year off from municipal politics, and not seek a council seat next year.

Different Faces

Three Changes in Trenton Council

TRENTON — Town council will have three different, but not necessarily new faces for the next term.

Veteran Ross Burtt and former councillor Gerald Weaver joined newcomer E. M. "Ted" Parker in upsetting incumbent councillors C. V. Graham and J. D. Kinney.

The fifth highest vote-getter, with 1,053 ballots in his favor, was former five-year school board member L. G. Phinney, a former board chairman.

Mr. Phinney will serve the one year remaining in the two-year term vacated by board chairman E. M. Parker, a successful council candidate.

George Lewis (820 votes) and Rev. David Minor (754) become candidate for council after serving five years as a trustee.

At 42, he will be the second youngest council member; second only to 37-year-old Paul Tripp.

A former mayor with 27 years of local government service behind him, 78-year-old Ross Burtt drew 1,225 votes, the runner-up choice for council.

The third successful candidate for a two-year seat was Gerald Weaver, whose previous nine years' council experience fell between 1945 and 1964. He polled two votes less than Mr. Burtt.

Highest vote-getter of the three unsuccessful nominees was J. D. Kinney, who has acted as council's welfare committee chairman and was seeking election to his second term. Mr. Kinney's 1,135 votes ranked him fourth of the six candidates.

Suffering defeat for the first time since being elected to council in 1946, C. V. "Claude" Graham received 1,040 votes.

Mr. Graham, 75, had been public works committee chairman, and was rumored to be retiring from public office before this year's election.

He missed two years as a councillor since first being elected — he did not offer himself as a candidate in 1953 and 1958.

Low man on the voting totem was Richard J. Whitley, a 78-year-old whose council service spanned the years from 1934 to 1960, for a total of eight single - year terms. Last night, Mr. Whitley polled 750 votes.

Trenton councillors are elected three at a time, alternate years.

Another Success — Veterans Burtt, MacDonald

Lone Female Candidate Tops Education Board Poll

TRENTON — The lone female candidate on this year's municipal election slate topped the board of education polls for the second consecutive time.

Mrs. Jane Mary Hutchison received 1,657 votes, leading three other incumbent school trustees and a return number at the polls. Mrs. Hutchison won re-election to her second school board two-year term.

Returned to the board of education were George Greer (1,427 votes — 11 years on board); T. S. Ketcheson (1,332 votes — 12 years on board); and W. D. Whitley (1,307 votes — eight years as trustee.)

The fifth-highest vote-getter, with 1,053 ballots in his favor, was former five-year school board member L. G. Phinney, a former board chairman.

Mr. Phinney will serve the one year remaining in the two-year term vacated by board chairman E. M. Parker, a successful council candidate.

George Lewis (820 votes) and Rev. David Minor (754) were the unsuccessful candidates for the five school board vacancies.

Fraser Incorrectly Marks 500 Pieces of Information

TRENTON — As if D. R. Fraser's mayoralty campaign wasn't an uphill battle in itself, it got bogged down in paperwork difficulties at the crucial moment.

Some 4,000 pieces of campaign literature, designed to solicit votes, and at the same time inform local residents of their respective polling locations caused Fraser supporters no end of headaches on election day.

An estimated 500 pieces of mail, involving voters at two town polling stations, were incorrectly marked, mistakenly informing the addressees of the locations of the places they were to cast their ballots.

Returning officers reported confusion among voters at the two polling stations — both schools.

Mr. Fraser said he and his campaign workers managed to reach most of the persons involved by telephone to correct the mistake.

"But," he added, "This certainly didn't help matters any."

Trenton Vote--Heavy

TRENTON — Mayoralty contests always improve voter turnouts, but this year's local election returns indicated an above - average interest in municipal politics.

"Around 30 per cent" is the usual response to a civic election here, says Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry.

Observers say the relatively heavy local voting came as a result of two factors:

Keen interest in the Fraser-MacDonald mayoralty race; and increased concern with the repeated failure of passage of a Sunday movies question.

Gerald Ross Easy Winner In Murray Township Race

WOOLER—Although there was a contest for all four divisions in municipal council, voters displayed reluctance to exercise their franchise. Those counted who cast ballots numbered only 781 from the total of 3,305 enumerated in Murray Township.

Despite the apparent lack of concern incumbent Reeve Gerald Ross had little trouble in retaining his office. He registered a vote of 763, while his opponent Leo McAuley was able to influence support of 418.

And the same backing produced for Reeve Ross seemed to follow Deputy Reeve Harry Lafferty as he engaged in a two-way fight with D. Ray Williams sweeping up 781 council service. Lafferty was the winner 663 to 488.

James Quinn of Carrying Place, a member of the 1967 council returned to office with a 706 vote lead ahead of his closest rival newcomer J. S. Down with 661. Also in the council race for the first time Cyril F. MacDonald placed third with 564. Incumbent Ronald Webb failed to become elected.

Sunday Movies

TRENTON — The overlooked election issue — Sunday movies — finally gained the approval of Trenton voters last night.

Overlooked because of above-average interest in this year's Fraser-MacDonald mayoralty race; and an issue because the question has met defeat several times at the hands of local voters in recent years.

Ballots in yesterday's municipal election favored Sunday entertainment by nearly a 65-35 per cent margin.

Last year, the question was defeated by some 30 per cent.

Dozen Persons Charged As Result of Police Raid

BRIGHTON — More than a dozen persons will appear in magistrate's court here Wednesday, charged in connection with a weekend police raid.

About one-third of the Brighton provincial police 21-member detachment was involved in the raid, which netted 20 bottles of liquor and seven cases of beer at an area home.

Harold Brill Miller, 29, has been charged with keeping liquor for sale at his R.R. 4, Brighton residence, while 12 other persons were charged with illegal possession of liquor.

Constables James Graham and Ronald Decke kept the Miller residence under observation for three hours, maintaining portable radio contact with three cruisers patrolling the area.

A total of four cars were stopped, including one containing six teen-age passengers.

A police spokesman said the traffic at the Miller residence kept officers so busy they didn't have enough men available to stop several other cars seen leaving.

Changes Expected

TRENTON — Town council's public works committee could be the most drastically changed by the results of last night's municipal elections.

C. V. Graham — defeated in an attempt to seek re-election — and D. R. Fraser — who accepted a nomination to run for mayor — were two of three incumbent council members of the committee.

Only Councillor Paul Tripp, whose two-year term does not expire until next December, remains.

New Council

It has been a remarkable occasion, this December election in Belleville.

The city not only has a new mayor in Alderman J. Russell Scott, but a council with an infusion of new blood which reflects a community looking to the future and the prospect of progress on a scale that matches the hopes of our day and age.

The same thought could have been expressed had Jack Ellis been returned with a similar narrow margin to lead a council showing so many new faces. That the voters have ruled otherwise, however slim the plurality, is the working out of the democratic process that is the essence of our freedom and the motivation for the progress the city has a right to expect.

Yet, while the freshness of this new-look council is an image that should beget progress, the latter prospect and all it entails can bring tangible results only through hard work.

All the candidates in this election, including Dr. Scott, have placed strong emphasis on industry. For all the efforts that have been made in this direction in the past, new plants have been noticeably slow in locating in Belleville.

Dr. Scott has some ideas in this regard. He has acknowledged the efforts of the industrial commission, but he would like to see it report more often to council. Quite rightly, he wants to see more serviced land made available in Belleville and he sees opportunities for the city in what he terms "an exodus" of industry from the province of Quebec.

Homes, roads and the currently pressing topic of additional recreational facilities for Belleville's growing army of young people are other spheres the new mayor has marked for attention.

The new council will stand or fall on these issues. Specifically, the question of a new arena and community centre may come up again. We can also expect changes in the actual administration of city affairs. Dr. Scott wants to see more emphasis on the city-manager form of government. Regional government is another facet of overall administration the new mayor expects to see come into effect.

For outgoing mayor Jack Ellis it was a hard-fought battle. No chief citizen of this community has devoted so much time and energy to city affairs as Mr. Ellis. That he has been accused of running a one-man show is perhaps the price he has had to pay for so many days and weeks and months in office.

The main thing now is that Belleville should move forward and tackle the various issues before it with skill and vigor. It is significant that among five new aldermen and five others who have been returned for a further two-year term is a woman, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey. A teacher and home economist, Mrs. Jeffrey's presence on council is most welcome. That she finished high in the voting for the ten aldermanic places is indicative of the regard in which she is held and of the ability she will bring to her role.

It has been a very interesting election, and Belleville canot help but profit from-this experience in the months ahead.

Medical Gains

Medical history has been made on two fronts of late. First there was Dr. Gordon Murray's Toronto operation that enabled a 24-year-old Quebec paraplegic to walk again.

Although there has been some controversy since regarding the exact techniques employed by Dr. Murray, there seems no doubt the patient's condition is now vastly improved as a result of surgery.

News of another great medical feat comes from South Africa where surgeons have replaced the ailing heart of a 55-year-old man with that of a 24 year-old woman, fatally injured in a car accident.

In medicine, as in other professional spheres, there is still much to be achieved, as these latest developments indicate. Cancer still resists the efforts of researchers seeking effective cures for the many variations of this dread disease. But ultimately it is to those who yield to the diligent efforts being made to combat it.

War on Pollution

Toronto Hydro has announced it plans to burn natural gas in its Pearl street generating plant during the summer months to reduce air pollution in the downtown area.

Such a move is not going to have much effect on the overall problem of pollution in Toronto, but it is an illustration of what can be done in this regard.

The various fuels used to heat homes and provide power for industry are themselves factors in the great pollution controversy.

As Toronto Hydro general manager Harry Hyde has put it: "There is no such thing as a clean fuel. As long as there is combustion there is going to be a certain amount of pollution."

Mini Role In NATO Forecast for Canadian Forces

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Canada's contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is coming under searching examination that could lead to reduction of Canadian forces.

The government declares it will continue to make its presence felt in the NATO forces in Europe.

But the withdrawal of substantial numbers of American and British troops from Germany, given Canada as precedent if she decides to cut down on her military numbers abroad.

Canada maintains a mechanized infantry brigade group of 6,500 men in Germany along with 9,000 men in six Starfighter squadrons which have a nuclear strike role.

The argument being heard is that conditions have changed in Europe — that the Soviet Union is no longer as aggressive and that West Germany has its own powerful forces.

There is also the cost factor. Taxpayer; lay out $150 million a year to maintain the troops overseas.

The question is raised too that in any war in Europe the Canadian forces there would be sacrificed in the first onslaughts by the Soviet Union, whether in nuclear or conventional war.

A new argument put forth in the House of Commons currently is that the money spent on the armed forces overseas should be devoted to social welfare in Canada.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the socialist New Democratic party has expressed concern that the government is going to postpone the national medicare scheme because it is short of money.

He argued there was no prospect of military aggression by the Soviet Union in Europe. Therefore he concluded Canada could take its military out of Germany.

Mr. Douglas even wanted Canada to cut back its contribution to the North American Air Defence agreement (NORAD).

He proposed that the government cancel its $250 million program for the construction of 115 CF-5 ground-support jets.

Other parliamentarians have questioned the usefulness of Canada's current military role. The Conservative party objected strongly to unification of the Canadian army, navy and air force, now in full swing.

Former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness says unification has destroyed services morale. He also questioned the new concept for the unified forces of a 110,000 - man, highly trained mobile force which could be used for military or peace-keeping operations.

Indeed, Mr. Harkness's disenchantment with United Nations peace-keeping duties for Canada is shared by many Canadians following unhappy experiences in the Middle East and Cyprus.

The burden of defending Canada's military commitments abroad falls on External Affairs minister Paul Martin. He says bluntly that dismemberment of NATO's forces in Europe at this time would be risky.

He suggests that a withdrawal might excite again "Russia's appetite for expansion."

Mr. Martin is also concerned that West Germany, if left alone might decide to acquire nuclear weapons rather than sign the non-proliferation treaty.

These, he believes, are good and sufficient reasons for a continuing Canadian military representation in Europe.

But the External Affairs minister has not precluded the prospect that the Canadian contribution may be scaled down.

Fashion Foibles

Ottawa Journal

A casual walk down the mall in any season reminds us that man (and woman) ignore the climate and modesty for the tyranny of modern style. Charles Darwin found this when he visited the primitive natives of Tierra del Fuego. One naked resident was given a large piece of red cloth which he could have used to wrap about himself at a time when snow was melting on his shoulders. Instead he cut the cloth into small pieces and distributed these among his friends for decoration.

This story and others relating to man's ornamentation through the ages are told in "Naked We Came," by J. Donald Adams. One of the book's fetching illustrations is an 1883 advertisement recommending "Dr. Scott's electric corset." We are told that each corset is stamped with the English coat of arms and the name Pall Mall electric Association, London.

California's Giant Sequoias Are "Not Like Trees... They Are Like Spirits"

Fort William Times-Journal

The world's largest living thing, the giant sequoia of California, may hold the secret to eternal life.

Scientists have yet to find a giant sequoia dying of natural causes. The trees fall because of calamities such as woodman's axe or soil erosion, but not as the result of pesta or old age.

Even California's largest forest fire on record, which recently blazed through 138 acres of Sequoia National Park, did surprisingly little permanent damage to the big trees.

The bark of the giant sequoia is one of the tree's secrets of survival, the National Geographic Society says. Only repeated major fires can pierce the non-resinous, fibrous bark. It grows two feet thick.

Rangers in Sequoia National Park, at the southern end of the Sierra Nevada, demonstrate this natural fireproofing by applying a propane torch to a chunk of bark for more than an hour. The flame, twice as hot as the average fire, burns out only a small cavity.

Another sequoia defence is tannin, found in both the heartwood and bark. This chemical helps the trees resist blight and insect attacks as well as rot. Sequoia logs that have lain in the forest for centuries are still sound.

John Masefield, the British poet laureate, summed up the appeal of these 250-foot-high giants when he wrote:

"They are not like trees, they are like spirits ... The trees rise up with dignity, power, and majesty, as though they had been there forever. ... They were more like gods than anything I have ever seen. They seemed to be growing. One felt that presently they would march to wipe out everything mean or base or petty here on earth."

Wild Life Refuge Is Reprieved

Peterborough Examiner

Britain's military establishment has been defeated and Aldabra will be saved!

In an editorial last Wednesday the Examiner protested the British Defence Ministry's intention to build an airfield in Aldabra, a tiny atoll in the Indian Ocean prized by biologists as one of the few remaining places on earth where animal life has been allowed to evolve undisturbed by the contaminative pressure of man.

As a result, presumably, of our protest, the Ministry of Defence has done just that, abolished and abandoned its original decision. Aldabra, with its thousands of huge land tortoises, green turtles, ungainly ibis, flightless rail and millions of frigate birds, has been reprieved and will continue as a perfect laboratory of natural evolution and environment at work.

Cattle Hit By Mineral Deficiency

Brockville Recorder and Times

It's not likely that too many cattle are still grazing on farms in this area after the recent snowfalls, but we have seen the odd one still in the fields. For this reason the public warning issued by the government in Ontario and Central Ontario may have an application here.

Farmers, more than any other businessmen, are at the mercy of the weather. Too little rain and crops are stunted. Too much rain and the crops are ruined. Now a lack of sunshine is blamed as a factor in the death of beef cattle in sections of Western and Central Ontario. It has resulted in a warning to get cattle off pastures.

The deaths have been blamed on a magnesium deficiency in the grass. This is caused by a six-weeks' absence of sunshine.

There has been a dearth of sunshine in Eastern Ontario this fall too. But there have been heavy rains and this has resulted in lush pastures. Farmers have been inclined to leave their cattle out a little longer than they would have other years, as a result. In the case of the dead animals, they could have been saved through supplementary rations.

The warning from the Ontario department of agriculture is but one of a great many instances where the development of the extension services of the department have paid or, rather, could pay, rich dividends to farmers who heed the advice.

Inflation Curbs Came Too Late

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Once again the bright lustre of the Christmas season has been dulled by Mr. Sharp. . . .

It often happens that tax increases are accepted philosophically, even gladly, by a nation when it feels they are necessary and unavoidable. In this instance, however, there is widespread belief that the government brought on the high increases by failing to check inflation in time, by seeking short-term relief from unemployment and allowing explosive and expensive growth in the federal-civil service.

Closer Ties with Reds

Kiesinger Bolster's West Germany's Flagging Economy

By PETER REHAK

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's government ends its first year in office with a record of political stability at home and apparent success in reviving the West German economy.

But it has not come up with any easy solutions to Germany's basic problems — the East-West split and relations with the Soviet bloc.

The coalition of Kiesinger's Christian Democrats and Willy Brandt's Social Democrats seems to have worked well enough. But officials of both sides agree that a government made up of the two largest parties is not desirable on a long-term basis.

Critics say it has left West Germany without an effective opposition in the Bundestag (parliament) and has driven protest voters into the arms of radical parties of the left and right.

Those who praise the coalition say it brought stability when it was most needed.

Kiesinger's government set a course for a more relaxed policy toward Eastern Europe, friendship with France and more independence of the United States than shown by the governments of Ludwig Erhard and Konrad Adenauer.

In a departure, Kiesinger's government exchanged ambassadors with Romania in January; the only Communist country other than Russia maintaining diplomatic relations with Bonn.

Brandt as foreign minister would like to continue a dialogue with the Soviets. Forces within Kiesinger's party fear the exchange could lead to recognition of East Germany.

Kiesinger has exchanged letters with East Germany's Premier Willi Stoph. Such official correspondence had not taken place since the early 1950s.

Stoph proposed meeting Kiesinger but Kiesinger declined to deal with a regime not committed himself to rejuvenating the co-operation treaty signed by Adenauer and French President de Gaulle in 1963. But the enthusiasm seems mostly on the German side.

The treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, which the United States would like to sign with the Soviet Union, dominated de Gaulle's talks with the U.S. during the year.

Kiesinger's government led other non-nuclear industrial countries in opposing the draft treaty under negotiation in Geneva. The West Germans say it would cut off non-nuclear nations from the benefit of nuclear research. Bonn would like to see a time limit on the treaty and opposes any clause that would allow Soviet inspectors on its territory.

Soon after coming to power Kiesinger made it clear to the United States that West Germany no longer buy enough U.S. arms to offset fully America's foreign exchange cost of stationing U.S. troops in Germany. He also refused to make a 100-per-cent offset agreement with Britain.

As a result, 33,000 of the 225,000 troops will be withdrawn next year as well as 3,000 of 39,000 in the British Army of the Rhine.

A slowdown in the economy seems to have been checked and business forecasts for 1968 are optimistic. But large segments of the population, such as miners and farmers, have been hit hard.

Unemployment, virtually non-existent for years, rose to 673,000 in February but has been shrinking since.

Dr. Russell Scott: Humbled by Victory--It Was A Good Fight

The suspense was terrific! Actually it was five straight hours of cliff-hanging suspense as members of the Dr. J. Russell Scott family and their supporters last night waited what seemed forever for the final count in yesterday's city mayoralty race.

When it was all over about midnight Dr. Scott claimed a victory but the issue still apparently is still in doubt with acting Mayor Jack Ellis last night refusing to concede.

But with all polls in Dr. Scott was leading by 143 votes and he felt it was sufficient to assure victory.

"I am humbled by the victory — it was a good fight". Dr. Scott told a cheering audience at city hall.

"I hope that my two years as mayor will justify your confidence and I will do my best to be a good mayor for the city of Belleville."

That was the election finale at city hall but before Dr. Scott claimed victory the lead see-sawed back and forth between Dr. Scott and Jack Ellis a dozen or more times.

The first two or three polls to report gave Mayor Ellis a slight lead but with the advance poll returns turning the tide in Dr. Scott's favor the atmosphere at the Scott's residence warmed.

But in the next three hours, there was many an anxious moment as the lead changed almost as often as the poll returns were aired.

Full credit for the victory—narrow as it was — was given by Dr. Scott to his wife Marion, as his campaign manager.

"My workers in the campaign were mostly amateurs in the election field, but sometimes the amateurs can show the professionals," he said.

Expressing his thanks to his many workers Dr. Scott said his campaign ran smoothly with no arguments or differences of opinion.

For Mrs. Scott, her husband's decision to run as a mayoralty candidate came as something of a surprise.

"I just couldn't believe he was serious," Mrs. Scott said, "but when I saw that he was serious I told him to go ahead — with my blessing."

And the victory over what may have seemed sizable odds, proved her capability as campaign manager.

But Dr. Scott had more than his wife and campaign workers going for him. He had an entire family of six children all pulling for him.

And it remained for his oldest daughter Jane to come up with a campaign motto that served to put her father's name before the public in billboard size.

As a staff member of the McLaren Advertising Agency Jane spotted the fact that the initials RSVP on an invitation could be used as a vote catcher to her father's advantage.

So up went the billboards with the message "Russell Scott Vote Please."

Other members of the Scott family are sons Norris, Robert, Russell Jr., John and daughter Marion.

Last night all cars in the Dr. Scott family were tuned to radio stations with results and keep an up to the minute tabulation of the voting results. But with the returns coming in slowly and the suspense mounting as the lead changed back and forth, the Scott boys ran a shuttle service between city hall and home and even worked walkie talkie radios into the election effort.

But even with the election lead rapidly changing hands, Belleville's mayor elect never lost confidence.

"This is great," he said, enjoying every minute of the see-saw battle of votes.

At the same time with still a couple of polls out and leading by something like 200, he admitted he would have felt safer with the lead of another 100 votes.

"But 140 votes is enough to win and also to win the recount if there is one."

It was just minutes short of midnight with the polls all counted that Dr. Scott decided to go to city hall and thank his supporters.

As the city's chief magistrate for the next two years, Dr. Scott assures that his medical practice will not be neglected.

Already he has made arrangements for a partner in his practice. The new medical partner will be Dr. Jack Latimer, formerly of Kapuskasing and former medical school classmate of Dr. Scott.

The Scotts Celebrate Victory

Ellis Campaigners Lived on Nerves As Election Results Are Posted

At times the silence was so taut you could have heard a nerve snap.

And for more than four hours Jack Ellis and his campaigners lived on their nerves.

For the boosters of the mayor of Belleville it was the longest night. Their champion swayed with his opponent on a razor - thin edge of voting popularity.

For them it was a night unrelieved of suspense. In living memory there has never been an election like it.

For the organizers of the mayor's campaign it was a triumph of communications— to a point.

They had a fleet of radio cars picking up voters for the polls. When The Intelligencer advertised the wrong telephone number of their committee rooms they simply took over the phone of the subscriber inadvertently advertised and donated him a new number for two days.

They moved calculating machines into the committee rooms to give them instant guidance on voting trends.

Yet, with all this communications traffic the place took on a silent air immediately the polls closed.

Throughout the day the mayor had hinged himself to the committee rooms on Front Street, decidedly to depart home for a slight meal and shower before the polls closed at 7 p.m.

He was still at home when the first two polls came in.

They were polls 13 (Station Street area) and 22 (Marysolborne Streets). They gave Scott 126 votes — a cutting edge over Ellis of 52 votes.

At the Ellis committee rooms someone remembered the 1965 election had also shown defeat in the first two polls reported.

Nonetheless, organizers briefly panicked, calling for electoral charts from 1965 . . . "Where are those maps — those colored maps will give us the indications . . ."

Moments later at 7.35 p.m. Mayor Ellis bustles back through the committee rooms, trailed by his wife, Jean, daughters Connie and Fay and seven-year-old son Ray.

Already, on the way down he has heard about the two early results, nods towards the battery of volunteer women manning his phones and says: "Those two are lousy eh?"

They agree, they're slightly worried, but not much so.

Seconds later a ballot goes again.

This time, it's poll 26 in the Wilson Avenue area — part of which houses Wilson Concrete, the mayor's employer, the core of organized labor protest against Ellis during a recent strike.

The vote: Ellis 51; Scott 49.

The mayor makes a sketchy comment: "That's close eh?"

Several polls follow in rapid succession as election workers bear the count to the committee rooms, sometimes faster than city hall can publish the totals.

When the first handful of polls are finished at about 8 p.m. the ups and downs show Ellis up 502-449.

At 7:50 p.m. there's cause for rejoicing. Poll 24 (where the mayor lives) comes in strong for Ellis against Scott: 146-47.

But, within the next few minutes there are some setbacks.

By 8:03 committee-room totals are showing Ellis and Scott registrations at 1,214-1,195: "It doesn't look good," says a campaign worker.

At 8:07 p.m. the victory passes to Scott 1,288-1,272. At 8:10 p.m. it's worse — 1,414-1,451.

Suddenly in the committee room of the man who has been mayor of Belleville for four eventful years, time slows down as poll reports gain significance.

Reports from the polls begin tumbling together and at 8:40 adding machines show the results:

Ellis 2,238; Scott 2,154.

But, there is still mostly quiet.

Except for the campaigner who recalls: "By this time last election it was nearly over."

There's another lull as communications between the polls, city hall and committee rooms seem to part company momentarily.

Then, at 9:20 p.m. there's another phone call to give the results from Poll 2 — Ellis 53; Scott 122.

Somebody makes a rapid total and marks it up on the charts for Mayor Ellis to see. It reads: Ellis 2,278; Scott 2,276.

Standing below the committee worker on the stepladder marking the votes, somebody says: "My God! I can't believe it. Only two votes. Did you ever see anything this close?"

Just five minutes later the suspense is painfully relieved. Poll 29 (Prince of Wales Drive) is in giving Ellis 161, Scott, 208.

As a committee member chalks up the totals — Ellis, 2,439; Scott, 2,484 — Mayor Ellis quietly remarks to someone beside a computing machine: "That hurt!"

The computers were something new in the election — a variation of radio-linked poll cars operated by the Ellis campaign. The innovations for the election ran afoul of ironic-age touch never known before in Belleville.

Yet, despite the emphasis on communications, - the electricity somehow drops out of the atmosphere after that last total is computed. It's replaced by old-fashioned tedium; supporters, workers now must sit the pauses when final contact with poll counters is lost. The rest must wait for city officials and their adding machines.

The lull breaks at 10:25 p.m. A report from city hall shows: Scott 4,335; Ellis 4,234 — with 58 polls in.

The monotony of narrow defeat seems to be progressing until ten minutes later.

At 10:35 more city hall totals are added and the difference suddenly has been sliced to a minimum: Scott 4,501; Ellis 4,435. Scott's lead is now 66.

There's a new hunger wait after that, dulling further the torpor of the mayor's committee rooms.

Then at 11:20 p.m. a phone rings again and a o m ebody tells a small crowd that Scott is still ahead by city hall tabulations but committee room charts show a possible lean toward the mayor.

"Why isn't everybody cheering," someone calls to the small knot of workers around the phone booth. It's near where the mayor has been working over averages with the adding machines and a slide.

Mayor Ellis climbs on a chair and tells the workers of the projected results.

There won't be any concession he says, because the vote is close. Instead he will wait until the returns are officially recounted in the morning by city hall staff.

In the meantime, he suggests, everybody go get some sleep.

He personally locks the back door of the committee room, joins his wife and drives home.

Life on Reserve So Different from City

TORONTO (CP) — To the stranger, the first weeks in a big city like Toronto are difficult, but for the Canadian Indian it's twice as hard to adjust, says Mildred Redmond, a Mohawk Indian's council consultant.

"Life on the reserve is so different, so free and relaxed. They know each other on the reserve. All facilities are within walking distance."

A Potawatomi Indian, she came to Toronto 25 years ago from Walpole Island reserve near Wallaceburg, Ont. For the last 16 years the small, round, motherly woman has worked with Indians.

Each morning she walks through jail cells looking for Indians who might need her counselling services. Then she speaks before the magistrate on their behalf.

As another service she tells Indians out of jail of the Canadian Indian Centre of Toronto where they can find a congenial social atmosphere. The centre is run by 17 Indians and 13 non-Indians trying to smooth the transition from reserve to urban life.

There the Indian can read, talk with other Indians, receive advice, clothing and other assistance, work in handicraft classes and engage in group discussions about society and how to get along with it.

Jacqueline Steinberg, an Ojibway Indian on the board of directors, says 1,200 to 2,000 Indians use it each month.

"Some need counselling, clothes, carfare, billeting. Others just need friends or encouragement."

Real Estate Woman Has Midas Touch

TORONTO (CP) —Margaret Holder has the Midas touch—she can turn gravel into gold.

In the construction industry, good quality sand and gravel are pure gold because the two commodities are getting scarce in areas close to the markets.

Mrs. Holder has an instinct for spotting valuable pits that has earned her the admiration of her competitors and the appreciation of her employers.

While working in real estate near Stouffville, northeast of Toronto, Mrs. Holder was asked by Harold McArthur, director of Campbellville Gravel, to nose around and take an option on any likely looking land.

The first thing she did was look up public records—she won't say which ones. Then she spotted an old pit in Uxbridge township north of Toronto.

"There's nothing there. It's depleted," her boss told her.

"It's true, Mac, I'm sure it is," she told him.

So they drill-tested the property and found 4,000,000 tons of high-quality material. It was worth $4,000,000.

With her reputation established, she had to begin watching out for competitors who began following her car as she drove in the country looking for other likely properties.

Since 1964 Mrs. Holder has tested about 12,000 acres of land, and has turned up 200 acres of commercial deposits.

Foxboro Couple Mark 60 Wedded Years

The modern day world with its hippies and other protest groups is a bit of a mystery to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hubble of Foxboro who over the weekend celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary.

Mr. Hubble feels the world will survive it all but he hasn't that much hope for the people.

Frankly they don't know what the world is coming to.

But despite their doubts about the way of today's younger generation the couple were happy Sunday to welcome old time friends and accept congratulations on their anniversary.

Among the congratulations were good will messages from Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth, Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, the provincial secretary and Ontario Premier John Robarts, and Lee Grills, M.P. Hastings member Clarke T. Rollins made a personal call.

Both natives of Murray township, the couple married back in 1907 at the bride's home in Colborne. Mrs. Hubble is the former Bertha Branscombe.

Mr. Hubble farmed and worked as a carpenter until 1939 when he moved to Foxboro. He still does the odd carpentry job, but says his tools, like himself are now "rusting out."

But at 83 and 78 years Mr. and Mrs. Hubble show little sign of rusting out. Both are still active and do their own housework. The bridegroom of 60 years says Mrs. Hubble keeps him busy about the house.

Members of Foxboro United Church, the 60 year wed couple have two sons and two daughters, Elgin of Peterborough and Cecil of Foxboro, Mrs. Hayden (Naomi) Kemp of Oshawa, and Mrs. William (Myrtle) McBride of Winnipeg. There are 17 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Her wedding ring headdress of the same material held her short veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and fern.

Mrs. Stewart Hadley, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a deep pink crepe dress with feather trim on the sleeves, light pink accessories and a wedding ring headdress with pink veiling. She carried a cascade of white carnations and 'mums. # Toys to Be Distributed in Vietnam

NEW YORK (AP) —Barbie is off for Vietnam, along with Batman, Little Snoopy and a host of other toys North Americans children will find under the Christmas tree.

A toy salesman on a one-man campaign, individual toy companies, charity organizations and U.S. troops in Vietnam already have helped get toys to thousands of Vietnamese youngsters for Tet Tan Sun, the Vietnamese New Year. More are on the way.

"Last year we donated a few toys to the orphanages in Vietnam, and from the letters of gratitude and the pictures of the children receiving the toys, we know how much good it can do," said H. H. Goerdt, president of Fisher-Price Toys, Inc., a pre-school toy manufacturer in East Aurora, N.Y.

This fall, 100,000 wagons and balls, wheelbarrows and balloons, dolls and games have been donated to be distributed by the U.S. marines as part of their civic action program.

"I'm not a crusader or anything, but I thought it was right," said Jay Krotman, 31, the New York toy salesman who organized the drive. "I sent out 325 letters, and 60 per cent responded. They were great. One manufacturer in New Jersey sent 96 cartons."

Kretman asked for and got art supplies, baby toys, gym sets, plastic toys, puzzles, models and plush animals.

"Please don't sent any guns and war toys," he asked. He said marines suggested no guns.

Some toy guns have been shipped to Vietnam under other programs, however.

Daisy-Heddon division of Victor Comptometer Corp., Rogers, Ark., for several years has sent cap pistols, toy rifles and gun holster sets to individual servicemen to give to children in their areas.

Catholic Relief Services will distribute nearly 2,000 abandoned Barbie dolls traded in by their young American owners on a newer, twistier model.

Hundreds of other toys will be distributed by servicemen.

DR. MURRAY'S "MIRACLE" the true story

Toronto's Dr. Gordon Murray made the medical news of the year, perhaps the century—a claim that revolutionary spine surgery can benefit victims of paraplegics. Today this claim has been refuted by equally eminent medical authorities. What are the facts behind this strange medical controversy? How did it all start? Get the whole story, with color pictures and drawings, in this week's issue of The Star Weekly Magazine.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Son: "Jan is always sitting on my bed and getting her feet on the spread. I wish I had a room of my own."

Jan: "Sue has her things piled into all the bureau drawers. There's no room for my stuff."

Mother: "We'll put the beds against opposite walls and use those chests as room dividers.

It will help separate your areas and provide more storage space. This chest is for you, Jan, and this one for Sue."

When children share a bedroom, help them make some division of space and facilities. It will help avoid conflicts and make it easier to respect each other's rights.

Reader Asks Information on X-Rays

Dear Doris: I wish you had a health column. I do not understand the damage many X-rays may cause, and what we would have done without them. I wrote to a doctor about X-rays and fractures. His reply:

"Naturally one does not like to unnecessarily expose individuals to X-rays under any circumstances. About hip fractures, surgery should be performed as quickly as possible, so as to get the patient out of bed as soon as possible."

The more people who know this the better, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. May God bless all the older folk too. — One of Them.

Dear One: My medical consultant explains that Roentgen's discovery of X-rays advanced medicine tremendously. X-rays are the only method of assessing fractures; almost indispensable in intra-abdominal and chest problems.

As for treatment, surgery on heart and blood vessels calls for extensive X-ray procedures; on cancer, high voltage X-rays are tremendously useful.

Dangers? The first users, if using the rays extensively, began to develop cancers on their fingers. Nowadays we can safely say that the amount of danger to a patient from radiation is much less than the value of making a correct diagnosis, with the possible exception of pregnant women, and to a lesser extent of X-rays in the region of the ovaries.

More about hip surgery later this week.

Dear Doris: I object to telling my age. My husband says this is silly. What do you think? — Young At Heart.

Dear Heart: Many another makes the same objection — and with good reason. I have one friend who fills in any license application with the words "Over Twenty-One". She insists that is all the law needs to know, and a certain judge agrees with her.

Trouble is, humans tend to pigeon-hole us according to chronological age; but "we live in decels, not years". One charming university dean of women confessed her age was 75; immediately her adoring students re-classified her as a has-been.

Shouldn't happen to a dog.

* * *

Dear Doris: My boy friend is a very affectionate boy. The other day I had a talk with him and I told him that all he had in his mind was necking. He disagreed and answered that it was only a show of his affection.

I tol him that because he's always so demanding in his necking he would be the same as a husband (that he would be demanding in serious love-making.) He disagreed and said that a man can just take so much of married love. Is that true, Doris?

If a man necks a lot with his girl will he be just as demanding in bed (as a husband, of course)? — Please Enlighten

Dear Please: It ain't necessarily so! Some people are able to demonstrate their affection more easily than others, and your boy friend may be one of these.

Remember, too, that in marriage a husband finds release and satisfaction. He can then relax. Right now every necking session is an aggravation for you, boy friend: one big reason for finding other more interesting ways to spend dating times.

Ann Landers

Widower May Be Trying Too Hard

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A woman wrote a while back and wanted to know where all the eligible men were hiding.

I am a widower who is not hiding. As a matter of fact, I have been actively looking for a woman to marry. Here is what I have found.

ANN LANDERS

(1) A self-closing martyr who wanted nothing for herself — only a stern disciplinarian who could "do something" with her two unruly brats.

(2) A charming, beautiful, well-educated widow who gloried in the fact that her first husband had never used a toothpick or chewing gum, her second husband wouldn't either.

Next, I tried computer matching. Of the 11 prospects, one tried to convert me to her religion, a second wanted to use me to regain custody of her children, a third thought she was a taxi, and so on.

Recently I was urged to try nudism since the people in the camps are so "real and friendly." Well, I did try it. Result: Zero. Nudism I can take or leave alone, but the women I met in the nudist camp were crazy over bingo, duplicate bridge and grade B movies.

Hereafter, Ann, I'll be "hiding" at the symphony, the theatre, lectures, professional meetings, art galleries and the bookstores. If you see me call me — MR. SEARCHING.

* * *

DEAR MR.: Nobody can say you haven't tried. In fact, maybe you've tried too hard. Why don't you relax, keep your shirt on and let some nice woman find you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter, Amy, is three years old. There are several children in this neighborhood and during the summer months they all play in our backyard, which is fenced in.

Now that winter is here the children play in the house. They make so much noise I always ask them to close the door. Yesterday I heard Amy say, "Let's play doctor." She was in the room with a 4-year-old girl and a 9-year-old boy. I immediately went in and suggested that they come into the kitchen and help me bake cookies.

Now that I know what they are up to, I am petrified to leave them alone. Please tell me what to do. — FRANTIC IN CALIFORNIA.

DEAR FRANTIC: What are they up to? Let me in on it. All kids play doctor and there's nothing wrong with it.

In the future make sure the door is open (no mother ever died from noise), and poke your head in periodically to make sure nobody "operates."

That is for you. However, that a 9-year-old boy is too old to be playing with a 3-year-old girl. Pretty soon he'll be eligible for medical school. Suggest to his mother that he finds playmates his own age.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband works with a man who lives near us. His wife and I are friends and we go out together about one evening a week. We never go in their car, always it's ours. This means my husband is stuck for the gas and parking costs. The stock phrase is, "Let's use your chariot. It's nicer." Well, it is nicer, but I don't think it's fair. How far can we go on an alternating basis without looking cheap? — TIRED OF IT.

DEAR TIRED: The next time you go out together your husband should say, "Let's go in your chariot for a change. I'm tired of doing all the driving." From then on, alternate.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Eggplant Casserole Serves Four

By MARY MOORE

Late last month a reader asked for Greek soup recipes plus other Greek dishes.

Since my friend Areti told me Greek cooks are big on eggplant I made a dish for Sunday evening's dinner that we all liked. Canadians commonly crumb and fry eggplant but this vegetable is so reasonable in price you should take advantage and try it new ways.

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE
(Serves 4)

1 med. eggplant
2 small onions
2 med. stalks celery
1½ cups tomato juice
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. Accent
2 or 3 slices fine fresh breadcrumbs — about 1½ cups
¼ cup olive oil (or melted butter for those who do not fancy oil)

Wash and slice eggplant into ¼" slices and pare them. Peel and slice onions thinly. Wash, trim and slice celery finely. Layer half of each vegetable in a buttered casserole and sprinkle with ¼ tsp. each salt and Accent. Repeat. Pour tomato juice over casserole. Blend crumbs with oil (or melted butter) and sprinkle evenly over top and pat down gently. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for ½ hr. covered and then remove cover and bake ½ hr. longer or until crumbs are deep gold and vegetables are very tender.

I had made Chicken Breasts Laura Secord and had 3 cups chicken broth and 1 cup meat left over from boiling the bones. Being a thrifty type I made a midweek supper for three of us.

TUESDAY
(Guests?)

Dinner Menu

Pineapple Glazed Cottage Roll; Roasted Potato Quarters; Creamed Spinach; Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream - Dressing; Apple Pie; Old Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN CASSEROLES FOR THREE

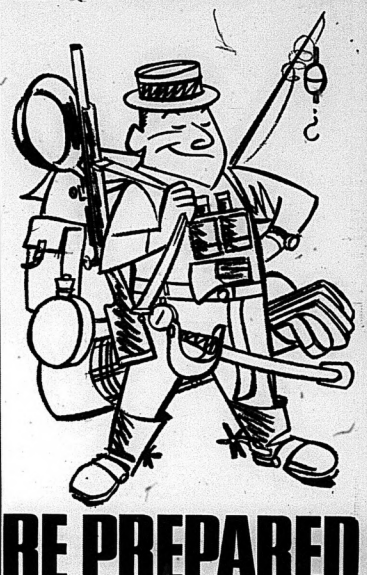
3 cups water
½ tsp. salt
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 tbsps. rice
1 tbsp. finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup elbow macaroni



As you know my raw breast bones were leftover from boning out chicken breasts for Chicken Breasts Laura Secord. If you did not make it you can buy chicken back bones for this purpose. Put raw bones on to cook in water with salt, bouillon cube and simmer 2 hrs. or until meat will fall from bones. Strain. Carefully remove meat from all bones. I had 3 cups broth and 1 cup meat. To them I added all remaining ingredients and simmered until macaroni and rice were tender. This was far too thick for soup so I upped it into three large individual casseroles. I dissolved 1 chicken bouillon cube in ¾ cup boiling water and poured it evenly over the three dishes. I mixed 1 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese with 1 cup fine fresh breadcrumbs and sprinkled this over top, dotted with butter and baked at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 min. until crumbs were golden.

As easy, cheap supper served with Brussels sprouts and butternut squash.

Centennial Train and Truck Caravans Finish Their Tours

OTTAWA (CP) — With one last blast on its whistle, which plays the first five bars of Canada, the Confederation train will pull into a Montreal rail yard today to be dismantled.

A smash centennial hit with everyone but the separatist group les Chevaliers de l'Independance, the train has drawn about 2,720,700 visitors.

It hit 83 cities in a 15,000-mile tour that began last Jan. 9 in Victoria, B.C., drawing an incredible 12,500 in one day in Winnipeg.

Eight Confederation caravans, made up of eight huge trucks each, spread out regionally last May to carry similar displays to 656 communities as far north as Dawson, B.C.; Fort Rae, N.W.T. and Wabush, Nfld.

The last of the caravans, which drew a whopping 1,268,905 visitors, closed its doors after a Grey Cup showing Saturday in Ottawa.

The train and the caravans, on which the federal centennial commission spent about $10,000,000, were mobile historical displays of Canada from the ice age to the space age.

Forecasters expected the caravans to draw 2,750,000 visitors and the train to draw 1,000,000.

By Sunday, they had drawn 30,008,385 visitors—a cost of five visitor and half of Canada's population.

The Crown Assets Disposal Corp. will sell the train and the trucks, for which there appear to be plenty of bidders.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland has his eye on one caravan. In St. John's Sept. 14, some 17,800 people lined up to pass through it in a single day.

Three caravans are being returned to the Calgary manufacturer and may end up as a mobile mining camp. At 73 feet in length, about 14 feet in height and 12 feet in width, the trucks are the largest vehicles on North American highways.

Except for one truck blown off a gusty northern Cape Breton stretch of highway, all got through the summer without mishap.

A public relations man was killed when his car spun out of control en route to Fort Smith, N.W.T., and a woman was bowled over by enthusiastic youths at one stop.

The train's purple and grey stripes were splashed with black and yellow paint by angry Montreal separatists.

Meanwhile, two caravans rolled through Quebec — one of them attracting the biggest crowd of any in Canada, No. 3, as it was known, drew 1,306,226 visitors in 56 Quebec communities.

The other Quebec caravan and the ones rolling through southern Ontario and the Atlantic provinces also broke the million mark.

Centennial commission officials estimate that 75 per cent of P.E.I.'s population and two-thirds of Nova Scotia's visited the caravan.

What was seen in one province was seen in them all.

Nova Scotia Moves to Buy DOSCO Mill

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia legislature's law amendments committee will discuss in detail today a bill approving government purchase of Dosco's Sydney steel mill and establishment of a provincial corporation to operate it.

The bill, given second reading and approval in principle by a unanimous vote at a night session Monday, would keep the mill operating until April 30, 1969.

Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. announced Oct. 13 that it planned to close the mill next April 30, putting 3,200 men out of work.

The bill would ratify an agreement already made between the government and Dosco. Under the agreement, Dosco will operate the mill at full-capacity until Dec. 31 when it will be purchased by the provincial government for an estimated price of $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Dosco will operate the mill until April 31, 1968 as an agent of the government. At that time, it will come under the control of the government or its nominee.

Premier I. C. Smith told the legislature that steel consultants and accountants would be made available to the law amendments committee if they are needed.

He said T. J. Emmert, president of Dosco, and Arthur Pattillo of Toronto, a director and chief counsel of Dosco, had indicated they would voluntarily appear before the committee.

He read a statement from Mr. Pattillo which said the Dosco officials were appearing because they were disturbed that some persons thought they were treating the legislature with contempt.

Premier Smith wound up debate on the bill at the night sitting with a rebuttal of remarks made earlier in the day by General Reagan, leader of the Liberal Opposition.

He said the "human element" was the only justification for the bill.

"It's the only reason the government of Nova Scotia would be justified in negotiating the agreement now before the house."

The premier was answering charges from Mr. Regan that the government was not protecting the workers.

Mr. Smith also said the opposition leader was wrong in saying that Dosco would be better off financially by selling the mill than it would be if it had closed it.

Mr. Regan had said earlier in the debate that Dosco would gain over $9,000,000 by selling the mill to the provincial government. He said the mill was closed on short notice because Dosco officials felt the "shock value" would help them in their negotiations.

He refers to the general Liberal government in Ottawa. Mr. Smith said. "I hope they will provide assistance in order to help us pay for the mill's operation. But I haven't noticed any help yet."

Record New Brunswick Storm Buries Province

FREDERICTON (CP) — Record snowfall, hundreds of stranded cars, a boy's death and a collapse arena were among the known toll Monday in New Brunswick's first major storm of the season.

Today's forecast for the province: Snowflurries and a lot of work to dig out of the chaos.

Fredericton was stricken by more than 25 inches of snow in 18 hours, the worst one-day snowfall figure since airport records were started in 1951.

The lull in traffic included 35 pieces of snow removal equipment that were to start work today at a cost of $600, said City Manager Bill Barrett.

RCMP cars hauled off the roads were to be used only in an emergency. The only major accident in the area was the derailment of a CPR freight train's engine at nearby Nashwaaksis. No one was injured. The train was expected back on the tracks today.

The 25-inch fall at Fredericton brought 1967's total snowfall to 154 inches—a record. The greatest snowfall here in a calendar year was 143.4 inches in 1964, City records date from 1872.

The only known fatality was five-year-old Michael McGraw. He died when struck by a car on a storm-swept highway in the Gloucester County community of Losier Settlement.

At Rogersville, 25 miles south of Newcastle, the galvanized steel roof of the Centennial Arena collapsed under the weight of snow. Damage to the unoccupied building was estimated at $45,000.

Air Canada cancelled all flights at Fredericton and Saint John, belied at first by driving rain and then by more than six inches of wind-pushed snow.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — Election for reeve and council stimulated interest among voters with a turnout at the polls of 68 per cent of the 815 possible total.

Considered somewhat of an upset a youthful hardware merchant in his forties defeated incumbent reeve Ray Moran seeking the people's mandate for the fourth time.

William F. Rose rolled up 318 votes against Moran's 221 in a surprise bulwark of support for the chief magistrate's post.

In the council race with four to be elected a new aspirant Mervin Dafoe chalked up a majority of 226 to top the polls. Another newcomer, Kenneth Lawrence, ran second with 200 votes while incumbent Carmen Mikel was re-elected as only three votes separated him from the number two position. Also rans included newcomer Mrs. Muriel Rabel (280), benefitents Paul Spurrell (251), E. B. McGeschy (247).

The village's public utilities commissioner and three school trustees were returned by acclamation.

CANADIAN IMPERIAL BANK OF COMMERCE

B and B Group Will Unveil Fruits of Four Years' Study

OTTAWA (CP) — The first volume of the final report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism will be released today and Canadians will get a look at the fruits of four years and $7,000,000 worth of study.

The 260-page document is to be tabled in the Commons at 8 p.m. by Prime Minister Pearson and is being given the top secret treatment until then.

The controversial commission, headed by Andre Laurendeau, former editor of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, and Davidson Dunton, president of Carleton University, Ottawa, wrote at $5,000-and-perdiem salary report in February, 1963, after a year-and-a-half of hearings across th country.

It warned that Canada was in grave danger of breaking up unless major changes took place in public institutions and attitudes.

It stressed three basic conclusions: That there is a large, dynamic French-speaking society within Canada dissatisfied with present conditions; that wide-ranging negotiations must be initiated between the federal and provincial governments to work out a truly equal partnership; that all Canadians must overcome the myths, prejudices and ignorance separating them and put the development of a great nation above all other considerations.

Prime Minister Pearson did not wait until the final report was received before instituting some of the commission's recommendations.

He called for a bilingual public service, offered a seven-per-cent pay bonus to civil servants using both languages and set up an extensive language school system for government employees.

Federal buildings across the country have had new signs posts in both English and French.

Most cabinet ministers manage to include some French in their public speeches.

On the eve of the final report, Mr. Pearson has also taken the first steps toward setting up a "truly national" capital area.

The prime minister announced Monday that a group of senior officials will undertake a joint study of the greater Ottawa area on both the Quebec and Ontario sides of the Ottawa River.

It is understood there will be full consultation with the municipal governments in the area and that the study will not recommend constitutional changes or the alteration of provincial boundaries.

Newcomers' Vote Total Tops Veterans

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Five newcomers were successful in winning a seat on council last night. The five were part of a group of nine new candidates who vied for a victory in yesterday's election.

Richard Ellis, E. Arnold Orr, Paul Russell, Gerald Joyce and Mrs. Robin Jeffrey together collected 24,820 votes in their successful attempt to gain a seat at the council table.

The newcomers took almost 2,000 more votes than the five aldermen who were re-elected. They received 22,064 votes.

Four newcomers fell to defeat last night, Norman Hickson, Bruce Smith, George Brown and Ian Reilly.

Mr. Ellis topped the polls with 6,139 votes and this, according to him, was a complete surprise. "I thought I would be near the tenth spot. It is a surprise to be in the top three."

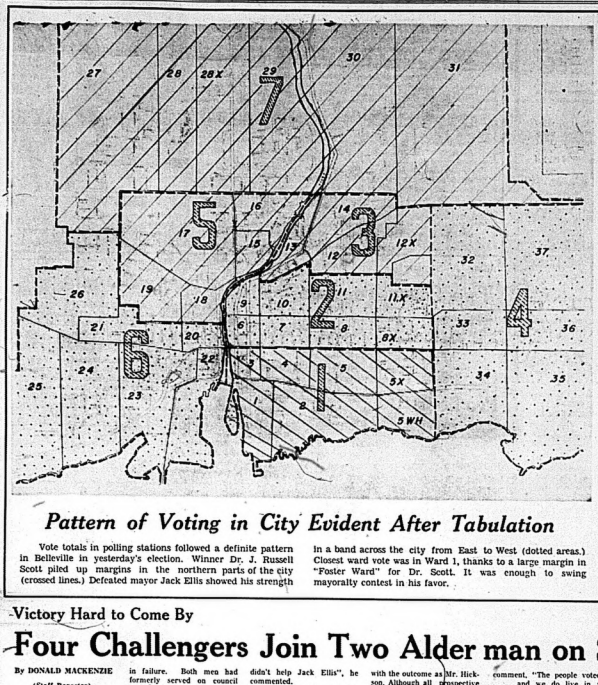
He did not comment a great deal on primary target issues in council but stated he wanted to get things organized by meeting with the other council members and the mayor.

Mr. Orr received 5,563 votes and took second spot in the aldermanic election standings. He expressed gratitude to all who had assisted him and to all "the citizens of Belleville for their splendid support at the polls."

"I look forward to helping my fellow council members in doing what must be done," he said. "Our bridge is essential. We've got to do some solid planning, something in a long-range plan."

Mrs. Robin Jeffrey became the first female alderman since 1959 last night as she placed fourth with 4,823 votes. She stated that she appreciated the confidence in a woman.

"I feel that in a few years two or three women will be seen in the council."



Gerald Joyce, realtor, rested in sixth spot after the votes were tallied. His 4,285 votes placed him just ahead of Douglas Boyle who was re-elected.

Paul Russell, the youngest candidate, and now, the youngest alderman, on the council, hopes to instill youthful ideas at the council table.

Mr. Russell didn't comment on his future aims in his new function but thanked heartily his associates, family and the voters for the victory.

"I trust," he said, "that I can justify this confidence."

He then congratulated all the other winners and the defeated candidates on their campaign.

Pattern of Voting in City Evident After Tabulation

Vote totals in polling stations followed a definite pattern in Belleville in yesterday's election. Winner Dr. J. Russell Scott piled up margins in the northern parts of the city (crossed lines.) Defeated mayor Jack Ellis showed his strength in a band across the city from East to West (dotted areas.) Closest ward vote was in Ward 1, thanks to a large margin in "Foster Ward" for Dr. Scott. It was enough to swing mayoralty contest in his favor.

Voting Pattern Shows Victory

How can a person become mayor of Belleville? It's easy — win in the odd numbered wards.

In yesterday's municipal election mayor elect Dr. J. Russell Scott won wards one, three, five and seven while his opponent Jack Ellis won in wards two, four and six.

Scott scored heaviest in the Station Street, College Hill, Parkdale and Hillcrest areas while Ellis topped the polls on the east hill, east end and west end areas.

Scott took the Foster Ward polls, which includes the lower downtown area, by 74 votes. He received 853 votes to 779 for Ellis.

In ward three, the Station street area, Scott won handily with 473 votes to 238 for Ellis.

Ward two, which includes the East hill went to Ellis — 1,084 to 696. He also won ward four, the east end, polling 933 votes to Scott's 636.

Scott won the mayoralty campaign by a total of 143 votes — one of the closest races in the history of the city.

E. Arnold Orr walks into the council chamber, certain that next time he stands by the word "council" written on the door, he will be there officially as an alderman.

Four Challengers Join Two Alder man on Sidelines

By DONALD MACKENZIE
(Staff Reporter)

Losers weepers . . . however, finders keepers does not hold quite as true. At least one of the six aldermanic candidates who lost in yesterday's election plans to try again in two years.

Former alderman Jack Allin was the standard bearer for the last six candidates in the polls. He placed eleventh and was followed by Ian Reilly, Thomas Carruthers and Bruce Smith. Holding up the end of the list of 16 prospective aldermen were Norm Hickson and George Brown.

Mr. Hickson, who was a new aspirator to aldermanic honors, is really looking ahead. "I'll be throwing my hat in again two years from now," he said, "but it may not be for alderman. I might...run for mayor."

Mr. Reilly, who placed twelfth in the polls, wasn't discouraged either and is counting on another try. He felt "that for once the voting showed what the people were in favor of . . . an arena complex and a bridge."

It was the general consensus of the last six pollsters that the arena issue played a large part in the campaign.

Mr. Allin pointed out though "that it does not matter how council votes on the arena — it still has to go to the municipal board. The first runner-up did agree the community centre exerted an influence on the electorate.

Attempted comebacks to municipal politics by Mr. Brown and Mr. Smith ended in failure. Both men had formerly served on council but had been absent from it for years. Failing to get re-elected were former aldermen Allin and Carruthers.

Industry played a large part in the outcome of the mayoralty race, according to Mr. Hickson. "The recent industrial developments between Trenton and Belleville sure didn't help Jack Ellis", he commented.

Mr. Hickson also said that he was "glad to see new aldermen to make the city run ahead". "I'm most pleased to see Dr. Scott elected — he is a fair man and will be good for the city. I'm tickled to death with the outcome".

All of the defeated candidates were not as enthused with the outcome as Mr. Hickson. Although all prospective council members came to City Hall to congratulate the winners and comment on the election perhaps Mr. Allin's comment, "The people voted . . . and we do live in a democracy" was more indicative of the mood.

But then, you can't win them all.

Parks Money Sought

The city board of parks management will request the 1968 Belleville council raise $30,000 annually in the current budget to provide a fund for the purchase of additional parks lands.

The recommendation is that the money be placed in a reserve account for use in the purchase of desirable park lands when they become available. The parks board passed the recommendation at its meeting last week.

The motion pointed out that it was impossible for the parks board to acquire sufficient land through five per cent land acquisitions from subdivision development and it was also impossible to accumulate sufficient funds from the sale of such lands to provide needed additional park land.

Council agreement to the parks board request would mean that current funds for the purchase of additional parks land would be available immediately to the board without having to get approval from the Ontario Municipal Board.

Sullivan Tops Board Two Trustees Defeated

Two members of last year's Belleville separate school board, Lawrence Rashotte and James Tobin were defeated at the polls in yesterday's municipal elections. Mr. Rashotte had 418 votes while Mr. Tobin polled 365 votes.

The chairman of the board, Edward J. Buckley, was re-elected with the second highest majority — 968. Rev. J. P. Sullivan led the polls with 1,138 votes.

Other members of the eight member board re-elected include Paul Mercier and Paul G. Wall. Mrs. Jean Wilson is a new addition to the board.

The Issue Wins...

Ald. Ken Soden has reason to keenly savor election victory last night. He bluntly ran on a single issue — approval of a community centre for Belleville.

Community Centre Supporters in Majority

A core controversy in Belleville's city election was a new city community complex.

Right now, it's on the books for decision by next year's council.

Here's how the upcoming council seems to see the issue:

Mayor-elect Scott: Perhaps an unknown quantity. Recently he told a Chamber of Commerce ratepayers' meeting "no one city is complete" without a centre containing an auditorium, swimming pool, and ice surface.

Today, he's quoted in the Intelligencer as saying it's a matter for next year's council . . . the Ontario Municipal Board may demand a public hearing on such a big expenditure and "a vote of the people could be asked.

Ald. Boyle: In favor of a community centre complex.

Ald. David: Told the Chamber of Commerce meeting he favored a pre-engineered type of smaller rink. He has also advocated raising public subscriptions for the centre.

Alderman-elect Ellis: A well-known booster of local sports and recreation, he is a leading supporter of the project.

Alderman - elect Jeffrey: Her stated stand is that "there must be a complete review of the subject, based on adequate and detailed information. . ."

Alderman-elect Joyce: Has stated himself in favor of a centre "properly planned and properly managed" with senior governments being buttonholed for "substantial" grants.

Ald Keegan: Feels a public "subscription campaign should be started; failing satisfactory response the question should be put to the electorate; if subscriptions favorable, any balance could be paid by city.

Alderman-elect Orr: Has expressed no stand on the issue.

Alderman - elect Russell: Has termed the centre a "priority" for Belleville.

Ald Soden: The project's champion . . . he laid it on the line with the electorate that a vote for him was a vote for a community centre.

Ald. Williams: As chairman of parks and recreation strongly favors the project.

Whoever called the city entry in the Eastern Ontario Junior "B" League, the "B's" pulled the biggest misnomer goof of the year.

Whoever it was should have studied what is called a schedule and would send a gaggle of Philadelphia lawyers looking for psychiatric treatment.

They should have been dubbed the "Perchernea," or "Clydesdale" for these puck-chasing colts have had more work thrust upon them that would make a self-respecting workhorse apply for admission to the retirement pasture.

The way the schedule is drawn up, the youngsters have been looking at the same faces so often they're beginning to think opposing teams especially Oshawa have been adopted by the local management.

Get a load of this: —

Last Friday night they hoaxed the Oshawa Crushmen. Last night they trekked to Cobourg. Tonight the Oshawa Crushmen are back here again.

And just so they won't lose personal touch with the Motor City youngsters they trek to Oshawa next Saturday again.

Next Sunday they visit Peterborough and next Tuesday they will host Kingston for the first time.

And they had another game scheduled for this Thursday but Manager Jim Matthews kicked over the traces and had that one put on the postponed list.

Thus far the "B's" have been given the cold shoulders by the mythical gods that supposedly hand out what is called luck and the breaks.

Their record todate is nine losses and one tie against no victories — but you would never know it by their demeanor.

Had the gremlins that hand out the breaks and so-called luck looked their way once or twice there would have been more than one victory in the win column.

This is being written before the Junior game last night in Cobourg. However yesterday the GM Matthews said that he had hopes of playing a new goalie "Cig" Hunt, originally from Trenton, more recently of the Ichby junior "B's". The "B's" have his release.

Also, the "Sniper" said, "We hope to have Harold Townsend out to bolster the defence."

If these two youngsters played last night then they will see action against the Oshawa Crushmen here tonight.

Townsend is well known in local sports circles as one of the more sensible young athletes of the city. Ask any of the Central - Ontario Secondary Schools Association football teams about him and you'll get an earful.

He tried out with the Mo-Hawk senior club in the training camp days and after seeing him in action on the defence I liked what I saw.

He is a rugged performer and fears no player who comes rearing at him from the opposing team. I understand the Mo-Hawks made a bid for his services but for certain reasons could not acquire him.

The Mo-Hawks trek to Kingston tonight but at this writing it could not be ascertained if playing coach Floyd Crawford will accompany them. Apparently whatever difference exists between him and general manager Robert Temple had not been cleared up late Sunday night.

Bruins Pocket Hull In Traffic Jam

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston's bustling Bruins are in first place in the National Hockey League's East Division today, and it took a member of that club to displace Bobby Hull atop the individual scoring race.

Veteran left winger Johnny Bucyk holds a one-point edge over the Chicago Black Hawks ace, but what is more important Bucyk's linemates—centre Fred Stanfield and John McKenzie—have caught up to Hull.

This threesome have paced the Bruins this season with a total of 91 points. Of Boston's 86-goal output in 22 games, the Bucyk, Stanfield, McKenzie trio have scored 34.

Bucyk now leads the race with 31 points on 16 goals and 15 assists. Hull has 19 goals and 11 assists for 30 points and is still the league's top goal-scorer.

McKenzie has produced 11 goals and assisted in 19 others, while rookie Stanfield has scored seven times and holds the high in assists with 23.

The three Boston players had seven points each last week. Bucyk, the first Bruin to lead the scoring parade since Bronco Horvath during the 1959-60 season, has become Boston's all-time leader in goals with 232 during 10 years with the club and the leader in points with 274. He had a total of 21 goals and 20 points in two years with Detroit before joining Boston.

There is a seven-point gap between the four leaders and Phil Goyette of New York Rangers, who picked up six points last week to jump from a 12th-place tie into fifth spot with 23 points. Goyette has scored 10 goals and assisted in 13 others.

They are Mike Walton of Toronto Maple Leafs, with 16 goals and eight assists, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings with 12 and 10, Pittsburgh Penguins Andy Bathgate—top scorer in the expansion West Division—with nine goals and 13 assists and Detroit centre Alex Delvecchio, who has scored four goals and helped on 18 others.

JOHN BUCYK

The West's top goal-scorer is Bill Sutherland of Philadelphia Flyers. He has counted 10 and assisted in five others.

Don Awrey, a Boston defenceman, took over the lead in penalties when he was assessed a record-tying 37 minutes Sunday against Montreal Canadiens in Boston. He now has 81 minutes for the season.

Veteran Toronto netminder John Bower posted his second shutout of the season to tie Montreal's Lorne Worsley in scoreless performances.

Bower, and his goaltending partner Bruce Gamble, have the best goals-against average at 2.17, but Worsley is the individual leader with a brilliant 1.58.

Ex-MVP's Now Pals In Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The major leagues' most valuable players of 1951, who opposed each other in the World Series, have come together again, as team-mates.

Executive vice - president Joe DiMaggio of Oakland Athletics said today Dolph Camilli has signed as Oakland's baseball scout in the Pacific Northwest.

DiMaggio of New York Yankees was the American League's MVP and Camilli, then with Brooklyn Dodgers, was MVP in the National League.

Camilli, who began with the old San Francisco Seals, played with Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Phillies and the Dodgers, and was an NL all-star in 1938 and 1941 as a first baseman. He managed Oakland Oaks in the Pacific Coast League in 1944.

Nationals Lose To Czechs

MOSCOW (CP-AP — The two Soviet hockey teams won their games Sunday and Canada lost again as a round-robin tournament neared its end here.

The Soviet squad, tied for first place, two Czech teams are deadlocked for third, Canada is fifth with two points and Poland last with none.

Canada, represented by the eastern section of its national team, lost 6-2 to the Czech No. 1 team Monday. The first Soviet squad downed Poland 6-1 and the second team subdued the Czech No. 2 squad 3-1.

In the last round, Wednesday, the No. 1 Czech and Soviet squads, Canada takes on the Czech No. 2 team and Poland faces the Soviet No. 2 team. The tournament is being staged in honor of the 50th anniversary of the revolution that brought Reds to power in the Soviet Union.

Canada, losing its third in four games, found Czech goalkeeper Irdji Kholicheck too much for them. He made 32 stops, many from point-blank range. Steve Reze of Ottawa made 32 saves in the Canadian nets.

The Canadians, behind 3-0 after two periods, finally got a goal when Cam Allise nof University of Ottawa scored at 1:46 of the final stanza. With 16 seconds left to play, Marshall Johnston scored the final goal.

Dempsey Whips Louis

MIAMI BEACH (Reuters) — Jack Dempsey hooked, jabbed and pummelled Joe Louis to a 15-round defeat in Monday's semi-finals of a computerized heavyweight boxing championship fight packed with six knockdowns.

Dempsey and Louis were matched in the fight by a giant computer that will decide who was the greatest heavyweight ever—our boxing merits only.

The computer checked 2,051 variables on each boxer and made a total of 60,000,000 calculations in making its decision three rounds even, 10 for Dempsey and two for Louis.

Habs Injured Work Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Lorne (Gump) Worsley, Montreal Canadiens veteran netminder, will practise with the club today missing Sunday's trip to Boston because of a head injury.

A spokesman for the club said centre Jean Beliveau, out since Nov. 4 with a leg injury and John Ferguson, the left winger who cracked his hand in a Chicago fight with the Black Hawks Nov. 24, will also work out.

Centre Henri Richard has a date with the club doctor today to assess the progress of an injured knee. Richard has been out since Canadiens visited the Blues in St. Louis Nov. 22.

Worsley was injured in the second period of Canadiens 3-2 loss to Los Angeles Kings Saturday night. The goaltender struck his head in a pileup, the spokesman said.

Canadiens are currently in the NHL's Eastern Division cellar with 21 points, 10 behind leading Boston and three short of fifth-place Chicago.

May Miss Overseas Trip

Sazio To Gild The Tiger Lily; Possible Front - Office Shift

HAMILTON (CP) — Success has not spoiled Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Even with the 1967 Grey Cup and the Canadian Football League championship safely tucked away, coach Ralph Sazio is still looking for ways to improve a team humbled Saskatchewan Roughriders 34-1 Ottawa Saturday.

It was assumed after the Grey Cup that Hamilton's player problems would be minimal next year because the Tiger-Cats won the championship during a rebuilding year.

But Sazio says it will be business as usual next season. He and assistants Joe Restic and Ray Malavasi will scout for potential additions throughout the United States.

Complicating Sazio's plans is the retirement problem. Each year most veteran players contemplate retirement and Sazio is forced to wait before pressing some about their intentions.

And then there is the possible shift in Hamilton's front office. General manager Jake Gaudaur of the Ticats is being bandied about as the next CFL commissioner and Sazio is next in line to succeed him as general manager.

Of the two assistant coaches, Restic has the most seniority. He has been in charge of the Hamilton offence since 1963.

But since Restic prefers to return to his home in upper New York to teach in the off season, Malavasi is considered heir presumptive to Sazio. Restic previously rejected head coaching jobs in Montreal and Toronto.

Malavasi, 36, joined the Ticats this year after coaching Denver Broncos of the American Football League.

Meanwhile, retirements are still a problem. Sazio may have to find a replacement for John Barrow, 31-year-old captain of the Ticats' defensive team.

There is a possibility that Barrow, who has played 11 seasons with Hamilton, may go for an even dozen, but he says it is doubtful.

"There is only one way I might be back and that is if new (head office) contracts fail to materialize," he said.

Barrow has said earlier that he doesn't wish to play for any coach other than Sazio. He figures he is too old to begin trying to assimilate the theories of a new coach.

Flanker Tommy Grant, the oldest of the Ticats at 32 and a veteran of 12 seasons, is another question mark. But he has not said he will retire.

Centre Gene Ceppetelli played out his option this year, but he may be offered a new contract. At various times he has expressed a desire to be traded to another team or continue his education.

Sazio has not indicated which positions will get preference in recruiting plans. His theory is that he will sign any available player who can improve his team regardless of the position he plays.

With The Trotters

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mike Astra and Gold Mound finished in a dead heat Monday in the featured one-mile pace at Windsor Raceway.

A crowd of 4,205 saw Gold Mound unleash a late homestretch burst to finish first with Mike Astra. Diana Brewer was third, 1¼ lengths behind the winners.

Mike Astra returned $7.10, $8.20, $5.10 and Gold Mound paid $3.10, $4.30, $3.90. The horses were clocked in 2:08 2-5.

The daily double of Direct Way and Easter Symbol returned $288.40 and the ninth-race exactor of Letta Worthy and Meadow Gene Wally paid $83.10.

Mutual handle was $250,123.

Harness Driver Eyes Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Herve Filion, who established a Canadian record for harness drivers in 1966 with 254 victories, is racing the calendar as well as opponents this week in an effort to better his previous mark.

Filion, a 27-year-old native of Angers, Que., currently has won a total of 243 races, most of them against top competition in the United States, Ontario and Quebec.

The Blue Bonnets Raceway meet closes here Monday, Dec. 31, leaving Filion less than a week to pick up another dozen victories and break his own record.

Gal Jockey Passes First Test

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Kathy Kusner, a 103-pound woman who was a jockey's licence, passed her first starting gate test Monday at Laurel race course.

The 27-year-old Miss Kusner, a member of the United States Olympic equestrian team, was schooled from the gate by starter Eddie Blind. She was up on Beau Tudor, a two-year-old.

The Monkton, Md., woman, whose licence application goes before the Maryland Racing Commission for action today, plans to accept no riding fees if granted a licence.

This would be necessary in order to maintain her amateur standing for the Olympics.

Death Claims Wismer

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Wismer 53 former sports announcer and one of the organizers of the American Football League, died Monday.

He was owner and president of the Titans, the New York entry in the league, until the club went into bankruptcy in 1963. The club, sold for $1,000,000, was renamed the Jets.

Wismer also had interests in Washington Redskins and Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Wismer succumbed in hospital where he was taken last week with an undisclosed ailment. His body was turned over to the medical examiner's office for an autopsy to determine the cause of his death.

Juniors Blew Lead Twice!

COBOURG" (Special) — The Cobourg Cougars clawed their way to a free-wheeling high scoring 10-8 victory over the winless Belleville "B's" here last night.

The city crew deserved a better fate. Twice they blew the lead but foolish penalties nullified the advantage.

It was a rugged battle with the "B's" drawing 14 of the 22 minor penalties handed out. However no penalties were called when Pete Fleming and Ray Summers had to be stitched after high-sticking incidents.

"The officiating left a lot to be desired," said Belleville manager Jim Mattiussi. "A lot of them were borderline affairs, others of the cheap variety."

The teams battled to a 3-3 tie in the first period. Belleville scored twice early in the second to take a 5-3 lead but the Cougars came back strongly to end the period tied at 6-6.

The homesters rapped in two quickies in the third frame and the victory was won. Belleville scored a loner and the Cougars wrapped it up with two late period counters.

The "B's" also used Harold Townsend and the husky rearguard came up with a good performance. He broke up with a goal and an assist.

Kelly and Gray were the big scoring guns for the Cougars, the former coming up with three goals and five assists. Gray was good for three goals and a helper.

Herbert scored twice, with Massey and Harold getting singles. Tre latter got four assists, Bourdy three, Ryan four, and Herriott one.

Peter Fleming and Gillette each scored twice for the city youngsters with Mike Healey, Harold Townsend, John Smith, Doug Potts getting singles.

Ray Summers, Rickey Rosebush and Smith each had two assists with singles going to Potts, Lambert and R. Fuller.

Cobourg outshot the "B's" 41-34, Hunt kicking out 34 drives. The homesters fired 15 to 9 in the first period and 17-8 in the second. The "B's" desperate to retrieve the victory blasted 17 shots at the Cougar net in the third as against nine returns for the homesters.

The "B's" face a tough schedule during the next five days. Tonight they entertain the Oshawa Crushmen for the second time in four nights.

Tigers Get Columnists' Nod

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports columnists across Canada Monday applauded quarterback Joe Zuger, head coach Ralph Sazio and the menacing defence of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Most of the writers in Canadian Football League cities listed these as the main ingredients in Hamilton's 34-1 triumph over Saskatchewan Roughriders in Saturday's Grey Cup at Ottawa.

Only a couple of columnists brushed the final as dull or criticized the Tiger-Cats' style of play.

Hal Walker, Calgary Herald, wrote: "Joe Zuger won't have to worry about how the fans think home will feel about him now. He gained maturity and new respect from the world of Canadian football in the Grey Cup final Saturday."

Bob Hanley, Hamilton Spectator, praised Sazio as "the guy who 'cased' the operation with film studies, who designed attack and defence, who handpicked the bandits who pulled off the job."

Writing in the Vancouver Sun, Denny Boyd referred to Sazio as a "hard-bitten perfectionist" who accomplished one of the most astonishing rebuilding jobs in the ruin-filled history of sports."

Jack Matheson, Winnipeg Tribune, singled out Angelo Mosca as the key to the stingy Hamilton defence.

Ted Reeve in the Toronto Telegram suggested the Ticats might wish they "had a game or two more left" with someone" because "they have been coming on in power and team play over the past month."

Milt Dunnell, Toronto Star, commented: "The difference was that Ticats made the big plays all afternoon: Riders never made them."

Dick Beddoes, Toronto Globe and Mail, said the Tiger-Cats "had spitefully smothered Regina, dominant by a wider margin than anyone believed possible. . . ."

Marcel Desjardins, Montreal La Presse, said that "cold, efficient strategy" and an "inspired effort" by the Hamilton players led to victory.

Laurie Artiss, Regina Leader-Post, said "the Tiger-Cats did win, but they didn't do it very artistically."

Eric Whitehead, Vancouver Province, commended: "The local season was a bust, and so were the 24½ hours spent Saturday afternoon in front of the idiot box." •

Jack Koffman, Ottawa Citizen, wrote: "The Hamilton defence was almost better-perfect. It was all Joe Zuger and the Ticat offence needed."

Bob Mellor of the Citizen said: "Billy Ray Locklin, Angelo Mosca, Dave Viti and John Barrow from an Iron Curtain that does not merely refuse to budge.

"It attacks and Ron Lancaster and some of his talented ball-carriers find that out Saturday. . . ."

Bill Westwick, Ottawa Journal, said Saskatchewan "beat before the superb functioning of what amounted to an almost flawless Tiger-Cat performance on the big day."

Three Tied For Lead

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Three players, two of them from Laval, are tied for top spot in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey scoring race.

The trio-Chuck Cippola of McMaster, Normand Cote and Guy Morel of Laval—are deadlocked with 10 points apiece in the nine-team college league.

Cippola is the leading goalscorer with six. Morel, with three goals, has the most assists, seven.

Behind the leading threesome are Marcel Lapointe also of Laval and Yves Gingras of the University of Montreal each with eight points.

The league's leading goaltender is John Wrigley of the University of Toronto, who has permitted only five goals in three games.

Athletes Receive Medallions

TORONTO (CP) — More than 800 Ontario athletes Monday received special medallions for excellence in amateur sports at the Ontario Centennial Sports Award Dinner.

The athletes represented 46 different sports from canoeing to football and included international-known competitors and comparative unknowns.

Awards went to athletes considered tops in their sports by officials of governing associations, to Ontario athletes who won championships anywhere in the world and athletes from anywhere in the world who won championships in this province.

Ontario Premier John Robarts presented a medallion to Susan MacDonnell, 20, who won a gold medal in gymnastics for Canada in last summer's Pan-American games.

OSD shaded Acres 4-3 and Tigers nipped Melrose by the same count.

D. Wojcik, Gagne, Lane and Frapper were the scorers for OSD, assists going to Sicol, Frapper, Perry, Wojcik.

T. Boullier scored all three Aces' goals with Sullivan, Crowson, Dafoe and Arquafredda getting helpers.

Reed Only Unanimous Choice On All-Canada Football Team

OTTAWA (CP) — George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders was the only unanimous choice today on the 1967 all-Canada professional football team named by the men who cover the sport.

Reed, the fullback who overshadowed every other ground-gainer in Saturday's Grey Cup football game, got everybody's vote on the all-star lineup issued by Ted Reynolds of Vancouver, new president of the Football Reporters of Canada.

The selection is made well before the Grey Cup game, which Hamilton Tiger-Cats won 24-1 over Saskatchewan this year, but is not disclosed until after the game.

Western Conference players dominated both the offensive and defensive squads chosen by the FRC.

Saskatchewan placed seven men aboard and Calgary Stampeders had five; Ottawa Rough Riders won four spots and there were three representatives from the Grey Cup championship team. Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos had two representatives each, Toronto Argonauts had one and both Winnipeg Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions were shut out.

The team:

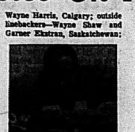
Offense: Quarterback — Peter Liske, Calgary; fullback: Reed; halfbacks—Jim Thomas, Edmonton, Bo Scott, Ottawa; flanker — Whit Tucker, Ottawa; centre—Ted Urness, Saskatchewan; guards — Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan, Roger Perdrix, Ottawa; tackles — Clyde Brock, Saskatchewan, Bill Frank, Toronto; ends—Terry Evanshen, Calgary, Tommy Joe Coffey, Hamilton.

Defence: Ends — E. A. Sims, Edmonton, John Baker, Montreal; tackles — Ed McQuarters, Saskatchewan, John Barrow, Hamilton; middle linebacker — Wayne Harris, Calgary; outside linebackers—Wayne Shaw and Garnee Ekstran, Saskatchewan; backs—Garney Henley, Hamilton, Phil Brady, Montreal, Jerry Keeling and Frank Andrejcik, Calgary, and Gene Gaines, Ottawa.

Likke, named in an earlier poll of sportswriters and broadcasters as the most outstanding player in the country, got 33 votes at quarterback to five for Ottawa's Russ Jackson and one for Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan.

Evanshen, the year's most outstanding player, got 32 votes and Coffey 31 to take the end positions. Five nominated Evanshen as a flanker. The next closest in the balloting for end was Margene Adkins of Ottawa with seven.

The East-West Purse which arose earlier when McQuarters won the outstanding lineman award over Barrow, was recognized when both made the defensive team as tackles. McQuarters got 34 votes to 32 for Barrow.



Reed, Thomas, Urness, Frank, Brock and Coffey were repeaters on the offensive team: Barrow, Harris, Henley and Gaines holdovers on defence.

All but four of the all-Canada choices were imports. Tucker, Evanshen, Urness and Shaw were the Canadians and of those, only Tucker and Shaw did not play football for a United States university.

Reed's 82 yards in the Grey Cup game accounted for almost all Saskatchewan's 120 yards along the ground as the Western Conference club outrushed the East by 30 yards in a losing cause.

His solo performance—he also caught one pass for nine yards—was overshadowed only by his halfback team—mate Ed Buchanan who caught four for 98 yards and rush six times for 13 yards.

Not Impossible

For Newfie; A Soccer Crown!

By IAN DONALDSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Newfoundland hasn't made a serious impression on the national sports scene since Alex Faulkner was scoring goals for Detroit Red Wings.

But times are changing and Canada's newest province figures it may have a national champion before long. The sport: soccer. The team to watch: St. Lawrence Laurentians.

The floorspar-mining community of 2,400 on the rugged south coast produces soccer players in much the way remote prairie centres turn out hockey stars.

In the season just over, the Laurentians won the Newfoundland title, went on to defeat Sydney, N.S., for the Atlantic Provinces Championship and lost only 3-2 to Scarborough Ballymena of Toronto in the Eastern Canada amateur soccer final.

"They surprised quite a few people—so put it mildly," said Gus Ritcey, executive of the Newfoundland Amateur Football (Soccer) Association.

Ritcherey, who was in Toronto for the game with Ballymena, underlined one of the problems facing Newfoundland's skilled and enthusiastic, but still handicapped, soccer players. He mentioned that the Laurentians took a while to get used to the bigger field in Toronto.

Most soccer fields in Newfoundland are well under the regulation size—110 yards by 75 yards.

Because of the smaller field, Newfoundland teams concentrate on direct attack offeqtes, featuring long kicks toward the opponents' goal. Mainland teams have adopted a more polished style of attack and this gives the Newfoundland clubs problems.

As president Bill Simpson of the Canadian Soccer Association puts it, "the Newfoundland teams play the old orthodox style of soccer—Ballymena performed in the new and modern way."

But all that may change before many seasons have gone by.

St. Lawrence plans to have a new $100,000 regulation field ready for the 1968 season and various clubs on St. John's also expect to have a regulation field available for next year.

The bigger fields will give the Newfoundland players the chance to develop the modern sophisticated style of play popular in amateur and professional soccer elsewhere in the country.

Says Bob Badeack, sports editor of the Telegram in St. Johns, "Next year we should start seeing the first real breakthrough."

Badcock says the key to the new style of play is ball control, using short passes and back-pedalling when necessary while awaiting a crack in the opponents' defence.

"Heavy-footed kicking of the leather only comes on a last-ditch effort," he says.

Heavy-footed or not, the Laurentians and other Newfoundland soccer teams are aiming their sights on a national title, and are confident the new fields will be a major lift.

After the game with Ballymena, Ritchegary said he was confident a Canadian title was not far off.

"At least we know where we stand," he said. "And that's not very far behind."

Turns To Basketball

The Magnificent Arm Of Jenkins!

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Ferguson Jenkins hasn't got immediate plans to play hockey—but then, up until this year he didn't figure on playing baseball either.

But that's what's happening —the magnificent right arm that hurled Chicago Cubs to 21 victories in the National League this year now is firing hook shots and lay-ups for the Harlem Globetrotters.

George Gillett, president and general manager of the Globetrotters, describes the six-foot-five native of Chatham, Ont., as "a sensational athlete who is not just playing for us—he's doing yeoman service as an advance man."

Jenkins played basketball, hockey and baseball in high school and has, says Gillett, "one big ingredient we look for in a ballplayer—extremely quick hands."

"I'm having a great time," Jenkins says. "There's a lot of publicity to do, travelling around to newspapers, radio stations and television stations. It's a little touch on my wife, though. It does get wearying."

What does Leo Durocher think of his star pitcher thundering about a basketball court during the off-season?

"Leo didn't come into it," Jenkins says.

Wendell Smith of the Chicago Sun-Times, a Canadian, asked me how I'd like to tour with the Globetrotters and I said 'wonderful.'

"He got me an interview with George Gillett ano I got the okay from Vitt Hinsel, player personnel boss with the Cubs.

"I'm in one of the skits and I play defence or four minutes of basketball each game."

Jenkins says his job as advance man is as much fun as playing and "a few people say I have a knack for this sort of thing."

"Maybe someday I'll go into it full time, but right now I'm all wrapped up in athletics."

Spring training with the Cubs is a couple of months away in Scottsdale, Ariz., and "I can hardly wait to get going again."

Gillett says the Globetrotters went after Jenkins when he won his 15th game, the first pitcher in the National League this year to hit that mark.

"The Cubs have given him permission to play, but they might have some reservations if he played full out. However, he is having so much fun with us he wants to do more work for us."

Gillett, at the age of 29—only five years older than Jenkins—describes himself as "just a country boy who made it with farms and real estate" and who is "a management consultant in Chicago."

He and two others formed a group which paid $3,700,000 for the Globetrotters to the estate of the late founder, Abe Saperstein.

Why? "The team was a spectacular success up to Abe's death and a great need and gap were created by his passing."

"I've been a fan til my life and I saw a great opportunity.

"Sport is a big business today. I read an article on Jack Kent Cooke (former Toronto sportsman now operating out of Los Angeles) and I showed me how people were moving into professional sport."

Gillett moved in in a big way. He and his associates have held interests in baseball's Atlanta Braves, soccer's Atlanta Chiefs, football's Miami Dolphins, and California Seals, one of the new teams in the National Hockey League.

Ron Stewart Talks

Needle Was Humor-Pointed

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Stewart, New York's newest Ranger, is always good for a smile, even if it's a nervous one.

Stewart, acquired by New York in a four-player National Hockey League swap with St. Louis Blues a week ago, joined the New York Hockey Writers for lunch Monday and brought his needle along.

Seated next to Red Kelly, a longtime teammate at Toronto and now coach of the NHL's expansionist Los Angeles Kings, Stewart never missed a chance to jab away.

"When I learned about the trade," the veteran right winger said, "I packed as fast as I could. Unlike Mr. Kelly, I decided to start."

Kelly created a storm in 1960 when he refused to report to New York after being traded along with Bill McNeill by Detroit. His rebellion caused the deal to be cancelled and he later was swapped to Toronto where he starred for six seasons with the Maple Leafs.

Stewart played for Toronto for 43 seasons before being traded to Boston in 1964 and was picked by St. Louis in the NHL's expansion draft last June. He played with Kelly under Punch Imlach, coach of the Maple Leafs, who is considered one of hockey's toughest bosses.

"I got along very well with Punch," said Stewart, feeding himself a straight line. "We just didn't talk."

Kelly grinned. The LA coach had been caught in his own hassle with Imlach at the Toronto training camp in Cook, owner of the Kings, had arranged for Kelly to become LA's coach and Toronto accepted him, waiting for the Kings to claim him, for nine rounds.

Then, quite suddenly, Imlach withdrew Kelly's name from Toronto's list of eligibles, leaving Cook and the Kings screaming. Imlach surveyed the turmoil coolly.

"Cooke can't come in and run this league," he said.

Finally, Imlach agreed to send Kelly to the Kings in a trade for defenceman Ken Block.

AAU Said Ready To Negotiate

NEW ORLEANS (AP) The U.S. Amateur Athletic Union is ready to negotiate with Russia for the resumption of sports competition on a limited basis.

The competition stopped in July 1966 when the Soviet Union pulled out of the annual international track and field meet in Los Angeles. The U.S. military activities in Vietnam were offered as the reason.

At the close of its annual meeting here, the AAU said Monday Russia has agreed to pay for the financial losses which resulted from its cancellation of the 1966 meets.

Almost All Eyes on the Board

Moments after the closing of the polls in last night's election, interested voters and citizens filed into the council chamber at city hall to watch the mayoralty and aldermanic race. Here almost all eyes concentrate on the board as a poll tabulator writes results upon its surface.

P.E. County Had Tight Fights

PICTON (Staff) — Elections in some parts of Prince Edward County yesterday were tight.

In Sophiasburgh township, incumbent reeve Donald Kotchapaw lost the reeveship race to last year's deputy reeve, George Foster, by 19 votes. Foster polled 362, Kotchapaw 343.

Elected for school trustees were John Huskisson, 423; Jack Sprague, 368; Leland Dozare 360. The woman candidate, Madilyn Rossborough, with 309 votes was defeated.

Bloomfield staged a close race with a large vote. In the village 355 voted out of a possible 365 voters.

Leading the polls for reeve was Allan Anderson with 209 votes. He defeated incumbent Henry Leavens who polled 148. Winners of the contest for council were Donald Baxter, 292; Douglas Pearce 207; Charles Howard, 194; and Jack Stenning, 174. Defeated were Max Everhardous with 155 and Lee Allison with 136.

In Hallowell township 666 eligible voters went to the polls, 25 per cent of the total electorate. The turnout was considered average for the polls.

William Rutherford headed the polls for councillor with 465 votes, followed by Arthur Ryckman with 364 and David Taylor with 310. Mary Good, a fourth candidate in the running for the three-seat council, lost out with 263 votes.

In South Marysburgh township, Clifford Walker with 186 votes led the field of six candidates for the four-seat council. Also elected were Arthur Ford, 174; Bernard Keough, 166; and Keith Hicks 158. Defeated were Leo Mc-Alpine with 133 votes and Allan Ralley with 132.

In Ashod township John Whiteford headed the polls for the four-man council with a total of 220 votes, Mrs. T. Dulmage followed with 217, Harold Bartman was third with 208 and Vernon Armstrong was fourth with 169. Harry Evans, who campaigned with a promise of flush toilets for the village hall, lost out with 149 votes.

Small Vote Polled in Brighton Twp.

BRIGHTON — In nearby Brighton township voters were called on to elect three councillors from a field of six didates.

Incumbent Arnold Boes topped the polls with 366 when less than 30 per cent of the eligible voters turned out to cast their ballots. In second place was incumbent Ronald Chambers with 366 and the third vacancies went to newcomer Maurice Harvey with 279.

The unsuccessful candidates were Robert Cartaw (246), Ivan Flindall (204) and Ralold Cummings (112).

There was no contest for reeve, deputy reeve and school trustees since all incumbents were returned by acclamation. Reeve Roy Chattan has served five years.

One Newcomer Elected To Brighton Council Seat

BRIGHTON — The council election here attracted below average enthusiasm at the polls.

The four candidates vieing for three council vacancies generated under 50 per cent of the eligible vote although a new entry in the contest Norman Roberts pressed front runner Howard Sharp at every polling station. Incumbent Frank Pearsall was re-elected but newcomer Lloyd Pownall gathered fewer than half his total as he suffered defeat.

Final, results were: Howard Sharp - 427; Norman Roberts-387; Frank Pearsall - 331; Lloyd Pownall - 166.

The village's municipal council this year will be headed up by reeve G. I. Ross who received acclamation to office in the footsteps of J. E. Solomon serving the community as chief magistrate for three years.

Music Box Collection Plays for Rotary

Belleville business man Frank Foley has an unusual hobby. He collects and restores old music boxes.

Developed originally in France close to neighboring Switzerland, manufacture of quality music boxes subsequently became associated with Geneva.

Mr. Foley's repertoire of music includes the Hunter's March and many other fine old pieces which although long out of vogue have a style and melodic quality that contemporary music forms cannot match.

As Mr. Foley put it, "One of the fundamentals of listening to music boxes is the sense of nostalgia they give. When reconstructed these magnificently-built machines play as well as they did when new."

At yesterday's luncheon meeting of Belleville Rotary Club, the Hotel Quinte's Pinnacle Room was the auditorium for the gentle sounds of some of Mr. Foley's faithfully-restored music boxes dating back more than a century.

In keeping the machines and their music alive Mr. Foley preserves an interesting facet of our European heritage.

Pretty Daughter of Montreal Bus Driver Highly Praised

NEW YORK (CP) — Genevieve Bujold, pretty daughter of a Montreal bus driver and acclaimed as an actress in both Canada and France, has added the U.S. television audience to her growing list of credits.

The authoritative TV Guide, a widely circulated U.S. television weekly magazine, calls the 25-year-old bilingual Canadian "Cabbage No. 1" of Canada and France.

Miss Bujold, wife of CBC producer Paul Almond, received handsome praise for her star performance in the two-hour production of George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan Monday night on NBC's Hallmark of Fame.

Robert Hartung's adaptation of the satire, which Shaw developed around the well-known legend of the 15th Century Maid of Orleans, was skilful. The production, like all Hall of Fame dramas, was rich and handsome. But most important, it was beautifully and effectively cast.

Cynthia Lowry, Associated Press television-radio columnist, writes:

"Genevieve Bujold, a newcomer to television in the United States, gave a truly-memorable performance as Joan, first as an eager country girl with a God-given mission to lead an army and save France, and finally, as a mature and sophisticated ghost returning to hear her friends and enemies justify and defend the actions that carried her to the burning— and to sainthood."

Amid the fine performances of such theatrical giants as Maurice Evans as the fanatic heretic hunter, Toronto-born Douglas Mawsey as the urbane inquisitor and Roddy McDowell as the silly dauphin, Miss Bujold was "vividly effective," Miss Lowry says.

The playwright's purpose was to examine, within the discipline of the Joan of Arc legend, the lengths to which men can be led by expediency, superstition and stubbornness. The movement of the drama from stage to tube lost none of Shaw's bite and cynicism. It was a fine two hours.

TV Guide, in a full-length feature on the child-like Miss Bujold says her looks are as internationally appealing as sex and French-fried potatoes.

Now living in Toronto, Miss Bujold started her career in Montreal as part of the great flowering of French-Canadian culture that resulted in among things, Montreal's Expo 67. In Montreal she worked in as many as four media—radio, television, film and the stage in a single day.

In Toronto, she appeared in some CBC English-language roles and she honed her talent by performing in French and English in Moliere, Shakespeare, Ibsen and Anouilh.

She leaves next month for Russia in 1963 with a Montreal repertory company. Her picture in the Paris newspaper France-Soir caught the eye of the New Wave director Alain Resnais (Hiroshima, Mon Amour) and she was given a screen test and hired for the part of Nadine, the young revolutionary, in his movie La Guerre Est Finie.

Miss Bujold made several more movies in France and Canada, most notably The Thief of Paris.

Her latest, Isabel, is directed by her husband.

Jon Ruddy, writing in TV Guide, says: "Fans in France declared that she was their favourite numero on which loses something in translation. She remained, of course, Cabbage No. 1 in Montreal, too."

Tweed Ends Unusual Flirtation

TWEED — This village ended its one-year flirtation with total, female local government last night.

The municipality broke off its engagement with an all-woman council by electing Kenneth Thompson.

Mr. Thompson, a car salesman, will be the only man to sit on council with four other women.

He squeezed out Councillor Jeanette Whitfield 367-313.

However, three other men running with Mr. Thompson went down to defeat as the election developed into a close-cut battle of the sexes.

The women's team headed by Reeve Barbara Allen, acclaimed earlier when Mr. Thompson declined to contest the reeveship.

A woman — Councillor Amelia Bosley — also headed the polls with 560 votes.

Nearly 80 per cent of the village's 1,066 eligible voters turned out for the election.

Other standings: Dora Courneyea, 460, Christina Sinclair, 387 — both incumbents — and Donald Hodgins, 310, Joseph Mumby, 290 and Lloyd Rowson, 273.

THE LONER — Single man among four women on next year's Tweed council is Kenneth Thompson, elected last night. Ending the village's engagement with Canada's first all-woman local government he will match wits with (from left) Reeve Barbara Allen and Councillors Amelia Bosley, Christina Sinclair and Dora Courneyea.

Naturalist To Make Bird Count

The November meeting of the Quinte Field Naturalists was held at the Belleville Research Institute with an excellent attendance of nature lovers, young and old.

Groups from Centre, Big Island and Picton represented Prince Edward County and brought some excellent reports of interesting sightings of birds and animals in the county.

The speaker for the evening was Edwin B. Waldock, Toronto insurance executive who was introduced by William Watson. Mr. Waldock is a member of The Colored Photography Association of Canada and has won many awards in salons and in the Federation of Ontario Naturalists contests for his photography.

The marvels of creation were demonstrated in close-up views of flowers, which show hidden parts and under magnification, exquisite color and form. Of the 50 or so orchids native to Canada, Mr. Waldock has photographed more than half. Some of his most prized discoveries were made in the swamps of the Picton area.

During the business part of the meeting, the president, Mrs. William Watson guided the club in making final arrangements for the Federation of Ontario Naturalists annual bird count. This will take place Wednesday, Dec. 27 and will cover parts of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. This province-wide survey provides for the F.O.N. a list of birds seen and a record of their numbers. While it is carried out by local club members, other interested persons are welcome to participate.

Checking over the figures from the polls are defeated Henry Leavens and the new reeve of Bloomfield, Allan Anderson. It was one of the largest voter turnouts in years for the village.

Former Councillor Leads Poll

AMELIASBURG — A former councillor, who lost his bid for deputy reeve last year, headed the polls in the council election here yesterday when five candidates contested for three vacant seats.

Russell Thompson led the field with 418 votes closely followed by incumbents Norman Post (339) and Arnold Wetherup (326) returned to office in that order of the vote.

At the same time newcomer Lt. Col. Ken Willcocks made a good showing in his first try for municipal election. He collected 319 votes to finish in fourth place while incumbent Mrs. Rita Barrick the first woman ever to sit on township council, lost out with 245 total.

Earlier Reeve George Cunningham was returned for a second term by acclamation, and incumbent Laird Adams was likewise returned to the deputy reeve's post by acclamation when no one was nominated to stand against him.

Incumbent school trustees Twilla Langman and Morris Pulver were also returned by acclamation.

Of the 2,738 eligible voters, 723 cast ballots about half of usual number making the annual trip to the polls.

Legion Branch Lists Officers

DESERONTO — Officers for the 1968 Branch 200 of the Royal Canadian Legion were elected Friday evening. President is Edward Gerdanier. Earle A. Brant is 1st. vice-president, and Darrell Berry, 2nd. vice-president.

Members of the executive are: Max Harrow, Jim Moore, Vivlor Walker and Pat. Moore.

Councillor Beaten in Stirling

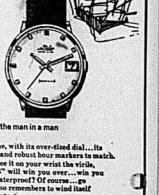
STIRLING — The turnout of 936 for only council election was regarded as average in election when there was no contest for reeve, school trustees and public utilities commission.



Actually there was a change in one of the members of last year's council . . . with the defeat of incumbent Bruce Glendinning. The other three incumbents in the race, however, racked up impressive totals to secure term extension. * * *

Elected for two year terms were Robert Hulin (492), Maurice Faulkner (421) and Robert Anderson (384).

The fourth council seat went to Claude Trumble with a 307 count on his first time out. Candidate Allen Lawes placed sixth with an accumulation of 150 votes.

Hair Preparations Safer Today

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to use those new hair straightening for extra curly hair? I have heard that there were dangerous to hair and scalp, but some of my friends say they used them and they worked perfectly. My hair is very curly and I cannot do anything with it. — L.M.

I can't, for reasons you'll soon see, give you a categorical answer as to whether "those new hair straighteners" are safe for you.

Keep these thoughts in mind though:

1 — There has been tremendous effort made to improve the chemistry of all sorts of hair preparations. It's a big business, so companies want products which will do the best job and cause the fewest complaints.

2 — Hair, like skin, varies considerably in texture. One person's hair will tolerate a straightener (or other preparation) while another person's won't.

3 — Some folks will encounter scalp irritation from one preparation, yet find that a different one may not be bothersome.

Some of the chemicals used in the past have been known to irritate the scalp and also to be responsible for the hair shafts breaking off if used too many times. Newer ones, I understand, are better.

Here are my suggestions:

Try one of the preparations which your friends have found successful. If no itching or irritation of the scalp results, fine. And the same as to breakage of hairs.

But I would promptly stop using any preparation which caused the slightest irritation of the scalp. If you stop at once you should have no trouble, but if you keep on, you may find that the repeated irritation can produce a real skin problem.

As for shafts breaking, if it happen you will notice the increasing accumulation of strands in your comb or brush. That would be your warning to stop and, after some time passes, possibly try some different preparation.

Dear Dr. Molner: My niece, 11, was always a healthy child but has been housebound for four months because of arthritis, which I never heard of before. Please explain what it is. — E. B.

In brief, it is a kidney infection. Kidney trouble is far more prevalent in children than the public seems to realize, and it can be so serious that parents should be alert for signs of it. You'll find the booklet on topic explains in my booklet, "If Your Kidneys: Facts You Need To Know About Them." Send 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 138, Dundee, Ill., for the booklet.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 25, is always going over to a friend's or neighbor's for a cup of coffee. When she gets home she has diarrhea and cramps. It doesn't happen until she has had that cup of coffee. I have heard of people who are always saying, "I am not a coffee drinker; it doesn't agree with me." — Mrs. A. B. C.

There is an inexpensive way to get a start on solving her problem. Have her drink a cup of coffee each morning for two weeks, and count the cramps. Some people are, indeed, sensitive to coffee. It has a laxative effect on many.

Proposed Labor Board Changes Are Under Opposition Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed changes in the makeup and powers of the Canada Labor Relations Board ran into an opposition onslaught Monday that forced the government to switch tactics.

The bill designed at least partly to meet complaints of the board by Quebec unions, got first reading but only after opposition charges that the government was trying to do indirectly what it did not dare to do openly.

There also were charges and denials that the government had reneged on an assurance that the bill would go straight to committee for study before getting second reading — approval in principle.

Labor Minister Nicholson led off the debate and said he hoped the measure would go to committee "before second reading —right away."

But after NDP member Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) suggested the bill should be torn up and redrawn, the minister took a different tack.

He said it was obvious from Mr. Knowles' speech that the opposition intended to use the move to committee to destroy the bill. The government felt legislation was urgently needed and would not permit its destruction.

Opposition Leader Stanfield said he was appalled that the minister had first given an assurance and then withdrawn it.

Robert McCleave (PC — Halifax) suggested there had been some "friendly armtwisting" by House Leader MacEachen and Manpower Minister Marchand involved in the change.

The attack on the bill itself was led by David Lewis (NDP — York South) who charged that the government was "indulging in a subterfuge to do something which it does not dare or does not have the courage to do straightforwardly and in the open."

Mr. Marchand replied that the changes are designed to ensure that present injustices on the CLRB will be corrected.

He referred only in passing to the union he formerly headed, the Confederation of National Trade Unions, which has been a leading critic of the board.

Mr. Marchand said a union not represented on the board or represented only in a minority way would have a better chance of obtaining justice under the proposed changes. He said he was not thinking only of the CNTU.

As it is at present set up, the board sits with four labor representatives and four industry chairmen or vice-chairmen.

Three of the labor representatives are from the Canadian Labor Congress and one from the CNTU—one factor in the CNTU complaints.

The Quebec-based CNTU also complained about the board's policy of refusing to break up a national bargaining unit, even when a rival union has preponderant support regionally.

One clause in the bill—which was not unveiled until debate had been completed on first reading - appeared designed to deal with this situation.

It would provide that where a company operates in more than one region or other "distinct geographical area" and a union seeks certification in one or more of the areas, the board may decide that it is an appropriate unit.

Why Demand Latest Books But Insist on Old Music?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Ponderings and Perplexities:

How is it that the mind of man is able to devise the most complex, ingenious and awe-inspiring mechanisms — and yet is unable to find some way of keeping small children happy and occupied during two consecutive rainy days when they are house-bound?

Why do we clamor for the "latest" novel in a bookshop, and demand the "newest" play in the theatre, but at the same time insist upon only the oldest music in the concert hall?

Why is it generally the same women who are always busy "cleaning the house" who rarely invite anyone over to enjoy it?

When will we begin to learn that the price we pay for being perpetually entertained by professionals is the atrophy of our ability to entertain ourselves?

Why does a "noiseless" or electric typewriter make me feel as if I'm not writing anything that has any lasting imprint?

What distorted sense of style makes some men wear those matching belt-and-tie-and-handkerchief sets?

Why do we try to justify certain of our acts by saying, "I'm not hurting anyone but myself," and fail to realize that if each man used his power to hurt himself, society would disintegrate?

Why is it that a man who prides himself on "liking to look at a problem from all sides" becomes so enraged looking at a modern painting that can just as easily be hung sideways or upside down?

Why is it a "lie" when children tell us they have washed their hands and they haven't; whereas when we ask them to answer the phone and say we're not home, it's just "social form"?

Why do the same people who say "Money isn't everything" usually act most of the time as through it were an effective substitute for anything else?

Why is a French accent in English considered "charming," and an Italian accent considered "comical" — especially since Italian is the more beautiful language of the two?

Why doesn't the average housewife ever stop to calculate how many housedresses it takes to fill out one stamp book?

How many men call themselves "individualists" who can hardly be distinguished from their neighbors, who call themselves the same thing?

French Fort Is Restored

Although tourists are already visiting the Fortress of Louisburg, built by the French between 1714 and 1744, it will not be officially opened until 1972. Visitors to the fort are taken to a vantage point where they can see restoration operations, but are not allowed to wander around the area. Only about 50 per cent of the defence installations will be restored and about six blocks of the original 40-block settlement. (CP Photo)

Marriage Breakdown Recognized

Divorce Reform Legislation Stirs Enthusiasm of All Parties in House

OTTAWA (CP) — After months of study and hearings, the government Monday night unveiled divorce reform legislation embodying in part the marriage breakdown concept but also adding new specific grounds for divorce.

The legislation sets out the first major revamping of Canada's divorce laws in a century and it won enthusiastic all-party support as it received first reading.

The bill includes many of the recommendations of the parliamentary committee which reported last June and also accepted only in part the marriage breakdown principle.

At present, adultery is virtually the only ground for divorce in Canada. Passage of the government bill will add these grounds:

Sodomy, bestiality, rape, homosexuality, bigamy, physical and mental cruelty and permanent marriage breakdown.

Justice Minister Trudeau, in introducing the proposals, said the government had rejected the suggestion that marriage breakdown be the one, comprehensive ground for divorce. It was putting forward instead a "modified concept of marriage breakdown."

"Insofar as we are concerned with grounds for divorce, the bill can be fairly described as a composite one, recognizing marital offences and marriage breakdown."

The marriage-breakdown would allow petitions under circumstances where the husband and wife are living apart because the respondent has been:

—Imprisoned for a total of not less than three years during the five-year period preceding presentation of the petition.

—Imprisoned for not less than two years, before petitioning, for an offence in which he was sentenced to death or imprisonment for 10 years or more.

—Grossly addicted to alcohol or narcotics and there is no reasonable expectation of early rehabilitation.

—The petitioner has not known the whereabouts of the respondent for three years or been able to contact the respondent.

—The marriage has not been consummated and the respondent for at least one year has not been able by reason of illness or disability to consummate it or has refused to do so.

—The spouses have lived living apart for other reasons for not less than three years, or by reason of desertion of the petitioner for a period of not less than five years.

On any petition presented in which any of the foregoing circumstances have been established, "a permanent breakdown of the marriage . . . shall be deemed to have been established," says the bill.

The proposed legislation would be administered in the provincial courts as at present. However, Newfoundland and Quebec divorce petitions, now requiring Senate approval, would get different treatment.

There is a provision that would transfer this parliamentary jurisdiction to a new divorce division in the Exchequer Court. This would have the effect, said Mr. Trudeau, "of abolishing parliamentary divorce as we now understand it."

This might be a temporary measure as the bill has a provision that would enable this jurisdiction to be transferred from the Exchequer Court to the Quebec Seuprior Court and the Newfoundland Supreme Court by those provinces.

The justice minister said the legislation is also a "reconciliation bill in that it imposes stated duties on both the legal profession and the courts . . . in the hope that as many as possible of the broken marriages that come before the legal profession and the courts can be saved."

"The saving of marriages is at least as important as the burying of dead marriages that cannot be salvaged."

Reaction to the minister's introduction of the bill were congratulatory.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Temiskaming): "I am happy to have been able to be in this Parliament when the government finally decided to introduce this measure . . . it gives me a great deal of personal satisfaction . . . I think the minister has given to the 500,000 people that the Canadian Bar Association states are engaging in common law relationships a Christmas present. . . ."

Mr. Peters and Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) effectively blocked parliamentary passage of divorce petitions several years ago, in an effort to bring about divorce reform.

Opposition Leader Stanfield: "I . . . We on this side of the chamber approve of reforming the divorce law. . . ."

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood): ". . . I should like my first words on this matter to be ones of relief and pleasure. . . ."

He added that he would have preferred to see the one ground of marriage breakdown covering all offences.

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke): "I am sure that as the minister of justice spoke this evening his words were accompanied by a flutter of hope across this country from all those people who have waited so long for action in this regard. . . ."

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona): "I think everyone in the country is glad that the measure has finally come before the House. I think the country is ready for this change and I am sure the whole House will co-operate in passing the best possible bill."

The legislation also makes provision for alimony, custody of children and related matters.

To assist in possible reconciliation, the bill proposes that a court may nominate a person "to assist the parties to a marriage with a view to their possible reconciliation. . . ."

Pollution Parley Delegates Charged With Using Jargon

TORONTO (CP) — Jargon or cold, hard facts?

That was the question that bothered some delegates Monday at the opening of a three-day conference called by the Ontario government on air, water and soil pollution.

Instead of statistics, many speakers used phrases such as "acceptable levels" of pollution or "abnormally high, or possibly injurious, or potentially high levels."

"Does this terminology leave us open to the charge of waffling?" asked W. Y. Watson, biology department chairman of Laurentian University in Sudbury.

"Are these terms used so that we won't point the finger, or are they a real indication of our lack of knowledge?"

Replying, Dr. D. E. Elrick, a professor in the department of soil science at the University of Guelph, said:

"Perhaps, we all use this terminology so we can't be pinned down too much. I'm as guilty as anyone, I do feel we use the jargon too much."

Earlier, the delegates, chosen from private industry, agriculture and local governments, heard John R. Simonett, Ontario minister of energy and resources, say there is no hope of re-establishing a pollution-free society.

"The problem is one of creating no more pollution than we are prepared to tolerate." He said a balance must be found between requiring industries to undertake pollution controls at that price them out of business, and allowing industries to market cheap products and at the same time, pollute the human environment.

To help strike the balance, the government proposed to divide the province into seven regions with offices in Toronto, London, Hamilton, Kitchener, Welland, Brampton, Barrie, Kingston, Ottawa, Peterborough, Fort William and Sudbury.

Each region would have an engineer and inspectors to regulate policies aimed at controlling pollution.

L. R. Webber, University of Guelph scientists, said southern Ontario farm animals produce pollution-causing wastes at a rate equal to a human population of 45,000,000.

J. D. Heaman of the health department said the output of wastes from livestock production amounts to more than 33,000,000 tons annually in Ontario. Most farms don't have the land to dispose of wastes in a sanitary method.

Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond said industry is responding favorably to Ontario's hard-line policy on pollution. The tough line was adopted in a directive to the pulp and paper industry three years ago.

Ontario industries had spent more than $120,000,000 on waste treatment. "This is exclusive of those connected to municipal systems, where in some instances surcharges are paid by the municipality for the treatment of their industrial wastes."

Canadian Rescued From Florida Mob

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (AP) — An Ontario prisoner accused of murdering a policeman with a stolen gun as been spirited out of this small Florida Panhandle town to save him from a possible lynch mob.

The remained hidden at an undisclosed jail Monday while the sheriff's office polished its case.

David Edward Barlow, 29, of Guelph, was charged with first-degree murder in the Friday night shooting of Patrolman Fred Babb.

Police said Barlow was captured after a 23-mile chase at 100 miles an hour when he crashed Babb's patrol car into a pine tree.

After an hour in the Franklin County jail in northwest Florida, Sheriff H. O. Marshall and deputies sneaked him out of the back door and took him to another jail because a mob of 100 to 150 angry persons gathered in front of the building.

"The town got pretty hot," Marshall said. "I looked like we might have a lynching party, so we moved him for his own safety."

Marshall said a gun taken from Barlow was the one used to kill Babb, shot down when he tried to arrest Barlow for allegedly stealing a deputy's car at gunpoint from the sheriff's office.

"We know it checks out because he admitted it," Marshall said. "And we had eyewitnesses who saw him." Marshall said the .357 magnum had been identified through ballistics as the weapon that was used to shoot the 36-year-old policeman in the head and head.

"He whipped out a gun and shot him before he had a chance to get a gun on him," Marshall said.

Marshall said Barlow is accused of holding up a liquor store in Tallahassee and stealing two other cars including the one in which the gun was hidden.

New York Police Arrest War Foes

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Police today arrested about 30 anti-Vietnam war demonstrators who sat down in the streets and blocked an area near the main military induction centre here.

About 1,000 demonstrators arrived at the Lower Manhattan induction centre in an effort to close it down. Police expected the ranks of demonstrators to swell.

Several hundred pickets were allowed to pass through police lines and take up positions in the street in front of the fortress-like centre.

They were kept inside a rectangular-shaped police barricade.

Chanting "Peace now, peace now," the demonstrators led by Dr. Benjamin Spock, stood directly in front of wooden police barriers and hundreds of uniformed policemen.

Opponents of the Vhinam war also staged protests in four other New York state cities Monday.

In Buffalo, a respiratory irritant scattered federal marshals and guards at a demonstration by 200 persons at Selective Service headquarters. A guard said it appeared to come from the demonstrators.

In the largest demonstration, about 250 protesters marched on the post office in Hempstead, Long Island. They mailed what they said were draft cards of three of their number to Lt.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director.

In Rochester, 24 anti-war demonstrators picketed the Mid-Town Plaza durinte a speech by Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

Smaller demonstrations were held at Smithtown on Long Island and in Albany. Some 450 persons attended an hour-long church service in Brooklyn against the war.

Twenty Men Missing After Bridge Collapses

MEXICO CITY (AP) — About 20 Mexican workers were believed still missing today in the wreckage of a bridge under construction that collapsed into a deep canyon on the outskirts of Mexico City.

Ten bodies were recovered and one survivor was pulled from beneath a pile of rock before search operations were suspended at midnight Monday night because of poor visibility and the danger of a further collapse.

Jose Cruz Bolanos, an agent of the public works ministry, said about 30 workers were believed killed when the centre span plunged into the canyon early Monday night. The exact number of men on the bridge was not known, he said, as new laborers had been hired during the day.

The survivor, Angel Aguirre, said 19 others were working around him.

Rescue workers said there was little hope that anyone else survived.

No explanation for the collapse has been found.

B and B Press Conference

Andre Laurendeau, left, and A. Davidson Dunton, co-chairmen of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, explain recommendations of their report at press conference at Ottawa. The report was tabled yesterday in the Commons by the prime minister. (CP Photo)

B-B Report Urges Ontario Be Bilingual

Pearson Backs Equality Plea

OTTAWA (CP) — The first report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism has won general acceptance here despite some fears that events may supersede implementation of its recommendations.

However, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons in tabling the report Tuesday the government already has established machinery to give it "serious and urgent appraisal."

He said the government "fully endorses" the principle of English and French linguistic and cultural equality expressed in the report.

Mr. Pearson promised federal action as quickly as possible on matters within its jurisdiction.

Only three of the 14 recommendations fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of Ottawa, two more are constitutional and require prior discussion with the provinces, and three others would require joint federal-provincial action.

Six are primarily provincial, Mr. Pearson noted.

He said he will suggest that matters in the report be discussed at the federal-provincial Bill of Rights Conference planned for early 1968.

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Stanfield said that regardless of jurisdiction, recommendations in the report "clearly relate to problems which are of concern to the country as a whole."

The former Nova Scotia premier said that a few years ago the recommendations might have been considered rather startling. But the fact that people had been pressing for the first commission report indicated the extent to which public opinion had changed.

Roger Regimbal (PC—Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes) said there is "danger that events may outstrip the report" but nevertheless it was a good starting point.

Some Conservatives grumbled that the commission had taken four years to produce proposals that provincial premiers had basically agreed to in four days last week at the Confederation for Tomorrow conference in Toronto.

NDP Leader Douglas welcomed the report as "an important contribution to a fundamental problem" and said he was impressed by the unanimous opinion of the commissioners.

Events had vindicated the commission's 1965 warning in a preliminary report that a crisis existed in Canada.

"Before we begin the seance, I'd like a vote of confidence!"

Quebec Method Recommended

OTTAWA (CP) — A plea to English Canada to give its French-speaking minority the same language rights Quebec has extended to its English-speaking minority for 100 years was made Tuesday by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Holding up what it called the "Quebec model," it said Ontario and New Brunswick should move to declare themselves officially bilingual provinces, recognizing both the English and French languages in their legislatures, public service, schools and courts.

Other provinces should follow suit when the French-speaking element of their populations reaches 10 per cent.

The report, about 100,000 words long, is printed in both French and English.

For other stories on the B and B report, see Front Page, Second Section.

"The impossibility of living a full life in French outside Quebec, and even in certain parts of Quebec, is certainly one cause of the present crisis in Canada," the royal commission warned in a 350-page report, first of 10 to come out of its four-year, $7,000,000 study.

Three years ago the commission said in a preliminary report that the gulf between English and French Canada was deeper than most people realized.

"The crisis is very much still with us," commission Co-chairman Davidson Dunton told a press conference after release of the report.

Andre Laureedeau, the other co-chairman, said more and more Canadians are coming to recognize the seriousness of the situation.

One of the report's major proposals is for the establishment of "bilingual districts" anywhere that the official-language minority makes up 10 per cent or more of the population. These would have schools and government services in the minority language.

It identifies 54 such districts from the 1961 census, 43 of them in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. There also were four in Nova Scotia, four in Manitoba and one each in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The 10-member royal commission also made these recommendations:

—Acceptance by all provinces of both languages in legislature debates and the provision of appropriate services in French for French-speaking minorities.

—Recognition of the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in English or French, implementation depending on concentration of the minority population.

—Declaration that English and French are the official languages.

Hydro Boosts Price

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro will increase charges for electrical power to all municipalities in the province by about six per cent starting Jan. 1.

The move was made public Tuesday after Toronto and suburban Scarborough hydro commissions announced they will pass the increases on to consumers.

A spokesman for Ontario Hydro said the increase reflects higher costs for labor, materials and borrowing.

The Toronto Hydro increase is the first since 1953.

Ontario Hydro collects about $217,000,000 annually from municipal hydro sales. This will increase to about $230,000,000 with the new charges.

U.S. Plans Tight Meat Inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping, meat inspection bill appears headed for congressional approval.

House-Senate conferees agreed Tuesday on terms of the compromise measure to revamp the 60-year-old federal meat inspection law.

It is designed to extend federal standards within the next three years to 15,000 plants now covered.

Dockers' Immunity Extended

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Philippe Lamarre Tuesday extended a provisional injunction restraining shipping companies from firing longshoremen.

The provisional injunction, granted Nov. 27 in Superior Court, ended a four-day shutdown of the port of Montreal.

It will remain in effect until the court rules for or against an application for a permanent injunction filed by the International Longshoremen's Association, Mr. Justice Lamarre said.

The temporary injunction orders the Shipping Federation of Canada and 26 member shipping lines to provide a minimum of eight hours work each day for all longshoremen in the port or pay them for "standby duty."

It was granted at the request of the ILA after the shipping companies fired the port's 2,000 longshoremen in a dispute over terms of a binding federal government report on waterfront conditions.

'Lost' Soldier Wins Discharge

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Without comment, the United States Army Tuesday released Joe A. Smith, the soldier it "lost" for 18 months.

Smith, 23, spent an hour and 10 minutes going through the separation process at Oakland Army Base. He emerged plain Joe Smith and walked out of the base to a crowd of waiting television cameramen and reporters.

Smith was given a 30-day leave in 1965 after basic training at Fort Hood, Calif., to await orders. He got one message, telling him to stand by for special orders. He waited 18 months. Last June, he donned his nearly new uniform and came to this army base and asked for a discharge.

Unemployment Increase Small

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment showed "a relatively small increase to 280,000 at mid-November from 254,000 in October, but remained 51,000 above the level of November, 1966, a government report said today.

The new figure represented 3.8 per cent of the labor force compared with 3.3 per cent in October and 3.1 per cent a year ago.

But the key adjusted figure, with seasonal variations removed, fell to 4.3 per cent from 4.7 in October, when it reached a two-year high. The adjusted rate in November of last year was 3.7 per cent.

Non-farm employment rose by 40,000 between October and November, "an above average increase."

Viet Cong Attacks Refugees In Camp with Flamethrowers

SAIGON (Reuters) — A South Vietnamese military spokesman today claimed Viet Cong guerrillas killed 47 civilians and seven militiamen in an attack Tuesday on a village near the Cambodian border.

There was no official confirmation of initial reports that the guerrillas used flamethrowers on civilians hiding in cave: but an American civilian adviser on the scene said today about 45 villagers were in hospital with burns.

An American embassy spokesman said reports from the village of Dak Song, about 90 miles northwest of Saigon, indicated that 40 per cent of the houses were flattened, probably by mortar fire.

Dak Song, which has a population of 2,000 was a "New Life" hamlet, built by the U.S. for refugees.

First reports by a U.S. embassy official said 200 civilians were killed in the attack, but almost immediately he said the figure appeared to be based on "wild reports."

NDP Member Wants Arms Sales Halted

OTTAWA (CP)—NDP member Grace MacInnis called on the government Tuesday night to halt Canadian arms shipments to United States and thus leave students "free to protest the war in Vietnam.

"I think the government should act now to cut out this bloody trade—and I use the word 'bloody' advisedly—which is blasting the very life out of the people of Vietnam," the member for Vancouver-Kingsway told the Commons.

She read a Canadian Press report quoting Transport Minister Hellyer as telling a student group in Toronto Nov. 3 to "be careful not to become too great moralists" over the Vietnam war.

The report quoted Mr. Hellyer as saying to one student questioner that part of his university education was being paid for by the sale of Canadian goods, including arms, to the U.S.

Mr. Hellyer later replied that the report had taken a single sentence out of a long and reasoned reply and that "there was no real relationship whatever between what appeared in the newspaper and the gist of my reply."

He said he had cautioned the questioner as part of his answer that "it was very difficult to know where to draw the line with respect to these complex matters when all the world is slightly inconsistent and all parties are slightly inconsistent, and people have great difficulty in sorting out in their minds the position of the demarcation line between what is right and what is wrong, and when, between black and white, there are many shades."

Mrs. MacInnis said in her earlier statement that arms sales to the U.S. should be halted to leave students with clean hands and clean minds.

"If sales of arms to the U.S. are indeed helping to pay for their education we should act in such a way as to leave the students free to protest about this thing which concerns each one of us. . . .

Marchers Battle Workers

NEW YORK (AP) — Masses of shouting anti-war demonstrators, frustrated by police in their attempt to disrupt processing at the U.S. military induction centre, roamed through lower Manhattan today. Scattered fights broke out between marchers and pedestrians.

Unable to break through police barriers, the demonstrators left the induction centre at 39 Whitehall Street and joined other bands roving streets in the area from the State Island of one police official, "for a weak spot."

Nearly 20 arrests were reported by 8 a.m.

Educational TV Explained

The Belleville area will probably be serviced by a station in Kingston when educational television facilities are installed in the next few years.

Jean Leveille, a provincial department of education representative, told about 100 parents and teachers at a meeting at Nicholson Catholic College last night, "We will be setting up 33 television stations for ETV and a channel has been reserved for Kingston." The meeting was sponsored by the Catholic Parent-Teachers Association in Belleville.

"The teacher has decreased in size and importance in the educational system," said Mr. Leveille. "With educational television the teacher will act as a guide in the classroom."

He explained that the ETV system, when completed, would cover 95 per cent of the province. "Either UHF or VHF channels will be set up to broadcast education on a 24-hour a day basis."

The program presented by Mr. Leveille showed the provincial network would transmit programs for primary, elementary, secondary and adult classes. "These will be recorded at distribution centres and re-transmitted to the schools where they will again be recorded by 23,000 video tape recorders."

Once on tape at the school the programs can be shown to the students at any time and in any classroom if the facilities are available.

"If cable facilities are available in the town or city they could make channels available to the schools to lower the cost," he said.

Mr. Leveille touched on the federal - provincial problem of control over educational television. "The federal government has control over the airwaves while the provincial authorities have responsibility for education. Obviously the two groups will have to compromise after negotiations."

"The federal government has reserved 33 channels for ETV and these will cover 95 per cent of the students in the province."

Schools will need a distribution system to provide facilities in each separate class. This will mean they must purchase one receiver for each class as well as the video tape recorder.

"At the present time a lot of teachers find getting a class of pupils to a central location to watch ETV is difficult. If they had a receiver in the classroom they would certainly use it to a wider degree," he said.

He claims the department is using about 400 programs. "These have been taped and can be played back in future years, as well as now," he said.

Educational Television

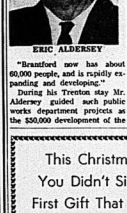
Educational television was the topic under discussion at Nicholson Catholic College last night. Here de partment of education representative Serge Nodeau explains the video tap e recorder to Robert Lucy.

Town Engineer Resigns, Takes Brantford Post



TRENTON — Wanted — a new town engineer.

Eric Alderesy, who acted in that capacity from 1956 to 1959, and from 1961 until now, has tendered his resignation, effective Dec. 31.

Mr. Alderesy will accept the position of deputy city engineer in Brantford, where he worked before first coming to Trenton.

Originally from Liverpool, England, Mr. Alderesy arrived in Canada in 1951 and took a post with the city of Kingston. Other municipal experience included a year-and-a-half stint (1959-61) as Barrie's city engineer.

"I find this an extremely challenging opportunity," he said, announcing his resignation would officially be received by town council Thursday night.

ERIC ALDERSEY

"Brantford now has about 60,000 people, and is rapidly expanding and developing."

During his Trenton stay Mr. Alderesy guided such public works department projects as the $50,000 development of the new Centennial Park site.

He has served as technical adviser to other municipal bodies, such as the planning board and traffic committee.

"A big part of my job has been liaison, with such groups as the Department of Highways, Ontario Hydro, and the local Public Utilities Commission," he says.

He also acts as the town's official spokesman on the "out-side" projects like the new $1.2 million town bridge.

Mr. Alderesy is married, and has three children.

His resignation compounds this week's alterations in town council's public works committee.

Two of three council members of the committee— D. R. Fraser and C. V. Graham — were replaced in Monday's municipal election.

For 1968, only Councillor Paul Hogg remains of those who have handled council's public works programs.

Amplifone Union Certified

The United Steelworkers have been certified as bargaining agent at Amplifone Canada Ltd. Contract negotiations will begin almost immediately, a union official reveals.

Certification was approved yesterday by the Ontario Labor Relations Board for all hourly-rated employees of Amplifone, which employs about 175 workers in Belleville, says Lorne Hogan, Steelworkers' international district representative.

Mr. Hogan said an employees' meeting will be called Monday to select the new local's executive and a negotiating committee for contract talks with the company.

Thieves Enter Stores

Police are searching for two men believed to have been responsible for a break-in early Tuesday morning at McGill's furniture store. Bud Gill's appliance store and Bill Stewart's service station.

According to a police spokesman, it is thought the two thieves gave up from the river. They then climbed the wall by "unknown means" and broke into the appliance store by smashing a window.

The men caused minor damage to the store as they ripped down a wall-board looking for the safe. A hole was attempted in the concrete wall but the thieves gave this up.

Michaud's was then broken into and the office ransacked. Change amounting to $20 was stolen.

At Stewart's service centre tools and a car were stolen. Damage was not extensive.

82 Per Cent Of Objective Now Obtained

The amount isn't going to change after Dec. 15 as the plug on the United Fund campaign is going to be pulled regardless of money that has been collected.

The figure reached to date stands at $85,000 or 82 per cent of the $116,400 goal. "It is nowhere near what we anything," said Bob Porter, executive director of U.C.S., this morning. "Many in his division in the commercial division are in and we're sure that many of them have been completed," he concluded.

The directors expect to come within a hair of their goal by the campaign closing date. The last estimate was 96 per cent but they are hoping to top that figure and perhaps even reach the goal.

Mostly Own Neglect If Name Left Off

It happens every municipal election day.

It's this business of names being left off the voters' list and then having the people turn up at city hall on election day demanding to know why.

They feel it is the duty of the city clerk's department to make certain everyone's name is on the list, but what the complainers fail to realize is that it is mostly their own neglect.

According to City Clerk Adam Stather most of the trouble stems from the fact that householders fail to read or take action on enumerators' cards left at the door.

Tenants who move frequently make up the biggest percentage of people whose names are left off the list. When election time comes around they fail to check the voters' list and then are surprised — and perturbed — when they experience difficulty in getting to vote.

The policy of the assessment department is to leave cards when the assessor calls and finds no one home. Householders are asked to fill the cards out and return them to city hall if there are names to be added to the voters' list.

But the cards in many instances are not filled out and returned. Consequently city hall just has no way of adding the names to the list.

We watched you fade away,
Your suffering was more than we could bear,
You fought so hard to stay,
But God thought best to keep you sleeping,
So peacefully free from pain,
We would not wish you back,
To suffer that again.
—Lovingly remembered by mother and brother Edwin.

SEMARK — In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather Harry who passed away Dec. 6, 1957.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by son Jud, daughter-in-law Doris and grandchildren.

SEMARK — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away December 6, 1966.

Time flies, time goes by,
Just a year ago today, December 6, 1966.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and need devotion,
Of one who thinks of both of you.
—Sadly missed by granddaughter and great granddaughter Debbie.

Lose Vote by Spoiling Ballot

By MAURICE SWITZER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Hundreds of votes are thrown away every year, and Monday's municipal elections served as just another case in point.

By far the best and most popular method of throwing away a vote is by not voting at all — about 39 per cent of Trenton's 7,292 eligible voters did this with great success Monday.

Another effective course of action is not checking to see if one's name is on the current voters' list. Affidavits can be sworn out to guarantee a vote, of course, but it's usually too much bother.

The careless approach is somewhat puzzling.

This involves those who, in one way or another, manage to lose votes by spoiling ballots.

There were 255 rejected ballots in the four election questions here Monday: mayor - 21, council - 159, school board - 32, and Sunday movies - 43.

This represents 2.1 per cent of the ballots that could have been cast by Monday's 3,010 voters here.

Assuming no - one spoiled more than one of his four ballots, one voter in 12 lost his say in one of the election issues.

And he could have done it any number of ways: tearing his ballot, marking it with a colored-ink pen instead of the available pencils, marking his vote over a dividing line between alternatives, or by voting for more than the indicated number of candidates.

The latter probably accounts for the 159 rejected ballots for the election of three councillors from six candidates, says clerk-comptroller and returning officer O. W. Larry.

"We run into spoiled ballots whenever we have a multiple selection ballot — there are always voters who indicate more choices than they are permitted."

And voters shouldn't keep trying to replace the old standby "X" with marks of their own choosing says Mr. Larry.

"Until recently, a ballot wouldn't be rejected, so long as it was marked in 'distinctive' way, with a check mark or whatever".

Now, however, a ballot will probably be rejected unless "X" marks the spot.

This Lake Ontario scene at Huyck's Point near Wellington looks much the same all year round, except for the lack of foliage on the trees, while many of the smaller lakes and streams in the Quinte area are already frozen.

Retiring, Defeated Candidates Congratulate Council Winners

Election congratulations and best wishes for future council success were heard yesterday as city council met for their second last meeting of the current year.

Among the speakers were two retiring aldermen, two councillors who went down to defeat at the polls on Monday and also Mayor Jack Ellis who at the year end will be turning over the office of chief magistrate to Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott.

Mayor Ellis squelched talk of a possible recount in the mayoralty contest which gave Dr. Scott a majority of 143 votes.

"I've checked the vote totals carefully at city hall and will not ask for a recount," Mayor Ellis said.

After four years as chief magistrate of the city, Mayor Ellis said Monday's vote results would result in having more time to spend with his family.

But even though he would be out of municipal life, Mayor Ellis assured he would still be interested in city events and hoped council would be carried on with grace and dignity.

Alderman Donald Jose and Jack Deacon, both of whom are quitting council, the last named to become a member of the public utilities commission, expressed their regret at leaving council.

60 Mile Charity Trip

Crutches May Be Needed

Jim Brennan, who intended to make a Kingston to Trenton charity walk with George Clark, broke two toes this week. He says he will start the 60 mile trip anyway.

TRENTON — Two broken toes haven't taken the feet out from under one of the two men planning a Kingston - Trenton "charity" walk Friday.

James Brennan, 28, of Bayside, and 22-year-old George Clark of Glen Miller, had raised over $300 in pledges for their 60 - mile - plus trek, in aid of underprivileged Trenton and Belleville children.

Then yesterday a heavy metal roller fell on Jim Brennan's foot at his paper mill job in Glen Miller, crushing a pair of toes on his right foot.

Resting on a pair of crutches, Jim says he'll start the walkathon this Friday evening, and will adjourn to an accompanying car when his strength gives out.

The men announced their project last week, indicating proceeds would be divided evenly between Belleville and Trenton Salvation Army services.

They have been soliciting five cents per mile from prospective sponsors, and have earmarked their contributions for Christmas presents for children in needy families.

Their "Santa Walk" should reach its conclusion on Highway 2 at Trenton in about 20 hours, sometime Saturday afternoon, predict the two men.

Water Supply Review Requested

Belleville city council will again ask the Ontario Water Resources Commission to review proposals for a regional water supply system for the Belleville - Trenton area.

Yesterday a letter from the Commission was read indicating that as a majority of the municipalities in the Quinte area had stated they were not interested in the proposal, further development of the project would be suspended.

However, Alderman Douglas Boyle feels that the need for an adequate city water supply should not be lost sight of.

He said that immediate steps should be taken for development of either an alternate water supply or improve the quality of water in the Bay of Quinte.

He said this was not a pressing problem at the moment but could be so in a few years.

The proposal of the OWRC for the regional water supply was to pipe water from Lake Ontario for distribution at Belleville, Trenton, and the townships of Amelisburg, Sidney, Thurlow and Murray.

Only Sidney and Amelisburg indicated interest in the proposals, the other four municipalities turning the matter down.

Belleville turned the proposal down on the basis of cost, but at the same time passed a resolution asking the OWRC to review the project.

Yesterday Alderman Jack Dracon said the council's resolution asking for a review of the water supply proposal should again be referred to the OWRC.

He said it was not correct that Belleville had turned the proposal down flatly. He was disappointed that the OWRC was not ordered to take further action.

Today Amelisburg Reeve George Cunningham said he would like to see the proposal reviewed with the OWRC bearing a greater share of the overall cost and that repayment be extended over a longer period.

"This," he said, "would result in a reduction of the per capita cost of the project."

Council also approved an amendment to by-law 7080 allowing greater freedom of building in the Hillcrest area.

The amendment, recommended last month by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, would, under specified conditions, allow the construction of residential additions.

Under the amendment the minimum lot area would be one acre and the minimum frontage 200 feet.

Planning director P. J. Reavis admitted the minimum lot frontage seemed wide but said this was to discourage any increased population density in the area.

The reason for attempting to keep the population density low was because there are no sewers in the area.

Mayor Ellis said it was the intention to get the amendment proposals before the residents of Hillcrest as quickly as possible before sending the by-law to the OMB for approval.

Britain's Problems

The British stagger from one crisis to another — and one is tempted to think that only in war do they have the spirit to submerge petty considerations and place the national interest first.

With the dockers' strike and devaluation of the pound still fresh in mind, Britons now face the possibility of pre-Christmas traffic chaos as the result of a go-slow move by train drivers.

Here is how one observer summed up this latest tiff on Britain's touchy union scene: The newest symptom of Britain's industrial invulnerability arose from an inter-union dispute, officially branded as the silliest of the decade, in a special television broadcast, Labor Minister Ray Gunter, an old railwayman himself, said it was an argument not about 'who does what' but about 'who sits where.' "

Old-fashioned brake cars are being removed and replaced with a new system. The brakemen on the old cars are being given other duties and will ride in the rear cab of a diesel locomotive while the engineers operate from the front cab. The engineers fear future engineers will be recruited from the ranks of the former brakemen. They are also worried lest their own relatively small union is submerged by the much larger National Union of Railwaymen to which the brakemen and most other rail employees belong.

As if this were not enough, pilots of British Overseas Airways Corporation have decided to strike next weekend to back demands on pay and conditions. A company warning that the pilots may be dismissed could bring out the pilots of other U.K. airlines in sympathy.

Amid all this gloom the British report one bright spot. The threat of random roadside breath tests has reduced weekend deaths. Statistics show a 42 per cent drop in night-time road accidents in London in the first month since a new don't drive-and-drink law went into effect.

Quebec and Cuba

Quebec separatists and Cuban communists may seem strange bedfellows — but that's the way it is if reports to this effect are found to have credence.

For instance, there have been reports of shortwave propaganda broadcasts emanating from Radio Havana and urging Quebec to secede. Social Credit member Robert Thompson reported to the Commons that he had heard such broadcasts.

Now there is word from Creditiste leader Real Caouette that two known Quebec separatists who have been in Cuba are heading south again in February.

Mr. Caouette may be pro-Quebec, but he is not a separatist. His concern is shared by all who appreciate the subtleties of the world-wide communist campaign of subversion aimed at undermining established order.

Noting their impending return to Cuba, the Quebec MP said in a television interview he was wondering if the two separatists were being financed by "some communist organization . . . or even by Russia."

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin told Mr. Caouette he should have a reply within days. We hope Mr. Martin's reply will contain something more than platitudes, something more in the nature of hard information than is customary.

Mr. Martin has the diplomat's genius for saying a great deal and saying nothing all at the same time. However, this is a matter of some importance affecting the security of the country. The public is entitled to know to what extent countries like Cuba are being used to advance the communist cause, and at our expense.

World-wide

"All The World," the Salvation Army's quarterly review, is aptly named. The worldwide ramifications of this great Christian organization are well known, and the review brings this fact clearly into focus.

The current issue is no exception. It contains features about Salvationists working in primitive villages in Pakistan, a graduation day at a Japanese nursing school, the opening of Concord House, an international hostel for students in London, England, and similar homes in New York, France, Sweden and India.

And just how far-flung are the Army's operations may be appreciated by the fact it recently commenced work in Patagonia. This is the legendary sheep farming region of southern-most Argentina, described in the writings of adventurers like A. F. Tschiffely.

Here live the descendants of a group of Welshmen and their families who established a colony in this lonely region many years ago. And it is in the community of Trelew, where the Welsh language and traditions are preserved to this day, that the Salvation Army hostel has been built.

Brussels Meeting Next Week

France May Withdraw from NATO Says Dean Acheson

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The semi-annual ministerial meeting of NATO in Brussels next week is perhaps as important for the future of the alliance as any ever held.

Some earth-shaking prospects face NATO, which for the last year has been drafting ways to expand its political role in Europe.

But Europe itself is preoccupied and rapport with the U.S., busy in Vietnam, has deteriorated.

Others besides France seem increasingly to fear the American economic and technological invasion. Belgium recently barred any further foreign takeovers of its businesses. Prime Minister Wilson, in another carrot for British entry to the European Common Market—which de Gaulle blocks—spoke out against the hazard of the American presence.

On the other hand, the U.S. has gained considerable European support. Britain excluded, in combatting the speculative attack on the dollar which followed British devaluation.

There remain other differences about how strongly East-West accord should be pursued and how much NATO should be bent toward such accord.

The French president, on the basis of last week's utterances, may well join to end loose France altogether.

Dean Acheson, former U.S. secretary of state, said Sunday that de Gaulle is consistent and that he believes France's departure can be expected, with nothing to be done about it. France would give a year's notice this year and depart in 1969, as the NATO house rules permit.

Within NATO, the near-war between Turkey and Greece has been a blow.

And what is going to happen to U.S. policy after Robert McNamara, a NATO champion for nearly seven years, retires as defence secretary?

It was McNamara who replaced the concept of massive nuclear retaliation with that of the flexible response. Prompted by complaints from the other 14 members, McNamara formed a special committee to improve consultation on nuclear policy.

There is the question whether the U.S. troop commitment to Europe will remain unweakened, and whether Britain's economic problems mean an end to the British Army on the Rhine.

Last and by no means least is the shadow of the new missile race with the Soviet Union and the U.S. decision to start a $5,000,000,000 missile defence system—officially as a shield against Chinese missiles of the 1970s. Canada has refused to join in that system.

Military - minded U.S. congressmen already are pushing for support of the missile defences to NATO. Congressmen Paul Findley of Illinois, a Republican, made such a proposal recently to NATO parliamentarians. More is expected to be heard about this idea.

Raw Deal For Florida Alligators

Peterborough Examiner

The threatened extinction of alligators in the southern states of the United States is only the latest in a long succession of man's stupidity when dealing with wildlife. The alligators have fallen prey to the avaricious who realize there is good financial reward for the skins of the reptiles because of their fashion value.

The southern states, Florida in particular, were slow to pass legislation preventing the overhunting of the reptiles. When legislation was passed it was not stringent enough, nor was it fully implemented. The result has been a continuation of the massive poaching.

Many countries in Africa had permitted crocodile hunting on a large scale in the belief that the reptile-infested waters, such as the Zambesi and Limpopo rivers, could withstand wholesale harvesting without ill-effects. One of the results of the indiscriminate slaughter of the crocodiles is that the huge Kariba dam, which straddles the Zambesi River, is now being choked by a weed, Salvinia cucullata, commonly referred to as 'Kariba weed.' This came about through the breakdown in the balance of nature: the crocodile fed off the larger fish which in turn, lived off smaller fish which thrived on water plants. With the removal of the crocodile, the larger fish wiped out the smaller fish with the result that the plant life now chokes vast areas of the dam.

The governments of central Africa have now seen fit to ban all crocodile hunting. However, they have been wise enough to realize that there is a lucrative market for crocodile skins and have encouraged the former crocodile hunters to establish farms where they breed crocodiles for marketing purposes. The state of Florida and other southern states would be wise to follow this example if they wish to ensure that the alligator was hunted into extinction. There would still be a good market for the skins, alligators would still be able to attract the curious tourist, and it would also ensure that the alligator is not removed from its natural habitat in the swamps.

Plastic-dome City Planned In Minnesota

Winnipeg Free Press

The age of Flash Gordon is rapidly approaching. Plans are going ahead at the moment to construct a "dream city" in Minnesota that will feature huge plastic domes to keep out the weather. The city will cost $6,000 million and could be ready for its 250,000 inhabitants by 1976.

With December drawing near, most Manitobans will hear this interesting news with a rather wistful feeling. Who needs a new city? What we need is protection for the one we've got. Two or three large plastic domes over Winnipeg would move much of the pain of the nine-month winter.

Every winter we talk of the need for protection of this kind, but our short summers are so warm and pleasant that we forget all about the need for plastic domes. Perhaps the existence of a dream city in nearby Minnesota will help us keep our dreams alive through the easy days of summer. Then, perhaps, we might stay keen long enough to do something about our weather problem.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 6, 1967 . . .

Testimony at the Nuernberg trials 22 years ago today—in 1945—indicated that Mussolini had tried in 1939 to persuade Hitler to postpone war in Europe, but that Hitler had maintained that the right moment had come.

1917—The Treaty of Constantinople was signed.

1941—Britain declared war on Finland, Hungary and Romania.

Politics and the Schools

Hamilton Spectator

It's an excellent idea, the plan to have political party leaders address Grade 13 students of Hamilton Collegiate Institute. More schools should expose their teenage students to such experiences.

If, as seems likely, the 18-year-old Canadian receives the vote in federal elections (a report from Ottawa indicates that a majority of MPs favor such a move), it is absolutely imperative that he know what's going on in his country. And in order for him to know that, he must be exposed to this country's different political philosophies, from the radical to the reactionary.

HCI students are to hear Robert Nixon, Ontario's Liberal leader, and Donald MacDonald, the NDP chief. The two leaders will not only explain their political philosophies but they'll answer questions. Mr. Nixon is to appear tomorrow, while Mr. MacDonald is coming Thursday.

That isn't enough, of course, but it's a step forward. A Conservative leader should also be prevailed upon to represent his party, and a Social Creditor too. In fact, all political parties, without exception, should be given centre stage at some time or other.

Moreover, Grade 13 students shouldn't be the only youngsters exposed to the various political stripes. Why not Grade 12 and 11 students too? An interest in politics and public affairs should begin at an early age. That's why so many children of politicians and public servants often participate in the political arena when they grow up.

The point is that if the quality of our political servants is to improve, as many young Canadians as possible must develop an interest in politics. There's no better way to help them do that interest than to let them listen to and question leading politicians.

Makarios Stands Firm Over Cyprus Issue

By GERALD MILLER

NICOSIA (AP) — President Makarios appears to have won a striking diplomatic victory in the Cyprus crisis.

Despite pressure from the United States and the threat of Turkish invasion, the Greek Orthodox archbishop who heads the government of Cyprus—and the Greek-Cypriot majority-refused to bow to Turkish demands.

The general feeling is that Makarios called Turkey's bluff and won.

Makarios gave up almost nothing. The yielding came from Turkey and Greece. The archbishop accepted unconditionally only one point in U.S. envoy Cyrus Vance's original package-withdrawal of Greek and Turkish troops illegally on Cyprus. Technically he would have had no say on that anyway since they are the forces of another nation and not subject to his control.

Where the proposals touched on matters pertaining exclusively to his administration of Cyprus, he did not budge. These proposals finally were dropped.

Makarios said no to the Turkish demand that the island republic's minority get the legal right to form their own police forces and governments in Cyprus' districts.

Makarios has doubts about enlarging the mandate of the UN peace force on Cyprus. Secretary-General U Thant's last report appeared said this will be a matter of further negotiation.

Though Makarios scored a diplomatic triumph, political circles in Cyprus don't think Turkey lost particularly.

It's the Time of The Owls

Montreal Star

As we edge toward winter and nights crisp with cold the mysterious owls make their presence known to man. They were here all the time but as the other night noises abated their lonely calls are given emphasis.

Listen carefully in the country or even in the suburban areas and you will be able to identify the species. Each owl has a characteristic in the forlorn accent of the hooting. The barred and great horned owls sound deep and gruff. The schreech owl starts on a high, wailing note and wavers down.

A countryman pushing through late night veil of cold, when even the moon appears as a frozen sphere, may shiver at the sound of an owl hooting. A shadowy glimpse of the solemn fellow with hooked beak and feathered ears does little to melt the stab of fear.

Yet, there need be no fear. The owls are friends of man, waging relentless war on pestering rodents. The hooting is not a warning to humans. It may announce resident and territorial rights to other residents. Again it may be a romantic prelude to mid-winter courtship and domesticity. It is a true and proud sound of the cold that is abdicated by less hardy breeds of birds — the time of the owls.

Computers Aid Medicine

Montreal Gazette

One of the more popular pavilions at Expo was "Man and His Health." One of the exhibits there — computers — was actually at work all through the exhibition months, analyzing blood tests for Osler Chest Hospital. Tests made at the hospital were taken over to the computer, and though it, too, the results were sent back to the hospital by telephone.

"Through use of this system" says Robert Pack, data processing co-ordinator of the hospital, "all of the reports were made available more rapidly than was possible through the old manual procedures."

The computer is now back in the hospital and, within six months, all of the hospital's laboratory tests will be processed this way, saving enormous time and making them more accurate. The results far beyond human ability.

The adaptation of computers to medical uses is already well-advanced, some 500 Quebec medical men were assured at a panel discussion at the Jewish General Hospital. Its first use, the panel was told, will be what is in the analysis of electrocardiograms, the charts which record the beating of the heart. But many other medical uses are foreseen.

The condition of the whole body can eventually be monitored by computer, said Dr. Oscar Caceres of Washington, and the monitoring can be continuous.

This does not mean a computer at every bedside. Telephone connection to a central computer system is all that is needed. Smaller hospitals which cannot afford such a system will be helped by larger ones, for the same speed and efficiency of service.

Dr. Caceres gave a dramatic example of this long-distance ability: scientists at Queen's University, Kingston, are modifying the system so that lab tests done in Northern Canada can be analyzed in Ontario hospitals.

Loners Excel In Research

Arizona Star

Affairs seem sometimes to alternate between emphasis on team play and the loner, as far as research goes. In the 19th century laboratory discoveries were by brilliant and persistent individuals. Then Thomas A. Edison, among others, set up the type of laboratory that used team research. Big corporations followed suit. Now it seems to be in process whereby individuals again will have their turn.

Dr. John S. Dessauer, executive vice-president in charge of research for Xerox, predicts that by the 1970's the major research will be done by loners, or, as he defines them, "gifted individuals and creative nonconformists."

Since he heads a team of some 600 research personnel, his prediction has weight.

Assets, Earnings, Revenues at Record High in Canadian Banks

TORONTO (CP) — Thanks to the stipulations of the new Bank Act, Canadians have a clearer picture of how the country's chartered banks are doing financially.

The picture is bright. Bank annual reports made public during the last few weeks show each of the seven major chartered banks with assets, revenue and earnings at a record high.

The Bank Act, which took effect last May, was aimed at freeing banks to compete among themselves and with other financial institutions for the depositor's dollar. Competition is increasing, most bank presidents say, and it is obviously healthy for the major banks.

The banks, in order of size, are the Royal, Canadian Imperial, Bank of Montreal, Nova Scotia, Toronto-Dominion, La Banque Canadienne Nationale, and the Provincial Bank.

Their reports show they have combined assets of $30,868,000,000 equal to nearly half of Canada's gross national product of $62,400,000,000 this year.

These assets have increased by about $3,237,000,000 from 1966, with the gains ranging from eight to 12 per cent among individual banks.

Total revenues increased about 14 per cent to $1,701,000,000 from $1,491,300,000. Net profits reached $199,782,000 — up five to nearly 13 per cent in individual banks and about $17,000,000 more than the Canadian steel industry earned last year.

Among the financial information the Bank Act has forced the banks to reveal this year for the first time is the amounts, totaling millions of dollars, they have been setting aside as appropriations for losses. Most of these appropriations are tax-free.

The statements show the five largest banks set aside a total of $30,854,000 for losses during 1967, bringing their accumulated loss appropriations to $383,300,000.

The Imperial Bank of Commerce set aside the largest amount—$17,881,000 for a total accumulated appropriation of $110,000,000.

The banks also transfer a part of their taxable, undivided profits to an inner reserve known as a rest account. This forms part of the bank shareholder's equity, comparable to earned surplus in an ordinary corporation, and banks are free to invest it.

In 1967 the five major banks transferred $43,000,000 to their rest accounts, bringing the total rest account to about $1,-005,000,000.

With assets of nearly $7,-780,000,000 the Royal is still Canada's largest bank. The smallest is the Provincial Bank of Canada, with head office in Montreal and branches in Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. Assets total $662,453,000.

The Toronto-Dominion had the healthiest increase in net profit — up 12.8 per cent to $12,385,000. The Royal had the greatest percentage increase in revenues— up 15 per cent to $418,627,000.

And the Bank of Nova Scotia grew the most. Its total assets, $4,138,719,000 at Oct. 31, were 12 per cent greater than a year before.

The following illustrates the growth of the major banks during fiscal 1967:

Royal Bank: Assets $7,-778,628,000, up 10.2 per cent; revenue $418,627,000, up 15 per cent; net profit $30,279,000, up 10.4 per cent.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce: Assets $7,-431,552,000, up 11.8 per cent; revenue $395,300,000, up 11.9 per cent; net profit $36,578,000, up 8.5 per cent.

Bank of Montreal: Assets $6,132,453,000, up 11.7 per cent; revenue $342,000,000, up 14 per cent; net profit $30,720,000, up 4.1 per cent.

Bank of Nova Scotia: Assets $4,138,719,000, up 12 per cent; revenue $247,894,000, up 11.6 per cent; net profit $12,910,000, up 11 per cent.

Toronto-Dominion Bank: Assets $3,458,000,000, up 10.9 per cent; revenue $195,000,000, up 13.4 per cent; net profit $12,-385,000, up 12.8 per cent.

Banque Canadienne Nationale: Assets $1,285,078,000, up 8.2 per cent; revenue $72,-300,000, up 13.8 per cent; net profit $4,536,000, up 8.5 per cent.

Provincial Bank: Assets $662,453,000, up 11.7 per cent; revenue $39,186,000, up 13.6 per cent; net profit $2,288,000, up 5.6 per cent.

Former CNR Official, Cecil Warren, Dies

A veteran railroader and a retired Canadian National Railways superintendent, Cecil Irwin Warren, 186 North Front Street, died in hospital at Kingston yesterday.

Mr. Warren in his 76th year, had been ill some time previous to his death.

Resident in Belleville nearly all his life, he started with the CNR as an apprentice boilermaker in 1911. He transferred to mainline railroading as a brakeman and was appointed a conductor in 1934.

Active as a representative of fellow railroaders, he was a chairman of Belleville local, 105 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, later becoming the BRT's general chairman.

In 1941 he was made assistant superintendent with the CN system at Capreol, transferred to Lindsay and — in 1952 — to Belleville as acting superintendent.

The following year he was moved again, this time to Havelock, and promoted to superintendent. His last move was to London, Ont., and he retired in 1957.

A Mason, he was a member of Eureka Lodge, A.F. and A.M. and a member of Christ Church.

He is immediately survived by his wife, the former Alta Dennis, a son, Ronald, of Sudbury, and four daughters, Mrs. Harold (Bessie) Clarke, and Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, both of Belleville; Mrs. L. (Marion) Witchell, of London, Ont., and Mrs. G. (Shirley) Bankier, of Toronto.

The funeral service takes place tomorrow at 1.30 p.m. at the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Donations to the Canadian Cancer Society have been requested in lieu of flowers.

That's the most an Accutron® timepiece will gain or lose in one month's time. And we'll put it in writing.*

Accutron looks like a watch. But it isn't. It doesn't have a mainspring, a balance wheel or a balance wheel.

Those parts make a watch run fast or slow. Accutron has replaced them with an electronic system of tuning fork. It splits each second into 360 equal parts. And keeps time to within 1 minute in 30 years.

It won't gain or lose an ounce of more than two seconds a day. In fact, we guarantee accuracy to within 60 seconds a month.* Just one darn minute.

*The old-fashioned balance wheel watch is guaranteed to within 45 minutes, not 60 seconds. Accutron is guaranteed to within 60 seconds a month. Isn't one darn minute a lot better?

Successful Living

Mother Seeks Outlet for Child Who Is Especially Gifted

Dear Doris: While I can't go around bragging that we have a genius in the family, my husband and I feel that our son is brighter than average. Joe is five, and is able to read the books that Mamie, age seven, brings home. Joe copes with simple arithmetic and generally seems ahead of his years.

He is not eligible for school until September 1968, and if he continues at the present rate his first year will be boring. We have tried channeling his activities into more constructive play but, while he enjoys physical activity and games, he always returns to reading and writing. He carries the times of songs quite well and we've talked of perhaps getting him involved in some music class – but, while there is a good local band, there seems to be nothing available for a five-year-old.

We don't encourage him in writing and reading, except to correct mistakes, but his appetite to learn is insatiable. – Wanting to Help Him.

Dear Wanting: A bright child can be bored. He is eager to meet new challenges; if his world of ideas is too meager for his brain power, good-sense knows what tangent he will go off on.

Explore that musical talent, by all means. A piano or toy xylophone (or even a mouth organ) could start something absorbing for him. Can he draw? How about teaching him to recite?

You could get help about teaching a gifted child by getting in touch with The Council for Exceptional Children, which works to advance the education of all exceptional children, both gifted and handicapped. This U.S. organization now has over 1500 members in Canada, mostly teachers, psychologists and other workers with children.

Dear Doris: I am the only girl in the family and I have two brothers, one older and one younger. Whenever I want to do something I have to ask Dad, and he always says, "No. You're too young." I can't reason with him.

A girl asked me to stay at her place over the week end. I asked Dad and he said no. I asked him why and he just said that he didn't like that family and that's that. You see the family has a poor reputation; but the girl is real nice.

Well, I can't always say "no" to her when she asks me to stay. This is sickening and I am beginning to hate it at home. – Nearly Eighteen.

Dear Nearly: If there is poor living, at her place, perhaps drunkenness, you could be embarrassed, and she quite dismayed, to have you see it.

Your Dad wants to protect you. I'd say his great mistake is in laying down the law so sternly. You would prize a more friendly, less dictatorial discussion, wouldn't you?

Confidential to Old Dog: It just isn't so, that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. As Dr. Edward Stieglitz, pioneer geriatrician, said: "You can teach him any tricks he really wants to learn." Adult education is available to everybody. Open up a new world for yourself.

Herring – Sautter

A candlelight wedding ceremony was solemnized in Parkdale United Church, Calgary, Alberta, recently when Rorand Sheila, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Otto Sautter of Calgary, became the bride of Mr. Richard Norman Herring, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Herring of Belleville. Rev. Robert Walvoi officiated at the double ring ceremony. Hugh Carter was soloist accompanied by John Murison at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured a sculptured neckline enhanced by geodetic crystals and seed pearls in a floral motif, an fitted lily-point sleeves. The full traditional skirt was swept into a bustle effect with a semi-circle of handmade silk organza rosettes. Her four tiered veil of silk illusion was held in place by a small coronet of seed pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep pink delight roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Ann Kochenkewych of Calgary and junior bridesmaid, Miss Donna Sautter of Carstairs, cousin of the bride, were identical gowns of deep rose velvet. The two little flower girls, Miss Tammy Clark and Miss Linda Shupe, cousins of the bride, wore similar dresses in the same shade of velvet. Each of the attendants carried a nosegay of white carnations, tucked with pink delight roses.

The ring-bearer, cousin of the bridegroom, was little Brian Musselman of Calgary. Groomsman was Glenn Gasthoro of Calgary and the ushers were John Clark and Blaine Clark.

For the reception in Highlander's Hotel the bride's mother chose a gown of English gold lame with pink gold accessories and feathered hat in variegated shades of pink and rose and a champagne-pink orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore an aqua tissue crepe faille gown with cream-colored accessories, a small aqua shed mauve hat with a gardenia corsage.

For the wedding trip to Vancouver and Victoria, the bride wore a two-toned, soft green suit with matching alligator accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Herring will reside in Calgary.

Sweet Goods for Yule Festivities

By MARY MOORE

Off and running on my annual Christmas baking spree I have given you Century Fruit Cake, two nibcreamets, shortbread and suggested you use Mushroom Butter Spread on canapes for yor cocktail parties.

Now I have made cookies. They are like English Shortbread print Cookies which are so well known but the recipe was given to me by the Consumer Division, Home Economists' of our Department of Agriculture. These girls are perfectionists so I made a batch yesterday with a few characteristic changes and shortcuts.

ORANGE BUTTER BALLS
(3 doz.)

½ cup butter
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 egg-yolk and white separated finely grated rind of 1 medium-large orange (1 tablespoon)
3 tablespoon orange juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup stirred but unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
about ¾ cup finely chopped blanched almonds (or other nuts)

In beater bowl cream together well the butter, sugar and egg yolk. Beat in orange rind and juices. Add flour and salt and mix well. Chill until firm. Have leftover egg white in shallow dish. Have finely chopped almonds in another shallow dish. Break off pieces of hard cookie dough and roll between palms into a ball. (If these are 1" in diameter you will finish with about 36 of them.) Drop about 6 in egg white, roll over and then drop in almonds to coat all over. Lift to buttered cookie sheet, placing about 1½" apart (they do not spread). Repeat until all cookie dough is rolled and coated. Top with quartered red and green glace cherries or do as I did; select red and green pieces of peel and or cherries from a box of mixed glace fruits (for fruit cakes) to speed things up. Press colored fruit pieces in slightly.

Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 40 minutes or until baked through. Cut one open to be sure they are cooked at centre. Remove from pans and cool on racks. Store in single layers between sheets of wax paper in tightly covered box in cool place. You could make them three weeks in advance of Christmas if you have a cold place in which to store them.

I gave you the recipe for Scottish Shortbread using light brown sugar last week. Other fruity Christmas cookies will be given next week.

Orange Butter Balls (third row from top of righthand tray) are similar to well-known Thumbprint Cookies. They are delicious and keep well and freeze. Recipes for fruit tea bars (second row from bottom right) will be given by Mary Moore next week.

Couple Marks 25th Anniversary

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Plevak, Park St., marked their 25th wedding anniversary recently with a party at their home.

The house was decorated with bouquets of varigated mums and a three-tiered anniversary cake centred the table. Gifts were presented and a sing-song enjoyed.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Nurna Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Nurna Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bothy fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if undesirable pounds and inches of stream fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Radio Station Plays Santa Claus

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — For many orphaned, handicapped and needy children in British Columbia, Santa Claus is spelled CKNW.

As the 20th year of its Orphans' Fund reaches its climax, the New Westminster radio station is getting ready to wrap up $100,000 worth of Yuletide goodies for some 1,500 youngsters.

The money comes from a fund-raising campaign that operates round the clock 365 days a year and from projects sponsored by the station ranging from bingo games and bowling tournaments to coffee parties and the sale of fresh fish.

All donations go to the children. Administrative costs, including the salary of John G. Pfaff, full-time administrator, are borne by the station.

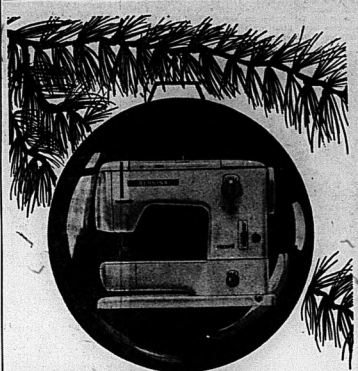
Santa's bag, CKNW style, is filled with toys and gift certificates ranging in value from $10 to $20 a child—double in value for Centennial Year.

The certificates are redeemable in stores that support the fund and may be used only for purchase of children's clothing.

"Response to the fund is tremendous," says station manager William Hughes. "Each year, on a year-round basis, businessmen, listeners and sponsors work to help finance the more than $80,000 required by the fund."

At any hour of the day or night, listeners are apt to hear a mention of the fund. And sponsors receive gentle suggestions about how they might assist.

"There aren't many orphans as such any more," says Mr. Pfaf, "but the name Orphans' Fund has stuck since 1947. There are, however, thousands of welfare and handicapped children who depend on us.



"We had 7,200 children on our lists before the end of November and expect about 7,500 before Dec. 21. This means we'll need $100,000 this year."

The money comes from a variety of sources. One recent letter said: "My sister and I sold flowers outside our house and made $2.85. We want you to give the money to the Orphans."

A fishing firm each year donates a boatload of fish that is peddled over the air by CKNW announcers.

The fund's balance sheet for 1966 showed donations totalling $87,897 from all sources.

Main effort is concentrated on Christmas but each summer some 1,600 youngsters are treated to a picnic. It has grown so large that the traditional beach party of earlier years is no longer feasible. It's now held in Vancouver's exhibition grounds with a program in Empire Stadium and free rides in an adjacent amusement park. Employees at the grounds and at the station donate their time.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Let's dump all those old toys in this box and see if the Salvation Army won't take them away for us. I'll be glad to get rid of all this junk."

Mother: "Let's sort through these toys. Things that are beyond repair we will take to the junk yard. Let's try to mend the rest before we give them to the Salvation Army."

Children should learn that charity is not getting rid of junk, but of giving something you think will be useful to those who receive.

Father Will Present Ring to Sweetheart

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sweetheart is in the service. Four months ago he went to Vietnam. I have been writing him five times a week and he has been writing to me about three times a week.

Yesterday his mother telephoned to say he had bought an engagement ring for me over there and is sending it to them. He has asked that his father slip the ring on my finger and then I am to consider myself engaged.

My question is this: What should I do when his father puts the ring on my finger. Should I kiss him, say thank you, or what? His wife will be present and his younger brother will be on hand to take a picture which will be sent to my fiance. Thank you. — HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

ANN LANDERS

HANDS: I don't think a boy in Vietnam (or any place else) should be very enthusiastic about a picture of his sweetheart kissing his father. Just say "thank you" and send your fiance a picture of you looking adoringly at the ring.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our eight-year-old son must go to the hospital and be operated on for a hernia next month. I feel we should tell him in advance and prepare him for what is coming. My mother says we should keep quiet about it. According to mother kids are never happy about going to the hospital and the less time they have to dread it the better.

"Just tell Johnny you are going for a ride and take him to the hospital," is her advice. Is my mother right or wrong? — DARN!!PIKNOW.

DEAR DARNED: Your mother is wrong. Tricking a child is the worst possible approach. It is far better to tell Johnny in advance (three days is enough) that he is going to the hospital and that the doctor is going to make him 100 per cent well. You might even make it sound like an exciting adventure. The doctor will be glad to brief you on what to say if you need his help.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is one letter I must write or I won't be able to sleep tonight.

I say hooray for Gramps — she 80-year-old widower who is going steady with a nice lady and buys tickets to ball games and concerts and has taken to wearing a tweed jacket and sneakers. His children should be delighted that he is enjoying life.

My mother died four years ago and I'd be thrilled if my father showed an interest in sports or music or anything. All he does is sit around the house and cry — and he's not 81, he's 64. He is depressed, miserable, and he makes everyone around him feel utterly helpless because nothing we do for him makes any difference.

Please, tell those kids who hate to see Gramps spending all that money and "acting like a fool" that they are lucky. — EXPERIENCE TALKING.

DEAR EX: You told 'em and I bless you for it. Thanks for writing.

Whale - riding in the North

Several beluga whales were chased into an inlet for tagging in the Seal River, about 30 miles north of Churchill, Man., an operation that gives Eskimos and Indians a chance to ride them for sport before letting them loose. Cree Indian Francis Spence straddles a whale after jumping on its back cowboy-style. Whales are tagged to determine movement patterns in the area. (CP Photo)

Divorce Bill Is Described as Result Of Social Pressure Built Over Years

OTTAWA (CP)—The first major revision in Canada's divorce laws to come before Parliament in nearly a century was described by Justice Minister Trudeau in the Commons Tuesday as "the product of a social pressure that has been building up over the years."

The bill, the product of two years of study by a joint Senate-Commons committee, embodies the principle of marriage breakdown, but spells it out with specific grounds that can be assessed in regular court procedure.

Mr. Trudeau, introducing second reading stage, said the government must study the effects of the bill on marriage. An important aspect would be the continuing consultation with the provinces.

The bill broadens the grounds for divorce from the sole ground of adultery to include bigamy, physical or mental cruelty, sodomy, bestiality, rape and homosexuality.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) congratulated the minister for "not falling into the trap" of accepting unconditional marriage breakdown as grounds for divorce.

He said the last attempt to reform Canadian divorce law was a Senate bill more than a quarter-century ago which had been allowed to die in the Commons.

The House started debate on the divorce bill Tuesday evening after passing a bill that allows the Canadian National Railways to issue bonds and debentures to raise funds for capital expenditures.

Transport Minister Hellyer agreed that the Commons transport committee should visit the Maritime Provinces to study transportation problems there.

In the divorce debate, Mr. Trudeau cautioned MPs not to try and translate their personal morality into divorce legislation.

He said in some instances churches had been prepared to go further with divorce reform than the bill proposes.

The provincial supreme courts or superior courts were chosen to deal with divorce as they were the ones dealing with basic human rights. Provincial rules of evidence would apply and "differing rules of divorce and child support were taken into consideration.

Mr. Trudeau said there was no attempt to change the Quebec Civil Code position on legal separation and people in that province could still apply to the civil courts for a separation if they prefer.

Both Mr. Trudeau and the prime minister said there would not be a free vote on the bill itself.

"This is a government bill and should be treated as such," Mr. Pearson said in reply to a question earlier in the day.

Alcide Simard (Creditiste—Lac St. Jean) argued that marriage is a divine institution and only the death of a spouse could break it.

Mr. Trudeau also pointed out Canadian Catholic Conference had come out in favor of the current bill to overhaul divorce law, and added that members of the conference are "pretty good Christians."

Debate on the divorce bill will be set aside for a few days as the Commons turns today to the debate on Finance Minister Sharp's budget presented last Thursday.

Oral Anti-TB Drug Ready for Tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new oral anti-tuberculosis drug —hailed as apparently representing a new breakthrough in treating the disease—now is available for prescription by doctors and hospitals throughout the United States.

Spokesmen for Lederle Laboratories of Pearl River, N.Y., which developed the drug after a 10-year search, said Tuesday it was marketed Monday following approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The drug's trade name is Myambutol and is chemically known as ethambutol.

The Lederle spokesmen said that in clinical trials involving more than 2,000 tuberculosis patients in the United States and other countries since 1961, Myambutol proved significantly effective in tuberculosis cases that had become resistant to standard drugs such as isoniazid, streptomycin and para-amino salicylic acid or PAS.

Myambutol is designed, though, for use in combination with some of the older drugs, especially isoniazid.

The World Health Organization estimates there are 15,000,000-20,000,000 cases of infectious tuberculosis in the world, dying annually.

Dr. Robert J. Anderson of New York, medical director of the National Tuberculosis Association, said in a telephone interview:

"Ethambutol appears to represent a new breakthrough in the chemotherapy (chemical treatment) of tuberculosis, particularly in the treatment of patients who have not responded to prior treatment and whose TB germs may be resistant to the major anti-TB drugs."

Anderson said the committee on therapy of the American Thoracic Society—medical section of the tuberculosis society —has invited all clinical investigators involved in the drug's trials to meet with the society in January "to delineate the drug's potential."

Shirley Fareboe, a medical statistician and chief of the tuberculosis research division of the U.S. public health service, told a reporter: "We believe that the new drug is going to make a really significant difference in the treatment of tuberculosis."

She said the present standard drug treatment "causes a lot of gastro-intestinal stress and a lot of patients don't take it . . . They toss it out the window or down he drain."

Lederle and independent researchers said the new drug has no major undesirable side effects.

Lemay and Court Crawl Into Burglars' Tunnel

MONTREAL (CP) — George Lemay Tuesday crawled into a tunnel which led to the vault of a Bank of Nova Scotia branch in downtown Montreal.

Lemay, 42, is on trial for burglary and conspiracy in the theft of $633,605 from the bank branch in 1961.

Preceding him in the journey through the dark tunnel Tuesday were his trial judge, defence lawyer and two Crown prosecutors.

Judge Jacques Trahan had announced before Tuesday's session that the trial would continue at the scene of the crime, for part of the day at least.

At one point in the descent into the tunnel in the now-abandoned bank building, Lemay, unhandcuffed and wearing overalls, gave Judge Trahan a helping hand in removing a cement trap door.

The judge and Crown prosecutor Stephen Goddhu also wore khaki-colored coveralls while defence lawyer Leo-Rene Marando was garbed in a black sports-wear outfit.

A principal Crown witness, Jacques Lajoie, who has been under cross-examination for more than two weeks, was nearby on a stairway.

The group later adjourned to a first-floor room in another building across the street from the bank branch. This was the room which Lajoie said he rented under an assumed name in June, 1961, at Lemay's urging.

Lajoie has already been convicted for his part in the burglary. He pleaded guilty and served a one-day sentence after spending two years in jail.

Lajoie testified earlier during Lemay's trial that Lemay set up a "command post" in the building across the street from the bank and remained in communications with alleged accomplices until it was reported that a hole had been pierced in the floor of the bank vault.

Four men have so far been convicted for the crime: Lajoie, Roland Primeau who got 13 years; Andre Lemieux who got seven years; and his brother Yvon Lemieux who got four years.

Lemay was captured in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in 1966 after his picture was flashed on television screens around the world as one of "the world's most wanted men."

He escaped from a Miami jail months later but was recaptured in August, 1966, in Las Vegas, Nev.

Tuesday's visit to the scene of the crime was unannounced, although Judge Trahan indicated earlier in the trial that a first-hand examination of the bank robbery scene might be necessary.

Hup, Ho, Ho, Ho

Santa Claus drafted? Not exactly. You might say Santa is giving an army reserve unit a "psychological" lift. Santa (Donald C. Iredell) was on a float in a Junior Chamber of Commerce parade in suburban Parma, Ohio, Sunday when he stepped in for a roll call of the 350th Psychological Operations Co., where Cleveland Plain Dealer photographer Michael Evans caught him impersonating a soldier. The troops marched in the parade. (AP Photo)

Fluorosis From Food Unlikely

TORONTO (CP) — Fluorosis in humans is unlikely to occur from eating vegetables subject to fluoride pollution, but drinking highly contaminated water could bring on the ailment, a doctor told the Ontario pollution control conference Tuesday.

Dr. C. Stafford Brandt of the National Centre for Air Pollution Control in Cincinnati said in an interview later a person would have to eat at least four crates of contaminated lettuce daily to begin to develop fluorosis.

"Human fluorosis is not known to have occurred nor is it likely to occur from ingesting foods that have been subject to fluoride," he told the conference.

"But if fluoride is getting into someone's water supply, that's a different matter."

Told the Ontario Water Resources Commission had recorded 37 parts per million of fluoride in a cistern in the Dunnville area, Dr. Brandt replied: "That's pushing it."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are planning on taking the family to the Laurentians for skiing over the Christmas holidays. Could you tell us how best to get there and some of the main areas where we might get accommodation.

ANSWER: The Laurentian Mountains region covers more than nine-tenths of the Province of Quebec. Unlimited opportunities for winter sports are offered in 17 ski centres in the area, many providing skitows, schools and other winter sport facilities such as skating and sleigh rides. Among the numerous resort communities in the area are Mount Gabriel, Adele Ste. Mont Tremblay, Ste. Agathe des Monts, Ste. Jovite, Ste. Marguerite Station and Val David. We have a list of CAA recommended motels if you wish to call the office, or you might write to Dept. of Tourism, Province of Quebec, 12 Rue Sainte-Anne, Quebec. The best way to reach these areas is Hwy. 401 and 40 to the Laurentian Autoroute, maximum toll $1.

QUESTION: We are taking a trailer to Florida this winter and wondered if you could tell us anything about Ocala National Forest and if it would be possible to stay there with a trailer.

ANSWER: Ocal a National Forest covers 360,000 acres, and is the largest known existing stand of sand pine, cypress and hardwoods. The entire area is a subtropical wilderness, with numerous species of vegetation and hundreds of clear lakes and streams. Swimming, boating, fishing and camping are offered at many area lakes. Clearwater, Dorr, Fore and Mill Dam Lakes are developed sites which are U.S. free areas. Neighboring towns include DeLand, Eustis, Leesburg, Ocala, Palatka and Silver Springs.

Alexander Springs recreation area, 7 miles south of Astor Park, is beside Alexander Springs which flows 78 million gallons a day. Swimming, boating and trailer camping are available at nominal fees.

Juniper Springs Recreation Area centres about beautiful Juniper Springs, which flows 8½ million gallons of crystal clear water a day. A picturesque, old-fashioned water wheel and mill house are of interest. The water which has a year-round temperature of 72 degrees, has been impounded by a dam to form a swimming pool. An outdoor aquarium and a natural botanical garden are interesting. Boating, fishing and hiking are popular. There are nominal fees for use of camps and trailer facilities.

Ocala Wildlife management area covers 203,000 acres and is the home of one of the largest deer herds. Hunting is good in season for deer, squirrel, quail and migratory waterfowl. Special permits are required.

Did you know that if one vehicle licence plate is knocked off, rusted through or lost, you should remove the second plate and take it to the Licence Bureau where a second set may be purchased for $1. If two plates are lost, the police must be notified and a form completed then new plates will be issued.

The important point here is that Every Motor vehicle except a motorcycle, while being driven on a highway, shall have attached to and exposed on the front and back thereof, in a conspicuous position, a number plate furnished by the Department showing in plain figures the number of the permit issued for the current (section 8 of the Traffic Act.) year or any part thereof."

Depoe Not Organizer Says Cadi

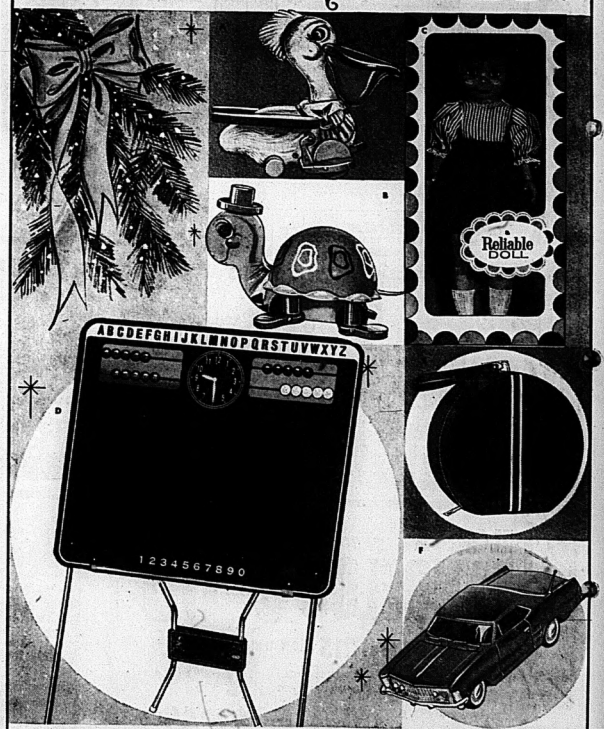
TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate Hugh Foster said Tuesday a lot of persons would like to blame David Depoe, 23, of the Company of Young Canadians, for an incident in Yorkville's hippie district that led to mass arrests of sit-in demonstrators.



"But I don't go along with them," the magistrate said. "I have no thought in mind that he was the organizer of this."

He made the remark in dismissing charges against four of 19 persons because of "a problem of identification."

Judgment is to be handed down today against the other 15. Depoe included, the only cases left of the 42 persons originally charged.

Depoe, considered a spokesman for Yorkville hippies, testified the demonstration took him by surprise and that his main concern was to keep it orderly and quiet. He said he did not have the power to tell the hippies to move and was arrested as he sat on the road with demonstrators.

Presbyterians in Favor Of Broad Abortion Law

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the Presbyterian Church of Canada said Tuesday they favor therapeutic abortion in certain cases but they also advocated government aid to social and sex counselling services.

A church delegation made its main point to the Commons health committee, which is studying three private bills proposing broader abortion law, by submitting copies of a resolution approved last June at the church's 82nd general assembly. The resolution said:

"Be it resolved that the general assembly ask Parliament to amend the law with regard to abortion to make therapeutic abortion lawful when the continuance of a pregnancy endangers the mother's life or is likely seriously to impair her physical or mental health and when authorized by a panel of qualified medical authorities."

Grace MacInnis (NDP — Vancouver Kingsway) asked how far the law should go. Should it be permissive or restrictive?

Rev. Wayne Smith, assistant secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social action, said private morality should be left to individuals in matters such as birth control.

Changes to Be 'Reasonable'

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau said Tuesday the government's planned changes in abortion laws will win the approval of all reasonable men.

He told Martial Asselin (PC — Charlevoix) in the Commons the changes will not be extreme. They would bring abortion law into line with society as it is.

Reg. abortion was a different matter. "Life is involved" and the church felt "the state has the responsibility of drawing the lines."

Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Huron) asked Mr. Smith his opinion on why there are illegal abortions.

Mr. Smith said he believed many women resorted to them to avoid discovery of their pregnancies.

Mr. Asselin suggested the changes be brought in as a separate bill rather than as part of the omnibus bill to amend the Criminal Code. Mr. Trudeau said he doubted that would be the best way to change the abortion law.

Johnson Refuses Election Chance

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson ruled out an early provincial election despite arguments by some Union Nationale adherents that the party is enjoying tactical advantages over both separatists and Opposition Liberals which may not last.

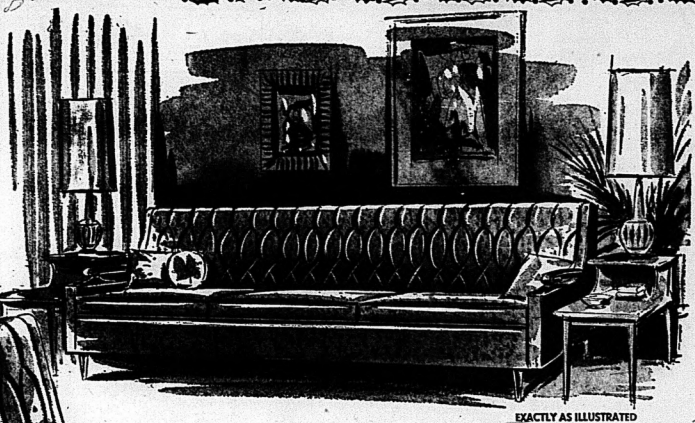
Mr. Johnson made the statement Tuesday in denial of published reports that his government would call an election next month following a federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

Reasons given in the reports included apparent fear that the "sovereign state" movement of former Liberal Rene Levesque might become too popular if left untested by an election.

Chief whip Rene B. Lavoie dismissed the notion also, saying Mr. Levesque is "helping us." He said "people in rural areas don't go for his ideas. They want to live in peace and harmony."

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage, meanwhile, said that government is afraid to call election because "there is a surprise awaiting Mr. Johnson and the surprise isn't going to be a gift." By "surprise," he indicated that he meant electoral defeat.

UN party sources, however, believe that Mr. Levesque's movement at this stage has made its biggest gains at the expense of the Liberal party and that an election would be timely.



There is a feeling that the Levesque organization might also eventually make inroads into UN support, especially when coupled with Mr. Johnson's newly-revealed federalist sympathies which could cause loss of support among Quebec nationalist groups.

Bilingualism and Biculturalism Roundup

Show of Good Faith But Too Late Says Separatist Gregoire

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to the first volume of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was sketchy Tuesday as most leaders waited to read the 1,000-page report before commenting.

But separatist MP Gilles Gregoire said the report doesn't matter because Quebec will be independent by the time the federal government gets around to dealing with the commission's recommendations.

"It's too late," said the Lapointe, Que., MP. "This is a show of good faith, that's all, but in practice. . . ."

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia welcomed appearance of the first volume, but said he wants to study the report before commenting further.

Premier R. C. Manning of Alberta said before the report was tabled in the Commons he would not comment until he has had a chance to study the report.

Jacques Boucher, president of the Edmonton branch of the French-Canadian Association, said the report "sounds interesting," and Jean-Maurice Olivier, editor of Le Franco-Albertain, a French-language weekly, said: "It seems to be good."

Although bilingualism and biculturalism has not been a burning issue in Alberta, "there is lots of room for improvement, and for more use of the French language," said Mr. Boucher.

A spokesman for Premier John Roberts of Ontario said the premier will not comment on the report until he and government officials can study it thoroughly.

Ontario Education Minister William Davis said Ontario's education policies already appear in line with recommendations of the report.

The report recommends education on French and English be made available where practical.

French can be used in Ontario elementary schools where the size of the French-speaking population warrants it.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, and Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Provincial New Democratic Party, welcomed recommendations for establishment of bilingual districts and official bilingual legislatures and courts.

Mr. Nixon said he had no objection to making French an official language in the legislature, as French was often used despite there being no official provision for it.

Mr. MacDonald said recent developments had shown most Canadians the problems of bicultural ism is serious.

Barry Lowes, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, said the idea of guaranteed French and English educational facilities "for Francophones, who without assurance that they can preserve their children's language, have rightly be reluctant to leave Quebec."

Another effect would be to stimulate and encourage English-speaking citizens interested in the French language and culture. It says this interest became evident during its hearings. Also evident was the fact that it was often frustrated by lack of facilities.

It notes as well that students in minority-language schools, both in Quebec and elsewhere, "need to acquire an adequate command of the language of the majority."

Another basic point of separation was religion—Protestant in the English school, Roman Catholic in the French.

The BNA Act in 1867 assigned control of education to the provinces but protected religious rights in education.

However, this didn't guarantee English and French as languages of instruction as things turned out. Now, a century later, there appeared to be an increasing tendency across Canada for French-speaking communities to separate the question of language from religious objectives.

The commission said it feels it is essential to promote establishment of French-language schools "independently of religious considerations."

Report Realistic: Le Devoir

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, says the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism appears to be "realistic, supple and applicable."

"For the first time in a century of their common history, Canadians of both languages are offered by the Laurendeau-Dunton commission a program of equality based on precise definitions," he wrote in a front page editorial in today's edition of Le Devoir.

"The status of equality proposed . . . has existed in Quebec for a long time. The report is therefore aimed at the federal government, at the governments of other provinces and at English-speaking Canadians in general. . . ."

Maxwell Cohen, dean of the law faculty at McGill University, said in an interview the report will require a "fundamental change in the English-speaking population as a whole."

Michel Brunet, director of the history department at the University of Montreal, said the report was 40 years too late.

"If this program had been drawn up and implemented around 1920, I'm convinced it would have accomplished something."

Richard Lord, vice-president of the English-language section of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said French-Canadians should be able to feel at home all over Canada, but this cannot be legislated.

"It's a matter of education. Attitudes in Canada have to change. This process has already started and perhaps the report will help."

Canada Still in Crisis

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism said in a preliminary report nearly three years ago that Canada was passing through the greatest crisis in its history.

"This is still the situation," the commission says in a preface to its first main report issued Tuesday night, which deals with the official languages.

The commission says that it intends to examine aspects of the crisis and propose remedies —some of which are set forth in the first report.

Later reports will deal with the working world of Canada, public and private; education; the federal capital; Parliament, the cabinet and the Supreme Court of Canada; voluntary associations; minority ethnic groups; arts and letters; and the mass media.

The general conclusions of the commission will fill a fin'. volume.

The commission began its work Nov. 7, 1963, with a preliminary public hearing in Ottawa and went on to hear 400 briefs at regional meetings across Canada.

Its preliminary report was dated Feb. 1, 1965, and made public Feb. 25 that year. Public and private hearings ended in 1965 and research studies began to reach the commission.

Rights to Education Freedom Should Be Recognized

OTTAWA (CP)—The right of parents to have their children educated in either English or French should be guaranteed in all educational systems, written into provincial law, and incorporated in the constitution, says the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

"Education is the front line of defence for the language and hence for the cultural existence of a people," it says in its report issued Tuesday night.

Section 93 has protected the educational rights of religious minorities but has failed to protect language rights, the report says.

It is left to the federal and provincial governments to decide on the wording.

But the commission recommends the following amendment, in the form of an additional paragraph, as a guide:

"Every province shall establish and maintain elementary and secondary schools in which English is the sole or main language of instruction, and elementary and secondary schools in which French is the sole or main language of instruction, in bilingual districts and other appropriate areas under conditions to be determined by provincial law; but nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any right of use which English and French have equal importance as languages of instruction in schools in which instruction may be given in some other language."

Section 93 has protected the educational rights of religious minorities but has failed to protect language rights, the report says.

One result has been "grave inequalities" in opportunities for French-speaking minorities to have an education in their mother tongue.

Linguistic equality was enshrined in Quebec's education system but not firmly guaranteed for the country as a whole.

We recommend that the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in the official language of their choice be recognized in the constitution, the degree of implementation to depend on the concentration of the minority population."

The commission says this is basic to the more specific recommendations it will make in a later report devoted to education.

However, it does sketch now a proposed system.

It suggests that Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, as "officially bilingual provinces," should agree jointly on norms for minority education.

"In Ontario and New Brunswick, it is a matter of officially recognizing what now is unofficial practice, of adopting standard procedures for establishing these schools throughout the province."

The commission "foresees a role" for Ottawa in helping meet provincial costs for such equivalent systems to provide teachers, texts, supervision, curriculums and so on.

This could be "a new dimension in the aim of the federal government as the only political institution shared by all Canadians."

For scattered groups outside bilingual districts, the report suggests "a formal procedure by which a minority can assert its right to a school and this would get around rejection by school boards of such applications.

It was essential for cities to provide French-language educational facilities "for Francophones, who without assurance that they can preserve their children's language, have rightly be reluctant to leave Quebec."

Another effect would be to stimulate and encourage English-speaking citizens interested in the French language and culture. It says this interest became evident during its hearings. Also evident was the fact that it was often frustrated by lack of facilities.

It notes as well that students in minority-language schools, both in Quebec and elsewhere, "need to acquire an adequate command of the language of the majority."

Another basic point of separation was religion—Protestant in the English school, Roman Catholic in the French.

The BNA Act in 1867 assigned control of education to the provinces but protected religious rights in education.

However, this didn't guarantee English and French as languages of instruction as things turned out. Now, a century later, there appeared to be an increasing tendency across Canada for French-speaking communities to separate the question of language from religious objectives.

The commission said it feels it is essential to promote establishment of French-language schools "independently of religious considerations."

Ontario Already in Line Says William Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Tuesday Ontario's education policies already appear in line with recommendations of the Royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The report, made public Tuesday by Prime Minister Pearson, recommended that education in both French and English languages be made available where practical.

French already can be used in Ontario elementary schools where the size of the French-speaking population warrants it. Premier John Roberts has announced the government is moving towards establishment of French-language secondary education.

However, a spokesman for the premier said Mr. Roberts would not comment on the report until he and government officials could study it thoroughly.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. MacDonald welcomed recommendations for establishment of bilingual districts in the province, an official-ly bilingual legislature and courts.

Both said the changes would only make legal what already is being done.

Mr. Nixon said he had no objection to making French an official language in the legislature. French already was often used despite no official provision for it.

Bilingual districts would be a practical way of providing bilingual facilities where they were needed. The Ontario Municipal Act would be amended to allow certain municipalities to keep records in French, he said.

Mr. MacDonald said recent developments had shown most Canadians the problem of bilingualism is serious.

"They suddenly realized this is for keeps.'

Seeks Court Opinion—

TRENTON — An Ontario Supreme Court interpretation is being sought for three $60,000 endowments willed to minor sports by a former Trenton newspaper publisher.

Nowlan Sisson, who shared his early career in journalism with Roy Thomson, now Lord Thomson of Fleet, left Trenton, Timmins and Little Current 20-year annuities to support minor sports.

His will stipulated that the funds be matched by local community organizations.

The money would be donated in 20 $3,000-annual grants.

Keith Day, of the Victoria and Grey Trust Company, Belleville Rotary and Kiwanis clubs the Sisson estate, says the Trenton Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion and the Trenton Rotary and Kiwanis clubs have indicated interest in the will's proposals.

Herein lies the difficulty, says Mr. Day.

"Mr. Sisson's will does not clarify clearly here more than one group, or a combination of groups, can qualify to participate."

To clarify the situation an opinion has been sought from the Ontario Supreme Court. A decision is expected early next year.

After Speech Seminar

Dr. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, spoke at Bridge Street United Church last evening and discussed the refugee situation in the Middle East. Here, Dr. Forrest (centre) discusses Israel's part in the situation with a colleague and a member of the audience.

Belleville Speech

Forrest: Israel Failed to Keep Promise on East Bank Refugees

Speaking at Bridge St. United Church last night, Dr. A. C. Forrest, editor of the United Church Observer, accused Israel of failing "to keep her promise of July 2nd to permit East Bank refugees to return to their empty camps and homes in occupied territory on the west bank."

Dr. Forrest has visited the middle east four times during the past 19 years, twice in 1967. His last trip was a special assignment to visit the new refugee camps following the June war and report to the major Protestant communions in the U.S. and Canada contributing to the World Council of Churches relief funds.

His controversial condemnation of Israel's treatment of refugees has resulted in extreme verbal retaliation by his prominent Jewish leaders throughout Canada.

"A dupe of communist and Arab propaganda," "an irresponsible user of anti-Semetic propaganda" and "anti-Semetic" are a few of the labels.

After describing the deplorable conditions of the numerous refugee camps throughout the middle east he blasted the situation on Israel.

"Only 14,000 of the 170,000 refugees who applied to go back-have been allowed to return — the rest are huddled in emergency camps, hovels, caves and in the crowded homes of relatives," he said.

Pointing out there was no reason why the refugees should not be allowed to return he mentioned that "there are tens of thousands of empty homes especially in and about Jericho."

Many more have been left homeless since the war in June. "In Syria another 117 000 have been displaced from the Golan Heights and none have been permitted to return. Over 25,000 of them are doomed to spend the winter in tents," he continued.

"After the Sept. 29 shelling of Ismalia and other Suez communities an additional 400,000 have been made homeless. Only 40,000 of the original 470,000 + Suez inhabitants are now there and the United Arab Republic government has been desperately searching both paper and lower Egypt for homes."

"There appears to be no intention on the part of Israel to permit any more refugees to return — actually, far more have been assisted by the occupying forces to leave the country than were permitted back last August."

Dr. Forrest then changed his geographical position and criticized the hostility of Canadian Zionists at home.

"There is an unhealthy situation when — leaders of the Jewish community have certainly failed their own people by suppressing or over-reacting to criticism. This is aggravated by sentimental Christians who are sensitive to past failures of Christians, especially in Nazi Germany, that they are now apt to become anti - Arab in order to emphasize their friendship for Jews."

Dr. Forrest has personally been subjected to a "campaign of abuse." Besides being labelled as anti-semite an attempt has been made to have him barred from the chairmanship of a Toronto university teacher by a rabbi.

In Israel and the U.S. it is possible for Christians to debate these issues "without suffering irresponsible attacks" The situation is different in Canada as "opposition by no rabbi can really stand up and explain the other side of the middle east coin to the Jewish people," said the theologian.

Although the doctor was critical of Israel he does not believe that the vast majority of Jewish people are behind Israeli hawks. "They (the Jewish people) are humane and remember the sufferings of their own refugee people," he stated and if "some Jewish rabbis were to visit the camps I have seen the sermons I preached in Canadian synagogues would change."

Backing up his opinion he referred to the Jewish backlash "against the sort of treatment — (himself) have received." Rabbi Wolfe Kelman, vice-president of the Rabbinical Assembly in New York, called the treatment "carreis-tatic nonsense" and "malicious distortion."

Another distinguished rabbi, last week in St. Louis that "this myth that the Christians did not care is widespread and has to be combated."

If peace is to be achieved in the middle east Dr. Forrest feels that Israel should accept the opinions of the neutrals, the United Nations and Red Cross and return the displaced persons of Palestine, Syria and Egypt to their homes.

"Most Christians did sympathize with Israel last June . . . however I know that increasing numbers of responsible Christians agree that what Israel will lose the sympathy of the Christian community if she refuses to show compassion."

SLICE SPORTS

By Geo. H. Carver

Sports Editor

To the victors go the spoils, the laden, the big bonuses paid to their coach a new contract, with laudation to the skies chucked in for good measure.

Somebody once said to Casey Stengel "A loser can be as gallant in defeat as the victor is in winning."

"Yeah," snorted the old warhorse, "but whoknell wants to be a loser?"

Casey should know. During his wondrous career, the baseball wizard-turned-manager experienced the thrill of victory and the bitter pangs of defeat. He has seen championships turn into championships overnight.

The sport in the minor brackets. Have you ever seen a championship novice or peewee game, when one team lost out by a run or a goal?

You would note the wild exuberance of the young winners, their eyes bright with the thrill of victory. Shouting, cheering they surround their coach.

But on the opposite bench there's a gaggle of youngsters sitting quietly with their heads bowed. If you look closely you will see the tears of disappointment glistening in their eyes.

Their coach, swallowing hard, walks among them. A hand falls on a shoulder here and there. He doesn't say anything during the first moments of mental upset. He, too feels the pangs of the moment.

There was the aftermath of the Grey Cup classic in Ottawa.

The unexpected display of offensive and defensive power of the Hamilton Tiger Cats against the wounded Saskatchewan Rough Riders that sparked the decisive defeat of the western champions, had the nation's football pundits looking for a special hero with the possibility of a goat being in the offing.

They lost no time in picking the top Xens of the Tiger Cats sports Mount Olympus. He was Joe Zagar the quarterback who knows the fickleness of the hoi polloi of the football earthlings. And rightly so.

And basking in the reflection of Zagar's saddened acquired glory was the Cats' coach Ralph Sazio. Perhaps the situation should have been reversed.

Zagar was an unknown quantity prior to the game. On his outcome rested perhaps his future, the hale of the hero or the horns of the goat.

But Sazio, and this thunderer out in full glory after the victory, had been working beyond the pale of the publicity spotlight. There was little glare on him during the hectic days of the schedule or the frantic ness of the conference playoffs.

But it burst into full full glory, the aftermath of the crushing defeat dealt to the fornica from the west. And rightly so. It is now being shouted he should have been named the coach of the year. What price glory?

But what of the loser?

Up Ottawa way they're still talking of the future of Frank Clair the Rough Riders coach who has worn the hale of the hero for some time.

A year ago he was given a contract for five years. He had welded his Rough Riders into what people thought was a near perfect football machine.

"The Rough Riders are the team to beat" the pundits yelped from coast to coast. They were wrong. The Riders struggled to reach the eastern finals then were or less wilted before the Tiger Cats two-way ferocity.

The mills of the gods turned into reverse. The coach, they ground out, was the goat. And a lot of people took up the cry. A friendless report, since denied, stated the Rough Rider brass would demand the Clair scalp.

Of late all as been quiet on this particular front. "Fallani be defeat?"

As Casey remarked "Whoinell wants to be a loser?"

Aces Snatch 3-2 Win In Overtime!

KINGSTON (Special) — Peace, at last it wonderful It brings out the best in man, especially hockey players.

Kingston Aces consolidated their hold on the senior "A" league top rung here last night snatching a 3-2 overtime win from the Belleville Mo-Hawks.

DAVY JONES

Veteran fans raised eyebrown in amazement. For there was nothing of a Vietnam nature in the hard-fought struggle between archrivals of long standing.

In fact, only eight penalties were handed out in the 67-minute battle, four of them majors and minors to Marchen of the Mo-Hawks and Graham of the Aces for indulging in a spot of punchtossing.

WAYNE BROWN

It was one of the best, hard-fought, cleanest games in the history of the inter-city rivals.

Shot-wise the Aces held an edge on the Mo-Hawks firing 41 drives at Joe Junkin with Neil Perry stopping 29 of 31 that came his way.

The Aces opened a two-goal lead in the one-penalty first period outshooting the Mo-Hawks 18-9.

The Belleville crew went into offensive action in the second period rallying strongly to cut the margin to 2-1. By the end of the third frame the score was tied.

Ron Earl was the hero of the Aces victory, firing home the winner at 7:34 of the overtime period from a scramble in front of the Mo-Hawk net.

Charlie Convery paced the Aces attack with two goals. Rod Graham and Earl had two assists with Bueges getting one.

Wiener Brown and Davy Jones were the Mo-Hawk marksmen, Hec LaJeade and Bob Taylor being credited with assists.

The Aces were awarded a penalty shot in the second period when Graham was pulled down from behind by Marchen when in the clear.

Junkin never moved when Graham raced in. His shot ripped off the outside of a goalpost with no damage done.

Convery opened the scoring midway through the first period blasting the puck past Junkin on a play with Graham and Earl.

Five minutes later the same player gave the Aces a two-goal edge scoring on a passing play with Earl and Bueges.

Wiener Brown and Hec Lalande combined to break the scoring ice for the Mo-Hawks at 11 minutes of the second frame. They surged back to the attack and some of the best hockey of the night was played in this period.

Davy Jones shot the Mo-Hawks into the 3-2 tie after 43 seconds of the third period combining with Bob Taylor to score.

Came the Marchen - Graham hassle and both teams went all-out for the tie breaker with a man short.

McConnell almost won it for Belleville in the early minutes of overtime, his stinter blasting past Perry to hit a post.

Then came the scramble in front of the Mo-Hawk net and Earl poked in the winner.

The teams clash again here on Friday night.

Orillia Stops Kings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last-place Orillia have become the giant killers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series—and it all began with a snowstorm.

Orillia won its second big game in a row Tuesday night, knocking off third-place Collingwood Kings 3-1 on the two-goal performance of Ken Knapton. Neil Furth put Orillia's other goal, and Dave McComb notched Kings' only marker.

The snowstorm that blanketed Orillia last Wednesday night forced postponement of a game against second-place Galt Hornets.

Rescheduled Sunday night, the game was won 5-3 by Orillia, and the league's cellar dwellers have looked strong ever since.

Beliveau To Lead Habs' Wounded Back To The Wars Tonight

By GRAHAM COX
Canadian Press Sports Writer

Fifteen thousand cheering fans in the Montreal Forum Thursday night will hail the return of le Gros Bill.

Partisan Montreal fans have had little to cheer about since Canadiens captain Jean Beliveau was sidelined with a knee injury at Philadelphia Nov. 4.

During his 13-game absence, Montrealers have seen their National Hockey League club plunge from contenders to the bottom of the league's Eastern Division standings.

An inspirational leader both on and off the ice since joining the Canadiens 14 seasons ago, Montreal team officials are hopeful the tall, ranger centre's dressing will invoke some scoring punch in Canadiens' attack.

They are dubious, however, that the 36-year-old has recovered sufficiently to contribute much in the scoring despite getting off to one of his best starts in several NHL seasons.

Beliveau, who had seven goals and five assists when he was injured, still is Canadiens third-best scorer, behind Yvan Cournoyer and Bobby Rousseau.

Montreal also will have John Ferguson back after a month off with a broken hand while Gump Worsley will be available for goaltending duty after a concussion Nov. 25.

Since Beliveau's injury the club has won only three games, tied three and lost seven.

Montreal and the division-leading Boston Bruins get the night off tonight, but Toronto Maple Leafs will be trying to overtake the Bruins when they meet the North Stars in Minnesota while Detroit Red Wings battle to stay ahead of New York Rangers in a battle for third place at New York.

Pittsburgh Penguins are in Chicago against the Black Hawks and Philadelphia Flyers will be out to pad their Western Division lead by beating the Seals at Oakland. St. Louis Blues tangled with the second-place Los Angeles Kings in Los Angeles.

The Flyers hold a one-point edge on the Kings.

To make room for their returning players, the Canadiens shipped goalie Ernie Wakely, centre Gary Monahan and right winger Bryan Watson to Houston Apollos of the Central Pro League.

When Beliveau steps on the ice, it will be for the 875th time in regular-season play as a Canadien since turning professional in 1953, from Quebec Aces senior team.

The 6-3, 205-pounder played two games in 1950-51 and three in 1952-53 before going 44 games the next year as an injury-hampered full-time pro. His NHL record includes 406 goals and 550 assists for 956 points.

His point production is second only to Gordie Howe of Detroit who has 1,501 in regular-season play.

Aces Zero Bisons, Kings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Aces appear to be able to do everything but get out of the Western Division cellar of the American Hockey League.

Only one club has scored more than double digits so far this season—Springfield Kings, leaders of the Eastern Division.

The Kings hit their 50-goal total Tuesday with a 4-3 overtime victory against Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western League after the Aces had run up one of the standard lopsided scores, 5-0 over Buffalo Bisons.

In the third game Tuesday, Baltimore Clippers rallied for their sixth straight home victory, 5-3 over Providence Reds.

In 21 games this year, the Aces have won only nine and tied two—but they've had some scoring outbursts, including 8-3 and 10-7 victories against Rochester Americans, 6-4 and 6-1 wins against Providence and an 8-5 win and 7-7 tie against Baltimore.

With The Trotters

Bomb Glow paid $5.30, $3.80, $3.60.

The daily double paid $17.50.

In the fifth, Little Jimmy C and Dox Dale combined for a $24.10 quinella. The eighth race quinella yielded $11.50 and the exactor in the ninth returned $25.

---

CAMPBELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Rough Sketch, five-year-old pacer owned by Max Webster of Brantford, posted his 12th victory of the season at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night to boost his 1967 earnings to $19,536.

Leaves combined with Lee Unko for a $36.20 daily double.

Devine Replaces Musial

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bing Devine is back with St. Louis Cardinals, the team he helped build into a world baseball champion and then watched from New York.

Cardinal owner August A. Busch Jr. announced Tuesday that Devine had been hired as general manager to replace Stan Musial, who asked to leave because of business and personal matters. Johnny Murphy was named acting general manager of New York Mets, replacing Devine.

Devine, a long-time member of the Cardinal organization, traded for such mainstays of the 1967 World Series champs Curt Flood, Lou Brock and Julian Javier. It was while Devine was general manager that the Cardinals developed players like Tim McCarver, Mike Shannon and Dal Maxvill.

Devine stressed that he returned to the Cardinals because of personal considerations rather than for economic reasons. Even as general manager of the Mets Devine lived in the St. Louis area during the off-season.

He went to the Mets in 1964 as the result of a squabble with Cardinal officials.

Musial was in Acapulco, Mexico, vacationing with his wife when the reappointment of Devine was announced. Busch said Musial came to him just before the baseball meetings in Mexico two weeks ago and asked to be relieved. He said he couldn't devote full time to the job.

Cassius Expectant Father

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Boxer Cassius Clay, who prefers to be known by his Black Muslim name, Muhammad Ali, expects to become a father.

An affidavit filed by his lawyers in court disclosed Clay and his second wife, Belinda, 18, are expecting their first baby.

Clay, who was stripped of his heavyweight title by U.S. groups last June when he refused to be inducted into the U.S. Army, married Belinda in Chicago Aug. 18 in a Black Muslim ceremony.

His first marriage ended in divorce.

Nats Tie Generals

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A disputed goal by Brian Murphy at 19:38 of the third period gave London Nationals a 5-5 tie with Oshawa Generals in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game Tuesday night.

Murphy, standing at the edge of the Oshawa goal crease whacked defenceman Guy Allen's rebound into the glove of Oshawa goalie Bill Yeo. Goal judge Ernie Mizrana flashed the red light, declaring Yeo's glove was inside the net when he caught the puck.

Referee Sandy Proctor who had signalled for a faceoff on the play, consulted the goal judge and let the goal stand. It was Murphy's second of the night.

The Nationals had blown a 4-1 lead and fallen behind 5-4 midway through the third period.

Allen Sutherland, Barry Boughner and Gerry Bradbury scored the other London goals.

Brian Morenz scored twice for the Generals with the others going to Fred O'Donnell, Joe Robertson and Ivan Boldirev.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

Coach Predicts Race Will Be Close

High school basketball gets under way in the Bay of Quinte district this evening, with three games scheduled: Moira at Quinte, BCI at Picton, and Trenton at Napanee. Here's how the senior teams at the Belleville schools shape up.

BCI, defending Bay of Quinte champions, suffered heavy losses from last year's team. Graduatiion claimed such stalwarts as Ray Thibeau, Jim McCreary, Ross McDougall, and Tony Truman. Also unavailable are Mark Sheridan, through injury, and Tom Lornie, who is ineligible.

Coach Wally Beevor returns two members of the 1966-'67 club in John Chalmers and Brian Harder.

Up from the junior team are Ted Shaw, Bill Mindenhall, and David Hiuser. Transfers from other schools include Bernie Coughlin (Nicholson) and Warren Hay (MSS). Rounding out the BCI roster are Brian Reddick, Dennis Prentice, and Doug Wilson.

Coach Beevor explained his team's style of play: "We'll run a lot. We'll use a free-lance type of offence."

Chalmers will start in the pivot, where his high scoring and rebounding will be counted on heavily in the drive for another Bay of Quinte title. Supporting him up front will be Mindenhall and Hiuser, with Harder and Shaw at the guard posts.

Asked to assess the Bay of Quinte race, Mr. Beevor said: "I think it's going to be a close league. Quinte are no slouches. Picton had a good junior team last year, and those boys will be up for senior now. Moira certainly has a good club, and Trenton was second last year, and should be tough again."

Quinte, like BCI, has only two returnees from their '66-'67 squad. They are Terry Wellesley and Harold Townsend, who will provide lots of size and strength for the Saints.

Coach Jack Sisson welcomes four of last year's Juniors to his team this year. They are Glen Euston, Leo Baker, Robert Brownlee, and Ian Rutherford. Rutherford has a broken hand, and will not be available for a few weeks.

Wellesley, Townsend, Euston and Baker will make up the first string along with Paul King, new to Quinte this year. Filling in the reserve spots are Jim Dafoe, Tom Sheppard and Ken McGeachy.

"We'll play mainly man-to-man on defence," Mr. Sisson said. "Our offence will be dictated by what type of defence we meet."

Commenting on the league this season, Mr. Sisson said, "I don't know how the other teams stack up. We have a big, husky team. We'd like to let everybody in the league know that we're here."

Moira enters the 1967-'68 season without John Hayman, Ron Banting and Bob Dobco, three valuable members of last year's club. Back are Gary Swan, Doug McPherson and Jack Longstaff.

Five of last year's juniors join the senior Trojans this season. They are Bill Probert, Mick Chalmers, Bruce LaRue, Luke Hume and Bill Salter. Transfers are Mike Fabey, from Nicholson, and Paul Noble, from Toronto.

Coach Dan Lietner will open the season with Chalmers, Probert and LaRue up front, and Swan and McPherson in the backcourt.

"We'll play a fast game, with a lot of breaking," said Mr. Lietner. "Our shooting and rebounding are improved over last year, and our scoring is more evenly distributed. We're a better team than we were last season."

Mr. Lietner also gave his view of the league: "BCI will probably be strong again. Quinte might be about the same as last year. I think Picton and Trenton will be good. The league should be closer this year."

Juniors Fade In Third Period; Lose 8-4

By STEVE BISHOP

The Belleville "B's" made it interesting for two and a half periods last night at the Belleville Arena, but the Oshawa Crushmen prevailed and pulled away in the final ten minutes for an 8-4 victory.

Oshawa scored four times in the first period, including two quick goals within the sixteenth minute, while the home team counted twice.

Belleville came up with the only goal of the second period and kept the visitors off the scoreboard with fine defensive play and superb goaltending by "Cliz" Hunt.

The Crushmen broke through for the first goal of the third period, but the "B's" replied less than two minutes later on a power play goal to stay within one score of a tie. But the visitors potted the "insurance" goal in the twelfth minute of the period and added two more in the dying minutes to hand the local club another defeat.

Trempers flared in the final minutes, and six players, three from each team, were given five minute majors for fighting.

Ron Webb led Oshawa scorers with two goals, with singles going to John Nastic, Terry O'Reilly, Wayne Blanchard, Henry Novak, Rick Knowles, and Frank Sawyer. Mike Keenan was tops in assists with three Ray Summers paced the home club with a pair of picture goals and an assist on another by Rick Rosebush. Mike Healey counted the other Belleville marker.

Hot Hunt and Oshawa's Bryan Rose performed well in the nets, but the Belleville goaltender suffered from his teammates' inability to clear the puck from their own zone when the Crushmen put the pressure on.

Woman Jockey Barred

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Kathy Kusner's application for a jockey's licence was denied Tuesday by the Maryland Racing Commission.

Four commissioners rejected the application of the 27-year-old U.S. Olympic rider from Montclair, N.J., on the grounds she would not be a professional rider.

D. Eldred Rinehart, commission chairman, told Miss Kusner during the commission meet at Laurel race track "there is no provision for amateur standing in racing and it is not in the best interest of racing to maintain an amateur standing."

Tennis

Amateurs Defiant!

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Kramer, once the czar of pro tennis, predicted today that the world's leading amateur players will defy their national organizations and back Wimbledon to the hilt in its move for an open tournament.

"I am positive that men such as Arthur Ashe, Charlie Pasarell and Cliff Richey, who form the guts of our Davis Cup team, and Billie Jean King, the queen of women's tennis, would scorn suspension and play in an open tournament at Wimbledon, Kramer added.

"That's not all. I think you'll find the same sort of uprising in Australia, France, Italy and other countries where big time tennis played.

"All the players I've spoken with have the greatest admiration for the Wimbledon plan to hold an open tournament. They are ready to give full support."

British Lawn Tennis Association authorities announced earlier this year that they would throw the 1968 Wimbledon event open to amateurs and pros—in defiance of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

The ILTF, run by the smaller countries, decided last summer against an experimental open tournament.

Tucker Places Fourth

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Murray Tucker of Woodbridge, Ont., Tuesday placed fourth in the opening round of the annual Goodwill golf tournament with a 77.

The Board of Trade professional also paced his club to fourth place among 103 teams from Canada, the United States and England with a best-ball score of 63.

First-day team leaders, each with best-ball 61s, were the Olympic club of San Francisco, last year's champions, and the Rockville club of Long Island.

Leading individual professionals were Emery Thomas of Forest Hill, N.J., and Bob Benning of Plainfield, N.J.

Tiger-Cat Advocates 'Mental Separation'

TORONTO (CP) — Ted Watkins, Chicago-born football player who publishes pamphlets about racial discrimination, Tuesday night advocated "mental separation" of the black and white races.

Watkins, Negro and for the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, gave his opinions on the national CBC-TV program The Public Eye.

Asked whether he had encountered racial discrimination in Canada, Watkins replied:

"Yes, I have. I don't think it would be advisable to name individuals on the air, but I have had many problems in Ottawa which made me feel like I was in Mississippi somewhere."

Watkins joined Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference of the Canadian Football League in 1963 and this year went to Hamilton for what a CFL official said was "an unnamed consideration."

Watkins said he was a follower of Negro leader Elijah Muhammad of the Black Muslims in the United States.

He said he plans to use part of the $1,250 which goes to each member of the Grey Cup champion team, to develop his library on sociology, religion and history.

Bo Wininger Will Have Paralysis

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A statement Tuesday from pro golfer Bo Wininger's physician said indications are that Wininger "will have a paralysis of the right side of his body" from a stroke suffered last Thursday.

The statement said:

"Naturally we hope for improvement. His condition remains serious. But he is taking nourishment now.

Boston Red Sox

Criticism Draws Reply

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox manager Dick Williams' comment that relief pitcher John Wyatt "did not help us down the stretch" drew a bitter reply Tuesday from the right-hander.

"If I hadn't had the year I did there would not have been any stretch drive for the Red Sox," Wyatt said in a letter to Larry Claffin, Boston Record American baseball writer.

Wyatt wrote to comment on a C- fin dispatch from the baseball meetings last week-in Mexico City. Claffin's story said Williams was asked how highly he rated Fred Wenz, a relief pitcher being brought up from Toronto in Major Leafs.

He quoted Williams as replying: "We think so much of him we may trade Wyatt.

"Wyatt did not help us down the stretch."

Wyatt replied to The Record American:

"Take away my 10 wins and 16 saves and the games I held the opposition which we went on to win, and add my seven losses to the plus side and it wouldn't have really been the great race as far as the Red Sox and Mr. Williams are concerned."

Pailly Eagles

Sale Rumor Denied

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A report circulated today that Jerry Wolman, financially-plagued owner of the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles, had sold the $38,000,000 sports arena he had built for ice hockey and basketball.

However, a source close to Wolman said "there was no truth to the rumor" that the Spectrum had been sold to one or more officials of the Matthew McCloskey Construction Co., which built the arena.

The Spectrum, which opened this fall, is encumbered by three mortgages totaling $28,-000,000. The McCloskey firm has a third mortgage of $1,180,000.

Wolman on Tuesday sent telegrams to his creditors, indicating that he would pay part of the monies owed them by the end of next week.

He also declared that everything he has will be sold, if necessary, except for the Eagles, to meet his obligations.

President Challenges Former Minister to Duel--Dies of Heart Attack

Gestido, 68, a retired air force general, took office March 1 for a five-year term—the first president under a new constitution which ended 14 years of collective executive rule by a bicameral National Council.

Government sources said Gestido became ill about 1 a.m. and his wife immediately called doctors from the military hospital. The president died shortly after.

Gestido and his cabinet grappled with soaring inflation, cumbersome bureaucracy and frequent labor troubles which last month added up to the most serious economic crisis in Uruguayan history.

But for a few days last month Gestido landed over the reins of government to Vice-President Areco and asked a court of honor to decide whether remarks by former treasury minister Amilcar Vasconcellos obliged him to challenge Vasconcellos to a duel.

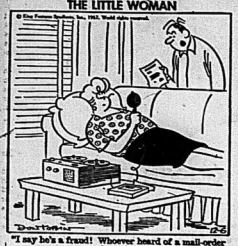
After Vasconcellos said some of Gestido's actions lacked common sense, the president sent his seconds to challenge the former minister. Dueling is legal in the country.

But the court of honor—made up of a member from each of the two main Uruguayan political parties and a leading lawyer—said the president's words were no grounds for a duel, and none was fought.

The son of an immigrant Spanish bricklayer, Gestido went to military college. He became a general in the air force in 1943.

He entered politics in March, 1963, when he was picked by the Liberal Colorado party to take one of the party's three seats in the national Council.

He resigned from the party when he ran for president in November, 1966, but was elected with its support. At the same time, Uruguayans voted in a referendum to return to a presidential system.



Though he did not have time to revitalize his financially sick country, he gave it some stunning stock treatments in his nine months in office.

He devalued the peso by 50 per cent and raised floor prices for wool and grains. He began curtailing government spending and issued $100,000,000 in treasury bonds to finance deficits.

Thirty Montevideo grocers who marked up their prices on old stock were prosecuted under a new anti-profiteering law.

When state bank employees went on strike for higher pay and all but tied up the state economy, Gestido suspended constitutional guarantees, ordered a state of siege for two weeks, ordered the strikers back to work and fired four ministers who protested the measures. One of them was Vasconcellos.

Gestido is survived by his wife, a son in the air force and a daughter who is married to a pilot.

"I say he's a fraud! Whoever heard of a mail-order psychoanalysis?"

Farmers Urged to 'Raise Hell'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Ontario Farmers' Union Tuesday urged Canadian farmers to "raise a little hell."

Walter Miller told 220 delegates attending the Manitoba Farmers' Union annual meeting this is the only way farmers can improve their lot, which they have not done by increasing efficiency or production.

Mr. Miller said membership in the OFU never rose so rapidly as it did when the union organized a march on Ottawa last year.

As a result of that march, he said, the federal government agreed to a 25-cents-a-hundred-weight subsidy on milk, which amounts to a $130,000,000 subsidy for all Canadian farmers.

England's Rail Tie Up Ends--Peace Formula Accepted

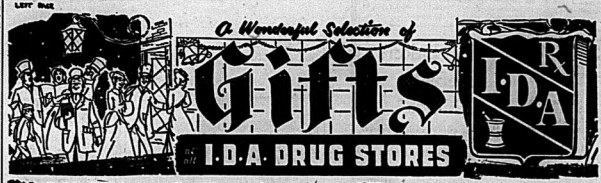
LONDON (AP) — A two-day slowdown that tied up much of southern England's rail traffic ended early today when the union accepted a peace formula proposed by Prime Minister Wilson.

Officials of the 36,500-member Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen—ASLEF—talked through the night before ordering their members to work at normal speed today.

In what Labor Minister Ray Gunter called "the silliest dispute of this decade," the ASLEF members had been observing every time-consuming rule in the book to protest the stationing of brakemen from the rival National Union of Railwaymen—NUR—in the rear of diesel locomotives. The brakes vans in which they formerly rode at the rear of the trains no longer are needed, and the state railway board took them off to save $600,000 a year.

The peace formula provides for a meeting under the chairmanship of Gunter to discuss train manning, recruiting and promotion. It also calls for ASLEF to be fully consulted on future changes affecting train manning.

The rail slowdown was only one cloud on a stormy economic horizon, however, as Wilson's Labor party faced new hostility from its left wing in the wake of the 14.3-per-cent devaluation of the pound.



But Ray Jenkins, the new chancellor of the exchequer, responded to an anti-government procedural vote by 17 left-wing MPs in the House of Commons Tuesday by warning them to face the economic facts.

The government easily defeated the leftist motion 231 to 17.

The leftists were angered by the disclosure that the government had to promise the International Monetary Fund a new austerity program in order to qualify for a $1,400,000,000 loan to help the pound through devaluation. The belt-tightening is designed to squeeze more than two per cent of the British gross national product out of consumers' pockets and into the export trade.

The left-wing attack was led by Michael Foot, who two weeks ago said he was happy about devaluation. Jenkins told Foot and his associates that the austerity conditions were not imposed by the IMF but by the realities of Britain's economic position.

Devaluation is expected to put Britain's economy on safe ground only if wages, prices and imports for home consumption are kept down and production for export is increased considerably.

Rejection Could Mean Death

Heart Transplant Patient Continues to Improve

CAPE TOWN (CP) — A crucial seven-day period started today for South African Louis Washkansky, in which his body must accept or reject a new heart given him Sunday, doctors said.

There was no sign so far that his body tissues would reject the heart transferred from 25-year-old Denise Darvall in an historic five-hour operation at Groote Schuur Hospital after the young woman was fatally injured in an auto accident.

But a team of doctors and nurses was in constant attendance around his infection-free oxygen tent for the first tell-tale signs of rejection—which would mean death for the 55-year-old wholesale grocer.

Washkansky, a diabetic, thanked his surgeons Tuesday for the epochal transplant and sent his love to his wife.

He continued to improve today, started talking jokes and told a nurse, "I am a new Frankenstein."

His general condition is satisfactory and all signs show improvement, a hospital bulletin said.

Despite Washkansky's cheerfulness and signs of progress, heart specialists warned that he was entering a crucial period.

If previous transplants were any guide, said Dr. Marius Barnard, then Washkansky's has reached the stage where his body might try to reject the transplanted heart.

This period starts three to 10 days after a transplant operation and Barnard, younger brother of the leader of the team of 30 specialists who operated Sunday.

Washkansky Tuesday took solid food for the first time, after two days of fluids dripped into his veins.

When he woke up he said "I feel hungry," and was given a soft-boiled egg and orange juice. Later he had some thin soup, tea, coffee and scrambled eggs with a slice of bread, as well as hourly broth and fruit drinks. Porridge and chicken were on the menu today.

Every 30 minutes he received cobalt treatment to reduce his body's reaction against the foreign organ.

Specialists at Groote Schuur Hospital say they consider "immunological rejection" the greatest threat to Washkansky. His condition is monitored minute by minute and efforts by the body to reject the heart will appear first on an electro-cardiograph device.

Every 30 minutes he received cobalt treatment to reduce his body's reaction against the foreign organ.

Washkansky's diabetes was being watched carefully.

"Diabetics are naturally more liable to infection and complications after surgery than a normal person," said Professor Jan H. Louw.

Louw said, however, that diabetics with ailing hearts were often in surgery; one operates on them every of the week."

Professor Barnard, who headed the surgical team for the operation, said a Cape Town druggist may be the next recipient of a transplanted heart, but Barnard added that right now his team is spending all its time checking on Washkansky's progress.

Washkansky came to South Africa with his parents from Lithuania, grew up in Cape Town and became the director of a wholesale grocery business.

Cape Town Doctor Under 'Ban'; No Explanation for Restriction

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Groote Schuur Hospital, where doctors last Sunday announced the first successful transplant of a human heart, is in the midst of a controversy over one of its staff.

The South African government placed Dr. Raymond Hoffenberg under "ban," meaning his activities are restricted. The government takes such action under security laws and rarely gives an explanation.

It has given none in the case of Dr. Hoffenberg, a research scientist who works at Groote Schuur Hospital and is a professor at Cape Town University.

Refusal to explain the ban, or to try Dr. Hoffenberg in court where he could defend himself, "is steadily producing a situation in South Africa comparable to that in Germany before the last war," a group of protesting doctors said.

Carson, Empson In Top Spot Of Bridge Loop

With one-third of the schedule of the Men's Belleville Bridge Club completed, the team of Jack Carson and Dr. Jack Empson have taken a commanding lead having won seven of the eight games which they have played to amass a net plus score of 21,960. In addition they also have a very substantial lead for the separate Point plus having a plus 10 in this contest with their closest competitor being a plus 4 at this time.

Second position in the league is currently held by Ted Schwab and Frank Donnelley who have a plus of 10,960 closely followed by Bill Coulby and Dick Vandervoort who have 10,560.

The team of Irv Shulman and Harry Trepanier follow in 4th position with 7,230 and 5th position is currently held by Roy Joffrey and Mac MacNicol who have 5,630 points.

Rounding out the top six teams at this period of the schedule is the team of Fred VanAmel and Morley Ward with 4,970.

Other teams with a net plus score follow in this order: Al McCallum and Ron Rose, Jack Wilkins and Tim Moore, Nick Banuk and A. J. Gibbons, John Tomlinson and Reg Walkwright, and Ben Corke and Flet Rickard.

For the first time in several years the league has a full complement of 24 teams and its schedule provides for one extra league match for each team before recessing for the Christmas — New Year Holiday period.

YOUTH UNDERSTANDS

OSHAWA (CP) — Canada will remain united because the new generation understands the Quebec problem, Jean Chretien, minister without portfolio, said Tuesday. Mr. Chretien told a group of high school students there is impatience in Quebec because its people are looking to the past. "But when I see the goodwill of English-speaking Canada, I think Canada will stick together."

Liberal MP 'Shouted Down'

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP was shouted down and denied leave to introduce a private Commons bill Tuesday that would have removed the tax on pictures from postage stamps.

Fernand Leblanc (L—Montreal Laurier) proposed "an act respecting Canadian stamps" to the Commons.

In a brief explanation, he said it is time Canadians of both English and French descent "cut the umbilical cord of their European past . . . and become real and true Canadians," cooperating with other ethnic groups in Canada.

New Generation of Movie-goers Embracing W. C. Fields Films

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—That notorious opponent of the establishment, W. C. Fields, appears to be the latest screen immortal to be embraced by the new generation of film-goers.

It's still not certain whether the rediscovery of Fields was entirely spontaneous or was inspired by the alert salesmen of Universal Pictures. The company made some test engagements of Fields' comedies in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Detroit in late summer, and was encouraged to launch a full-scale campaign.

Such films as Bank Dick, You Can't Cheat an Honest Man, My Little Chickadee and Never Give a Sucker an Even Break have been playing in two New York theatres and two in Los Angeles. Now Universal is planning a countrywide release, aiming primarily at college communities.

Apparently collegiates do have an affinity for Fields.

That seems to be an important factor in film merchandising nowadays: to capitalize on the youthful revolt against those who hold the power. Robert Aldrich ascribed that element as the principal reason for the amazing success of his Dirty Dozen.

It's true that the Fields' comedies pictured him at odds with the authorities. He was the master of the shell game, a man who would sell a talking dog in a saloon, only to have the dog refuse to talk afterward. Always Fields was one step ahead of the sheriff. Even in his one attempt at the classic, David Copperfield, he played the debt-ridden Micawber.

Fields' relationships with the opposite sex took two forms. He was plagued by a battle axe of a wife, Kathleen Howard in The Man on the Flying Trapeze, whose rantings he accepted with an unhearing "yes, dear, yes, dear." Or else he was the flirtatious wooer of the rich widow, as with Jan Duggan in The Old-Fashioned Way. It can still recall his fingering of her curls, only to have one come off in his hand.

Pool shark, con man, drunkard with a different march, Fields always was at odds with organized society. The ordinary sentimentalities repulsed him. "Anybody who hates dogs and children can't be all bad." He was essentially a loner—and resourceful, vaguely nefarious man against the world.

Perhaps that is why today's youngsters are taking to Fields in the same manner a slightly older generation embraced the late Humphrey Bogart. The movement would no doubt astound Fields. He never evidence the slightest notion of injecting any social comment into his films.

A confirmed misanthrope, he had little but contempt for his fans. One of the world's great boozers, he died on Christmas Day, 1964, after long illness with liver and kidney troubles.

Creator of Animal Stars Will Start New Panel Show

NEW YORK (AP)—I was a nighttime programs. And finally, there are the game and panel shows. These are the shows that, unlike the soaps, are given little time to take around and build an audience. And it is a game show that Tors and his associates will unveil on ABC Dec. 18.

Tors' maiden daytime effort is called Treasure Isle, and claims to be played out in the most expensive "set" ever created for television—a man made island and "lagoon" . . . really a pool loaded with electronic gadgets for special effects.

"Daytime television," he told Sherman Adler, an executive of the production company, "is completely dominated by shows made inside studios. This one will be completely taped outside of studios."

That is important, Adler thinks, because he did some research and found that programs shot on location almost invariably received good audience ratings.

The island and lagoon were built near Palm Beach, Fla., and contributed by John MacArthur, millionaire owner of a nearby resort hotel and other real estate. It cost more than $500,000.

This has been dictated less by love of fancy business than a desire to promote the location and the hotel—and to help attract a show business boom from New York and Hollywood. Tors has been a Florida booster for several years and has been producing both feature movies and TV series in studios near Miami.

In a fancy setting, contestants will play a rather routine TV games—encountering obstacles, bumping into each other in boats, following clues and, finally, digging for treasure.

Man Burns Himself, Still in Critical Condition

NEW YORK (AP) — A young man remained in critical condition today after setting himself afire Tuesday night on a lawn in front of the United Nations building.

Police said Kenneth D'Elia, 20, of Flushing, Queens, offered no explanation for his act.

Witnesses said they saw D'Elia, a five-foot fence, run to an adjacent lawn, pour gasoline over himself from a Coplon metal container and strike a match.

Two passersby and a patrolman beat out the flames with their overcoats. Two other patrolmen from a radio car put blankets over D'Elia, and oxygen was administered before he was taken to Bellevue Hospital. He was reported to have third-degree burns on 80 per cent of his body.

U.S. Airmen in Laos Strike for Higher Pay

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Air crews operating a hush-hush U.S.-chartered airline over the Jungles of Laos—scene of a forgotten war against pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas—today were on strike for more pay.

They stopped work Tuesday in support of demands for a salary differential to compensate those who fly on dangerous missions for the airline, Air America.

Airline officials said the strike applied only to air crews based in Vientiane, the Laotian capital. Air America also operates in Thailand and South Vietnam and works under contract to the United States government.

Air America spokesmen are traditionally tight-lipped about its work but it is widely believed to be financed partly by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Conscientious Objector Happy Helping Wounded

TRANG BANG (AP) — Jerry Greene, a conscientious objector, fought to get to South Vietnam and now serves as a medic with the U.S. 25th Division.

The North Carolinian hates killing on religious grounds and wouldn't pick up a weapon. But life depended on it. But he has no sympathy for the majority of anti-war groups in the United States, including other Negroes who advocate Black Power.

"I came to Vietnam to save lives," he said. "Now my buddies are artillerymen and it's their job to kill. After all, this is a war and the Bible is full of wars. I respect their thinking and they respect mine.

"A man can object to killing on moral grounds. The way I read the Bible, there isn't any exception to the law 'Thou shalt not kill.' But a man also has a duty to his country. And I disagree 100 per cent with Negroes who say we shouldn't come here. To me this is a white man's war. I'd like to see a lot of the militant protesters sent over here.

Greene could have escaped Vietnam duty altogether if he had chosen. Because of an ear condition, loud noises could mean permanent deafness. Thus Greene could have been exempted from combat zones. But Greene sought and got a waiver, packed a set of earplugs and shipped out with his artillery battalion.

Greene is a member of the Bethel Gospel Tabernacle and his draft board readily agreed to a conscientious objector status on religious grounds.

Deserted by his father at age 3, Greene says he was an alcoholic before he was a teen-ager and left his home town of Forest City Nov 22, he neither drinks nor smokes.

Rush Thinks Killer May Renew Attempt

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto stock promoter Myer Rush said Tuesday that whoever planted the bomb in his room at the Sutton Place Hotel Nov. 14 may try to kill him again.

Interviewed by Joe Forster for radio station CHIN in Toronto, Rush said the attempted murder was "set up as an example to others."

Arranged by Rush's lawyer Anthony Bano, it was the first interview granted by the 43-year-old stock promoter since the bombing.

Rush is charged with three other men in connection with a $100,000,000 stock fraud.

The interview was taped in Rush's room at Toronto General Hospital where he has been undergoing treatment for serious injuries he suffered in the explosion.

Rush said he knew the reason for the attempt on his life, but he refused to disclose it. He said it was decided to kill him with a bomb "to strike fear into other people."

"I know what fear is," he said. "But I'm not going to give in... I'm a man, nobody pushes me around."

Asked if the bombing was part of an attempt by organized crime to infiltrate the stock-brokerage and business community, Rush said:

"There have always been thieves in every market place and Bay Street is a market place.

"People get hurt when they try to stop these thieves from getting in. I got hurt and other people are going to get hurt until the public realizes what's going on."

Rush said the bombing was "an act of stupidity."

"When that bomb exploded, it focused public attention for the first time on me and what I've been trying to fight all alone. Those people out there, the people who tried to kill me, fear public exposure."

Hospital authorities said today that Rush, who was near death immediately after the bombing, "is improving" each day.

Most Medicines Have Side Effects

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the dangers or ill effects of the use of cortisone to control skin eruptions? It has been eight years since the last siege which was worse than now.

I hesitate to allow the use of cortisone although I think that it may have been the factor that brought the skin trouble under control.

Salves seem to be of little use except to ease itching. — Mrs. E.E.

This is the type of fearfulness that makes me see red.

There's been so much talk about side effects that some people, without thinking, start hunting for troubles — just like hunting for bogey men under the bed.

Of course, cortisone can have side effects. So can just about every medicine in use today.

But the side effects are not automatically present when a medicine is used. They show up, if at all, when it is necessary to use a great deal of whatever drug it is, or if the patient uses more than he was told to take, or if he has some unusual sensitivity to it.

It is an integral part of the science and art of medicine to be able to judge how much to use, and what signs to watch for in case dosage needs to be changed or the drug stopped.

I certainly have no objections whatever to pharmaceutical firms being required to provide full information about drugs, the risks to be avoided as well as the benefits to be gained. The more we know about these matters, the better.

But I have become increasingly upset by letters from people who are refusing, or thinking of refusing, to take some medicine for fear that "it might be harmful."

Certainly protracted use of cortisone can lead to fluid retention, brittleness, and all the rest, but that has nothing to do with use of cortisone in quantities customarily employed which involve no side effects at all.

Mrs. K. should look at it this way: Here she is thinking of refusing to use a medication, although the same one, used eight years ago, cleared up her trouble without any harmful side effects.

Doesn't it seem far-fetched to look for trouble now when there was none before?

If worries about "harmful effects" stopped us from using cortisone, that would pay a price. The price would be inability to treat dozens of ailments which respond readily to proper doses of cortisone.

The same applies to many other modern medications.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 37 and had a complete hysterectomy two years ago. I take hormone pills as well as occasional hormone shots. The other day a friend said, "You are taking so much hormone, what will you do when you hit menopause age?"

I thought I was in the menopause. Don't tell me this will get worse as I get older. — Mrs. R.S.M.

You are right; you are experiencing "surgical menopause", which is menopause brought on earlier than normal by removal of the ovaries. Your friend obviously just doesn't know. Don't let her ignorance of the facts mislead or upset you.

Note to Readers: There's tremendous amount of worrying over masturbation, but medically there is no indication that it harms anyone unless, when practised to excess it indicates some emotional disorder.

Demonstrations Against Draft To Resume Today in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The full 28,000-man police department was on standby alert today as 4,000 policemen braced for a second mass anti-war protest aimed at closing the lower Manhattan military induction center.

Generally younger and more militant demonstrators were expected and sponsors said tactics "inspired" by an anti-draft demonstration in Oakland, Calif., last Oct. 16 would be used. Vehicles were set afire and missiles thrown during that melee.

City Councilman Matthew J. Troy, a Democrat, called on President Johnson to assign federal marshals or troops to control the demonstrations scheduled to continue through Friday.

Police outnumbered the 1,000 demonstrators who turned out Tuesday for the first of four planned protests at the centre. They failed in their attempt to shut down the centre, but 264 of their number were arrested.

Those included pediatrician Benjamin Spock, poet Alan Ginsberg, former Irish diplomat Conor Cruise O'Brien, critic Susan Sontag, novelist Terry Southern and urban design critic Jane Jacobs.

Estimates of the demonstration's effectiveness varied. Lt.-Col. James J. McPoland, commander of the Whitehall Street centre, called it "a big zero," but David McReynolds, field secretary for the War Resisters League, found it encouraging that so many were willing to be arrested as a symbolic protest against the draft.

The New York demonstration was part of a so-called Stop the Draft Week which included demonstrations in cities from coast to coast beginning Monday.

In Buffalo, N.Y., nine persons were arrested in an anti-war demonstration Tuesday that drew jeers from about 300 counter-pickets from a business school.

There also were counter-pickets at San Fernando Valley State College in Northridge, Calif., where anti-war pickets were protesting the campus presence of Dow Chemical Co. job recruiters.

At the University of Iowa, Iowa City police used tear gas against a mob of students protesting Dow Chemical Co. recruitment. Six persons were arrested.

A silent vigil was carried out by some 30 long-haired demonstrators in Wilmington, Ohio, in support of James R. Wessner Jr., who refused to report for induction there Tuesday as directed. Wessner, a graduate student at the University of California, is married to a granddaughter of industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

The New York protest Tuesday was sponsored by the Stop the Draft Week Committee which claims support from 50 anti-war and civil rights groups.

Afterward leaders said they had no intention of trying to force a halt in the induction process but wanted a "symbolic" protest.

But instructions issued by the committee for today's protest called for demonstrators to not only block the streets in the area but to try to intercept inductees and persuade them not to enter the centre.

There were some complaints of police brutality following Tuesday's protest, including one by O'Brien, who headed the United Nations mission to The Congo in 1961.

But Mayor John V. Lindsay praised the police department for its handling of the demonstration, saying: "The police are doing everything in their power to respect the right of dissent, and I am too."

Details of Proposed DOSCO Purchase Studied by Nova Scotia Legislature

HALIFAX (CP) — Questioning of the Nova Scotia government's auditors and steel consultants is expected to be continued when the legislature's law amendments committee reconvenes here today.

The committee is giving detailed study to a bill approving sale of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.'s Sydney steel mill to the provincial government for an as yet undetermined amount of money and the setting up a Crown corporation to operate it.

The bill, given second reading and approval in principle by the legislature Monday, would keep the plant operating until at least April 30, 1969. Dosco announced in October that the mill would be closed next April.

Tuesday the committee heard representations from the United Steelworkers of America, started questioning the auditors and steel consultants and heard testimony from Dosco officials.

Arthur Patillo of Toronto, a director and chief executive officer of Dosco, and T. J. Emmett, president and chairman of Dosco, flew to Halifax to appear before the committee. Mr. Patillo said Dosco officials had not intended to attend, but reconsidered when Liberal Leader Gerald Regan charged in the house that Dosco was treating the legislature with contempt.

Mr. Patillo told the committee that Dosco shareholders have been called to a meeting Dec. 20 to ratify the agreement between Dosco and the government and they have been told they cannot make amendments. They must approve it or throw it out.

There seems little doubt the agreement will be approved. Mr. Emmett, who is also president of Hawker Siddeley (Canada) Ltd., Dosco's parent company, said Hawker Siddeley's 77 per cent of Dosco shares will be voted in favor of the agreement.

At the morning session, union leaders suggested amendments be made in the bill to protect workers' rights to pensions and to the $600,000 accumulated in the supplemental unemployment benefits fund.

Martin Mercer, president of Sydney Local 1064 of the USA, said he had heard rumors that the company left the money was their's and would "walk away with it."

Mr. Patillo said the company would carry out its obligations to its employees and former employees. He said these obligations are being looked into by other members of his law firm.

Emmett Park, assistant national director of the union, said the union's agreement with Dosco terminates Dec. 31 and said the union would entertain motions from the government to extend this coverage until April 30, 1968.

Mr. Emmett said the final decision to close the plant was made by Dosco at 10 a.m. Oct. 12, the Nova Scotia government was informed by the company that afternoon and the official announcement was made after the stock markets closed that day.

He said the federal government was notified Oct. 11 the company had planned the closure. The provincial government was told Oct. 12.

Dosco officials termed as "irrelevant" questions from Mr. Regan on Dosco's long-term contracts for supplies, charter of ships and the future of other Dosco holdings in the province.

However, Mr. Emmett said "none of them is satisfactory" —a reference to other Dosco operations, including the steel workers at Trenton, N.S., and the Halifax Shipyards.

The questioning of the auditors and steel consultants at the afternoon session was interrupted to permit the Dosco officials to make their representation.

Before the interruption, John Barnacal, a steel consultant, told the committee it would take $60,000,000 to modernize the Sydney plant and put it on a par with other steel mills in North America.

Union officials told the committee Monday plant equipment had been allowed to deteriorate to a point where there was a danger to safety.

However, Mr. Barnacal disagreed.

George Buckingham of the firm of Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart, provincial auditors, said the mill could be viable if new owners were not interested in making a high return on their money.

The legislature, adjourned Monday, will reconvene today and will consider the bill in committee of the whole house after it is brought back from the law amendments committee.

Under the agreement in the bill, Dosco would operate the mill until Dec. 31 when it will be purchased by the provincial government. Dosco will then operate the mill as an agent of the government until April 30 when it will come under the control of the government or its agent for another 12 months.

Planned Thermal Power Plant Could Affect Lake Erie Fish

TORONTO (CP) — Long Point Bay on Lake Erie, which supports more angling than any other area of Ontario, may have its game fish affected by a planned thermal power plant, the chief of the province's fish and wildlife branch said Tuesday.

Dr. C. H. D. Clarke, in a paper to the Ontario pollution control conference, said "we have our fingers crossed" on what the effects will be when the Nanticoke power plant opens. The plant, burning coal, will have the first unit open in 1971 and the rest by 1974 at a cost of about $243,000,000.

He said the branch was concerned on "the effect the warm water is going to have on the game fish spawning areas that lie in its immediate path."

The bay is about 40 miles southwest of Hamilton. Most of the rest of Lake Erie does not support life because of pollution.

Dr. L. B. Leppard, senior physicist with the Ontario health department's radiation protection service, said Ontario Hydro will face the problem of disposing of used fuel bundles from its new nuclear generating station at Pickering, near Toronto.

The used fuel storage bay planned to hold the bundles will hold only seven years' storage, he said. Bundles could be shipped to Britain or the United States for recovery of plutonium values or a recovery plant could be built in Canada.

Hydro's 2,400-acre land tract around the Douglas Point nuclear station near Kincardine has a storage bay big enough to hold all the fuel that will be used in the plant's lifetime, he said.

There Are No Simple Answers To Complicated Questions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was sitting next to a college boy at a little gathering, and we were listening to a liberal and a conservative arguing about the "proper" role of the government in large labor disputes.

At one point, the college boy turned to me and whispered, "The trouble with both of them is that they believe there are simple answers to complicated questions." I nodded in agreement; it was just what I had been thinking.

One of the baffling peculiarities of the human mind is its tendency to imagine that social or political or economic matters can be more simply disposed of by a few airy platitudes than personal or family matters. And quite the contrary happens to be true.

When we are dealing with a troubled child of our own, or a marriage that seems to be coming unhinged, if we have any sense at all, we quickly realize that the problem is complex, delicate, and does not admit of any easy answers on the basis of some abstract philosophy.

And we recognize that generalizations are dangerous, that conditions alter cases, that there is no simple right or wrong, that a subtle interplay of many different forces is at work.

Yet, when we leave the realm of the personal for the realm of the public, we immediately change our attitude — we sweep whatever is complex, delicate and subtle off the board, and respond with a set of dogmatic clichés and slogans that are often grossly irrelevant to the specific condition we are trying to deal with.

It should be possible to see that large public questions are even more complicated than personal ones; that many more forces are at work, more imponderables must be considered, more diverse demands satisfied, more long-range consequences envisioned. It is easier for a family to stop quarreling, for instance, than for two nations to conclude a disarmament pact that has genuine validity for both.

A man who has a firm opinion about the attitude of the law toward "delinquency" will change his tune when his own boy is facing a charge. He will then see that there are "exceptions," that the law can be unjust, that the word "delinquency" can cover a whole spectrum of juvenile activities, from mischievous to malicious.

And he is perfectly right — the more closely we become involved with a "public" question, the more personal it becomes, the less rigid and dogmatic we learn to be about it. There aren't even simple answers to simple questions; and to the hardest question of all — how we can best live together on this earth — no one has found an answer we can really live up to.

War Protesters Mass Outside Induction Centre

'Stop Draft' Drive in Third Day

NEW YORK (CP) — Chanting anti-war demonstrators launched a third round of "stop the draft" protests today, spilling through the streets of Manhattan from Battery Park as far as Times Square, five miles north.

More than 700 of the young demonstrators left the park in lower Manhattan and sent only a token force to the downtown armed forces induction centre, scheduled target of the two previous protests.

Employing new tactics plotted Wednesday night after two days of direct assaults on the centre had failed, the roving bands ran through rain-wet streets while police pounded after them on horse and on foot. Circling helicopters followed their movements.

More than 100 persons had been arrested by 8 a.m., including blonde Linda Morse, a co-chairman of the Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Several scuffles broke out between demonstrators and police, including one in Sheridy at Herald Square, 34th Street.

A busload of police arrived in Times Square, site of a midtown armed forces recruiting centre, just in time to turn aside an oncoming group of 150 demonstrators.

Near the downtown induction centre about 300 flag-carrying longshoremen staging a counter-demonstration clashed head on with demonstrators.

Police moved in on horseback to break up half-a-dozen fist fights and made a large number of arrests.

Spokesmen for the sponsoring Stop the Draft Week Committee, a coalition of 30 anti-war and civil rights groups, said Wednesday night they might picket any of 100 targets in the city today.

Operations at the centre continued with arriving inductees being escorted through police lines after identifying themselves and showing police their military orders.

U.S. Bombs Reds Infiltrating Thailand

Exhausted Reds Give Selves Up

SAIGON (AP) — Exhausted by a year of almost continuous fighting, 38 members of a Viet Cong platoon have defected in what is believed the largest mass surrender of the war, U.S. officers reported today.

The guerrillas gave up Wednesday at a South Vietnamese military outpost 40 miles south of the U. S. marine base at Da Nang. The area is in Communist-dominated Quang Tin province, where southern allied force have fought pitched battles with the Communists, often at a heavy price.

The officers said the first of the defectors, including the platoon leader and some squad leaders, told them they had wanted to surrender for some time but were afraid of North Vietnamese troops in the area.

The defectors were taken to Tien Ky, the provincial capital, and were held at a Chieu Hoi, or Open Arms centre for defectors there. South Vietnam's Chieu Hoi program promises Viet Cong they can defect without fear of reprisals.

Elsewhere Wednesday, the U.S. marine front below the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam flamed up again with the heaviest bombardment in weeks against the marine outpost at Con Thien, followed by hard ground fighting just to the northeast.

Initial reports said three North Vietnamese soldiers and seven marines were killed and 77 marines were wounded.

U.S. Will Ask UN to Help Arrange Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States is expected to call for a meeting of the UN Security Council soon to launch new attempts toward a begotiated settlement of the Vietnam war, informed sources said today.

The sources predicted U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg would relay request from the White House for a meeting of the 15-nation council some time this month.

Army Ignores Embassy Denial

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Military sources report U.S. planes are now bombing Communist infiltration routes into Thailand from Laos, but the U.S. embassy in Thailand categorically denies it.

An embassy spokesman also directly denied a report from the military sources at nearby Eglin Air Force Base that some American planes have been shot down over Thailand, and said the embassy knew nothing of any Communist anti-aircraft guns or missiles in the country.

In contradicting the reports, the spokesman said no U.S. armed forces of any kind are carrying out bombing missions on Thai soil, and added: "No U.S. planes have been lost in hostile fire from within Thailand."

The military sources were equally firm.

These same sources say:

—The Communists have sought to counter the raids by positioning anti-aircraft guns and surface-to-air missiles in the extreme northeastern corner of Thailand.

—Some American planes have been shot down over Thailand although there has been no official statement on the losses.

These disclosures, made Wednesday by officers here appear to indicate a worsening in Pentagon situation in Thailand, confronted more and more with Communist penetration of their defences.

The problem has required some American actions similar to early U.S. efforts in South Vietnam, officers said.

They declined to be specific but said these involve U.S. air commandos in Thailand.

Eglin Air Force Base is a Tactical Air Force Tactical Command facility where air commandos—air force counterparts to the army's special forces—are trained.

CF-104s Will Be Phased Out

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canada is expected to tell its NATO allies next week it has decided to "phase out its force of CF-104s stationed in Germany over the next four years."

In an Ottawa story, the newspaper says Canadian plans will be outlined by External Affairs Minister Martin and Defence Minister Cadieux at the annual NATO ministerial meeting in Brussels Dec. 12-14.

Canada also has an army brigade group of about 6,000 men in Europe under NATO, but the government is not believed planning any changes for it, the newspaper says.

Mr. Martin told the Commons Wednesday that force levels will be discussed at the meetings in Brussels. However, he gave no details about the changes Canada will propose.

United Appeal Suspends Minor Sports Society

By DON MacKENZIE

Belleville Minor Sports Association was suspended from United Community Services at the board meeting last Thursday.

Robert Purzer, executive director of UCS stated yesterday, "it had been in the air for a year" but refused to give reasons for the action.

However, Maurice J. Stotesbury, president of UCS, said the suspension was made for "lack of performance". Mr. Stotesbury referred to a requirement by the UCS that all agencies sign contracts and submit audited financial statements and budgets. "They (the Minor Sports Association) have failed to comply fully with these requirements", he stated.

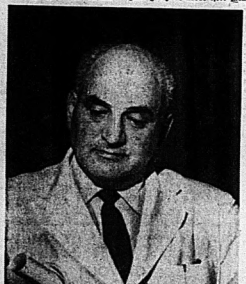
He was critical of the fact that the Minor Sports Association, even when offered the help of a chartered accountant by UCS, did not take advantage of the opportunity.

Richard Ellis, newly-elected alderman and secretary-treasurer of the Minor Sports Association for many years past, said yesterday he had not heard the association was suspended and commented the group "would be back on UCS before long."

Answering one of UCS's reasons for suspension, he stated: "Minor Sports has never refused to comply. the reports will be submitted — we just haven't got around to it". Mr. Ellis said there would be a meeting within 10 days to discuss the matter. However Mr. Purzer declined to comment on whether a meeting had been called or requested.

Although Mr. Ellis is also on the board of directors of United Community Services, he was not present at the meeting Thursday when the vote for suspension was taken.

George Dalnard, campaign chairman for the United Appeal drive this year, also expressed dissatisfaction with Minor Sports. "I received very little support from them this year", he commented, referring to the fund drive.



Although the suspension takes place immediately, it won't affect the association's budget. Mr. Stotesbury stated, "They have already received their allotment for 1967 even though they didn't comply with regulations"

Second Heart Transplant Operation Fails

NEW YORK (AP) — Four grim men pushed their way into the small, crowded auditorium in the heart surgery at Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn. They had been up all night.

"I think, first of all, I'm sorry to have to report to you that we have had news, not good news."

The speaker, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, 49, disclosed Wednesday that his 32-man medical team had failed in the second attempt in four days to transplant a human heart. The transplant of the healthy heart of a dead two-day-old boy into the breast of a 2½-week-old boy was completed but the child died 6½ hours later.

"Really, it was quite unexpected," Dr. Kantrowitz said. The boy was doing "reasonably well," he said, but then the heart "stopped suddenly."

"We do not know at this time why this transplanted heart failed," he said.

Dr. Kantrowitz described the attempt as "unequivocally a failure" but said he and his team are planning to try such transplants again.

He insisted the attempted transplant had no connection with the South African operation four days ago in which the healthy heart of a 25-year-old woman killed in an automobile accident was successfully transplanted into a 55-year-old grocer.

Preparations for the Brooklyn operation started a week before the South African transplant, Dr. Kantrowitz said. Officials at Maimonides sent telegrams to 500 American hospitals seeking a suitable donor.

The older boy already had been born at the hospital but he had a defective valve on the right side of his heart which could only be operated upon. Then, Monday, the younger child was born in Philadelphia with brain damage that would kill him in two or three days.

With the consent of his parents, the new-born was hurried to Brooklyn. When he died the medical team began the 2½-hour operation. The drama ended at 1 p.m. with the older child's death.

About a year ago, Dr. Kantrowitz told the news conference, the team of surgeons had developed a simular situation: One child with a lethal heart lesion and another with a lethal brain lesion. They were about to try the heart transplant, he said, until they decided "the heart of the donor did not appear to be good enough to support" the other infant.

Dr. Kantrowitz is a recognized leader in bio-electronics, the use of electronic systems to replace impaired physiological functions. He was an early developer of the cardiac Pacemaker, used to stimulate heart action.

November Prices Move Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index moved up half a point to 151 in November as Canadians paid more for clothing, housing and recreational activity.

A report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics issued today said mixed changes in food prices resulted in a slight overall price increase for the category.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, stood at 150.5 in early October and at 145.5 in November, 1966.

PARIS (Reuters) — France is negotiating to sell a substantial quantity of wheat to China, but talks appear to have reached deadlock for the moment and no deal has yet been concluded, informed trade sources said here today. The test tube has replaced the flower pot for Alex Dunn, 15 (left) and Richard Peart, 16. And with good reason — both students are using experiment to further their studies at Centennial Secondary School.

Keeping greenery in trim is basic to studies for Centennial's environmental science classes. Here, 18-year-old Barbara Stitt does her share by watering greenhouse shrubbery.

Students Study Plant Life--in the Greenhouse

There's nothing like joining the back-to-nature movement to help a person contemplate.

Seriously applied, the nature theory also works in the field of education.

That's one of the points in what the experts now call "environmental service", which includes the study of plant life.

A working example of this branch of education can be observed in the city's newest greenhouse—at Belleville's latest high school, Centennial Secondary.

An estimated 130 students now participate in classes under science-department head Gordon Babbitt.

They work in surroundings garnished with plants of many species, trees and shrubs.

They nurture the various growths with a mixture of loving care and deliberate experimentation.

"We subject the plants to different treatments and observe the results," says Mr. Babbitt. Seeking the results assists in the study of genetics and biology.

Here, since the seeking is as important as discovery, the lessons teach the pupils "to reason out what causes these things to happen."

Mr. Babbitt believes it's not satisfactory just to provide the students with all the answers.

"You have to let them find things out for themselves".

The fact they are working with their hands, therefore directly participating in the subject, gives them "a tremendous interest" in what they're taught, Mr. Babbit feels.

Hastings Manor Wing Opens

The new $500,000 wing of Hastings Manor was officially opened yesterday afternoon as dignitaries from all over Hastings County were on hand to take part in the ceremony.

Among the guests present to bring greetings were C. T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings; Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte, Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South and Jack Ellis, mayor of Belleville.

Entertainment was provided by a manor resident Ernst Heidman.

During the opening which began in the new auditorium and moved to the new chapel of the recently - completed wing, J. N. Drew, Director of the Homes for the Aged Branch of the Ontario Department of Social and Family Services, addressed the guests.

Mr. Drew thanked all who assisted in the creation and construction of the new addition and complimented them on "the initiative and enterprise they have displayed in its establishment."

He compared the new addition and the people who founded it to the founders of Canada. "Many of the residents of this home represent the first and second generation of Canadians born after Confederation."

"They were young when Canada was young and they have taken part in the great events that have led to national maturity."

Mr. Drew explained that in all the changes of 100 years, nothing has changed so much and so much for the better than the municipal home for the aged.

He outlined the growth of the municipal home over the last 99 years. "By 1950 there were 35 municipal homes, nearly all of them more than 40 years old."

"Today there are 65 municipal homes for the aged, nearly all having been built in the past 18 years and before the end of this year there will be 74 in operation."

After his address Mr. Drew cut the ribbon to the new wing with the assistance of Mr. Rollins and Dr. Potter.

Guests then participated in the dedication in the chapel and were allowed to wander through the new wing.

The new addition contains an auditorium which can also be used for recreation such as shuffleboard. There is a new chapel which received an organ for the Avondale Neighbor's Aid, a Bible from Christ Church, a Communion Set from Wesleyan Methodist Church and altar furnishings from the Ladies' auxiliary of the home.

Farther on down the hall there is what could be described as sitting room, complete with television, also a donation.

The wing has a 50-bed capacity and a relatively new facet, an intercom to each room so sensitive that, as one guest put it, "you can hear the person breathing."

Refreshments finished the ceremony and opening.

The Official Cutting

J. N. Drew, Director of the Homes for the Aged Branch of the Ontario Department of Social and Family Services, cuts through the ribbon and officially opens the new Hastings Manor wing. He is assisted by C. T. Rollins and Dr. R. T. Potter.

Two staff-members of Hastings Manor make use of the new sensitive intercom system in the new wing. Holding the phone is Mrs. Doreen Burney while Miss Ellen Donald looks on.

Industrial Development Issue Discussed By County Council

Hastings county and its member municipalities should be taking more advantage of available ARDA grants and of grant incentives to industry.

This was the feeling expressed yesterday at the December session of county council as reports of the ARDA committee, the recently formed industrial committee, were read.

Hungerford Reeve Clarence Graham read the industrial report which told of a meeting with Hon. Stanley Randlle, Minister of Economics and Development, acquainting him with the need of industrial development in the county.

A further meeting with department officials to discuss the matter in greater depth is being planned.

Mr. Graham called for municipalities to take full advantage of the available industrial incentive grants and loans being offered by the province.

He noted that under the plan interest free loans were provided for both new and established industry in qualifying slow growth areas.

Sidney township deputy reeve Jack Bigger urged that municipalities secure the necessary application forms as soon as possible.

Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen and Warden W. A. Shannon of Marmora village said their municipalities had already applied and had received qualification.

Stirling Reeve Donald Rodgers said his village already had serviced land available for industry.

Bancroft Reeve J. N. Brown said his municipality had also been accepted as a qualifying area.

Warden Shannon urged that everything possible be done to encourage industry to locate in the Hastings county area. In the quest for industry parochial boundaries could be ignored as the benefits would extend to adjacent municipalities.

Marmora and Lake Reeve John Wilkes in presenting the ARDA committee report, felt that more advantages should be taken of available grants for county projects.

He said his committee had no authority to initiate projects — only to approve of them.

Possible projects so far brought before the committee included the development of the York River basin in the Bancroft area, further development of the Madawaska Maple Syrup Co-operative and the possibility of a park development in Lake township.

Herschel Reeve Frank Peever said the York River Development proposal was at a standstill for lack of leadership. The interim committee president had resigned and a new man had not been appointed.

Under the proposal, a dam on the York river would be constructed to create an artificial lake with 200 miles of shoreline.

Bancroft Reeve Brown said the benefits of such a development could be tremendous for the area.

Bancroft Deputy Reeve Earl Hawley felt every advantage should be taken of the industrial incentive program and also ARDA grants that were available.

He pointed to a $2.1 million project okayed by ARDA for the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Thurlow Reeve said this was a long range plan for the construction of several dams, all of which were lost in Hastings county.

Warden Shannon noted that ARDA grants covered 50 per cent of the cost, the balance to be raised by the participating municipalities.

Municipal representation on the enlarged Bay of Quinte High School District came up for brief discussion with the reading of a letter from the Department of Education informing that approval had been given to the 13-member board.

Member municipalities in the school area will appoint 17 members. One member each will be appointed by the county and separate school board.

In areas where two or more municipalities combine to name one board member, the municipalities will rotate in making the appointment, although the directive does not say the appointee must be from the municipality making the appointment.

Huntingdon Township to Have First Deputy Reeve in 57 Years

Despite all the talk of regional government and the centralization of municipal operations, Hastings County Council is still having growing pains.

Next year the county council body will have one more member, bringing the number of reeves and deputy reeves to 34.

The reason is that Huntingdon township will be sending a deputy reeve to council meetings, the first such representative it has had in 57 years.

Before 1910, Huntingdon had a deputy reeve but with the decline in rural population a half century ago it lost its municipal council representative. The requirement for a deputy reeve is that the municipality have 1,000 property owners, tenants and farmers' sons.

Mr. Mclnroy in this category again exceed the 1,000 mark and the municipality is again entitled to a deputy reeve.

The new deputy is Kenneth Holland who has already received acclamation for the office.

But incumbent reeve Goldie Mclnroy has a fight on his hands for the reeveship. He is being opposed by councillor Russell Sills in Saturday's election, which will also name the new council.

Just for sentiment sake may be Mr. Mclnroy should be the deputy reeve. His father was the last deputy reeve — 57 years ago.

Council to Proceed with Official Plan

NAPANEE — Napanee Town Council meeting Monday evening passed a motion to proceed with the official town plan. At a meeting of council members and members of the Town Planning Board late in October two representatives of the Ontario Department of Planning and Development explained the necessity of such an official plan, and the means by which it could be secured. The first step is to hire a planning consultant. A special meeting will be held in two weeks to deal with the matter.

Of late council has become increasingly aware that an official plan is necessary before the town can develop further. This necessity was brought home sharply when the housing by-law was submitted by the council to the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs for its approval and was informed that such approval cannot be gained until Napanee has an official town plan.

An official plan would advise on future developments such as the installation of facilities to areas which are now without them.

One further proof that such a plan is needed came up at Monday's meeting. The Industrial Committee wished the town to approve the purchase of between 25 and 30 acres for an industrial park. The matter was referred to the financial committee.

David Elected Councillor

Alderman Enos David of Belleville was named councillor-at-the regional council of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society held recently at Toronto.

The Eastern Ontario region is the first regional council to be formed since the re-organization of the whole division of the society. Jack Fry of Cornwall is chairman for the region.

Alderman and Mrs. Enos David represented the Quinte committee at the Ottawa meeting.

Dr. H. A. Smythe, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Toronto spoke at the meeting and elaborated on the spearheads in the fight against arthritis.

He said the struggle against rheumatic diseases was approaching the point of "breakout" toward eventual control.

The biggest problem, however, is that most people fail to recognize arthritis as a serious disease until the damages has been done.

Dr. Smythe said there were still one million Canadians suffering from arthritis of which 285,000 are disabled to some extent. Modern treatment taken soon enough could have spared all of them years in pain and possible disability," he said.

Experience and Potential

Belleville's city council faces an interesting two years. But it gives indication of being a difficult period.

It brings up a point which may have been overlooked. This is the factor of experience in municipal affairs.

Dr. Russell Scott's 1968-69 council will have this experience contained among only half of his aldermen. In addition, their total years of public service number 27, with the major portion of this being concentrated in the combined 17 years of Ald. Arthur Keegan and Ald. Enos David.

Lost at the polls were some dedicated and experienced men in Jack Ellis, Jack Allin and Thomas Carruthers. In addition Ald. Donald Joss declined to have his name stand for re-election.

When almost every candidate pinpointed industrial promotion as one of the basic problems facing the city, it would seem a natural that the incoming council should consider appointing Jack Ellis to the industrial commission. He is without a doubt the most knowledgeable individual in the city in industrial matters. His experience would be of extreme value.

Donald Joss is another whose talents should be exploited. In his years on council he gained a reputation of making it a point to be conversant with the problems of civic administration.

As a representative on the Moira River Conservation Authority he diligently pursued the city's best interest. If he could be prevailed upon to accept, a spot should be found for him on one of the council's appointed bodies.

Nothing is as inexorable as time. What is in the past is gone, but experience combined with ability should not be wasted.

B and B Commission

If there is one thing English Canadians are tired of hearing in the midst of all this bilingualism and biculturalism business it is the suggestion they are to blame for French Canada's underprivileged position.

Quebec is large extent is the author of its own misfortune in this regard. For nearly a quarter of a century it labored under the all-pervading administration of Maurice Duplessis.

Quebecers in those days led a sheltered existence dominated by the father-figure of Duplessis and the Church. It was a cloistered life and Ontario and Anglo-Saxon Canada were just shadowy regions out there somewhere in the wild blue yonder — if their existence even occupied at all.

Today all that is changed of course. Former Premier Lesage began the liberalizing trend and this was given impetus by the rise of a new generation of Quebecers.

Quebec thank the name heady potions of changing mores and restlessness that have been coursing in swift-running streams throughout the world. In their train came talk of separatism, special status, associate statehood and so on.

All the while English Canada watched — and wondered, and for the most part minded its own business. Now, after years of being told it is all our fault, Quebec gains further official recognition through the recommendations of the B and B Commission.

Will Quebec be satisfied? Having come this distance and achieved this much, will mere platitudes about equality be enough?

"There can be no doubt," says the commission report, "that Quebec is moving in the direction of more constitutional autonomy . . . To ignore it in this report would not only constitute an error, it would very likely mean that Quebec would refuse to listen to us."

Actually, this trend has been discernible for a long time. We cannot help but feel the B and B report is an anti-climax in the face of more formidable processes of evolution still being worked-out inside Quebec. For instance, Premier Johnson said only this week that he agrees with the theories of sovereign state status for Quebec.

At the federal level, the Government is acting with an alacrity that must be embarrassing to former Quebec Commissioners who have seen months of work go down the drain. It is giving the report priority.

Meanwhile, the voice of separatism in the Commons, Gilles Gregoire, was more blunt than most when he said the B and B Commission report had come too late. By the time its recommendations were adopted, he said, Quebec would be independent. We wonder if his prediction will come true.

Stanfield Takes Tumble Off Conservative Pedestal

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — The honeymoon is just about over for Conservative leader Robert Stanfield.

This period of sweetness and light began with his victory at Toronto in the Tory leadership convention.

He has been just a little bit bigger than life since that moment of historic glory.

But the dawn began the day after his first attempt to tumble the government in a non-confidence motion.

Mr. Stanfield had paired with Prime Minister Lester Pearson who had gone to London to pick up some university degrees and the freedom of the city.

The Commons opposition lost the vote with Mr. Stanfield sitting back in his chair looking decidedly awkward.

The next day at the Conservative caucus MPs bluntly told Mr. Stanfield they were unhappy over what he had done. They said he had erred and had made himself and the party look bad.

The party leader was told by one western member — "I want a leader who leads."

Mr. Stanfield reportedly advised the caucus that he had made a mistake in his courtesy to the prime minister. He promised not to perpetrate that kind of goof again.

This initial shortcoming on Mr. Stanfield's part had people in Ottawa talking excitedly about him — a harder, tougher scrutiny than he had previously experienced.

Members of all parties began to ask for the first time if Bob Stanfield really is all that good.

His came to Parliament Hill like a knight in shining armor. His triumph in the convention, his fine speeches and gentlemanly manner had combined to create a kind of legend.

Press, radio, and television provided the former Nova Scotia premier with tremendous coverage and almost all of it was highly favorable.

After his election to the Commons in the Colchester-Hants byelection, he came to the House of Commons like some kind of hero. He didn't have a mark on him.

Mr. Stanfield in fact became the "good guy" in the Parliament Hill list of characters. Perforce, Prime Minister Lester Pearson was assigned the "bad guy' role although he was not entirely convincing in the part.

It had been in recent times that former Tory chief John Diefenbaker had been the villain of the federal political scene. The tasks Mr. Pearson took good just by contrast.

But when Mr. Diefenbaker was dumped by the party he was replaced by Robert Stanfield whom everyone found to be likeable, talented and evidently with great promise.

This made the prime minister appear like an old political hand somewhat shopworn and tattered around the edges.

It was interesting too that not long after the Stanfield arrival in Ottawa, the moderate chatter about Mr. Pearson retiring mounted to almost a clamour as pundits declared that he must go.

The dissension in the Liberal parliamentary caucus, the feuds in the cabinet and the decline of Lester Pearson was something fearful, the political experts advised.

As opposed to this, here was Robert Stanfield, calm and confident, leading the Tories back to unity and harmony with his rule by committees and sub-committees.

The public opinion polls chimed in too with astonishing reports of Conservative strength in the nation.

Mr. Stanfield made his first major speech in the House and it was competent and authoritory. He levelled a few barbs, displayed his ironic humor and it was generally agreed that he had been a success — if not a sensation.

Then came that vote and Mr. Stanfield looking uncomfortable and much more human.

It was followed by debate on capital punishment which saw the Tory leader heading a party rump of only 15 for the abolition cause while more than 50 of his MPs voted the other way.

Of course it was a free vote, but it demonstrated that the new Tory unity was not all that deep. There were some angry and bitter exchanges over capital punishment within the party. And again Mr. Stanfield was made to appear awkward.

In succeeding days he continued to move gingerly, like someone walking on eggshells. He did not speak often and the critical question period. He did not give the government a real lacing.

For the first time there were comments in the parliamentary press gallery like —"I wonder if this guy is going to be a real bust."

This cynical attitude appears to be as much out of touch with reality as the former overwhelming press written about Mr. Stanfield right after the Tory convention.

It is quite apparent that Mr. Stanfield is meeting his test with caution, trying to build the party on a long-term basis.

It is also evident that he will not depend on flashy appearances in the Commons to court favor of journalists.

Mr. Stanfield remains a solid, responsible political figure with a firm record behind him in Nova Scotia. His appeal is not going to be anything like that of John Diefenbaker or even Lester Pearson.

He continues to impress with his courtesy, his intellectual capacities, and his integrity.

Perhaps Mr. Stanfield is a little slow for some in Ottawa and no doubt it was inevitable that his image should be brought down to earth.

But it show's he is making progress where one of the press, radio and television start getting on his back.

Atlantic Provinces Lag Behind

Fredericton Gleaner

The truth is that, although equalization grants are necessary for the survival of the economies of the Atlantic Provinces, they are a mere step toward closing the gap between this area and the rest of Canada. Much more is needed. In spite of equalization grants, the people of Atlantic Canada exist on standards a third lower than other Canadians. No progress has been made in closing the gap. Instead of driving toward parity, we are sliding backward.

Clearly the equalization payments to which the richer provinces contribute are not enough. These provinces should be doing more; Canada should be doing more. And the thing that should be done is to launch a program of massive development here. To bring national standards of living and services to the Atlantic Provinces would be to enrich all of Canada. For a region dragging behind the Canadian economy is bad for the whole nation.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 7, 1967 . . .

Canada formally declared war on Japan 26 years ago today—in 1941—only hours after Japanese aircraft bombed the United States air and naval base at Pearl Harbor. The prompt action made Canada the first of the Western Allies to enter a state of war officially. The United States and Britain declared war on Dec. 8.

1542—Mary Queen of Scots was born.

1815—Marshal Ney was executed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—the United States declared war on Austria-Hungary; Monte Seirino on the Italian front was captured by Austro-German troops; British forces captured positions at La Vacquerie in the Cambrai area on the Western Front.

Tax Report Bites Dust

Windsor Star

The Carter Report on Taxation, on which much time and money were expended, now will go to the archives in Ottawa to gather dust along with almost countless other commission reports. Finance Minister Michael Sharp almost brutally knocked it on the head.

It was a controversial proposal which would have given Canada the most modern tax system in the world. But analysis did reveal defects and the Government has no intention of sticking its head in a political noose by putting it into effect. Canada still is stuck, and seemingly forever, with its present unwieldy system, subject to patching here and there in future years.

Foot-and-mouth Disease in U.K.

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

As if they did not have enough troubles, the British are now fighting one of the worst outbreaks of foot - and - mouth disease yet seen among the hoofed farm population.

The only form of control is to kill and destroy infected animals as rapidly as they are found. Claims for government compensation for animals destroyed on veterinarians' orders are estimated at more than $17,000,000, and the shooting goes on.

We are so accustomed to thinking of Britain as a land of crowded cities, factories and shipyards that it takes a piece of bad news to remind us of the importance of farming in the United Kingdom. The cattle populations of Britain and Canada are usually about equal, averaging 12,000,000 each over recent years.

The total livestock population of Britain is greater than Canada's, because of the much greater sheep population in the grazing areas of Scotland, Wales and the hilly counties of England. We think of Canada as the land of open spaces and big ranches, but our cattle, sheep and swine together total about 20,000,000 while Britain's matching total is 35,000,000.

British farmers cannot produce enough food for the 50,000,000 people of their island but they do produce enough to feed more than 80,000,000, which is the population of Canada. The biggest part of their farming industry is the livestock sector.

The centuries-old farms which have given the world the Hereford and Angus breeds of cattle, the Yorkshire and Tamworth breeds of pig, still are good homes for those breeds.

About 240,000 animals have been slaughtered so far in the fight against foot-and-mouth disease. This is not a big fraction of Britain's livestock total, but the quarantine, the suspension of sales and the uncertainty are hard blows to a basic industry.

It comes at a poor time when the excess of imports over exports has forced devaluation of the pound sterling. The Wilson government can apply belt - tightening to the imports of Italian sports cars and French wines, but it can't bar imports of food; Britons must eat.

McNamara's Final Budget

Vietnam Is Costing United States $63,000,000 A Day

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

One of Robert McNamara's final duties as defence secretary will be to wrestle with the military budget for the next fiscal year starting July 1. His figures will give U.S. taxpayers a fresh look at the mounting costs of the Vietnam war.

The simplified picture has been one of little. David holding an enormous Goliath at bay. In fact, the war more and more has the chilling look of a global conflict between the United States and a Communist world numbering 1,000,000,000.

The more the Communist nations have invested in the war, the greater the cost to the United States. The costs now have soared to astronomical heights. McNamara, as civilian boss of the military, has been in charge of spending one half the U.S. budget, and of that half 25 per cent goes to Vietnam in the current year."

The First World War is estimated to have cost the United States $32,200,000,000. At the present rate of spending, if it continues through the next fiscal year, Vietnam will have cost more than double that figure.

The Second World War is estimated to have cost the United States $287,000,000,000. If the present rate continues through the next fiscal year, Vietnam costs for four months years will have reached 20 per cent of the costliest war in history.

These are apart from the costs incurred by the six other fighting allies of the United States.

There is no way of making an accurate assessment of the cost on the Communist side. Although it would fall far short of what the United States is spending, it would not be cheap in relation to the economic capabilities and problems of the Communist nations.

Although the Communist world is deeply divided because of the feud between the Soviet Union and China, the Russians and Chinese along with their respective allies are engaged in supporting the Communist side in Vietnam, each for its own purposes, and each with the satisfaction of knowing that such support may idrain American resources and arouse internal frictions in the United States.

It is unlikely the Communist cause in Vietnam could long survive without the heavy material support flowing from the Soviet Union, China and other Communist nations. Thus, while Communist powers avoid a military confrontation, the Vietnam war has important aspects of a global conflict.

As of now, the war costs Americans about $63,000,000 a day. Up to that time it will be close to half the entire U.S. foreign aid investment for the 20 years from 1946 to 1966.

The outlay for the war in the 1967-68 fiscal year would cover the entire budget expenses of a nation like France, or pay the annual expenses of the United Nations 100 times over.

Thurlow Threatens to 'Opt Out'

Hastings County Welfare System Approved--Belleville Included

Hastings county council by a two thirds majority vote this morning approved of a welfare administration system taking in the entire county and the city of Belleville.

The vote came as the climax of a lengthy discussion which threatened to open into personalities between councillors favoring the move and those opposed.

Earlier Mr. Bert Quilchaud, welfare administrator for the county of Wentworth, and Frank Noble, regional welfare director for the province, addressed the council.

The vote by council was on the adoption of a final report of a special committee on welfare consolidation which recommended a county welfare unit incorporating the city of Belleville.

Special committee chairman Reeve Henry Rowland Rodgers of Stirling recommended adoption of the report.

During the discussion on the welfare matter, Thurlow Reeve Carl Thompson said his municipality would "opt" out of any welfare unit formed by the county.

"If county council approves of a county welfare unit Thurlow township will be asked to be excluded," he said. "Thurlow will not be part of a county welfare system."

Reeve Beatrice Fred Beckett said he also was opposed to the county unit.

But taking a different view was Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside who said that a county welfare unit was "long overdue" in Hastings.

He said that a county unit would diverse the administration of welfare from local sympathy and prejudice

William McKee, Hungerford deputy reeve, admitted that administration costs of county welfare may be more "but we would get better administration."

Reeve Barbara Allen questioned whether Thurlow's threat to "opt" out of any county welfare system was permissible. She said it would be fragmenting the county.

But Reeve Thompson pointed out that Tweed and Hungerford had separated from the Centre Hastings High School area some years ago.

"We don't like to be pushed around either," he said.

Mrs. Allen replied that the same conditions did not apply. She said that in the issue reduced to by Mr. Thompson only a few county municipalities were involved.

In any event, she said, it appeared that Tweed was going to be forced back into a county school system.

Regional Welfare director F. Noble said if the majority of municipalities approved of the county unit all municipalities would have to be included.

Later Clerk-Treasurer Carl Bateman spelled out the act which he said allowed municipalities with a population of more than 5,000 to opt out with the approval of county council and the minister of welfare.

Warden William Shannon called a halt to personalities being involved in the discussion. He said he favored the county unit claiming that in many instances local administration of welfare could be harmful to recipients.

"There is more than money involved," he said.

Rawdon Reeve J. N. Brown said he would vote for county welfare even if the cost was double. He felt the county could afford any additional expenses, noting that the county rate had gone up only three mills in the past 12 years.

Reeve Allen said she deplored local administration of welfare with relief cases being reviewed by council. With this the case, welfare was reduced to common gossip where discussions should be confidential.

"I don't like it," she said.

Herschel Reeve Frank Peever said he approved of county welfare, but in view of the remarks made by Mr. Cruikshank on welfare administration in his county, he felt that the system lacked business, lastness and slothfulness should be taken out of the dictionary.

"They just don't mean anything any more."

Reeve Rodgers brought the discussion to an end with a suggestion that should county welfare be approved special consideration be given to municipalities that now have part time welfare administrators.

Earlier this year the city of Belleville expressed willingness to be part of any county welfare system formed by Hastings.

Theft of Lights Irks City Residents

A spokesman for the City Police has warned that anyone caught taking Christmas tree lights will be charged following their ages.

The announcement came as the result of numerous complaints of Christmas decorations, mainly lights, being stolen from outside homes.

The spokesman stated that patrols would be stepped up in an effort to apprehend the persons involved.

It is believed by the police department that the "vandals" involved are between the ages of eight and 10 years of age. Many reports have stated that observers saw children running away from the scene of Christmas bulb thefts.

The thefts are not based on profitable robbing but on vandalism the police say. "Most of the bulbs are taken and just broken."

Citizens seeing children making off with bulbs or about to, are advised to call the police rather than going outside and accosting them. "The children just run off," said a police officer.

About a dozen calls have been received concerning this complaint so far this year.

Brakemen Dies on Train After Heart Attack

OSHAWA — A brakeman was taken off a Canadian National freight passenger train here last night after suffering a fatal heart attack following a routine run as a passenger who boarded at Belleville.

The dead railroader was identified by provincial police in Belleville as Howard Pickering, 54, of Weston.

Police said Pickering was apparently involved in a "scuffle" some time previously with the passenger on the Toronto - bound passenger train from Ottawa.

The passenger, said police, was also removed from the train here and taken to the nearby Oshatio hospital.

Devaluation "Possibility" If Demands Not Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — A chemical industry executive said Wednesday night devaluation of the Canadian dollar is a possibility if "excessive" demands on the economy are not reduced by both government and labor.

E. H. Blackwell, executive vice-president of Du Pont of Canada Ltd., told the School of Business, University of Toronto:

"If we are not able to devise ways to reduce the excessive claims of both government and labor on the nation's economy, we face the eventual solution—devaluation."

Mr. Blackwell said the fact we would have to be faced that Canadian industry could not for long operate under public programs which added to costs and "still remain competitive under conditions of trade liberalization."

Industry was going to be hit by a lowering of trade barriers at a time when foreign competition for domestic markets was intensifying, he said.

He criticized the forthcoming relaxation in Canada's anti-dumping regulations. He said it is feared the administrative problems and loopholes provided by any new regulations and procedures will constitute an open invitation to foreign producers to dump in this country.

Mr. Blackwell said total chemical sales for 1967 will show an increase of almost five per cent, with imports up 15 per cent and exports up less than seven per cent.

A text of his speech was made available in advance of delivery.

Delayed Honeymoon Enjoyed by Couple

Dear Doris: We never had a honeymoon. On the day of our marriage the family I had boarded with invited us to stay with them from Wednesday to Sunday and to take us for a drive on Sunday. He accepted. To my way of thinking this was no honeymoon.

Anyway after 15 years I persuaded him we should have a short honeymoon. So we went to our nearest city, left our three children with his brother and spent two nights in a nice motel with pool, etc. Wonderful!

Then we went back for the children, and my husband, knowing I didn't play cribbage, suggested and played cards with his father-in-law. I felt hurt and left out, especially when it was supposed to be a weekend for him and me.

He doesn't agree. What do you think? — Badly Treated

DORIS CLARK

Dear Badly: Too bad he didn't put the icing on the cake. But wasn't there room here for some praise and good nature? After all, he did make the tremendous effort to give you One Gorgeous Week End!

I agree with you that you need more times together. Your endless routine is beyond your husband's imagination; and love needs cultivating.

But you can still catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

Dear Doris: Why is it important to get people up and walking so soon after surgery? And is hip surgery under X-ry, is the radiation harmless? — Senior Citizen

Dear Citizen: As my doctor puts it:

"Early ambulation after surgery, especially in the elderly, decreases pneumonia, phlebitis and pulmonary embolism — three of the most serious complications of surgery. The need for rapid surgery has been markedly cut down by improved anaesthesia and better understanding of good post-operative care. Heart and brain surgery may last for six ten hours.

"About hip surgery: the late Dr. Ernest James of Hamilton probably did as much as any man in the world in spreading the use of the pin for hip surgery in suitable cases under fluoroscopic X-rays. With an expert like him the whole job was done in a few minutes and the radiation was of no significance."

* * *

Dear Doris: (1) If you are at a party and you would like to ask a girl to go steady with you, how would you ask her? Would you take her for a walk away from the party and express yourself to her by a loving kiss, or would you tell her in so many words that you would like to go steady with her but remain at the party?

(2)- If the girl says "yes", wouldn't it be proper, before taking her on dates, to get permission from her parents to take their daughter out? — Puzzled Lover.

Dear Lover: (1) I'd prefer the loving kiss way, myself.

(2) Very nice idea. Nothing like having the family on your side.

Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents who enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Cranberry Muffin Recipe

By MARY MOORE

Thanks to Thanksgiving dinner we had 1½ cups cranberry sauce leftover. This tantalized us then the light dawned. A couple were coming to spend the evening who have come to expect "something hot from the oven". What to do? Simple! Make Cranberry Muffins. Don't have a blueberry muffin recipe?

It seems to be ahead of time to be talking about post Christmas leftovers but I bet you will be glad of this when the week between Christmas and New Years rolls round.

Or make or buy cranberry sauce and make them now. —

CRANBERRY MUFFINS
(Eighteen 2½" muffins)

1¼ cups cranberry sauce
¼ cup butter (room temperature)
¼ cup sugar
1 large egg
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
2 tsps. (1 tbsp) baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk

Sift and measure flour. Take out 2 tbsps. and stir it into the cranberry sauce until blended. Sift the remaining flour with the baking powder and salt. Cream the butter with the sugar and beat in the egg. Now to the creamed mixture add the flour and milk, half of each at a time, stirring barely enough to mix. (You know muffins should be always undermixed which results in a lumpy batter, but this is necessary to get characteristic muffin texture.) Fold in the floured cranberries gently, barely enough to mix. Fill hot, buttered or oiled or greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Immediately put in oven and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 25 or 28 min.

Serve at once if possible, in napkin - lined muffin basket. These muffins are at their best warm. Lovely for a Sunday morning breakfast between Christmas and New Years with lots of butter and honey or your own homemade jam or jelly.

Ann Landers

Homosexual Regrets Taking Marriage Step

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When homosexuals ask if they should get married for any reason whatever tell them: "No."

Right now I am trying to figure out what to say to my wife. She knows something is wrong but she has no idea what the real problem is. I've started to tell her a dozen times but I can't get the words out.

ANN LANDERS

Don't say I need psychiatric help. I have no desire to be straight. I just want out of this marriage. I'm being unfair to my wife and it is giving me a terrific guilt complex. She wants a family. I don't. I am happy only when I'm with my gay crowd. I thought marriage would "cure" me but I was wrong. I even went out cruising at our honeymoon.

Some people say writing the problem down on paper often produces a solution but it didn't for me. Tell me what to do. — A GUY.

DEAR GUY: Read your wife this column and tell her you are in deep trouble.

There's a good chance that the marriage could be annulled. See a lawyer. If an annulment is out, a divorce is the answer. The sooner you free your wife to live a normal life with a man who can give her love and children, the better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today I vowed to clean out my attic. I started out brimming with energy. I planned to get the job done by 5:00 p.m. Well, I ran into a box of letters from my old sweetheart (the man I nearly married) and there I sat for four and a half hours. I ended up burning the letters but had I been a troublemaker I could have done otherwise. The man who wrote the letters is now a prominent citizen in this community and his face would be fire-engine red if I had shown them around.

The moral of my story is: Don't put anything in a letter that might sit in someone's attic for 25 years. — GALLANT LADY.

DEAR GALLANT: Sounds as if the letters were fairly sizzling, which raises this question: Why do you congratulate yourself for destroying them? Had you shown them around you'd have wound up looking pretty scarlet yourself, Toots.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A great deal is said these days about international relations. What about people-to-people relations? What has become of those fine old qualities called kindness and courtesy? Once upon a time these two ingredients were essential to business success.

Today when you ask a waitress for service she tells you she only has two hands or she makes you order rude remarks. Carrier boys throw your papers in the bushes, on the roof or in the mud and you can like it or lump it. Sales people are mostly indifferent. It promises to deliver merchandise means nothing. If you don't want to accept the merchandise when it comes, someone else will.

Why do we let 'em get away with it? What's the answer? — DISGUSTED IN TAMPA.

DEAR TAMPA: Today we are experiencing a seller's market. This is one of the penalties we pay for prosperity. Jobs are plentiful. Good help is in short supply. More people have more of everything — except initiative and pride in achievement.

Nevertheless, I do not buy your sweeping generalities. There are still some courteous, gentle sales people and industrious carrier boys around. Granted not as high a percentage as there used to be, but if you speak kindly you'll find them.

Computers Open New Jobs for Women

TORONTO (CP) — Will machines continue to be a girl's best friend or will they send working women back to the kitchen?

Prof. Scott Gordon of Indiana University says a sharp reduction in the female work force as machines replace women in business and industry.

But Lida Rose Batcherman, director of the women's bureau of the Ontario labor department, disagrees.

"Automation jobs are up for grab. They're not pen-linked jobs, described as specifically for men or women, and women can get them if they have the qualifications—unless they opt out."

And it seems that many are. Almost every woman in the labor department's retraining program for women over 35 who want to return to the work force after marriage and child-rearing selects the progression of retraining for work in data processing, says Mrs. Batcherman.

"They feel the computer has passed them by."

But, she added, statistics show just the opposite.

The bureau lists 83 positions related to data processing—at least half of which can be filled by the clerk-typist.

For example, she said, the Ontario government hired nearly as many women employees as men on its permanent staff last year. The majority of them work for the Medical Services Insurance Plan, which has a highly unusual personnel.

H. A. Greene, a former manager of an International Business Machines data centre, says that 80 per cent of the women who take the company's programming aptitude tests come up with top marks.

"The computer won't eliminate clerks," he said. "We're a long way from eliminating the keypunch operator."

And, he added, say woman who can type 65 words a minute can learn to be a keypunch operator.

At IBM's data centre, there are two large rooms of keypunch machines and their operators. Because the computer works 24 hours a day, there is even a married women's shift — 4 p.m. to midnight.

One young woman who has decided on a career in computer programming is Goldie Dacks, who had teaching in mind until she took a university option in computer science.

"I decided computer programming would be more creative. The challenge is in the logic of the problem you're working out. It gives you a tremendous sense of satisfaction and you're doing something different every minute."

But if women are to take full advantage of the data-processing field they have to start in school, says Mrs. Batcherman.

They can begin by stimulating the doll corner in nursery school and steering girls toward the blocks and tools and construction toys the boys play with.

Mr. Greene suggested that girls should try for summer jobs in business and industry so they will have practical experience to add to their academic achievements.

There is lots of opportunity for training, Mrs. Batcherman said, but instead of going all the way to a doctor's degree without considering what you are going to do with it, women must start planning.

Capacity Crowd Attends Tabernacle Church Bazaar

The hall of Tabernacle United Church was jammed Wednesday afternoon as Christmas shoppers sought the bargains offered at the annual tea and bazaar sponsored by the women of the church.

For those who could squeeze through the crowd, handicrafts, home cooking, and Christmas decorations galore were waiting. This is the year of the novelty shaped pasta, as these grocery shelf items are transformed with glue and gold and silver spray paint into baroque wall plaques, centrepieces and holiday knick - knacks of all kinds. Miniature Christmas trees of linen paper, ribbon and pasta were eagerly seized by early shoppers.

Receiving patrons at the door were Mrs. R. Crooks, Mrs. R. Lott, Mrs. K. Cornish, Mrs. E. R. Nelson, Mrs. C. Tempier and Mrs. H. Bailey. The walls of the main hall were bedecked with arrangements of large Christmas candles and greens, with an evergreen arch over the bazaar table in the centre of the room. Mrs. Margaret Orr was in charge of the decorations.

Mrs. Morley Graham and Mrs. J. Smith convened the tea room. The two tea tables were centred with red and gold tapers surrounded by evergreens and gilded cones. Each individual table held a single taper on an evergreen base.

Those pouring tea were Mrs. R. Crooks, Mrs. E. Nelson, Mrs. W. Slavin, Mrs. R. Cornish, Mrs. F. MacLean, Mrs. E. Lott, Mrs. O. Bidded, Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mrs. R. Johnson and Mrs. G. Priest.

For the convenience of the large crowd in attendance, the general conveners, Mrs. E. Lott and Mrs. E. R. Nelson, had provided a check room and a nursery.

Booths and their conveners were: aprons, Mrs. W. B. May; children's wear, Mrs. William Smith; Christmas decor, Mrs. Ken Devine; fancy work, Mrs. Ray Lockyer; toyland, Mrs. Dawson MacLean, Mrs. William Babbitt, Mrs. William MacKay; Hi-C group, David Lott; men's club, A. C. Walker, J. Hunter; home baking, Mrs. E. Greenleaf, Mrs. William Wonnacott; delicatessen, Mrs. B. D. Salsbury; candy, Mrs. N. Robb, Mrs. H. C. Barlow; Club's, Mrs. E. Hine, Mrs. M. Akey; Explorers, Mrs. A. C. Walker.

Unusual Gifts

What's the Teen Want for Christmas?

By STEPHEN BISHOP

The holiday season is upon us. Yes, there are only 17 shopping days left until Christmas. So, it might be appropriate to find out what young people want for Christmas this year.

The best suggestions came from students at Centennial and Nicholson.

Brian McQuaid, a junior student at Nicholson, wants a "psychedelic lollipop." Wayne Farrell, another Nicholson junior, belongs up an oldie we haven't heard for some time—he'd like "two front teeth."

An anonymous Grade 10 student at Centennial, identified only as Linda, has a new twist on the touch bit. She wants two false teeth.

Don Sunks, a Nicholson junior, says, "I'd like a five foot three inch real live doll with blonde hair and blue eyes." Although the height and color of eyes and hair may vary from person to person, Don is undoubtedly not alone in his wish.

On the other hand, Nancy Riedel, a Grade 11 student at Centennial, asks for "better term marks in home economics." Not everyone is worried about this course, but there was a desire for more printable report cards.

Sisters, of whom there are many among the student population, would be pleased to see some more for a change.

Among the more material gifts solicited, a motorcycle was the most common with a pool table not far behind.

Musically - inclined students had their own requests. Nicholson's Joanne Raycraft, for instance, is after a "Classical guitar," while Centennial's Linda Thompson would like maracas.

Students give as well as receive at Christmas, which, along with other holiday expenditures, puts a strain on the teen-ager's financial reserves. And that brings up the important question of holiday employment.

A number of students will find employment at the post office, handling the Christmas mail rush. Another possibility is the fine, dry army course held at the Belleville Armouries.

Many students hold part-time jobs at grocery stores and various other establishments. Many of these will work full-time for the duration of the holiday period.

But there are a great number of students who are in the same boat as Ted Sullivan, a Grade 12 student at Moira, who complains that "Christmas employment is pretty scarce this year."

Well, even if little brother's piggy bank must be cracked, there are lots of Christmas gifts to be bought over the next 17 days.

Quinte Float in Parade Meant to 'Break The Ice'

By GARY McLEOD

ALTHOUGH OUR float is dismantled and our band and cheerleaders are having their well deserved rest the Christmas spirit around the school has by no means deteriorated. The Keyettes are making decorations for the halls which they will be decorating very shortly.

This will give vent to imaginative and creative talents blossoming in the girls and will also add greatly to the beautification of our school. The main showcase next to the office, for visitors, was decorated by Quintaire, the school newspaper and cannot help but be noticed.

The technical showcase was decorated by the two year course—and I am sure that most of you will agree that this is surely a job well done.

• • •

THERE SEEMS to be some complications as the reason for Quinte's contributions to the Santa Claus Parade in Belleville on December 2. The reason for the entry of the float was not a competitive one.

It was merely to begin something which we hope all the schools will follow up next year. We merely meant to break the ice. To some critics the float was not the best but to us it was because it was made by us and not for us.

A hearty thank you and congratulations go out to the band for their outstanding presentation even through the distractions from the shananigans taking place on the float. We can not forget our majorettes as beautiful as they are.

• • •

ALL BELLEVILLE students are reminded of the Christmas Dance to be held at Quinte on Friday December 15, 1967. The fabulous and fantastic Sands of Time will once again be entertaining on the throne of come along and by all means bring a friend. Times will be posted at all the entrances to school dance dress will apply.

• • •

QUINTESSENCE, the school year book at Quinte, is just finishing up planning and pictures taking this week. We regret the pictures of the school clubs and athletic teams.

If any student would like any mark adjustments they are advised to contact the subject teachers before the marks are entered on the sheets on Friday.

Well I guess that is about all from our school this week so until next Thursday.

Drugs and Stimulants Subject of BCI Talk

By TOM TERUSH

ALTHOUGH a relatively quiet week went by at BCI, there was a Wednesday morning assembly worth noting.

The first, and shorter, part of it was a presentation of perfect three, four, or five-year (there was only one five-year award, to Ralph Spencer) attendance awards; the major part was a speech by Dr. Williamson on drugs and other artificial stimulants.

CIGARETTES, alcohol, marijuana, heroin and LSD were cited as examples with their contents and uses explained and dangers and effects pressented. It was rewarding to the audience to be given facts instead of warnings, details instead of admonishments; and mere faith in youth's ability to make wise decisions is apt to be a great incentive to making a proper choice.

• • •

THIS FRIDAY at noon hour the hay club and keyettes will battle it out once again on the basketball court.

BCI's cheerleaders will try to defend the title they captured last year when they all go to the cheerleaders' competition this weekend at Picton. Everyone support them and help win the award again this year.

Any BCI organizations which want activities made known to the world can get in touch with a member of the newly-formed writers' club for the necessary details.

Don't Quit School

By SUE ELLIS

The following was written by a former CSS student and is a true story.

"SCHOOL DROPOUT"

MANY people wonder why some teenagers drop-out of school. They ask questions such as: "Why did you quit?" "What will you do?" and most often of all "Why don't you come back?"

There are many reasons for everyone, has the same one. For instance, take my reason . . . which I feel is just about average.

School became monotonous; the same things, day after day, week out. Homework scarcely done, and over the horizon loomed exams. I was too lazy to pay attention in class so I repeatedly received detentions for my behaviour.

THEN, as a result, came the "big" day when I was called to the Head Worship came that my parents would be notified, and notified they were. I still knew not heard the end of it.

I was tired and "fed up" with school and just did not have the "guts" to take any more of it. I took the last step and quit. I regret what I did but I do not want to swallow my pride and admit I was wrong.

There is really not very much more to say on this, except three words of advice from one who knows, these are — "Don't do it."

• • •

LAST WEDNESDAY'S keyette dance was a terrific success. The profits — $1.26. We really appreciated the presence of students from neighboring schools—all 9 of them!

On the fifth of December, the grade 10 and 11 students who paid their 25 cents, were exempted from classes at 2:00 p.m. to see the Carl Sandburg presentation.

Loyalist Students Get Set for Exams

By PATRICIA BRIDGE

NOT MUCH activity is to be seen or heard around Loyalist this week. Everyone is busy reading books, which should have been read in October) writing over-due essays, typing last month's assignments, and catching up on notes.

The teachers have suddenly become popular after class. Even teachers have even noticed perfect attendance at their lectures this week. Wonder why! One word will sum it up — "Exams"!

An amazing event took place last Monday. The Loyalist boys defeated the Nicholson boys 37-30 in a basketball game played at Nicholson. If you are curious as to why this is "amazing," the Loyalist team has never played before except for two short intramural practices. Watch the results after they have played a few more games!

• • •

ON FRIDAY, December 15, Loyalist students are holding a combination dance. That is, a victory dance, finalizing the first term, and a Christmas party. This celebration will be held at the Tops Motor Hotel (not Club Casara as formerly advertised) in the Four Seasons Room, at 8:30. "T.C. and the Gang" will provide the music. Grade XII and XIII students from Nicholson, Quinte, BCI and Moira are welcome to attend.

Basketball Under Way

Moira School Wrestlers Unsurpassed

By STEPHEN HUNTER

OVER THE PAST five years the record of the Moira wrestling team has been unsurpassed by any other team in the County. Coach, head of the physical department at Moira, has led his wrestling teams to many championships and this year again this year to keep up this remarkable record.

The key of Quinte championships; three Central Ontario championships and one Ontario championship are a tribute to the fine coaching of Mr. Bolt and the fighting Trojan wrestlers. Congratulations and good luck in the upcoming season.

• • •

IN OTHER sports news, the basketball season starts Wednesday, Dec. 6 with bantam, junior and senior teams playing at Quinte. We have a lot of good players in all three divisions this year and excellent coaching from Mr. Lietzer, senior, Mr. LaBaron, Junior, and Gordon Smith with the bantams.

Good luck again, to all teams. Moira is behind you. Next Wednesday Dec. 13, THS plays at Moira and I hope there will be a record crowd out to cheer on the teams.

In interhorn sports the girls have finished their basketball season and the report handed to me is that 11G captured the championship in a sudden death finish against 11F.

• • •

IN BOYS. Interform Sports soccer and European handball finished, the standings are as follow: grade A leaders 9H with 82 points; 11 grade 10 the boys of 10F are holding a commanding lead over other teams with 127 points; 11G is taking the honors in their grade, pulling away from other teams with 126 points; and finally, in grade 12 and 13 competitions 13E holds a small margin over 13C of 6 points, having 84 and 78 points respectively.

School sweater sales last week were very poor with only five sweaters being sold. There are over 300 new students at Moira this year who do not yet own a school sweater, so come on, and show your school spirit. Sweaters may be sold by the keyettes at lunch hour, and before and after school for only $14.

• • •

STUDENT PARLIAMENT this year has started out full tilt and is doing a good job of keeping the school going. President Terry Crebsey reports that school pictures have all been distributed and now the council can concentrate on other projects.

Benches for the bus students are being made and should be ready in time for Christmas. A grant of $80 has been given to the school newspaper which hopes to have its first issue out before Christmas. Also Terry gave $200 to his brother Bob, but it really wasn't an act of brotherly love. Council granted the money to the letterman's club of which Bob Cretney is head.

THE NEW system of end of day registration is not as new to Moira as we think. In the first years of Moira's existence returning to home room periods after the day was over was an every day occurrence. Mr. Reid has told me that this type of registration has been brought back to keep better track of attendance.

He says it is not going to be enforced every day but used as a spot check. So would-be truants . . . beware . . . or your one period vacation may be given a two week extension. . .

NCC Plans Two Plays; New Chemistry Club Formed

By DONNA WHALEN

THE DRAMA club of NCC has started practice early this year because two plays, rather than one, have been undertaken. The director, Sister Mary Fleurian, says "The big production is scheduled for the 2nd and 3rd of February."

But neither the Sister nor any of the members will disclose the name. However, curious students have found out, via the grapevine, that it's another Broadway hit.

Any details about the Christmas play are also being withheld. But it's not for lack of curiosity. It has always been the policy of the drama club to keep everyone in eager anticipation.

• • •

STILL ANOTHER new club was formed at Nicholson this past week. Our benevolent principal, Mr. Ashok Agarwal, who even passed out cokes to those who stayed out after school on a certain day, called a meeting last Monday afternoon to explain a Chemistry Club for students interested in science and specifically chemistry.

The objective of this club is to visit factories and industries in Belleville and elsewhere and help students advance beyond the textbook stage and see the principles in action.

The physics students are becoming quite ambitious lately. No, they're not attempting to challenge Cape Kennedy, but they are in the same field.

Some time ago, they shot off a rocket that made a humble journey of about 50 feet. But beware! They soon may have it orbiting the school.

• • •

FLOOR HOCKEY is entering its second week and it continues to be the main attraction at noon hour. The boys are so enthusiastic that some, like Mike McCoy, are even willing to suffer a few bottle scars.

The COESA playoffs were held on Saturday with Nicholson playing host to the competing teams. Unfortunately, our girls were defeated. Nonetheless they put up a good fight and they benefited from the experience.

Familiar Faces Return To Trenton Graduation

By PAMELA MOUNTENAY

THE FAMILIAR faces of last year's graduates were seen at Trenton High's commencement ceremonies last week. Three Ontario Scholarship awards of $400 each were handed out to Paul Carlson, Peter Morrison and Gary Kalndahl.

School letters were presented to those former Grade 13 students thought to have done most for the school in extra-curricular activities.

After the ceremonies, a dance was held in the gymnasium, with a local band providing the music.

• • •

THOSE DREADED report cards were given out last Friday, much to the horror of most students. The marks on these cards are not the result of formal exams, but of informal tests and class participation grades given by the teachers. This will be the second year that THS students have to write only two sets of exams — one set in January and the other in June.

The report cards handed out last Friday are meant to show students how poorly or well they are doing in their subject.

AND FOR those students who hate the thought of June exams, at last there is a way out. A new system of recommendation has been announced. This popular innovation means that should a student make 70 per cent or higher in any subject on his January report and should he keep his grades up from then until the end of the school term — his teacher may suggest that he need not write a final exam in that subject.

The new system, hopefully, will be an incentive to make pupils work.

Dynamite Signal Sent 55,000 Miles

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hellyer pressed a button Wednesday, sent a coded signal 55,000 miles and dynamited a hole in the ground near Bouchette, Que., 70 miles north of Ottawa.

The button-pushing ceremony broke ground for a new Bell Telephone Co. of Canada installation capable of receiving signals from orbiting space communications satellites and retransmitting them into Canada's North.

Bell rigged a special TV circuit from Bouchette to an Ottawa hotel for the ground-breaking ceremony. When Mr. Hellyer pressed the button, the signal went from Ottawa "to Vancouver, back across the country to Mill Village, N.S., via space satellite to England, back across the Atlantic Ocean, by cable to Corner Brook, Nfld., from there to Montreal, back to Ottawa and up to Bouchette.

From the time Mr. Hellyer pushed the button until the blast appeared on the closed-circuit TV screens took about three seconds.

BACK ON RELIEF

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The end of the apple-picking season has brought a small surge in this city's welfare rolls. H. G. Chesebrough, social services director, told the board of control that since the close of the season, eight families living in Oshawa Housing Authority units went back on municipal relief.

Nova Scotia to Approve Bill Buying Dosco Mill

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia legislature will reconvene here today to give third and final reading to a bill approving provincial government purchase of the Sydney steel mill and the setting up of a Crown corporation to operate it.

The legislature sat briefly Wednesday; before adjourning out of respect to the 50th anniversary of the 1917 Halifax explosion which killed 1,600 persons and injured about 8,000.

The law amendments committee completed its detailed study of the bill Wednesday night and moved that it be brought back before the legislature.

The bill will keep the mill operating until April 30, 1969, one year beyond the closing date announced Oct. 13 by Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., its owners.

The bill approves purchase of the mill Dec. 31 for an undetermined amount of money. Premier G. I. Smith has said he estimates it will cost $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Dosco will operate the mill as an agent for the government until April 30, 1968, when it will come under the control of the government or its nominee until April 30, 1969.

Government spokesmen have said that the intent of the bill is to keep the mill in operation until a long-term solution to the problem can be found.

One of the amendments in the bill provides for a collective working agreement between the corporation and the United Steelworkers of America for the period between Jan. 1 and April 30.

Labor Minister T. J. McKeough said the government feels when it buys the plant it will be able to pick up the 1935 and 1966 pension plans of the employees, but said there is a grey area in connection with a pension plan started in 1925.

He said Dosco has an obligation for the 1935 and 1966 plans and can't escape their responsibilities. He said these plans are funded and in the hands of trustees.

However, the 1925 plan is not funded and the government is not in a position to guarantee back payments under it. He said he feels Dosco has an obligation to pay employees entitled in this plan, but the company does not feel that way.

Dr. McKeough said the medical insurance plan will be carried on after Jan. 1 and the pension funds are being investigated by the government's insurance advisers.

In the morning committee session, steel consultants testified that the Sydney mill is the most outmoded in Canada and no North American mill has as high production costs.

However, they said it was not imperative for the government to make any large investment during the 16 months they operate the mill. They said the time should be spent studying whether a modern plant at Sydney would be viable.

C. M. Almon, retired general manager of the Sydney mill, said when it was decided to build the Dosco plant at Contrecoeur, Que., he and other Dosco executives could not have foreseen the present "catastrophe."

He said the Contrecoeur plant was built to enable a market for Sydney semi-finished steel.

Talk Given On Industry

"I believe the community should create a favourable industrial atmosphere and to equate this into an industrial development formulology," R. M. Brown Industrial Commissioner in Belleville said Tuesday. He was speaking to the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. Brown outlined the responsibility of the municipality in industrial development. He explained that each municipality needed a "community climate, good schools, good streets, adequate water supply, good city government, good recreational facilities and land areas within the city where industry can be accommodated."

"To a large extent our success will depend also upon labor first in the number and skill of the potential employees available and second in the level of wages and fringe benefits demanded by labor."

Mr. Brown stated that industry requires understanding and good treatment from public service and elected officials.

"The favored community," he continued, "needs to have adequate housing facilities. In this respect civic officials should assist in orderly and properly located development of housing projects and provision of services."

Cape Breton to Get Mechanical Miners

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Since mining coal became a major Cape Breton industry in 1827, it has faced few more serious problems: the cost of getting coal to the surface; the cost of getting it to market.

The Cape Breton Development Corp., a federal-provincial agency established to oversee the gradual reduction of the 9,000-man industry, plans to tackle the first problem with a new mechanized coal-mining equipment.

Known as the Anderton shearer, the mechanical miner is seen as the instrument to increase productivity and reduce costs in the Cape Breton mines, thereby meeting the second problem—transportation costs to market.

"If we can do this, we can keep men employed," said Robinson Ord, president of the new corporation which also hopes to bring in new industry to replace jobs in the coalfields.

B-B Plan Another Snow Job to Keep Quebec Quiet--Levesque

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism was described Wednesday as "another snow job to keep Quebec quiet" and "$7,000,000 worth of trouble for Canada."

The "snow job" comment came from Rene Levesque, independent member of the Quebec legislature, while the latter remark was made by Robert Strachan, New Democratic Party leader in B.C.

Mr. Levesque, who has called for a sovereign state of Quebec, said he has not yet had a chance to thoroughly read the report, released Tuesday night, but at first glance it "appears to be another snow job to keep Quebec quiet."

Mr. Strachan said he was opposed to the principal recommendation of the report that bilingualism be an official policy wherever English or French minorities make up at least 10 per cent of the population.

Reaction from most other sections was generally favorable, but many politicians, while impressed with the report at first glance, said they wanted time to study it before making comment.

Duff Roblin, former premier of Manitoba on a visit to Toronto, said the report reinforces some conclusions reached at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference which ended last week.

"It's extremely important that English - speaking Canadians adopt a much wider and more generous view of linguistic equality. . . . We don't want to drive French-speaking Canada back into Quebec."

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

by BERNARD C. MELTZER

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Habitat, really special in apartment living, was the most exciting exhibit at Expo '67. Architectural gems like this would make America a splendid place to live.

What can be done to bring about this utopia? — Mr. P. A.

ANSWER: If the typical American family were millionaires, our cities could be full of Habitats. The average apartment in your dream house costs $130,000. On this basis, a two bedroom apartment would have to rent for about $2,000 per month. Comparatively, a Habitat apartment costs 14 times as much as a garden apartment and about 10 times as much as a high rise apartment.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: For three years, my husband read your column with ever increasing interest. You finally convinced him that the home is the most important asset a family has. Do-it-yourself projects are now his hobby.

I wanted to enclose a side porch. A contractor gave me an estimate for $200. My husband, instead, undertook the project.

It's now nine months later and I'm $650's poorer but the job is not yet finished. He's currently talking about adding a second bathroom. I'm afraid that job will bankrupt the family. Couldn't you find some other topic to write about? — Mrs. A. J.

ANSWER: You should be happy that your husband follows the real estate column and not the "go go" jet set. Home improvement is both a cheaper and less taxing hobby than women or liquor.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I've been looking at the same flowered wallpaper for over five years. In desperation, I painted the walls. The flowers showed through. I painted again. The flowers still showed through. I keep seeing flowers! Help! — Mrs. F. P.

ANSWER: It's always better to remove wallpaper before painting a wall. However, if it is desired to paint over wallpaper, one should first use a sealer on the paper before painting.

However, I don't recommend painting over wallpaper. Unless the paper is in excellent condition, the job will be unsatisfactory. Worse yet, once the paper is painted, it becomes almost impossible to get it off.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Gremlins have gotten into my doorbell. Anybody who presses the button gets a shock. On a wet day, it's enough to make your hair stand on end. What's happening? — Mr. S.H.

ANSWER: Your regular house current is being short circuited into the doorbell wire. This is a dangerous condition. It can result in injury and burns. Stop using the doorbell until an electrician traces the trouble.

Doorbell wiring is usually stepped down to 12 volts. Voltage of this magnitude cannot be felt. It's a safety factor. Your shocking condition comes from the 120 volt house wiring which apparently is touching your bell wiring.

• • •

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Parcels Lure for Thieves

Belleville Police Department officials have issued their second warning to Christmas shoppers. Christmas shoppers. Second to the phoney inspector game is the threat of petty thieves.

Police have suggested that shoppers, when leaving parcels in their cars, should lock them in the trunk, rather than leaving them in the front or back seats.

"Leaving parcels in plain view is a temptation to petty thieves," a spokesman said.

With parcels on the seats any thief can steal them in public, even if the door is locked. "Locking is no deterrent," the spokesman stated. "They can easily smash a no-draft window and unlock the door."

According to the police there are two purposes to putting the parcels in the trunk. "People prying on trunks are conspicuous." Secondly, parcels in a trunk are out of view of a thief.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Remember when you were going to be a legend in your own lifetime?"

Main Issue Quebec's Demand for New Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal officials say they fear the Confederation of Tomorrow conference and the report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, may obscure the cardinal issue between French and English Canada.

Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec dealt mainly at Toronto with the linguistic and cultural problem.

But he also submitted a paper, which he did not read, which outlines Quebec demands which go far beyond the field of languages and education rights.

Here are some excerpts from that document:

1. "Exclusive or paramount fiscal powers" must go hand in hand with exclusive jurisdictions given Quebec under a new constitution.

2. "Quebec cannot agree to stay out of the economic policy field for that would be tantamount to allowing another government to decide the course of her whole economy."

3. "The Quebec government would gradually become solely responsible within its territory for all public expenditures on every form of education, old age security, family allowances, health, employment and training of the labor force, regional development and, in particular, municipal aid programs, research, fine arts, culture, as well as any other social or cultural service within our jurisdiction under the present constitution."

4. "Quebec will necessarily have to obtain a new constitutional distribution of tasks giving her broader powers than she now exercises."

5. Quebec wanted "free rein to make its own decisions" affecting economic development, "that is, the forging of any economic and financial tool deemed necessary," and affecting "relations with certain countries and international organizations."

Election Fund Talk Irks Denis

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Raymond Denis charged the Crown Wednesday with trying to sway the jury at his trial against him by questions about Liberal party election funds and narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

His sudden outburst drew a sharp admonition from Judge Bruce Macdonald of Windsor, Ont., and Denis, 35-year-old lawyer, later apologized from the witness box to Crown Attorney John Cassells.

"You have no right to question me in the way you are now," Denis told Mr. Cassells after a series of questions about party funds and the Rivard affair.

"I have never had anything to do with the election fund. You are trying to influence the jury and you have no right to do this."

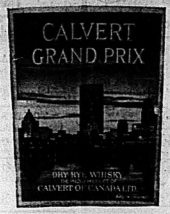
How Calvert found a new way to make rye incredibly smooth.



The name of the rye is Grand Prix. We made it incredibly smooth by making it dry.

And we made it dry by discovering a new way to make rye without any cloying sweetness.

This makes Grand Prix a full-bodied rye so smooth you can actually sip it straight. And like it.

Nobody ever made a rye as smooth as Grand Prix before because nobody ever knew how. It took Calvert ten years to do it, and naturally our Master Blender is pretty proud of it.

But try it yourself. In ten seconds you'll know why he's so proud.

Calvert Grand Prix. The world's first dry rye.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1967

A young prophet who it appears now has the honor in his own birthplace appeared in the paper her some time ago during the Pittsburgh-Minnesota exhibition game here.

He was—Ed Westfall of the Boston Bruins who was born here and was in the city to attend the funeral of a member of his family.

The natural question was posed to the handsome young hunky, "Where will the Bruins finish this year."

Ed crooked a finger and smiled. "You may get a big surprise. We've got new players, Bobby Orr, a fine coach in Harry Sinden and plenty of team spirit. I think we'll be up there in the top four, and perhaps closer to the top than experts think."

Well, so far young Marse Westfall's prediction seems to be headed the right way. The amazing Bruins have astounded the experts particularly with their showing against their old rivals of the eastern Big Six.

Furthermore it appears that one of their lines may set some scoring records if it keeps whirling along at its present dizzy scoring pace.

Centre Johnny Bucyk who had the audacity to replace Bobby Hull at the top of the NHL points race, and line mates John McKenzie and Fred Stanfield could be headed for the total points by one line personally held by the 1956-67 Red Wings line of Howe, Ullman and Lindsay.

This trio had 226 points in that season, Howe getting 89, Lindsay 85 and Ullman 52. Last year the Black Hawks line of Mikita, Wharram and Mohns gave the record a scare finishing with 223 points, four points shy.

Ron Andrews the NHL statistician said in Montreal the other day two present Boston line is going pretty fast right now. "They've got 91 points in 23 games and they haven't played one third of the schedule yet."

"If they keep that up they're going to finish with more than 272 points, Bucyk has 31 points, MacKenzie and Stanfield 30 each. Boston is leading the league with 84 goals and the line has accounted for 34 of them," Andrews said.

But the Bruins are not a one-line team. They have two secondary offensive units that are doing a fine job, too. Esposito, Hodge and Westfall form one of them and Sanderson, Williams and Fast Eddie Shack comprise the other.

Distribution of fire-power is proving a good asset for the Bruins. If the checking line crew of Bucyk, MacKenzie and Stanfield are stopped by the opposition, the heavier and effective artillery of the other units can step into the scoring breach.

Canadiens' coach Toe Blake bears out what Westfall told me in the press box. "If you're wondering why Boston is winning, it's because they're all working. They're beating opposing teams to the puck in the opposing end. That's where it counts."

Andrews dug up some interesting information to the effect the club has been producing power plays. This as been a weak spot with the Bruins for quite some time.

"They use Bobby Orr and Esposito at the points with Bucyk, MacKenzie and Stanfield up front. They've scored 19 power play goals in the 22 games thus far.

"Esposito has scored five of them. MacKenzie four, Stanfield two and Bucyk and Orr three apiece. That only adds up to 17 but they have to make changes occasionally when some of them get tired."

Blake says that Orr is the key to the whole club. He means as much to the Bruins as Beliveau to the Canadiens.

"The first time we played the Bruins this year I said they were a playoff club," said Blake. "But I don't know which team they're going to knock off."

Mikita Targets 4; Hull Hits Twice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita came off a poor training camp with a worse early season start in the National Hockey League. But he's making up for it in recent games as Chicago Black Hawks have started to move up in the Eastern Division standings.

The shifty centre of the defending league champions scored four goals Wednesday as the Hawks blasted Pittsburgh Penguins 7-2.

STAN MIKITA

In the same game, league-leader Bobby Hull picked up a pair of goals and an assist while Pierre Pilote added the other as Bill McCreary and Art

BOBBY HULL

Stratton scored for the Penguins.

In othe Wednesday games, Toronto Maple Leafs and Minnesota North Stars tied 1-1, Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers tied 3-3, Oakland Seals dropped Philadelphia Flyers 4-3 and Los Angeles Kings won 3-2 over St. Louis Blues.

The Eastern Division standings didn't change with the results, but the Philadelphia loss and Los Angeles win moved the Kings back into the Western Division lead by a point over the Flyers.

In his 23 games this season, Mikita has scored 15 goals and 10 assists for 25 points while Hull now has 21 goals, 12 assists and 33 points in 25 games to lead the league in both goals and points.

The Hawks victory tied them for fourth in the division with New York, idle Boston Bruins continue in the lead with a one-point edge over Toronto.

The Leafs got their goal from Wayne Carleton while Mike McMahon scored for Minnesota.

Norm Ullman scored the tying goal for Detroit to keep the Wings just a point ahead of New York and Chicago. Other Detroit goals went to Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio while New York got their goals from Reg Fleming, Don Marshall and Jean Ratelle.

At Oakland, Billy Harris scored twice to drop Philadelphia out of the western lead while Gerry Ehman and Billy Hicke got the others.

The Philadelphia goals went to Gary Peters and Leon Rochefort.

Los Angeles regained first place on goals by Brian Smith, Ted Irvine and Dave Amadio. Don McKenney, with his first of the year, and Fred Hucul scored for St. Louis.

The Bruins have an opportunity to pad their lead tonight when they are host to the Rangers while the Red Wings visit Montreal Canadiens, last in the six-team division with just eight wins and five ties in 34 outings.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull jumped back into the National Hockey League scoring lead Wednesday night, but his Chicago Black Hawks team-mate, Stan Mikita, did a little bopping of his own.

Mikita, who didn't earn a point in his first seven games of the season, scored four goals in a game for the first time in his career as the Hawks blasted Pittsburgh Penguins 7-2. He also scored an assist to bring his season total to 15 goals and 10 assists for 25 points.

Hull picked up a pair of goals and an assist to give him 33 points on 21 goals and 12 assists in 25 games, two points more than idle John Bucyk of Boston Bruins.

San Diego Whips Buckaroos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

San Diego Gulls trounced Portland Buckaroos Wednesday night and moved into sole possession of second place in the Western Hockey League.

In another game, Vancouver Canucks broke a three-game winning streak for Seattle, defeating the Totems 3-1 before 3,258 fans in Seattle.

Seattle remains the league leader with 28 points, San Diego has 23, Portland 21, Vancouver 20, and Phoenix 14.

Fred Hilts and Willie O'Ree led the San Diego attack with two goals each. Len Ronson, Warren Hynes and John MacMillan got the others.

Boycott; No Worry

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — America's showing in the 1968 Olympic Games won't be impaired by a threatened boycott of Negro athletes, says the president of the U.S. Track Coaches Association.

Carl Cooper, USTCA head and track and field coach at the University of Arizona, predicted Wednesday that the boycott will not gain any momentum and there will be no reduction of the strength of the American squad.

"I do not believe the boycott is a real national threat," Cooper declared. "There may be one or two hotheads, but I don't think it will gain any momentum.

"Personally I believe all this talk of a boycott has been stirred up by one sociology professor on the San Jose State College campus."

Watkins Charges

Discrimination; Brings Mixed Reactions

OTTAWA (CP) — Charges by Ted Watkins about racial discrimination in Canadian football have produced mixed reactions from the team for which the American Negro end played until he was traded to Hamilton Tiger-Cats last summer.

"Ted has always had a chip on his shoulder about being a Negro," said Red O'Quinn, general manager of the Ottawa Rough Riders.

O'Quinn said in an interview Wednesday that he wished the CBC had done some checking into Watkins' background before interviewing him on television Tuesday night.

"He is a fine football player and we hated to see him go but he lost his job to a better man."

Watkins, an Eastern Football Conference all-star at split end with Ottawa in 1966, was replaced here by Margene Adkins, a 20-year-old rookie who also took over Watkins' all-star berth.

Adkins also is a Negro.

The other Negroes on the team, who were teammates of Watkins in 1966 when Ottawa won the EFC title, supported Watkins' claims of discrimination.

"Anyone who tries to tell me there is no prejudice or racial discrimination is trying to kid himself and others," says Gene Gaines, a Canadian Football League all-star at defensive halfback.

Gaines said he has found this as much better for a Negro than Montreal where he played in 1961.

Bo Scott, CFL all-star fullback, is quoted as saying that "as far as I can remember" Ottawa "has never had more than three Negro players since I came here in 1964."

Scott also was quoted as considering that the Ottawa team had promised to help him get employment when he signed his contract but has done nothing about it yet.

"We got him one job and he couldn't even get to work," O'Quinn said in reference to Scott's complaint.

Marauders, Ottawa Tops

Central College All-Stars

HAMILTON (CP) — Mc-Master University Marauders and Ottawa University Gee Gees dominated balloting for the Central Canada Intercollegiate Football Conference all-star team released Wednesday.

The Marauders, who host the College Bowl to Alberta Golden Bears 10-9, picked up 12 of the 24 spots. Ottawa won eight, Carleton Ravens two and Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks and Bishop's University one each.

McMaster fullback John Watson, son of wrestler Whipper Billy Watson, topped the voting, picking up seven votes. Teammate Dick Waring received six votes to become all-star quarterback.

Halfbacks Jim Sillye of Ottawa and Bob McGregor of Carleton tied in the voting. Willis Scanlon and Ted Evanets, both of Ottawa, were the other halfbacks.

Al Scanlan of Ottawa and Larry Allen of McMaster received offensive ends; Tom Krawczyk of McMaster and Pierre Guindon of Ottawa, tackles, and Mike McMann of Waterloo Lutheran and Rick Agro of McMaster, guards. Don Brescasin of McMaster won the centre spot.

The Marauders, who yielded 34 points in seven conference victories, placed seven players on the defensive unit.

With the exception of Pierre Finard of Ottawa at tackle, McMaster filled the line Bob Johnson and Mike Armstrong won at end, Bob Honey at tackle and Brian Fryer at middle guard.

Linebackers are Greg McQueen and Wayne O'Brien of McMaster, Rick Miles of Ottawa and Don Cooper of Bishop's.

Halfback posts went to Ted Reynolds of McMaster, Warren Throop of Carleton and Jim Sillye of Ottawa, who set a precedent, being named to both the offensive and defensive squads.

The all-star roster was selected in a vote of players. Each team had one vote for each position.

Reds Up Winless Road Mark

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It appeared for a while Wednesday night that Cleveland Barons might become Providence Reds' first road victims in nearly two years.

But the Barons rallied for a 4-4 American Hockey League victory a: home to extend the Reds' winless streak on the road to 21 games. They have not won away from home since Jan. 29, 1966, when they took a 5-4 overtime decision from Hershey Bears.

Providence took a 1-0 lead at 2:19 of the first period when Tony Goegan scored on an easy shot on the Reds' first try at the goal. The lead stood until late in the second period, when Cleveland rallied for two goals.

BCI Seniors Win

Saints Rally, Stop Trojans

By STEVE BISHOP

The Quinte senior Saints overcame an early deficit to defeat the Moira Trojans 63-53 after Moira had swept the bantam and junior games in the Bay of Quinte high school basketball opener at Quinte last night.

In out-of-town games last night, BCI scored a close sweep over Picton, in Picton, winning 46-38 in the senior contest, 64-19 in the junior, and 73-36 in the bantam game. At Napanee, the Napanee seniors topped Trenton 46-41, after Trenton had taken the junior and bantam tilts by scores of 51-33 and 79-25, respectively.

The strong Moira bantam squad, coached by Gord Smith, grabbed a 23-23 lead at half-time, and coasted to a 66-42 victory over an inexperienced Quinte team.

Don Hamilton led the winners with 39 points and scoreless Hamilton Kerr in Gardner, with 18 points, and Jim Wiggins, with 10, made significant contributions to the offensive effort, while Tim Gustafson provided the rebounding strength for the Trojans and added 6 points offensively.

Steve Nash led Coach Rick Locke's bantam Saints with 10 points, and Barry Cockin scored for 8 points.

Coach Stew LaBarron's junior Trojans took owne where the bantams left off, topping the Quinte Juniors, under Duffy Foxwell, by the score of 53-41.

Captain Rob Rolston was Moira's top scorer with an 18-point effort. Paul Hayes combined a strong performance on the boards with 14 points for the winners, while Dave Grant added 7 points.

Steve McKeown, Tom Churchill, and Bernie Howe each scored 9 points for the Saints; and Steve Ogden added 7.

That set the stage for the senior game between Don Llatser's Trojans and Jack Sisson's Saints, a much closer game than the previous pair.

The senior Trojan core was strong in the first quarter, and it looked as though they would run the Saints off the court. The Quinte club shot erratically, and were fortunate to trail only 15-8 at quarter time.

The tables turned in the second quarter, as Quinte began to use their size to advantage. They pressed the Trojans, forcing errors by the Moira team, and out-dueled them physically. The Saints began to fill the basket.

The Saints continued to surge in the third quarter, and carried a 46-36 lead into the final quarter. Moira rallied in the final period, but the Quinte press and physical superiority paid off, and the Saints pulled away in the final minutes for the victory.

Terry Wellesley, after a mediocre first half, came on in the second to wind up with 17 points, the high total in the game. Harold Townsend finished with 13 points, Robert Brownlee with 12, and Paul King with 10 for the Saints.

Gary Swan's 14 points led the Trojans' scoring. LaLast with 13 and Bill Probert, with 12, also finished in double figures for Moira. Nothern also rebounded consistently well.

In BCI's triple victory last night, John Chalmers, with 12 points, and Brian Harder, with 12, paced the seniors, while Dave Cass, with 7, and Rob Wright, with 12 points, led the juniors. In the bantam game, Geoff Morton was high man with 20 points, and Jamie Cass scored 16.

Manitoba Government To 'Referee' Provincial Fishing Battle

WINNIPEG (CP) — A conflict between sports and commercial fishermen has been brought into the open in Manitoba, and the provincial government seems to be the only possible arbitrator.

Disgruntled resort owners say commercial fishermen are ruining angling as a major tourist attraction and that hundreds of thousands of dollars are being lost each year because of it.

Commercial fishermen reply that they have a right to a livelihood from the lakes and that this right is being threatened by the "big money men."

The fisheries and tourism departments are trying to work out a solution.

The issue came to public notice at the annual meeting of the Manitoba Tourist Association when Jack Thompson, a resort owner from Sherridon in northwest Manitoba, declared that as more commercial fishermen invade virgin lakes the anglers are being pushed out.

Thompson said a 25-pound northern pike caught by a tourist is worth $250 to the province but caught by a commercial fisherman is worth only $2.50 when sold and just 20 cents when ground into mink feed.

"Yet the lakes are being ruined right today to supply trophy fish for mink feed at two cents a pound and your government is not lifting a finger to do anything about it."

Thompson ruled out commissions in the same lake crying a sports fisherman, fearful for his rod and reel in netted lakes, will stay away from commercially-fished waters.

Dr. K. H. Dass, director of the fisheries branch, says he is aware a serious conflict exists, but he upholds the rights of the 3,300 commercial fishermen to make a living.

He says commercial fishing is allowed for the purpose of harvesting a provincial resource, a business which means about $4,000,000 annually to the fishermen. He adds that the 20,000,000 pounds of fish taken in nets each year are worth $7,500,000 at export position in Winnipeg.

To explain the situation further, Dr. Dass says tourist fishermen take only pike from the lakes, leaving large quantities of commercial fish.

His view is shared by W. E. Organ, director of the tourist branch who says his department now is studying the problem with the fisheries branch.

"We recognize there is a conflict between them, but I'm firmly convinced they can get along together if both are properly controlled.

"Commercial fishing is part of our economy and I definitely think there is room for both. Studies are being carried out now on the situation."

Organ says there are 320 fishing and hunting resorts in the province, nine of which are owned by Americans.

A possible answer to the problem is to have lakes designed either for commercial or sport fishing but this proposal is just one under consideration, Organ says.

Juveniles Defeat Gananoque

In OMHA juvenile action last night, Belleville Western Tire defeated Gananoque by a 6-3 score.

The game was a rugged affair, 19 penalties being dished out, with the city team drawing nine, including two misconducts to Storms and Lambert.

Belleville led 2-0 at the end of the first frame and upped the score to 5-0 going into the third frame.

Jury and Storms each had two assists with Jasiuck, Waite and Jones getting singles.

Jones and Hunt scored for Gananoque, Jones also getting an assist.

Minor Hockey

Three midget and five tyke games featured BMHA hockey here last night.

In the midget division Leafs blanked Canadiens 5-0 Thompson and Calder each scoring twice and Bridge once.

Hawks shaded the Wings 3-2, Pope, Wilson and Drummond counting for the winners with Beecher getting an assist. T. Lynch had two for the Wings, Wilson getting the other. Lynch, Muldoon and Wilson had assists.

Bruins nipped Rangers 3-2, Clark, Farrell and Semark scoring for Bruins, May and Richardson getting assists. Yearwood and Garland tallied for the Rangers, Watson and Modgeson drawing assists.

In the tyke division Flyers turned back Penguins 6-1, Sudgard leading the way with three goals. Farrell, Brotherwick and Potter got the others. Doug Shaw scored for the Penguins.

Manderville and Howard scored for the Kings in their 2-0 win over the Seals.

Bruins shaded the Barons 3-2, Archer, Cousins and Lynch counting for the winners, Cunningham and Burton scoring for the Barons.

Doonhas (it looks like) and Jianapolis each scored twice in the Hawks 5-3 win over the Mohawks. Barrett got the other. Marineau, Richardson and Gee counted for the losers.

Dave Jones hit for four goals when Canadiens blanked the Rangers 6-0. Giddings and Nault added the rest. Murray, Horne, Nault and Jones had assists.

Wings and Leafs battled to a 2-2 tie. McCutcheon and Chase counted for Wings with Wilkie and Mulroney the Leafs marksmen.

Million-Dollar Winner?

Cardigan Bay On The Mend

NEW EGYPT, N.J. (CP) — Can Cardigan Bay bounce back from a crippling lameness to take his place once again at the forefront of harness racing horses and become the sport's first million-dollar winner?

Yes, says owner Stanley Dancer—if the elderly New Zealand-bred pacer continues to show in training an approximation of his old speed and durability.

"I've started training him and he's showing us that he's coming around, "Dancer said after jogging the old gelding around his half-mile practice track here.

Cardigan Bay, second biggest purse winner in harness racing history, presumably was retired last summer after going lame. The horse had won $305,971 when Dancer took him out of competition last Aug. 13 after he had finished seventh in a race.

The suspensories ligaments in his forelegs are back to normal.

Dancer readily admits Cardigan Bay has the gameness and racing manners to remain back, and has an excellent chance of topping Bret Hanover's $922,616 career record.

Under the terms of his horse's purchase, Dancer is obligated to return him to his former owner in New Zealand when his career is ended. Under the rules of the U.S. Trotting Association, Cardigan Bay can be raced through his 14th year. On Jan. 1—birthday for all race horses—he turns 12.

Dancer purchased Cardigan Bay in 1964 at a reported cost of $100,000.

Barring the unforseen, Dancer says he plans to resume campaigning Cardigan Bay in late February or early March at Liberty Bell Harness racing Park in Philadelphia.

Canada Fifth In Tourney

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — The eastern division of Canada's national team came fifth in the six - team hockey tournament staged here in honor of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The Soviet Union's first team defeated the Czechoslovakian team 9-1 Wednesday night to win the tournament.

Russia's second team was second, Czechoslovakia's first and second teams third and fourth, respectively, and Poland was last.

Canada went down 7-2 to the Czech second team Wednesday, leaving the Canadians with a record of one win and four losses for the tournament and two wins, two draws and five defeats for their European tour. The team flies home today.

Rev. David Bauer, coach of the Canadians, is quoted here as saying he liked the tournament and would be happy to return.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the Canadian squad lacked stamina and teamwork in the tournament.

"Besides, most of the young Canadian players simply are not good enough."

Merger Story Premature

NEW YORK (AP) — Any announcement that North America's two professional soccer leagues have merged is premature.

A spokesman for the United States Soccer Football Association, governing body of the sport in America, said in London Wednesday that recognition had been extended to the National Professional Soccer League. Last year the USSFA withheld sanction of the NPSL and recognized only its rival, the United Soccer Association.

Officials of both the NPSL and USA, who declined to be quoted directly, said in New York that any announcement now of a merger was premature. Merger talks between the two leagues have been held while the NPSL has an $18,000,000 anti-trust suit pending against the USSFA and the USA.

Toronto has entries in both the NPSL and USA while Vancouver had a team in the USA.

The London announcement was made by Roy Peskett, British representative of the USSFA. He said: "Next week the two leagues will meet Sir Stanley Rous in Zurich, Switzerland, to rectify the agreement."

Sir Stanley is president of the FIFA, the Federation International de Football Association, which is the international governing body of the sport.

Peskett said each league would operate separately and would have 16 teams, with the league champions meeting to determine the North American pro soccer title.

Many Sign To Take Test For Fitness

"How Do Have a Heart Attack" is a lesson that nobody would like to have practical instruction in.

With heart disease being so near the top of man's fatal diseases the topic should be of interest in most people.

Several men in the Quinte area are doing something positive in the way of assessing the capacity of their hearts — they have signed up for the Belleville YMCA Adult Fitness Testing Clinic this Saturday.

Of special interest to those participating and to the public will be an address by Floyd Johnson, assistant physical director of Toronto Central YMCA. He is a former physical director of Cornwall YMCA and has conducted research into the reaction of the human heart using competitive swimmers.

Mr. Johnson will be speaking at the conclusion of the testing clinic this Saturday at 1.30 p.m. and all are invited to attend. The "Y" should be contacted no later than Thursday evening of this week as catering arrangements have to be made.

"I'd like to make a withdrawal."

Lemay Helps Search Exhibits

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Lemay, whose handcuffs were removed Tuesday so that he could enter a tunnel leading into a Montreal bank vault, left the prisoner's box apparently unnoticed Wednesday to help in a search through courtroom exhibits.

Lemay, charged with burglary and conspiracy in the theft of $5$5,695 from the bank vault six years ago, slipped quietly from the box to help five policemen, three lawyers and a court clerk search for a jack which a Crown witness claims was used in the break-in.

The six-week-old trial resumed Wednesday with an air of anti-climax after Tuesday's eventful visit by the court to the Bank of Nova Scotia branch, which Judge "Jacques Trahan suggested would give him a clearer picture of the break-in described in detail by key Crown witnesses Jacques Lalonde.

Sharp: Kind to Big But Tough to Small

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition critics, launching their attack Wednesday on the federal government's latest budget, said Finance Minister Sharp is too kind to big corporations and too tough with small taxpayers.

J. Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth) said Mr. Sharp, in the two years he has been finance minister, has misled Canadians into thinking that their money is stable and their prospects good.

But now, "they must meet their obligations with less and less money because of this government's incessant desire to take away their tax dollars."

He moved non-confidence in the government on the ground that it has created an unstable and uncertain situation "by its vacillation and its failure to manage the economic and financial affairs of the country in a responsible manner."

Now the government has proposed an increase in taxes to meet governmental extravagance," his motion says, "thus contributing to the inflationary pressures of the economy."

The Conservative motion, in the form of an amendment to the budget resolution, will be put to a vote Monday night.

The NDP submitted a subamendment Wednesday that accused the government of making the weight of its tax increases fall "on the ordinary citizen," of favoring those in the big income brackets, and of failing to raise extra revenue by cancelling tax concessions to oil, mining and insurance companies.

Deputy Speaker Herman M. Batten said he will rule today on the admissibility of the sub-amendment, put by David Lewis (NDP—York South). If accepted, it will come to a vote tonight.

Mr. Sharp's budget, presented last Thursday, calls for a five per-cent surcharge on personal income tax, up to a limit of $800, and a 5-per-cent boost in taxes on spirits, beer and tobacco.

Revenue Minister Benson, to whom Mr. Sharp has left the task of specifying where the government plans to trim its spending plans, is expected to enter the budget debate tonight. But Mr. Monteith, the Conservative financial critic, dismissed in advance any government attempt to say that expenditures are being cut.

He said Mr. Sharp's spending estimate for 1968 amounted to $9,850,000,000, an increase of 12 per cent over this year. Now, the minister estimated that the 1968 expenditure would be $10,-300,000,000.

"There are no cuts as we have been led to believe," Mr. Monteith said. "Actually, there is an increase of 4.5 per cent over the 1968 figure."

Mr. Batten, occupying the Speaker's chair because of the illness of Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, rejected a Liberal claim that the Conservative non-confidence motion was out of order.

H. A. Olson (L—Medicine Hat), a recent addition to the government from the Social Credit party, argued that the substance of Mr. Monteith's motion had already been debated when the new Opposition leader, Robert Stanfield, presented a non-confidence motion against the government last month.

The Liberal objection was based on a rule that the same amendment cannot be moved twice at the same session of the Commons.

But Mr. Batten ruled that Mr. Monteith's motion is based on new tax increases which the Commons could not have debated earlier, and is therefore different in substance from the last Conservative non-confidence motion.

Council Awaits OWRC Proposal

DESERONTO — All members of the Deseronto town council were present for Monday evening's meeting with the exception of Councillor and Mayor-Elect James Sharpe, who is in hospital in Napanee.

There was only one item of correspondence, one containing a minor complaint by a resident.

The long-expected communication from the OWRC was not received. Much of the council business hinges on this proposal, and cannot be handled until that proposal is received and considered. The question of enlarging the school could not be brought up, although something must be done because of the overcrowding, if nothing else.

Another expense must be faced as the water storage tank is in such poor shape and leaking badly. The matter will be taken up with the Public Utilities Commission.

Authority was given to pay the annual wage to the members of the fire department within the next two weeks.

Committee reports were received. For the Welfare Committee Mrs. Dorothy McCullough reported that during November assistance was given to 20 heads of families with 81 dependents, and to two single people.

Reporting for the police committee, Councillor Clayton Brooks stated the 17 letters of application for the position of Chief of Police for the town had been received. These are being considered, and the committee hopes to present a recommendation to the town council at its next meeting, December 18. Townspeople are walking hopelessly for the appointment, as petty crime and vandalism have been on the increase since the town lost its own police force. Police duties are now being handled by the OPP.

Councillor William Higgins, chairman of the Industrial and Publicity committee, informed the council that he had sent a survey of the town to the Provincial Economic and Development Department. He had also made application that Deseronto be included in the area, whereby industry locating in the town would be given loan assistance by the province in accordance with legislation under the equalization of opportunity program.

Cobalt Treatment Given to Prevent Rejection of New Heart

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Louis Washkansky left his sterilized room in a South African hospital today for the first time since the historic transplant operation four days ago replaced his failing heart with a healthy one.

Washkansky, in his second day of a week-long critical period during which his body may attempt to reject the alien heart, was wheeled on a bed more than a quarter of a mile through Groote Schuur Hospital to the radiotherapy department for a cobalt treatment intended to prevent rejection.

He was returned to his room 40 minutes later. He received cobalt treatments in his room Tuesday and Wednesday from a hastily-built portable radiation device.

Until today, the 55-year-old wholesale grocer had been kept isolated in an oxygent tent because the radiation and drugs designed to overcome the body's tendency to reject foreign substances also leave him more susceptible to infection. Washkansky also is a diabetic.

Doctors said there has been no sign so far of "immunological rejection" of the heart transplanted Sunday from a 25-year-old woman killed in an auto crash, but they kept a minute-by-minute watch on the patient.

Dr. Christian Barnard, who headed the team that operated, told reporters he believes Washkansky's body will continue to accept the new heart.

Dr. Barnard said that the transplanted heart is "wobbling from side to side."

Dr. Barnard gave no indication whether the wobbling heart would retard Washkansky's progress, which was described in today's bulletin as "still improving."

Washkansky's appetite was "not so good" today, a hospital spokesman said. His breakfasted on two boiled eggs after eating minced chicken and mashed potato Wednesday.

Professor V. Shrire, head of Groote Schuur Hospital's cardiac clinic, said no matter how long Washkansky lives, he must be checked every month. Shrire said the stitches from Washkansky's incision will be removed in 14 days.

Hospital Auxiliary Opens Shop

NAPANEE — The Hospital Auxiliary Opportunity Shop opened Thursday morning, but it will not be called an opportunity shop. That name, abbreviated as it would be, would become "Op Shop", and the committee objected to that. So the new shop will be known as "The Clothes Tree".

The women have been busy removing all trace of a grocery, and transforming the space into a smart dress shop, with colors in orchid and off-white, and a new tile floor in beige. Kind friends, including Ed Lawson and Ron Tee and Boy Scouts under "Bob" Casey have lent a hand.

An attractive stock is being priced and put into place, and volunteer aides personnel have been secured, two for each day except the first three days of the week to serve nine-to nine weeks. The exception is Saturday and the committee is asking for volunteers for that day. Friday will be an open night.

In addition to clothing, small articles such as dishes and ornaments, toys, books and records will be handled. But all will be of good quality. Prices are moderate but a sales tax must be added. More of such small articles will be welcomed, especially dishes.

Mrs. N. P. Burke is convening the project, and Mrs. W. S. Phippen will act as treasurer. An assistant for Mrs. Burke has not yet been named.

According to present plans The Clothes Tree will be open only Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Friday evening.

Montana Adventure Next in Series

Don Cooper, one of the top-ranking travel-adventure film artists of the country, will present his latest production, "Montana Adventure" this evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Belleville Collegiate auditorium, as the next program of the "Travel and Adventure Series" that is sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Don Cooper, or as he is called by those who know him—"Coop"—a lumberjack who has spent many years in the forests and lumber camps of Montana and Alaska. He has travelled in Alaska, the Yukon, Canada, the United States, Mexico, Guatemala and other distant places. He was literally born and raised in the logging camps of western Montana, son of the late George R. Cooper, Sanders' he Montana! He has spent more than eight years in the land of James Oliver Curwood and Robert Service.

During recent years he has produced thrilling and humorous travel-adventure films in Alaska, the Yukon, along the Alaskan Highway and the Pan-Am Highway, and through the Inside Passage and the Aleutian Islands. His hazardous adventures are guaranteed to thrill everyone and his photography is of superlative calibre.

Gunsmoke Shows Amazing Life When Placed in New Time Slot

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For a television series that was declared dead and buried, Gunsmoke is showing amazing life.

Earlier this year, CBS announced that the western had run its course and was being put out to pasture. Then the network changed its mind and said the series would come back for its 13th season Saturday nights at 7:30. That seemed to the trade like a death sentence, since the early evening juvenile audience was not likely to take to an adult western.

"I thought we would lose in the new time slot," admits Gunsmoke producer John Mantley. "At 7:30 the children are supposed to control the set. And we were up against The Monkees and Chuck Connors with animals—Cowboy in Africa.

"I was astonished when the first ratings showed us ahead of the other two. I had hoped to start low and then build. Instead, we started high and have climbed. In one recent rating we were No. 6, and no one could have been more surprised than I."

Mantley, asked to analyze the performance, theorized that perhaps the show is now getting the big city audience.

"The pattern of our ratings on Saturday was always the same," he said. "We were seldom in the top 30 of the 30-city Nielsen. But we leaped up in the national ratings. That meant we had a small urban audience, but a large one among suburban and rural viewers.

"That doesn't seem the case on Monday nights. We seem to get city viewers who found it inconvenient to watch Saturday because they were entertaining or going out."

Mantley believes the quality of Gunsmoke never has been higher, largely because the shows have been "heavy Matt." He explained that the shows are categorized as "heavy Matt" or "light Matt," depending on the involvement of Jim Arness, who plays Matt Dillon.

"Jim likes to do the 'heavy Matt' shows at the beginning of the season because they involve a lot of action and he likes to get that out of the way," said the producer. "They are usually our best shows, because Gunsmoke is Matt Dillon, and vice versa.

"Usually the 'heavy Matts' are spread throughout the season. But this year CBS decided to put them on early. That's why the shows have been so good."

Mantley said no changes have been made to accommodate the more youthful audience—except that we haven't had any villains try to rape Kitty." If anything, there has been more violence, but only because the "heavy Matt" shows are more inclined to tough action.

With Gunsmoke riding high again, Mantley is confident on and on" "It's doubtful," said Mantley, "it already must have the record for a western on television, with five principals, three of them on the show for 13 years. All of them except Amanda Blake come up for renewal next year, and I'm sure Jim will want a lot of money to continue."

Whites District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bilham attended a Christmas banquet sponsored Saturday night at Trenton Country Club by DCA Foods. George Bilham, who has been an employee of DCA Foods for 25 years, was presented with a travel watch.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones attended the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Mullin in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, Saturday morning.

Mrs. Carolyn Miller was a majorette in the Belleville and Madoc Santa Claus parades Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg, Bancroft, spent the week-end with their daughter, Mrs. her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones.

Her Happiness Hat

Karen Rogers, 19-year-old Trenton girl, isn't setting a new fashion trend. The hat was given her by staffers at Loyalist College — for good reason. They shared the success of the Ontario School for the Deaf graduate when she was hired by the community college this year. This week they helped her celebrate another happy event— her wedding tonight.

Excellent Performance Given By Able Cast in New Series

NEW YORK (AP)—In Dear Friends Wednesday night, playwright Reginald Rose had some adult, incisive observations about people and marriage. As one of the CBS Playhouse series, it glittered with excellent performances by an able cast.

For part of the same period, Jack Paar on NBC was presiding over an extremely funny, ingenious hour consisting primarily of plotgopher mishaps.

The conflict between two superior programs was indeed unfortunate.

Dear Friends, a two-hour program, centred on a gathering of four married couples, close friends for years, who were ostensibly gathering to try to patch up their fading some truths decided to separate.

At the beginning, it appeared that three couples had fine, substantial marriages, but at the liquor flowed and the talk became more emotional and frank, the slim facades crumbled.

Those told the real stories behind the masks by using a flashback method. He started with the separated couple, played with dignity by Hope Lange and James Daly. Their problem after 15 years of marriage and two children, was simply that, as the husband put it: "We don't interest each other any more, we're too . . . familiar, I guess."

Their friends, while still together, had much worse problems.

One wife was insanely jealous of her husband—and with good reason, it turned out. Another couple was concealing, ashamed, the fact that they just didn't want children, and preferred to have the world think they could not have them. A third marriage was a sham because the wife had once been faithless and her husband know it.

Pernell Roberts and Rosemary Harris were fine as the boorish philandering husband and his tense wife. David Wayne and Anne Jackson played the childless couple convincingly. Eli Wallach and Patricia Barry were outstanding as the husband whose betrayal still rankled and his troubled wife.

The stripping away of pretense and facing some truths seemed to have a healing effect. At the end there seemed to be some hope for the future of all four couples.

Jack Paar patched together with an enormous number of bits from old news reels and some television films that never made the small screen, added some appropriate background music and a droll commentary. It was a most amusing hour.

One section was devoted to falls. Soupy Sales once tried to define humor by saying that when somebody falls down and doesn't get up, it's not funny, but when somebody falls down and does get up, it's funny. All of Paar's fallers got up and it was funny, indeed.

Happy Days Here For OSD Grad

Even in today's sophisticated business environment, deafness need be no disability.

The success of 19-year-old Karen Rogers proves the point.

Training and opportunity have happily dismissed her problem as a handicap.

Two city institutions subscribed both elements required for her unique personal success story — the Ontario School for the Deaf and Loyalist (community) College.

Karen, a native of Trenton, entered the OSD when she was five, handicapped by total lack of hearing.

She worked through every grade of OSD training — from basic adjustment to vocational courses.

Finally, she graduated this spring in business and commercial practices.

She got her first break later this year to prove her practical training. Loyalist College opened its doors and its administration complex needed a capable staffer to run its photo-copying department.

Karen was retained and since September has been demonstrating her competency.

Loyalist department heads are pleased with her. So are her former teachers at OSD.

But her happy time has an extended ending.

Today, Karen brought a guy, home-made kipper but to work.

It was presented her this week at a shower which brought together people from Loyalist and OSD to celebrate another auspicious event for Karen.

Tonight in Trenton she's getting married.

Tears at Dakson

Charred ruins form a backdrop as a Montagnard woman weeps at the edge of Dakson as she returned to find the hamlet destroyed in a Communist flame thrower attack. As many as 114 civilians died as the raiders destroyed some 60 flimsy bamboo homes. It is the custom of the women of the village 80 miles northeast of Saigon to go barebreasted.

Marmora Votes to Continue Some Centennial Projects

MARMORA — Mrs. G. J. Melikjohn presided at a wind-up meeting of the Women's Centennial Committee in Marmora Centennial Cultural Centre Thursday. A review of the year's activities in the village was heard by a large crowd.

Women were congratulated and thanked for their efforts in making the centennial year a memorable one by Chairman Gordon Bennett. He said he thought some of the projects should be continued in 1968. He mentioned efforts are now underway to have another carnival sponsored by the Firemen and Minor Hockey Association.

Several worthwhile suggestions came from reports given by project heads. Mrs. Manley Lavender, in charge of the village beautification program, discussed the possibility of organizing a horticultural society with teen-agers taking an active part.

Following Mrs. Vaughn Glover's report on sidewalk art on Caravan Day, it was recommended that art be entered as a class in the Fall Fair, with entries judged by outsiders.

Mrs. Stewart Hardy noted that a number of plaques had been used depicting township homes over 100 years old. The Craft Show was reviewed by Mrs. Jack Golden, and suggestions were made by Mrs. Hardy for provision of table legs for more space to display crafts, as well as a pipe line in the town hall for water upstairs.

The success of the tape recording session by senior citizens, with Tom Brady taping their remarks, was evident in Miss Grace Warren's description of this event.

Seven hundred people signed the guest book at the antique show, reported Mrs. Bill Lavender, and Mrs. Glen Wentworth noted that the fashion show, which included a wide variety of entertainment was enjoyed by over 100 visitors.

Mrs. Joseph Murphy felt that a craft shop could be set up in Marmora, if the interest shown in the crafts displayed in a downtown window on Caravan Day was any indication.

Publicity for the craft show was looked after by Mrs. Mel Borland who stated that letters were sent to organizations within a 25-mile radius. Local crafts were also shown by Marmora women on June 19 at Rylstone Park, and this outing was described by Mrs. Percy Carman. Trip to the Pembro exhibition of crafts was reported by Mrs. Herb Vanstone, who said that $10 donation from Pembro for their efforts was used to purchase a tea kettle for the town hall.

Funds were donated by each organization to purchase dishes and electric percolator for the Hall, noted Mrs. Breen O'Connor, and silverware had also been purchased by chairman of the kitchen committee, Mrs. Colden.

The Centennial Cook Book sales, with Mrs. Ritchie Wells in charge, had resulted in a profit to date of $117 with the final original cost being paid. Mrs. Wells said there were about 225 books still available for sale.

The work of the Senior Citizens at the fall fair was reviewed by Mrs. Percy Gordon, and Bill Monk thanked all who had assisted her in promoting publicity in the Examiner which had given Marmora projects very fair coverage during the years. Mrs. Gordon Bennett's report showed that plans for the Centennial program here had begun in May 1965.

"The enthusiastic response for decoration of centennial windows by organizations played an important part in creating centennial interest in the village," stated Mrs. Melikjohn, chairman of women's activities. She said that Canada is the first country to celebrate its centennial and Ontario the first province to form a centennial planning committee, as well as being the first to have a women's activities committee formed.

A motion was passed that at the request of the village council, a representative group continue (with one representative from each organization) to support council in certain village projects. This will be discussed at meetings of organizations.

Gifts of a china teapot and hammered aluminum tray were presented to Mrs. Melikjohn by Mrs. Breen O'Connor on behalf of ladies, in appreciation of her excellent leadership shown in planning and carrying out centennial events in Marmora.

Colored slides shown by Tom Brady and Gordon Bennett of many of the activities during the year were much enjoyed by spectators before lunch.

DROP OUT

There were 1,500 dropouts from Winnipeg schools between June 30, 1964 and July 1, 1965, which was about 3 per cent of the school population.

To Your Good Health

Sciatica Has Several Causes

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor diagnosed my low hip and leg pain as sciatica. I understand sometimes exercise can relieve this. I was told that if exercise did not help, a myelogram was the next step. What exactly does this, and do doctors use this test to determine if surgery is necessary? — E.R.

"Sciatica" is pain in the region served by the sciatic nerve, which originates in the lower part of the spine and extends down the back of the thighs.

But assuming that there is a just a single cause of this trouble, and a single kind of treatment, is wrong. There are several causes. Some pressure on the sciatic nerve as it emerges from the spine is one. In other cases the evidence on which to decide be a metabolic disorder — gout and diabetes are examples. In still other cases, injury may have damaged the nerve or caused pressure on it.

Depending on the specific cause, exercise sometimes is helpful, but the type of exercise should be determined by your physician, basing his judgment on your case. An exercise which helps you might be of no value to someone else with "sciatica."

A myelogram, often needed in these cases, is an X-ray study in which material is injected into the spinal fluid to make the lower part of the spinal canal clearly visible. It may show a ruptured or damaged disc, or even some such condition as a tumor of the spinal cord.

If either of these (or some other deformity of the spine) is discovered, then you have whether surgery is the proper answer.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I'm going to be frank and honest because you need all the facts to give me an answer. I am a married women. I have a boyfriend who is also married. We know what we are doing is wrong and don't need any advice on that.

The problem is that when we try to have sex relations he becomes impotent. He has the desire but is unable to. This has never happened with anyone but me. This bothers him ver, much and is beginning to bother me. Can you give us any reason for this? Please sign me — WHY?

A guilty conscience can account for your comebabe's impotence. Your relationship is illicit. It apparently bothers him more than it does you.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Please give me some information about cross-eyes in children. My three-year-old grandson's eyes turns out. Must there be surgery? Or can it be treated otherwise? — Mrs. A.W.

There is no fixed rule. In most cases surgery is either the best or surest way, and sometimes the only way.

Only way you can get the answer to this question is to take the child, as soon as possible, to an eye specialist.

• •

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend is being given shots and pills for high blood pressure. Her doctor has ordered her not to eat cheese in any form because he said a chemical used in its manufacture is harmful to a person with high blood pressure. What is your opinion? — Mrs. W.C.

The doctor's advice is sound but I think the reason has been slightly misunderstood. Certain tranquilizers are used for control of blood pressure. A by-product particularly of aged cheese, augments the effect of the tranquilizer. Chianti wine and pickled herring also should be avoided when these drugs are being taken.

It isn't a matter of the cheese or other items having any effect on the high blood pressure, rather it is a matter of altering the effect of the medication, making it difficult to arrive at proper dosage.

Dr. Molner's welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Belleville Boy Given His Wings

Here we go, into the wild blue yonder — flying high into the sky. The wings necessary to get off the ground were received Saturday by graduates of Course 6605 and Navy Course 66-5 at No. 3 Flying Training School in Portage la Prairie, Manitoba.

The 23 graduates were awarded their wings by Brigadier Alfred James Tedlie, DSO, CD, who is Chief of Staff for training.

Sub-Lieutenant James E. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Clarke of 23 Rhoden Cres., was one of the new pilots from the Navy course. He will be continuing his navy career at Shearwater, Nova Scotia, as a pilot on the CHSS—3 "Sea King" helicopter.

County Will Break-Even On Project

Hastings county will break better than even on its centennial project — publication of the county history "Historic Hastings" written by Gerald Boyce of Belleville.

To date all but 413 of the 4,576 histories have been disposed of and with the $10 in centennial grants received from the senior governments the $16,635 cost of the project has almost been recovered.

Faraday Reeve Morris Irwin as chairman of the county finance and public property committee told council yesterday that it appeared an additional publication will be required to meet the steady demand for the county histories. The book went on sale on September 19.

Boxing Day Holiday Refusal Prompts Webb Query on Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten paid holidays a year are enough for Canada's public servants, the Commons was told Wednesday.

Revenue Minister Benson listed the holidays one by one as he again rejected demands by public service unions for a civil service holiday on Tuesday, Dec. 26, Boxing Day.

He told Richard A. Bell (PC—Carleton) the holiday would cost $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in the time "which I think is too much."

Rod Webb (PC—Hastings-Frontenac) asked Mr. Benson whether he had estimated the cost "of the lush party that is to be held on Parliament Hill Friday night."

He was referring to a centennial commission Christmas tree lighting ceremony to which 5,000 Ottawa school children have been invited. Prime Minister Pearson will be there.

Mr. Benson said the party was being held "to encourage the children in Canada to make gifts in kind and in money to assist international children's agencies." Cost of the party was small in comparison with a holiday to all federal employees.

CHILDREN DONATE

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Save the Children Fund has been swelled by a $2,000 donation from the Mennonite Children Choir. The youngsters raised a total of $6,000 through singing engagements in a 12-month centennial project to aid 100 underprivileged children.

Spellman Buried

Nine Cardinals Participate

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine cardinals including the Archbishop of Quebec participate today in a two-hour funeral service for Francis Cardinal Spellman at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey joins ranking civic leaders and leading clergy of four faiths at the funeral rites. The White House said President Johnson had not yet decided if he will attend.

There are more than 2,200 seats in the cathedral. Officials of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of New York said almost all are for invited officials with tickets.

The services begin with a blocking procession into the churches of hundreds of Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and Orthodox leaders.

The services climax five days of mourning for the prince of the church who died Saturday at the age of 78 after heading the richest Roman Catholic see in America for 28 years.

The archdiocese said almost 250,000 persons paid their last respects in a nearly constant stream since the cardinal's body was placed on a purple-draped catafalque Sunday.

Thoughts at Large:

The artist is never trying to make "a work of art"— only the amateur is enamoured of that goal; the artist is simply trying to refract the world through his own personality, and hopes that the end-product may have some value to others as well as to himself.

Benson Meets Reporters

Revenue Minister Benson talked briefly with reporters outside the House of Commons at Ottawa Thursday night before entering to introduce belt-tightening measures.

Benson's Knife Pares Programs

Ottawa Awaits Wails of Woe

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is bracing for coast-to-coast anguish over decision announced Thursday night to crop dozens of programs from next year's spending plans.

Revenue Minister Benson told the Commons an austerity axe will fall on the Northumberland Strait crossing, the civil service, the CBC and on plans for construction of ships, hospitals, laboratories, roads and schools.

He did not put a dollar value on the 12-point array of economies. The government has cut $1,200,000,000 from the original spending requests tendered last spring but many of the reductions will not be disclosed and many of Thursday night's revelations covered programs that will simply be delayed a year or two.

But he landed hard in some vital areas.

The civil service, which normally grows by 10,000 to 15,000 a year, will be held to 3,000 new positions in 1968-69.

Mr. Benson's speech said no further contracts would be placed on the bridge-tunnel causeway to Prince Edward Island pending a "thorough review."

Outside the House, Works Minister McIlraith said "all the alternatives" will be examined, ranging from a solid crossing to a high-speed Hovercraft ferry service across the nine-mile strait.

The CBC has been ordered to absorb its international service, now operating separately, with its own $3,800,000 budget. The corporation must also defer expansion of color facilities and accept reductions totalling $45,000,000 in 1968-69 budget proposals.

Many government agencies and departments give up cherished construction plans. Superannuated civil servants will go another year without pension increases.

The Dominion coal board and the Privy Council's special anti-poverty secretariat are to be abolished. Other existing agencies or branches will take on their functions.

It fell to Mr. Benson to announce the restraints predicted by Finance Minister Sharp in his budget speech last week as measures to check inflation, reduce borrowing needs, and minimize tax increases.

The revenue minister, also chairman of the treasury board, said it was a "difficult but necessary task" to bring next year's spending within the government's self-imposed limit of $10,300,000,000.

The ceiling represents a 4.5-per-cent increase from the current year's total anticipated spending of $9,900,000,000.

The projected limit does not include the cost of medical care insurance or the federal share of the Expo 67 deficit, both indefinite and scheduled to be

Johnson Hopeful Of Accord

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Thursday adoption of recommendations of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism would not solve all of Quebec's problems.

However, he told reporters he is confident Quebec and the federal government can resolve problems of power sharing between the two levels of government.

On the commission recommendations, Mr. Johnson said:

"It has lived up partly to what I had anticipated and hoped for."

He said he was among the first to commend Prime Minister Pearson for establishing the royal commission in 1963.

The first volume of the commission's final report recommended that Ontario and New Brunswick become officially bilingual along with Quebec and called for bilingual zones for English- and French-speaking minorities.

Mr. Johnson said these recommendations are "along the pattern we developed in Toronto" at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference where the premier urged that French-Canadians be made to feel at home in all of Canada.

Cheese Grant Ends

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The pocketbooks of cheese producers in the Bay of Quinte district will be hit as result of government spending economies announced yesterday by Federal Revenue Minister Hon. E. J. Benson.

Commencing next April, the federal subsidy on premium cheese will be discontinued, while also, effective immediately, applications for cheese factory amalgamation grants will no longer be accepted.

Mr. Henry Wild, officer manager at the Ontario Milk Marketing Board (Cheese Division) at Belleville, said he had not read the text of the revenue minister's announcement, noting that all he had heard was a brief news report.

However, he understood that the present one cent subsidy on 23 score cheese and the two cent subsidy on 24 score cheese would be discontinued.

He said this would work out at farmers receiving about 4 cents less per cwt. for their milk.

In addition to the premium cheese subsidy, farmers receive a subsidy of $2.21 per cwt. for milk. There was no indication that this latter subsidy was affected by the government economy measure.

Mr. Wild said discontinuation of the premium cheese subsidy would have no effect on so-called winter cheese this season, but if the measure was continued, it could result in more

'Rotten Egg Gas' Covers Hundred Square Miles

OAKVILLE (CP) — Hydrogen sulphide gas known to chemistry students as "rotten egg gas" hung over 100 square miles of Lake Ontario shoreline even Thursday, causing discomfort and annoyance to residents.

G. N. Briscoe, Oakville's chief engineer, said the gas is coming from refineries in Toronto Township.

Both British-American and Texaco oil companies operate refineries in the Clarkson and Port Credit areas.

Bob Barnhill, manager of the B-A refinery at Clarkson, said his company was probably the "cause of the disconfort."

Mr. Barnhill said a catalytic cracking unit, which uses a smelly sulphur for side products, has been out of action and "processing the crude oil generates a lot of gas."

"We've been burning it for a few weeks and the weather has been in our favor. But in the past few days the weather has gone against us and there isn't a thing we can do about it."

Northern Electric Link To Bell Under Scrutiny

OTTAWA (CP) — In an unusual move, the registrar-general's department revealed Thursday it is investigating the relationship of Bell Telephone Co. of Canada with its subsidiary, Northern Electric Co.

D. H. W. Henry, director of investigation and research in the department's combines investigation branch, told the Commons transport and communications committee that although the inquiry was begun more than a year ago it is only in its preliminary stages.

The department's inquiries under the Combines Investigation Act usually are made public only when a report has been completed but he was telling about the Bell investigation, Mr. Henry said, because it is related to the Bell bill being considered by the committee.

Replying to David Groos (New Victoria), Mr. Henry said he decided on the inquiry following recent increase by Bell's acquisition of majority ownership in Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd. It was Bell's third major acquisition of the year.

The current Northern-Bell inquiry relates to the manufacture, production, distribution, purchase, supply and sale of communication systems.

As a result of the inquiry, Mr. Henry said, the committee may wish to defer recommending additional acquisition or investment powers for Bell.

Liner Queen Mary Is Floating Slum

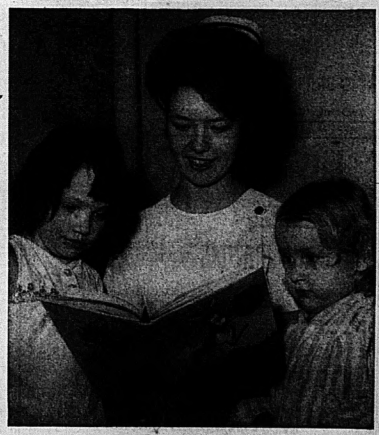
LONDON (CP) — Cunard Line officials here are saddened by reports that the luxurious liner Queen Mary, once the pride of the Atlantic, has become a near-mutinous "floating slum" on her last voyage to California.

They had warned the new owners, the City of Long Beach, that trouble might arise on the 39-day cruise through the tropics which ends Saturday.

British newspaper reports tell of filthy conditions, rats, insects and intolerable heat aboard the 31-year-old liner, which was designed exclusively for the five-day Atlantic trip and has no air conditioning outside her public rooms, no laundries and no large fresh-water capacity.

Many passengers had to sleep on deck as the ship left Acapulco because of 97-degree heat in their cabins. The crew of 800 were reported in near-mutinous mood, ripping up a room in protest at being deprived of their swimming pool and blaming the U.S. owners for trying to do the voyage on the cheap.



"We were reluctant to have passengers on the delivery voyage for this reason, but it was a condition of sale," Cunard said.

Long Beach, which plans to turn the Queen Mary into a floating convention centre, made £1,000,000 from last-voyage fares.

Decision On CF-104 Not Made

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has not taken a decision to "phase out" its force of CF-104 bombers with NATO air division in Europe, External Affairs Minister Martin said today.

The squadrons in Europe had recently been reduced to six from eight and some time in the future would be cut to four, but no decision had been taken to "phase out" the force.

Tales for Tots!

Children at Belleville General Hospital now have a steady supply of reading material. Students at Belleville Collegiate yesterday presented the hospital with libraries for youngsters and teenagers. Here nurse Mrs. Gayle Stevenson gives Rosemary Kellar, 6, and Lyanna Lucas, 3, a bedtime preview. (For story see Page 3.)

A High Rest . . .

. . . but at least he doesn't hide it. This workman of the Belleville Utilities Commission is working on the installation of "spaced aerial cabling" on Pinnacle Street. This new type of cabling is much neater and eliminates the need for cross bars on poles. It is being put up in Belleville for the first time.

Trenton Says Industry "Catches" To Result From New Designation

TRENTON — The current situation here has been given a further shove.

Mayor Jamie MacDonald told town council last night Trenton has been designated to participate in Premier John Robarts' new Equalization of Industry Program.

The program of incentives for secondary industries will remain in effect in Trenton until June 30, 1968, at which time its jurisdiction comes up for review.

A major stipulation provides for a one-third provincial grant on the first $250,000 of capital expenditure planned by an industry in a designated equalization area.

In addition, an industry may also apply for as much as 25 per cent subsidy on the second $250,000.

Existing industry may qualify for the one-third grant if the expansion involves either 5,000 square feet, or 10 per cent of the industry's present floor space.

The Ontario Development Corporation is also prepared to grant up to 75 per cent of a new or expanded industry's equipment costs, provided new machinery is purchased.

Grants actually come in the form of six-year, interest-free loans, which may be completely forgiven to industries fulfilling terms set down by the province.

Special stipulation has been made for grants to "tourist attractions," which extend their operations by increasing accommodation.

Trenton officials were exuberant about entry into the equalization program.

"Our industrial program has really been rolling, and this should give it a tremendous boost," said Mayor MacDonald.

Echoing his sentiments, Industrial Commission chairman Paul Tripp predicted Trenton's participation in the government incentive scheme would lead to more industry "values" in the near future.

The current Trenton flurry of industrial activity was climaxed in November with the announcement that the globe-spanning Moore Corporation would establish a $2.5 million plant here during 1968.

The industrial equalization program, which Premier Robarts had said would be effected in eastern Ontario almost immediately made news elsewhere in the Quinte area last week with the announcement the town of Picton had qualified for entry.

New PUC to Decide Rates

Whether the cost of electricity to Belleville consumers is going to go up will not be decided by the present Utilities Commission.

A motion to table the issue until next year's commission takes over in January was made by Mayor Jack Ellis and seconded by Commissioner Ben Safe. The Public Utilities Commission for the next two years will consist of Alderman John Deacon, Lyle Langabeer (chairman of the present commission) and ex officio member Mayor-elect J. Russell Scott.

Commissioner Safe was very critical of plans to put water and sewers in at Loyalist College. "I would strenuously call R Nackmail but . . . the commissioner was interrupted by commissioner elect John Deacon who said: "That's what I called it." It was decided at a special commission meeting last month that Belleville Public Utilities would install sewers and watermains at Loyalist.

Commissioner Safe pointed out that the land is immediately going to increase in value. "Why should people in Hillcrest and Foster Ward have to petition and pay for water and sewers when Loyalist gets them for nothing," he inquired during the commission.

He also stated that as the land increases in value it is going to be possible for land developers to profit at the city's expense.

An answer came from Mayor Ellis who said that the forced pump sewer will only be able to be used by the college. "As for the water," he stated, "developers will have to reimburse the city if they want to hook into the water."

The sewers and water will cost the city 75 per cent of the $170,000 estimate to install them and Mayor Ellis said that it was a necessary expenditure to get Loyalist College been rather than some other place.

"If think we're paying a good price for Loyalist College," said Commissioner Safe, closing discussion on the matter.

Trenton Council Gets Paid; Salary Talks Shelved

It was annual pay night for town council members last night. The six councillors received their $1,000 stipends (including expenses) and Mayor James MacDonald his $2,000 honorarium for 1967 municipal service.

Three of the councillors are out of a job next year — D. R. Fraser, C. V. Graham, and J. D. Kinney were defeated in Monday's local elections.

Pay for some other town employees — about 20 members of the public works department — was also on the agenda of last night's council meeting.

The workmen, members of Local 786, Canadian Union of Public Employees, will see their two-year contract with the town expire at the end of December.

Council last night decided to lay over the matter of salary negotiations for the 1968 council's consideration.

And the new version of town council for next year will also be asked to allocate funds for a major school project.

The board of education intends to ask council at its first night that (the six-room proposed addition to Prince Charles School on South Dufferin St. will cost an estimated $228,000.

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry said the town's current capital budget contains $200,000 for the project, but that authorization of the funds would have to wait until after the new year.

Council agreed to refer the board's request for additional lighting on school property in the future to be forwarded directly to the Public Utilities Commission, council decided last night.

The board had asked council to consider "morality" lighting near a South Trenton school, to discourage vandalism.

Council agreed the school board had the authority to deal directly with the PUC in seeing to the installation of any light standards deemed necessary.

Accepted, "with regret', at last night's council session was the resignation of town engineer Eric Alderson.

Mr. Alderson, who has held his post in Trenton for a total of nine months, leaves at the end of the year to accept the position of deputy - engineer of the city of Brantford.

He came to Canada from Britain in 1951, and since then has held municipal engineering jobs in Kingston, Brantford, and Barrie, as well as Trenton.

Members of town council have been invited to attend a special ceremonial civic service of worship.

Various members of civic organizations have been invited to attend the service, which will be held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday, Dec. 17.

Rev. Douglas A. Wilson, minister of St. Andrew's is extending the welcome and arranging the details of the special service.

With the year-end in sight, Councillor Duncan McDonald has suggested council start giving some thought to what it should serve on the various municipal committees.

"In past years, we've found ourselves with a sheaf of age of nominees, and had some people resign after being appointed," said Councillor McDonald.

He suggested the town advertise board vacancies for the benefit of local residents.

Some members of council jokingly commented the possible categories for such ads — help wanted, classified, or, as one councillor quipped, "Maybe personals are appropriate."

IN MEMORIAM

BUSH — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and son, passed away Dec. 8, 1962.
Sadly missed and always will be.
Put that I thank of you,
Those left behind are of no good,
But none replaces you.
Time has not healed the wound,
Nor will it ever do,
The one I loved so much is gone,
And left me lonely too.
So dearly loved and always remembered by his wife Lorna, daughters and grandchildren.

CATHCART — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away Dec. 8, 1966.
There is an ache in our hearts,
That will never heal,
A place in our hearts no one can fill,
Those years may mount and always will
Be memories dear and still.
Sadly missed by daughter Margaret, son-in-law Winston and grandchildren Kathy, Heather and Kevin.

COLP — In loving memory of a loving mother, Sybil Blanche, who passed away December 8, 1961.
When God saves out mothers, He takes the best we have,
He needs more angels in His home above,
But we need much more than our share.
Her life was filled with deeds of love,
She lived, not for what she could get,
But for what she could give.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
And beautiful memories of one so dear.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by sons Lyle and Bill, daughter Marion, and grandson John.

HANNAMAFER — In memory of our loved one "Mel" Melvin W. Hannamafer, who passed away Dec. 8, 1966.
I little knew when I woke that morning
The sorrow the day would bring,
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one I loved so dear.
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
But God knows best, that's why
In His wisdom, God has planned,
Beyond our power to see.
—Lovingly remembered and missed by Ruth.

WILSON — In loving memory of my husband Foster Wilson who passed away Dec. 8, 1965.
Time takes away some of the grief,
But memory turns back every leaf,
And lovingly remembered by wife Grace.

Cost of Hastings Manor Reduced by $40,000--County Benefits

Thanks to winter works subsidy amounting to $40,000, the net cost of the new addition to Hastings Manor is to be less than expected.

In a breakdown of costs submitted to county council yesterday, the net cost to the county for the $468,944 addition was given as $76,316.

The capital cost of the new addition officially opened on Wednesday was $422,157, with furnishings and other incidentals bringing the figure up to $460,944.

From this figure is subtracted provincial grants amounting to $231,188, winter works subsidy of $40,335, sales tax rebate of $18,366 and donations of $737, reducing the amount to be financed to $169,316.

Of the $196,316 to be financed the city of Belleville will assume $120,000.

Marmora township reeve John Wilkes wanted to know why the city's share of the net cost was greater than that of the county.

He was told by Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman that the city's share was based on that municipality's 3-5th interest in the county home.

The city requested 21 beds in the new addition and the county agreed to provide them at 3-5ths of the estimated cost of the structure.

Had the county not later received the $40,000 winter works subsidy, the county and city share of the costs would have been about equal, it was stated.

Construction of the new 100 bed Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft is about two months behind schedule, councillors were told. Due to inclement weather and other delays the building is not expected to be ready until early in May of next year.

Frankford Reeve Ray Moran, chairman of the Hastings Manor Committee, that the overall costs of the new Bancroft home were now expected to exceed $1,389,000.

The contract price for the structure being erected by Ball Brothers Ltd. of Kingston is $1,214,567, but the cost of furnishings and other incidentals are expected to run a bit higher than the $174,400 estimated.

Provincial subsidies and sales tax rebate will amount to $703,833 leaving $685,403 as the net cost to the county.

County Treasurer Carl Bateman said it was not expected that any winter works subsidy would be received on the Bancroft project.

The new manor addition at Belleville provided 56 additional beds as well as a chapel and auditorium, but because of former overcrowding the overall gain in the home capacity is only 36 beds.

A reduction in the overcrowding in the original home opened in 1951 was one of the conditions for the favorable government grants received, council was told.

Marmora township reeve John Wilkes said it warmed his heart to see the new chapel at Hastings Manor.

The chapel accommodation at the Manor was long overdue and badly needed, he said.

Repairable Toys Needed

Donald Finkle, a spokesman for the Kiwanis and Firemen's Christmas Toy Project, has sounded the alarm. Christmas toys are still needed this year.

"The supply hasn't met the demand," Mr. Finkle stated. "We've had plenty of repairable toys but now we need some new toys as a supplement."

Mr. Finkle explained that the project needs toys for children eight to 14. "We have plenty for toddlers."

The reason for the depression this year is not known to officials of the project but "response hasn't been good."

"Christmas is getting close, but I don't think people have the spirit of giving yet. It's getting late."

Because of the short time left before Yuletide celebrations donors of Christmas toys are asked to bring toys that don't need extensive repairs.

The toys will be accepted at both the Belleville Firehalls and at the Kiwanis Centre.

Robart's Plan Receives Support From Council

Hastings county councillors are not opposed to Premier Robarts' plan for county-sized school administration areas, but at least one member feels the proposed January 1, 1969, starting date could be just a little too soon.

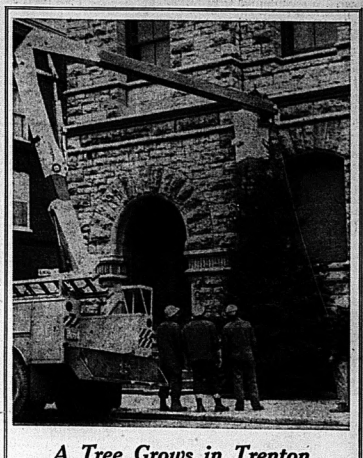
Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside told county council yesterday that the move may be just a little too fast for many counties, including Hastings.

He feels that time should be allowed to see how recently enlarged school board areas in the county will prove out before the move to even larger areas.

One reason for his thinking is that new enlarged boards now being set up will, under Premier Robarts' directive, disappear before they are working properly.

Mr. Burnside suggested a close study of the proposed program, with Department of Education officials to be invited to address council at the earliest opportunity on all aspects of the proposed program.

Deseronto Reeve Donald Armitage thought much along the same line and, as chairman of the county public school consultative committee, said his committee would like more direction.



He suggested that the minister of education or deputy minister be invited to address council at the earliest opportunity.

Council authorized the committee to study the matter fully and report back to council.

Warden William Shannon said that by approving enlarged school boards this year (the No. 2 public school county area in Centre Hastings and the enlarged Bay of Quinte District High School Board to take in Stirling-Rawdon and the Centre Hastings district), Hastings had almost anticipated Premier Robarts' announcement.

He said that the enlarged school districts were all to the county's advantage and would provide equality of education and more opportunities for the children.

He admitted that the enlarged area system could have headaches and growing pains but felt certain that most of the proposed county boards would be ready to go ahead by January 1969.

It's the time of the year Christmas trees sprout out of the ground overnight. Special lighting will be installed to complement the Chamber of Commerce tree in downtown Trenton.

Family Aspect Paramount CAS Plans Name Change

After the New Year, a name familar in all walks of life in Hastings county will be heard no more.

On Jan. 1, The Children's Aid Society, a byword in the Hastings county area for more than 70 years, will be known as The Family and Children's Services of Hastings County.

Thomas H. Colden, this year's CAS president, says board directors were unanimous in their decision to change the name of the society to "something more in keeping with the true function of the society today."

He noted that back in the 1880's children's aid societies were founded to "aid" children in need of protection and more often than not to provide the basic necessities of life.

Today the protection of children from neglect is still a prime function of children's aid societies everywhere but Mr. Colden says their focus has swung from the child to his family.

Within recent years the number of children in the physical care of the local society had steadily decreased, he says, as the number of families with whom the society works has steadily increased.

"Our field services have trebled, offices have been opened at both Bancroft and Trenton and an active professionally-staffed counselling service has been introduced," Mr. Colden said. "We feel the time has come to advertise the family-focused aspect of our work."

Road Needs to Be Reviewed

Township roads in the southern part of the county which carry a heavy volume of area traffic should be eligible for more than the present 50 per cent provincial subsidy.

This is the thought of Thurlow township Reeve, Carl Thompson, who says that his municipality is turned down in requests for increased grants while roads in other parts of the county carrying only a small fraction of the traffic received considerably higher grants.

He referred specifically to one township road — the 8th concession — which had two provincial highways and a county road running into it, which he said was badly in need of rebuilding.

The cost estimate for the road rebuilding project was $275,000 but the township could get only a 50 percent grant.

County road engineer Peter Anderson earlier in the session referred to plans of the highways department to do a review of the roads needs study completed in 1964, and said the county should indicate its willingness to participate.

Plans were to commence the needs study review next year with 1969 set as the target date for completion.

Mr. Anderson said that much of the development road construction done in the county in the past two years had been prompted by the 1966 needs study.

Warden William Shannon said the Thurlow township problem served to point up the importance of the needs study review for county roads to participate in the review.

The county roads and bridge report read by committee chairman Reeve Allen Ketchenson noted that $965,000 had been spent on county and suburban roads this year, while an additional $599,985 had been spent on settlement road projects — this figure being almost three times the amount spent in 1966.

Bridge construction expenditures during the year included $82,000 for a new structure over Beaver Creek on county road 3 north of Marmora and replacement of the Trout Creek bridge on the Springbrook Road at a cost of $33,380.

Fairfield's Bridge near Foxboro was said to be still under construction, the work on this contract taking much longer than was anticipated. However, bridge girders were now in place and it was expected that the structure would soon be open to traffic.

Development road projects this year included the completion of county road 12 north from Madoc by Moffatt Construction and Materials Ltd.

The same firm was said to have proceeded rapidly with the reconstruction of Road 3 north from Marmora, but the contract will not be finished until next year.

Tenders for reconstruction of the Crookston road will not be called until next spring.

The design of the development through Marlbank and development road from Foxboro to Plainfield is said to be nearly complete with some of the property acquisition on the latter road having been undertaken.

300 Books Start Library

Volumes may not be written about Belleville Collegiate's major Centennial project. But, years from, now, they'll still be reading books linked to it.

The success of the project was marked last night when 300 books were presented Belleville General Hospital to establish libraries for its child and teenage patients.

Purchase of the books was organized through a Centennial committee which raised funds through weekly collections, donations from school clubs and a giant rummage sale.

The presentation was split two ways — hard-covered books for the youngsters, paperbacks for teenagers up to 16 years.

The students also set aside $100 as a book replacement fund.

The boks neatly stored in cartons, were turned over to hospital administrator Philip Rickard by Bob Reid, BCI student council president and Kathy Campbell, chairman of the school's Centennial committee.

Housing

Housing remains one of the major issues of the day in Canada. Not only is there a shortage of homes, but costs are often much beyond the ability of citizens to pay.

Thus any effort at Government level to provide adequate housing and at a price within the reach of people desiring to purchase, or rent, is all to the good.

The Ontario Housing Corporation's recent circular is a case in point. Noting that city council has requested the corporation to consider the provision of housing at rents which moderate income families and senior citizens can afford, the circular says that rental housing (known as "Ontario Housing") can be provided if there is sufficient need and demand for it.

Rents are geared to the gross monthly income, not including family allowance, of the family (or senior citizen) before deductions. For example, a family with a monthly income of $204 would pay $36 rent. A family with $384 a month would pay $97 rent.

The rents include payments for heat, hot and cold water, stove and refrigerator. However, where all these services are not included the rent would be proportionately less.

The OHC currently is awaiting replies to a public questionnaire to determine the need for such accommodation. There must be many people here who could benefit from the introduction of more housing units of this type.

Snub for Kremlin

Yugoslavia, under the leadership of President Tito, was the first of the communist bloc nations to go its own way independently of the Soviet Union.

Tito rejected the old Stalinist policy of dictating the party line to all the communist nations, and thus startled the Soviets by stepping up trade with the West, notably Britain and France.

The Hungarian uprising in 1956 was another manifestation of popular feeling against Soviet oppression. It failed because it misjudged into a full-scale insurrection that invited massive retaliation by Soviet forces. Yet nothing can erase the memories of that time and of the gallantry of the Hungarian patriots.

Soviet suppression of the revolt served as a warning to other dissidents within the communist world. However, liberalizing tendencies have come to the fore in recent years. Now the emphasis in the satellite nations is on subtly doing things their own way while having as little as possible to do with the Kremlin.

Romania is the latest to show it can manage without Soviet overlordship. Russia is unhappy about the situation, to the point that it is applying an economic squeeze to the smaller neighbour. Reports from Bucharest say the Soviets have been holding up new economic agreements with Romania because of the latter's recognition of West Germany and neutrality in the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

Western sources say Russia has also slowed iron ore shipments to the big iron and steel combine of Galati. However, Romania is planning to supplement waning supplies from the Ukraine with purchases from Western Europe and India.

The Soviet squeeze has drawn a sharp response from the Romanians. Party leader Nicolae Ceausescu saying his country would not tolerate "such violations of a principle in relations."

The countries of the communist bloc enjoy rather more freedom today than they did a decade ago, and they can thank above telling the Russians them their presence is not appreciated. Perhaps one day they will come to know an even greater degree of freedom, and the genius of the people of these lands once again will flower untrammelled by outside domination.

Mrs. Jeffrey's Bid

Alderman-elect Mrs. Robin Jeffrey has apparently made what she considers her first step to "restoring dignity to city council."

She states she is in Belleville has been canvassing next year's council seeking to gain support for a bid to have radio broadcasts of the regular twice-monthly meetings discontinued.

It is to be seriously hoped this is not a prime example of the high hopes held out for her contribution.

If there is any suggestion that city council meetings are "the comedy hour" as has been the case often, it would be due in keeping if the "players" were to be blamed, rather than the acoustics of the "theatre."

Big Powers Divided on Issue

South-west Africa Thorny Problem for United Nations

By ROD CURRIE

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations is about to take another crack at the problem of South-West Africa, an issue that has occupied the organization from time to time ever since it was founded 22 years ago.

Again, there is little optimism here that any concrete solution can yet be taken to break the mandate South Africa claims over the territory.

As with many issues before the UN, there can be little hope of progress as long as a tug-of-war of the major powers disagree on strategy.

The representative of Tanzania reflected the opinion of many members when he said in last year's debate:

"The inability of the United Nations to solve the South-West African problem in favor of the suffering peoples there will, if allowed to continue, destroy the whole body as an effective political instrument in support of international justice, peace and security."

Despite such fears, and numerous resolutions passed by the 122-nation General Assembly, it has to be admitted that little progress has been made.

The General Assembly touched briefly on the problem Tuesday and plans to resume the debate next Monday.

Over the years the assembly has passed resolutions urging South Africa to give up its mandate granted by the old League of Nations and criticizing South Africa for imposing apartheid—separation of the races—in the territory.

More recently it approved compromise resolutions establishing a council for South-West Africa and assigning it to negotiate with the South African government in procedures for a transfer of the territory to the UN for the interim period before independence.

Afro-Asian groups have presented tougher draft resolutions urging a UN administering authority to take over the territory and calling on the 15-nation Security Council to "take the necessary effective measures" to force South Africa agreement.

Such resolutions, however, were never pressed to a vote because it was recognized that they did not have a chance before the Security Council where Britain, the United States, France and the Soviet Union—all permanent members with veto power—disagree on how to handle the situation.

Meanwhile, the South African government has made it clear that it will not recognize or deal with the UN machinery and thus there remains little likelihood that the resolution establishing the council for South-West Africa can be carried out.

The Soviet Union has suggested that France and Britain, in particular, are reluctant to take action against South Africa because they are her leading trading partners.

Brazil, although backing demands for UN enforcement action, is opposed to any UN transitional regime for the territory because it might, in the words of the Soviet spokesman, "in some way serve the interest of the imperialist monopolies from which the racists now draw their strength."

Slavery, Abundance, Bondage

St. Thomas Times Journal

A researcher whose identity has somehow become obscured in the passing of time came to the conclusion that nine steps occur in the collapse of a free society. They are:

1. From chains of slavery people rise to spiritual faith.
2. From spiritual faith they generate courage.
3. From courage they forge liberty.
4. From liberty comes abundance.
5. From abundance arises selfishness.
6. From selfishness, then, to complacency.
7. From apathy people degenerate to dependency.
8. And from dependency back again to bondage.

It might be interesting, and vastly helpful in the light of current welfare trends, for each of us to estimate which of those nine steps we may now be taking.

It might be even more helpful if, each in our own way, we would try to help adjust the national climate in a direction that assures a free society in perpetuity.

And perhaps we should do it soon.

Japan Trade Centre Denies Competition Is Hurting Belleville Output

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We would like to correct some impressions contained in an article which appeared in your newspaper on Sept. 28 in a report of remarks made by T. K. Harding, president of Amplifone Corporation.

Mr. Harding was reported to have said that the Canadian television industry is being "murdered" by cheap Japanese imports and by an unfair customs policy.

First, we feel it is quite incorrect to think that Japan does not export to Canada, in any volume, transformers of the type which are assembled by Amplifone in Belleville and Mr. Harding's complaints against Japanese imports, we feel, are unfair accusations.

It is also quite incorrect to ascribe Japan's successes in the Canadian market to a wage differential between the two countries. The total of wages and benefits received by Japanese workers in the electronics industry is not as far out of line with the total of wages and benefits received by Canadian workers as the article suggested.

We believe wage differential is not the main reason for Japan's ability to produce high quality merchandise at a competitive price. Technology, a skilled labor force and high production volumes are perhaps even more important in the competitive world market.

Canada and Japan carry on a large volume of trade and, as you are no doubt aware, Canada has always had a surplus in the trade with Japan. As trade has grown, good will and understanding have increased, and this trade has been of benefit to the people of both countries.

Poverty Is One Thing In the Cities—and Another on the Farm

Ottawa Journal

Registrar - General Turner reports as a "sad fact" that some 4,000,000 Canadians are in poverty. His measurement of where poverty ends and comfort begins is placed at $3,000 a year urban areas and $2,000 in the country. It cannot, we think, be a very exact line; not all farmers are hard up on $2,000 a year and there are city families poor on $4,000.

The spontaneous question is how the 75 per cent of Canadians above the poverty line are to haul the 25 per cent up to better days. Turner states that "poverty in this country is curable" but he adds he is not thinking of transfers of fortune from the rich to the poor or taxation devices to redistribute income. He says he has in mind such programs as the improvement of education and skills, better labor mobility and a more attractive farm environment.

How are programs to education and the like, familiar processes offered by other governments in the past, to lift the Canadian poor to new comfort?

How, for instance, will the proposed programs assist the 1,300,000 Canadians with a permanent physical handicap, only one in four of whom has earnings from employment? This is a sad army of 1,000,000 handicapped non-earners, about quitfifth of the total of 4,000,000 poor mentioned by Turner.

Turner endorses figures on the family poverty gathered by the Bureau of Statistics. He reports that 500,000 rural families or 44 per cent of the total, were poor. One-third of the rural families in Ontario were counted poor and one-half of those in Quebec.

The 500,000 poor rural families account for a total of some 2,000,000 people, having for the urban communities the remaining 2,000,000 below the "comfort line."

Now poverty is something we all want to remove. But the ability of the average citizen to pay for programs for the relief of poverty is limited. The average income of a man in 1965 was $4,000, not very far above the poverty line of $3,000. The help must come from those with even so, with the new increase in taxes there should perhaps be a closer look at the definition of poverty. Can it be that one-third of the rural poor are "poor" because they have chosen, some subtle blueprints." Yet the Government itself has not come up with specific new ideas and the task will not be helped by pretending that all we need is a "plan." The job of bringing more equality in opportunity and comfort will be only further confused if we base it on unrealistic definitions of "poverty."

West's Expo Pavilion to Come Down

Vancouver Sun

If Ontario is willing to spend a million dollars to tear down its pavilion rather than let it fall into Montreal's hands, that is Ontario's business. The same may be said about Toronto's demand for the return of its unless perhaps cash.

But the disposal of the $1.5-million Western Provinces' Pavilion is our business — ours and that of the citizens of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba our partners in this pavilion consortium. And it is with shame that we learn that contracts are being let for the pavilion a demolition, although it would cost nothing to give the pavilion away and only $5,000 how much to tear it down.

Canada Has Room for National Zoo

Hamilton Spectator

IT is a pity Canada hasn't a national zoo. We are one of the few nations of any substance that seems to think zoos are strictly for the birds. A few cities, Toronto and Calgary especially, have excellent zoos, but, on the whole, this nation seems to think its national parks and game sanctuaries are as far as it should go in preserving or displaying animal life.

Zoos, however, are important, and not only as tourist catchers. A nation of this size with so many animals that aren't seen in many other places (grizzly, beaver, moose, deer, muskrat, lynx, mountain lion, coyote, timber wolf, polar bear, raccoon, elk, mountain goat, badger, gopher, moose and chipmunk) should have a national zoo in its capital. Where else? In Ste. Helene!

Monet Canvas Sold in U.K. For $1 Mill.

Windsor Star

The growing army of leisure-time artists in Canada can take courage from the news that a painting by Claude Monet, a French Impressionist, has sold for $1,411,000.

The record price was paid for a painting which Monet did in 1867 and sold for about $40. The latest sale was in London where who bought the painting for $11,000 in 1926, the year of the impressionist's death.

Not every amateur painter will become a Monet, of course. But who can tell? Claude Monet, when he began, was so far ahead of the contemporary style that he was called a "mad" painter. It was only late in his career that he began to be appreciated. Who knows? Maybe another local basement holds canvases, like work of the weekend painter, which will command record prices a century hence.

Christmas Without Santa Claus--A Cone Without Ice Cream

MONTREAL (CP)—Santa Claus is Big Business.

A Montreal department store executive says: "We'd all be dead without Christmas sales to pull us out of the red."

"Santa Claus is the bread and butter of this operation," adds a toy manufacturer. "When he comes to town a thing "so, he, he all the way to the bank."

An advertising executive says selling Christmas without Santa would be like selling a cone without ice cream. Santa uses using all the modern advertising techniques before advertisers thought of them.

"Santa is no huckster," he adds, "but somehow he has complete shelf-lamination—his competition doesn't come until Easter."

But Francois Dallegret, an experimental designer who just completed plans for the interior of a downtown shopping centre, suggests that Santa is outdated. "He could be run down by the Bat-car. He needs a new bag of tricks."

Large retail stores increase sales staffs by about 30 per cent for the Christmas rush. Toy department personnel are expanded as much as 300 per cent in number.

To children Santa is still a symbol of goodwill and generosity, says one marketing expert. "But he's also being used to train kids in permanent buying patterns."

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports that department store volume during November and December of 1956 accounted for more than 33 per cent of total annual sales.

Harold Shaffer, director of the Sir George Williams University's school of retailing, says many department stores lose money on the lavish break even from January to October, counting on the Christmas season to provide the year's profits.

The president of one advertising agency says modern advertisers could have learned some of their best techniques from Santa Claus.

He said consumer tests have proven that a globular, deep-red, Santa-like package conveys a feeling of strength, permanence, and cheerfulness to the buyer. The long white beard and toy-bag precede almost any modern trademark, while a hearty "ho, ho, ho" slogan is short, pungent and bilingual.

But, he adds, it would be impossible to imitate Santa from Christmas. "If he arrived in a toy department in mid-July shouting "ho, ho, ho" without reindeers and helpers, sales would slide pretty fast."

The Santa Claus program here moved into first gear last month, when young visitors to Simpson's department store were invited to watch Santa-through a telescope—making toys on top of the North Pole. Viewers could even pick up a telephone and watch him answer their calls.

Three weeks later the Santa Claus parade of 25 floats, 12 bands, and 1,000 marchers stretched over 1½ miles, rolled up to Eaton's downtown store. Santa climbed to a second floor window and took his throne in the toy department.

An Eaton's spokesman said the company has sponsored the parade for 43 years. He added: "Santa means something much more important than Christmas sales, and we're trying to keep him that way."

Another large department store, Henry Morgan and Co., invites children to breakfast with Santa. Each Saturday morning some 800 children and their parents are led into a cafeteria for each of four staggered breakfast shifts. Next they are invited to the toy department to watch a magician.

The toy department manager says the visits increase sales "significantly", but he adds that the purpose of the campaign is to help children enjoy themselves.

One large suburban shopping centre even arranged for Santa to arrive in a specially designed "space ship."

What does Santa Claus himself say about Christmas and commercialism? When last interviewed after meeting some 300 children an hour for three hours, he was hurrying to get back to his throne. He said commercialism has hurt Christmas for adults, not for children.

He commented that beard-pulling has remained rare for the last 10 years. Military hardware is becoming more popular for both girls and boys. One young man asked for some North Pole real estate, and one girl offered him three cents to put a lump of coal in her brother's stocking.

But most girls still want dolls, and boys ask for toy cars and sports equipment.

And, he added, both boys and girls always seem to unanimously agree they've been perfectly behaved all year.

Three Reeves In Running For Warden

Three Hastings county reeves will compete for the honor of serving as county warden in 1958.

Candidates for the honor will be Dungannon Reeve Calvin White, Madoc Township Reeve Allen Ketcheson and Sidney Township Reeve Ernest Kelly.

Of the three aspirants, Reeve White, with seven years, has seen the longest service on the county council body. He served in 1950 and 1960, was out for two years, and has been back as reeve since 1956.

Reeves Ketcheson and Kelly have both been on county council for five years and have both served as chairman of the county roads committee.

Dungannon township hasn't had a warden since J. L. Chrisholm held the honor back in 1946. The last warden from the north part of the county was J. N. Brown of Bancroft village in 1939.

Earl Sager of Madoc township was warden in 1950 while Herleigh Hamilton of Sidney was warden in 1951.

cheese milk being diverted to other uses next year.

In order to encourage diversion of cheese milk to other uses the government pays farmers an additional subsidy on milk so diverted.

The fact that applications for cheese factory amalgamation grants will no longer be considered, in all probability will lead to further amalgamation in this area.

Reid – Sine

Rev. A. Parsons officiated at the wedding ceremony in Foxboro United Church on Saturday, December 2, at 11 a.m., when Katherine Dianne Sine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Carl Sine, Foxboro, R.R.1 became the bride of Ronald James Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest I. Reid, Stirling, R.R. 2.

Mrs. Dorothy Reilly rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloists the Misses Beverly and Carolyn Lewis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie featuring a scoop neckline appliqued with Guipure lace and seed pearls, and three-quarter sleeves, edged with matching lace. A detachable chapel train extended from the the waistline of the pencil slim skirt. Her head dress of Guipure lace and peau de soie bow at back was caught to a four-tier nylon illusion scalloped veil and she carried a white Bible crested with red Sweetheart roses with tiny red rosebuds in knot and streamers.

Matron of honor Mrs. Doreen McCormick, wore a floor-length sheath gown of soft toned cherry red velvet, enhanced with cowl neckline and short sleeves. Her headdress consisted of two red velvet bows adorned in centre with pearls. Miss Brenda Westlake and Miss Susan Richardson, cousins of the bride as bridesmaids were gowned identically to the matron of honor. Each attendant carried a crescent bouquet of red and white carnations. The flower girl was Miss Kathy Reid, sister of the bridegroom who wore a red silk velvet frock in A-line style with bell sleeves and a red velvet bow headdress. She carried a tiny basket of white carnations.

Bill Heeth was groomsman, while the ushers were Roger Sine, brother of the bride and Gary Reid, brother of the bridegroom. Wayne and Warren Bird, twin cousins of the bride were the ring bearers.

At the reception in the church hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a navy blue crepe dress, lace coat of matching shade, hot pink and navy accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a chocolate brown crepe dress under a brown lace coat, brown and beige accessories and a corsage of orange Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to points west the bride wore a pink wool suit with white for wedding ring collar, black accessories and a corsage of white and pink tinted carnations.

Upon return the couple will take up residence at R. R. 2 Stirling.

Favorite Oyster Recipe

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: My husband asked me to make Scalloped Oysters for a small party we are giving before Christmas. Could you print the recipe please? — Anne B.

ANSWER: I have a recipe that is a favorite of Lorna, daughter of a friend of mine, that I think your husband will approve.

LORNA'S SCALLOPED OYSTERS (Serves 4)

Drain 1 pint raw oysters. Combine 6 tbsps. table cream with the drained oyster liquid. Mix together ½ cup dry breadcrumbs and 1 cup fine cracker crumbs with ½ cup melted butter. In a buttered small baking dish put 1-3 of buttered crumbs, next ½ oysters, then another layer of crumbs, another of oysters, and finish with remaining 1-3 of crumbs, but before adding final layer of crumbs pour liquid over evenly. If desired dot top with 1 or 2 tbsps. butter. Bake 20 min. at 400 deg. Fahr. Serve with tossed salad and crusty hot bread.

* * *

QUESTION: I heard there is a recipe for making a salmon loaf in your blender. Do you have such a recipe? — Helen B.

ANSWER: Yes.

BLENDER SALMON LOAF

1½ cup bread crumbs (crumbed in blender)
One 7½ oz. can salmon, including liquid
2 eggs
2 tbsps. butter (room temperature)
½ small onion
1 small stalk celery cut in pieces
1 branch parsley
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry mustard

Turn breadcrumbs into ordinary mixing bowl. Into blender goblet put salmon and liquid, eggs, butter, onion, celery, parsley, salt and mustard. Cover and buzz on high speed 30 seconds. Remove cover, wipe down sides of goblet with spatula (with power turned off, of course). Beat on high speed 20 or 30 seconds longer or until blended. Add to crumbs and combine evenly. Pour into buttered standard loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. — If desired standing in shallow pan of hot water. Usually served with Caper or Hollandaise sauce. Slices well cold.

Mrs. D. Kane and Mrs. C. Hiuser gave the inspiring Christmas devotions. Regrets were brought from Mrs. E. Hall that due to sickness and loss of members the John Knox Group could no longer carry on, but the members would continue to support the Guild.

Mrs. M. Barlow convener of the recent bazaar, thanked everyone for the wonderful co - operation she received. Mrs. Ruth McClean is convening the sale of Cook Books with recipes submitted by women of the church. The Harmony Group was in charge of the entertainment and Mrs. C. Hiuser showed a Christmas film.

Neighbor Embarrasses Benefactor at Grocer's

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My neighbor has gotten into the habit of doing her marketing with me. I have a car and she does not.

At first I didn't mind helping her out but now I am getting sick of it because she does things that embarrass me. Last week she stood in the fresh fruit and vegetable department and picked through four boxes of berries to put together a perfect box for herself. Then she stuck her thumb through two tomatoes and a plum to make sure she was getting her "money's worth."

ANN LANDERS

She is constantly accusing the butcher of short-weighing her and once she walked behind the meat counter to get a closer look at the scale. He told her to get back where she belonged and they got into an awful argument. Yesterday they advertised a special on chicken and when we got there they had run out. She made a scene and everyone stood around like it was a show. I walked out and waited for her in the car.

This woman has done me many favors and I want to reciprocate but her antics are a bit too much. I'd like your advice. — BLUSHING BEATRICE.

DEAR B.: Drive your friend to the store, lose her once you get there and arrange to meet in the car. If it will make you feel better, tell her what you are doing and why. It won't change her conduct but it will make an honest woman of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I comment on your criticism of the minister who, after performing the wedding ceremony, turned to the guests and said, "I would like to introduce Mr. and Mrs. _____." Everyone laughed and applauded as if they were watching a musical comedy. Your attack on the minister for his "theatrics" was unjust.

As the wife of a clergyman I could tell you stories that would make your hair stand up on end. Your criticism should be levelled not at the minister but the members of the congregation. They should be ashamed of themselves for pressuring him to introduce cheap gimmicks into church rituals.

My husband feels, as you do, that show biz has no place in a religious service. Unfortunately the trend is that weddings are becoming more social and less sacred. When important members of the congregation insist certain things be done, the minister finds it virtually impossible to refuse.

Blaming the clergyman seems to be everyone's favorite sport, but I was surprised to see you join that unthinking group. — DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: In the final analysis it is the clergyman who decided how much, if any, show biz antics will be incorporated into a sacred ceremony. The minister who caves in to demands which his feets aren't proper does a grave disservice to his faith, his congregation, and himself.

Candles For Christmas Buffet

Want to room your party setting? Here are some Santa-approved ideas for turning your holiday table into a sparkle-plenty attraction with fringe benefits, nominating you as the hostess with the mostess . . . ingenuity! Pun-seekers find jolly green Santa a look-again attraction. The cone-shape is covered with rows of treated paper that has been crinkled, curled and shaped to resemble leaves. A pair of painted blue eyes peer from behind a ball nose and leaf mustachio, giving St. Nick his best ho-ho-ho expression.

Today's stylized centre-pieces often resemble modern art more than conventional decorations. Such is true with a ball tree, as up-to-daisy as an orbiting satellite. A star-burst effect is achieved with a circular disk of gold flecks and filaments. Fanning out from the glittering centre are feather-like plastic strips, outlined with crystal spears.

Candles are always appropriate for your Christmas buffet. This candelabrum, however, has been fashioned to resemble a tree. Its brass moorings are camouflaged with lacy plastic brickle that fills out the silhouette. Highlighting the snowdusted evergreen are clusters of holly, wood roses and ornaments. Now, all that is necessary is to light the tapers and greet your guests.

19-year-Old Fears Going Away to College

Dear Doris: I'm 18. Next year I will be going away to university. Have you ever heard of a 19-year-old girl who is afraid to go away? Well, here I am.

Whenever I have to go away to visit a friend, even, I get all weak and scared. Eating is almost impossible. It is getting to the point where I envy my friends who don't get along with their parents. They're dying to get away.

Once I have gone, I do enjoy myself. It is the thought of it that paralyzes me.

I can't talk to my parents about this — at least I'm too ashamed to, so I took the coward's way out and wrote to you. At least I don't have to talk to you face to face. — J ~t A Coward

Dear Coward: Want to know something? Many another so-called coward writes it all down to me rather than talk about it; and, I suspect, for the same reason: he or she doesn't have to face me with it, whatever it is.

I find it refreshing to hear from a girl who likes Home Sweet Home. Quite a change from the ones who think that to be on their own will solve all dilemmas!

No need to feel ashamed. Many an older person dreads walking into a new and unknown situation; in fact, who doesn't experience a few qualms? The bold ones hide the jitters with a too-brave exterior!

Show this column to your mother. That same loving, perhaps somewhat over protective, parent will not falter when it comes to guiding you into new situation. It will please her that you will still be counting on her.

Do all you can to save your eyes: Good lighting, frequent change of focus, occasional rest for the eyes during the day. If you are a worry wart, relax!

• • •

Dear Doris: I am 13 and my sister is 12. Every day some one tells me how funny she dresses and I know how true it is. She makes me feel so embarrassed at times.

I try to dress in style but money is scarce so I make sure my dresses are always clean and pressed. My sister wears mainly what my grandmother likes, such as flair skirts and ones that go to her knees.

My sister doesn't like to wear them but is afraid of what my grandmother will say. What can I do? — Helpless

Dear Helpless: Does Grandmother need to take another look at today's styles? Try clipping the next pretty dress you see in the ads and ask her if she can make over Little Sister's dresses to look more like it.

Shouldn't cost too much, considering the abbreviated skirts we see now. And it may not have occurred to Granny that your sister is growing up too.

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column. To make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CBC Chief Ouimet Will Step Down Next Week

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Actually, I was supposed to meet Herbert in New York, but I'd already seen the movie they were showing on that flight."

LBJ Joins Dress Rehearsal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson joins in the dress rehearsal today as his daughter Lynda and Capt. Charles S. Robb of the U.S. Marine Corps go through final preparations for their wedding—just one day away.

The White House is being dressed gaily in a Christmassy decor of spruce trees, holly, mistletoe and garlands of green and red and white flowers.

An impoising white altar, flanked by two fluted-white columns, carpeted in white and centred with a cross, is under construction in the East Room.

A buffet table 30 feet long is going up, and 500 bags of rice are being filled for use by guests in showering the newlyweds as they leave for a honeymoon.

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Alphonse Ouimet, a pioneer in Canadian broadcasting who has guided the often beleaguered CBC for 13 years, will step down as chief of the Crown-owned corporation next Friday.

Acceptance of Mr. Ouimet's resignation was announced Thursday by Prime Minister Pearson who had written the 59-year-old executive "that the government, and I in particular, are most grateful to you for the untiring, unselfish and experienced service you have given to Canada. . . ."

Mr. Ouimet had announced more than a year ago that he wanted to resign to return to private life but agreed to stay on until the government's new broadcasting legislation was passed by Parliament.

He wrote the prime minister that he had expected the bill, before the Commons now, to be passed early in 1967 and suggested that if it were not dealt with by Dec. 15 an acting CBC chief could be named.

Mr. Pearson has said he was finding it difficult to find a successor for Mr. Ouimet and speculation on who it will be has been considerable.

Mr. Ouimet, 53 years in broadcasting, often has been the centre of controversy as MPs complained about CBC operations and their cost.

One of the more explosive CBC controversies developed after a charge of "rotten international" levelled by Stata Secretary Judy LaMarsh Nov. 1 on the Pierre Berton show, a daily television program carried by a number of stations in Canada.

Miss LaMarsh reports to Parliament for the CBC.

Mr. Ouimet's resignation letter, dated Nov. 23, recalled that he had asked Mr. Pearson in the spring to name a successor "as soon as he could be appointed."

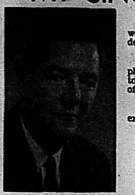
"We are now approaching the end of the year and I hope you will understand my desire to set a definite date on which I could plan my future activities."

Mr. Ouimet was in charge of the engineering before being appointed CBC assistant general manager in 1951. In 1953 he became general manager and in 1958 president as well.

Mr. Pearson said last August he hoped to name a successor for the $40,000-a-year job before new broadcasting legislation passed the Commons, but announced later he would wait until it had been dealt with.

Nova Scotia Seeks Buyer For Sydney Steel Plant

HALIFAX (CP) — The Nova Scotia government, armed with legislative approval of its plan for a short-term cure of the Sydney steel problem, will now turn its attention to the long term.



Labor Minister T. J. McKeough, chairman of the government's steel committee, said Thursday that negotiations are continuing to find a company to take over the Sydney steel mill.

Dr. McKeough made the comment as he left the legislature where approval was given the government to purchase the mill from Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. Dosco announced Oct. 13 that it intended to close the plant next April 30.

The labor minister said he will meet with officials of a "Canadian company" within the next day or two to discuss a possible takeover of the mill. He also said he will go to New York Sunday to hold talks with American companies.

He said the government had heard from a Japanese company which earlier showed interest in the plant, but he has not yet had time to study its letter.

MY SINCERE THANKS

To all those who loyally supported and worked for me during my campaign I offer my deepest thanks and appreciation.

I am humbly aware of the great trust placed in me as your future mayor and I pledge to work to the best of my ability in the interests of all the citizens of Belleville.

I would like to take this opportunity to extend to everyone

Colored Slides Discussed by Camera Club

The regular meeting of the Belleville Camera Club was held at the Kiwanis Centre on Wednesday meeting. At this meeting the winners of the recent "portrait" competition were announced with John Lewis winning first and second place and Ed Isenon third place in the slide category and Ted Kinsella first place with a colored print.

There followed an open competition of color slides in which six entries of the three slides each were submitted. All of the pictures were exceptional quality and interest with first place going to Mike Williams, second to John Lewis and third to Jack Bond.

Following discussion by members, it was agreed that the club should offer more instruction and information on the art of picture taking. Therefore, the next meeting on January 3rd will be devoted to instructing members and guests in the proper use of their cameras. Members are invited to bring their cameras so that any difficulties in their operation may be explained. Also this first meeting of 1967 will be the deadline for entries in the next competition — "bridges."

The meeting concluded with a general discussion over refreshments.

SLICES SPORTS

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Look at it as you will. There's been two things that have NOT been going for the Mo-Hawks, particularly in the last two or three outings.

One is that fickle jade Lady Luck, the other the two-faced gremlin that controls the breaks of sport.

One, temporary relief, in the affections of these helpmeets to victory the other night in Kingston, and the Mo-Hawks would have trotted to the dressing paddock with a win under their saddle blankets.

"It just didn't seem right," coach Floyd Crawford said yesterday. "We were down two goals in the first period but the boys tightened their belts an chad the upper hand the rest of the game."

"They played well and deserved to win. After being down two these goals we went out to grab the victory—not to settle for a tie."

"I cannot understand it," he said. "The team has been playing win, lose-or-the last two or three outings but something or other seems to be going against them on the ice. They are full of spirit and desire. They should take this one tonight from Kingston."

Somebody said the other night that if the Mo-Hawks make the playoffs it will be the "miracle" of the league. Right now they are flirting with the cellar spot.

Told this, Coach Crawford said unsmilingly, "Remember what this chap said. The way the gred the other night with a few breaks tossed in, this fellow may prove a better prophet than he thinks. We intend to surprise the league — and a lot of other people too."

It is no secret that the in-and-out efforts of the club play so far, last year's champs has had a noticeable effect on the box office.

The win-loss record of any sports organization is the best-office barometer. Joe Fan says the club is entitled to be given something to cheer for. Most fans are fair-minded and take the fortunes and misfortunes of their favorites in stride.

With the exception of the faithful of the New York Mets baseball club, nobody loves a consistent loser. Even the faith of the most loyal clientele is shaken by a string of defeats especially if some result from lethargic team efforts.

I'm not yelping an alibi for the Mo-Hawks. True they have played some underform games, but in not a few cases had the gods and goddesses of luck and the breaks looked their way their win record would have looked much better.

This was exemplified in their last two outings against the Guelph Regals and the Kingston Aces. Just one more penalty at the head, or the flash of a smile by Lady Luck and Hing Brush and these whisker boxes would have been victories.

Take the Aces game the other night. Davy Jones missed twice from close in. McConnell hid the Aces goal behind and hit the post. Minnie Menard got in behind the straying goalie and missed a wide open net in the overtime. A break or a smile was the difference between victory and defeat.

"Yep" agreed Crawford, "they played good hockey and should have won. This boy Jim Junkin played a terrific game and is destined for the higher places. Give him two or three years and he'll be playing higher than senior hockey."

"We are not out of the playoffs yet, as some would say — not by a dangel sight. Remember we will get Steve Reza back from the Canadian National teams sometime in February. After all he is still our property and when the Nationals finish he'll come back to us."

Well tonight should tell the tale. The Aces are here and second to that trip to Europe there's nothing the Limestone crew likes better than to welloop a Belleville team in its own backyard.

So let's hope hockey's Mansion smiles down on his Belleville tribe and starts them off to an upward climb on the senior "A" ladder Game time, nine o'clock.

Hot John Bucyk, Boston Star Baby!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Yastrzemski led the baseball Red Sox from the American League doldrums a year earlier to a berth in the 1967 World Series.

Bucyk gives every indication he's ready to steer the playoff-starved Bruins up the National Hockey League's Eastern Division ladder.

The 32-year-old Edmonton native scored two goals Thursday night in a 3-1 Bruin victory over New York Rangers that opened up a three-point lead in the division standings over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the night's other game, Floyd Smith scored at the 16-minute mark of the third period to give Detroit Red Wings a 2-2 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

JOHN BUCYK

Bucyk's output before a sell-out crowd of 13,909 in Boston, boosted his career total with the Bruins to 576, bettering the previous club record of 575 set by Milt Schmidt, now the Bruins' general manager.

Schmidt retired in 1953 after 16 years with Boston. Bucyk now is in his 11th season.

The Bruins have 33 points, Detroit is third with 28 followed by New York and Chicago with 26 and Montreal with 22.

In the Western Division, Los Angeles Flyers are first followed by Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Oakland and St. Louis. The only game scheduled tonight is Philadelphia at Los Angeles.

Jean Ratelle spoiled Boston goaltender Ed Johnston's bid for a shutout with a New York goal at 6:26 of the third period.

In Montreal, Jean Beliveau celebrated his return to the Canadiens' lineup after a five-week absence by counting his eighth goal of the season while rookie Mickey Redmond, recently recalled from Houston of the Central Pro League, got the other.

Alex Delvecchio, Detroit's veteran captain and centre, scored the other Red Wing's goal at 10:40 of the opening period.

The deadlock left the teams with an even record in season play. The Canadiens beat the Wings 6-2 in their home opener and then dropped a 3-1 decision in Detroit Nov. 12.

Left winger John Ferguson also returned to the Montreal bench Thursday night after a month's layoff and promptly got a rare triple minor.

Ferguson and Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman crashed at 11:37 of the fist period and both started swinging their sticks. Bergman was given a double minor for high-sticking and slashing, and Ferguson got six minutes for slashing, high-sticking and charging.

Power Play Bruins' Big Asset

BOSTON (AP) — Power is the name of the game—and Boston Bruins are proving it as owners of the best record in the National Hockey League.

The Bruins capitalized on a power play midway through the first period and extended their unbeaten string to seven games with a 3-1 victory over New York Rangers Thursday night before the usual capacity crowd of 13,909 at the Garden—their 13th sellout in 15 home games this season.

"I can't find any fault with our power play this year," Boston coach Harry Sinden said. "We are capitalizing on manpower advantages pretty well. The power play has helped us a bit."

The Bruins broke a scoreless deadlock while New York's Jean Ratelle was serving a hooking penalty at 19:48 of the opening period.

Bucyk's goal was the Bruins' 20th power play tally in 23 games.

The Bruins hiked the count to 2-0 as Bobby Orr connected for his seventh tally on a slap shot less than two minutes later.

The Rangers spoiled goalie Ed Johnston's shutout bid as Ratelle scored at 6:26 of the third period. Then Bucyk took a pass from Johnny McKenzie and scored his 18th, matching his entire production of last season.

The goal made him the highest scorer in Boston history, shattering the old mark of 575 points by Milt Schmidt, now the club's general manager. The husky winger has 234 goals and 342 assists as a Bruin.

Campbell Hits Wallets

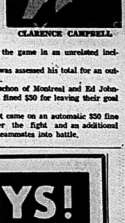
MONTREAL (CP) — A fight-filled hockey game in Boston last Sunday night between the Bruins and visiting Montreal Canadiens has proved a costly affair for players of both clubs.

Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, Thursday levied fines totalling $1,675 against them.

The Bruins won the game 5-3 and referee Art Skov doled out a near-record 139 minutes in penalties. Canadiens picked up 71 minutes in the box, while the Bruins were given 68.



Two defencemen—Boston's Don Awrey and Montreal's Terry Harper — were the big losers. Each was fined $150.

Dick Duff, Montreal left winger, was fined $100 and Jacques Laperriere of Canadiens was fined $75 for incurring a misconduct and a game misconduct later in the game in an unrelated incident.

Goaltenders, Rogatien Vachon of Montreal and Ed Johnson of the Bruins, were each fined $50 for leaving their goal crusaes to fight.

Harper's $150 assessment came on an automatic $50 fine for leaving the bench to enter the fight and an additional $100 for leading his off-ice teammates into battle.

New Turbine-Powered Racing Car Forerunner Of New Classic?

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Details of a new experimental turbine-powered racing car that will make its debut in motor sports next year were released today.

The car, built for the Howmet Corp. by McKee Engineering Co. of Positive Aviation, was designed for production competition. But because current International Automobile Federation rules do not recognize turbines in world championship events, the new car must compete on an exhibition-only status. It can win no prize money or championship points.

But if it does what its designers say it is capable of doing, it could well be the forerunner of a whole new breed of racers operating in a separate formula division of their own.

Two identical machines have been built for Howmet,'s metallurgical firm. With Dr. Richard Thompson of Washington and Bill Lenfest of McMurray, Pa., as drivers, the machines will compete in the Daytona 24-hour Continental, the 12-hour of Sebring and the 24-hours of Le Mans in France.

Designed by Ray Heppenstall, 36-year-old former project manager for the Ensco Wire Tensi's championship Ford GT40 cars, the turbine cars conform to the 1966 limitation of three litres for Group 6 prototypes.

That's about 183 cubic inches when applied to conventional pistons. The cars will be close to the Group 6 weight minimum of 1,430 pounds.

The engine, a "free' turbine designated as the TSX25-1, weighs only 178 pounds, produces 230 horsepower and is capable of propelling the car at speeds in excess of 180 miles an hour. Total weight of the power train, engine and differential is less than 250 pounds.

The car uses jet turbine fuel.

Jim Kelly, the air inlet at the engine is only 11.6 inches, compared to the 16-inch inlet in the turbine car Parnelli Jones drove at Indianapolis this year. New rules for that race combines this year to approximately 11 inches at the inlet.

Heppenstall says that unlike Jones car, the Howmet machines will offer no throttle lag. It has a single forward speed and the final-drive ratio is alterable by quick-change gears in the differential unit.

The chassis is of conventional tubular space-frame construction and the body of aluminum. Suspension is by coil-shock units, steering is rack and pinion.

Steve Rexe On Way Home!

MOSCOW (CP) — At least two members of the eastern section of the Canadian national hockey team which left in a home today at the end of its first overseas playing tour seem like possible candidates for Canada's Olympic team, says playing-coach Jack Bownass.

"I think the team could use Bob Berry and goalie Steve Rexe," Bownass said in reviewing the squad's performance in Sweden, East Germany and the Soviet Union.

"I am very high on Butch Goring too. He's only 18 years old—most player in the tournament, I believe. He's not ready for the Olympics just yet but in a year or two he should be strong enough."

Berry is from Montreal and is doing post-graduate work at Carleton University in Ottawa. Rexe, now living in Ottawa, we named most valuable player in the Belleville hockey team last year. Goring is from St. Boniface, Man.

The easterners were bolstered by four members of the western division of the national team which is going to the Olympics. They managed two wins and two draws in nine games of their tour. During a six-team international exhibition tournament here they lost four of five games and often seemed hopelessly outclassed.

STEVE REXE

Bownass, veteran of the National and Western hockey leagues who comes from Winnipeg, seemed only slightly downcast about the team's performance.

"I was a little disappointed with some of the younger players at first. But we would have to have help for this tournament which is why we brought westerners.

"We probably could have used some more of them but we have to start breaking in others now if we want them to be ready in two years or so for international matches.

"It's been good for them. They had never experienced this kind of thing before—problems of travel, different refereen, change of food and meeting teams from other countries with different styles of play. They needed this and we knew we were bound to have some losses at first.

"We were also working toward the 1972 Olympics and the world tournament in Canada in 1970. In another year or two we may be able to come with the best of the East and West teams into one national team the way the Russians and the Czechs do now.

"This tour has helped."

Mo-Hawks Ready For Aces

Perhaps Lady Luck has decided to toss a smile or two in the general direction of the Mo-Hawks.

The news today that Steve Rexe was on his way home brought smiles to the faces of Coach Floyd Crawford and general manager Robert Temple.

The wire story brought the word that Rexe and Bob Berry were en route to Canada would probably try out for the Olympics team.

Let's see the Olympics team are all amateurs, proven, the code states.

However Rexe is still Mo-Hawk property. So it's a case of wait and see.

Crawford said today the club is in good shape and ready to square accounts with the Kingston Aces here tonight.

Bernie Gould, who started the 'hit-'em - don't duck - 'em' fad with the team is sidelined with a shoulder injury and will probably miss the next two games.

Crawford will go with practically the same line - up as that of the Kingston game.

"The boys are up and determined to win this one", he said. This includes by Hec Lalande. "We are on our way and don't let anybody tell you we won't make the playoffs," he said.

There's only one club south of the Mo - Hawks in the league standing and Crawford hopes to widen the margin tonight with a victory over the arch - rivals from Kingston.

Quinte Hockey League

Belleview Hotel shaded Grant Realtors 3-2 and the Aluminum Stars turned back Stinson Construction in regular Quinte Hockey League games last night.

Junior Day scored the first Belvedere goal, assisted by Rob Burrows and Garry Little. Little counted the second Belvedere marker, aided by Larry Potter and Jack Lucas, while Doug Olsen scored the winner in the final period with assists from Bill Vesterfelt and Bill Nolan.

Dwight Rathwell counted the first goal for the Realtors, unassisted, and Doug Bolte collected the second with assists from Rathwell and Larry Stewart.

The Aluminum Stars handed Stinson a 3-1 setback. Ron Post scored the first goal for the Stars, assisted by Paul Zakes, while the winner went to Don Moore, with Post adding. Bob Chappel collected the insurance goal, assisted by Al Rutan.

The Firemen blanked the Mustangs 5-0 and Marysville shut out Mulroney's 3-0 in Gas House League play last night.

Coaches Eye Beban

NEW YORK (AP) — "You can't take from this country without giving back. It's too tremendous a country not to give back something."

Gary Beban, UCLA's brilliant quarterback, was reflecting on his future—either as a pro signal-caller or a military draftee —while in New York Thursday to receive the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding college football player.

The 21-year-old Californian wants to continue his football career as a pro—and coaches in both the National and American football leagues can't wait for a chance to land him.

Beban, however, may have to postpone his pro plans and put in a military hitch after he is graduated from UCLA next spring. If the call comes, he'll be ready.

"Right now, I have a student deferment and I'm on a waiting list to get into a reserve unit but my status is the same as any young man in the country," he said.

181 Consecutive Games

Eagles' Jim Ringo Eyes New Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jim Ringo credits his wife, father and father-in-law for the new iron man record he'll set Sunday when he takes the field against the Dallas Cowboys.

Ringo, of Philadelphia Eagles, will start his 181st consecutive National Football League game, eclipsing the record he equaled last week by playing against Washington Redskins. He shared the mark with Dick Modzelewski, who started 180 games in a 14-year-career.

The 35-year-old Ringo said he recalls it as though it were yesterday. "I came home from the Green Bay training camp in 1953, and told my family I got homesick and quit. I left camp without even telling the coaches."

The pain of the memory showed in Ringo's face as he allowed his mind to drift back 14 years. "My family rejected me," the stolid native of Easton, Pa., related.

"My wife told me, 'if you are going to quit, just don't sneak out of camp. Tell the coach. Do it like a man.'"

Ringo, one of pro football's all-time great offensive centres, then remembered his father's words and quit. I left camp without telling the coaches."

Ringo, who is 6-foot-3 and weighs 255 pounds, never quit until you have completed it," Ringo quoted his dad.

"My father-in-law was funny about it. He said 'you mean you walked out on $5,250 for four months work?'"

Ringo never unpacked his bag. He looked at the disgusted looks on the faces of his beloved most and headed back for the Packers' camp in Grand Rapids.

There was one season when he contracted mononucleosis and spent Monday through Friday in the hospital, practiced Saturday and played Sunday. Then back to the hospital.

He's had a dislocated shoulder, a bad back, pneumonia, a jammed neck, but on Sunday he was bent over, snapping the ball, toppling the crushing blocks that made him all-NFL six times, a Pro Bowl performer for both East and West.

Sawchuk Sidelined

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk of Los Angeles Kings will be sidelined about two weeks with a hamstring muscle injury and the National Hockey League club Thursday recalled a replacement.

Jacques Caron of the American Hockey League Springfield Kings was called up by the parent club as standby goalie to Wayne Rutledge for tonight's game against Philadelphia.

Braves Meet First Defeat

The Bata Braves went down to their first Centre Hastings Hockey League defeat last night bowing 5-2 in hard-fought battle with the league - leading Ivanhoe Knights.

Ivanhoe maintained its unbeaten record with the victory.

The Knights "brother act" stole the scoring honors in the win, Gene Francis scoring both goals, brother Jack assisting with both and brother Ralph helping with one.

The teams went into the third period deadlocked at one goal each.

The Braves ran into a rash of penalties and had two players in the penalty box when Gene Francis connected for the winner.

In the second game the Cloyne Blazers blazed their way to a 5-1 victory over the Wallbridge Warriors.

Clayton Whiteman paced the winners with two goals. Eldon Gray, Garry McLackie and Harry Brooks accounted for the others.

The league has plenty of action over the weekend.

On Saturday Thomasburg takes on Cloyne at Madoc starting at 2.15. The same night Stirling battles Frankford at Stirling starting at 7 o'clock with Ivanhoe clashing with Foxboro at 8.30.

Sunday night at Stirling the home team meets Foxboro beginning at seven o'clock followed by Ivanhoe and Frankford at 8.30.

No Kicks Now; Pro Soccer Leagues Merge

NEW YORK (CP) — North America's two rival professional soccer leagues, plagued by poor attendance and internal squabbles last year, have finally decided to merge.

Dick Walsh, commissioner of the United Soccer Association, announced Thursday the United Association will merge next season with the rival National Professional Soccer League. The new league will operate with interlocking schedules in separate United and National divisions.

Skill to be worked out at a meeting in Chicago next Wednesday is what will happen to cities that had teams in both leagues.

Boston, New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Toronto are two-team cities. Walsh will remain as head of the Association division while Ken Macker of the NPSL will head his division.

The USA had been recognized by the American and international governing bodies of the sport, while the NPSL had been outlawed by those groups. Negotiations for sanction of NSP teams will take place at the Chicago meetings.

The NPSL had a television contract with CBS last year which now presumably will extend to the merged league. Attendance last year, the first year of operation for both leagues, was not good.

Cities represented in the NPSL last season were Chicago, Pittsburgh, Oakland, Atlanta, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, St. Louis, Toronto and Los Angeles.

USA teams were in Washington, Cleveland, Toronto, Detroit, New York, Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Vancouver and Dallas.

In Toronto, owners of Toronto City and Toronto Falcons said no plans had been made to merge.

Joe Peters, 25, owner of the Falcons, said Thursday: "I'm very happy . . . but I'm making plans to operate the Falcons as a separate entity next season."

The owner of Toronto City, Steve Starro, 34, was more optimistic that the two Toronto teams would merge.

"The best thing that could happen to soccer in Toronto is for the two teams to get together."

With The Trotters

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Amber Adios, five-year-old gelding owned by Geraldine McFadden of Tupperville, Ont., repulsed a challenge at the three-quarter pole and won the featured one-mile pace Thursday at Windsor Raceway.

Krishna ended in second spot as Wilf Dutord guided Amber Adios in the win in 2.09 2-5, paying $23, $12.80 and $3.90.

In the seventh, Brown Go Boy and Blaze Lee paid a quinella of $78.50.

Little Scotch and Ginger Peachee in the 10th paid an exactor of $137.80.

(CP) — Seventy-three-year-old Harry Ingles, one of the oldest drivers on the Ontario Harness racing circuit, drove his Winnifred Pick-Ee-Bout to a 1¼ length victory over Ken Carter's Johnnie R. from Brampton, Ont., in the third race at fog-shrouded Mohawk Raceway Thursday night.

Just past the finish wire Johnnie R. ran into Ingles and knocked him off the sulky but the veteran of the racing wars was uninjured in the fall.

Ingles, a native of Owen Sound, has no intention of retiring from the sport. He acquired Winnifred Pe-Ke-Bout in a claiming race for $1,500 last summer.

Ingles has been passing with flying colors the rigid yearly medical examination that the Canadian Trotting Association requires from drivers over the age of 70.

The daily double was $251.60 after Norbertie won the first race and paid $32.70 and Free Wheeling topped the second in a $15.20 upset.

Pembroke Trounces Brockville

Amerks Stop Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Rochester Americans came up with three third-period goals Thursday to defeat Phoenix Roadrunners 4-2 in the first game of their swing through the Western Hockey League.

Bob Cook got two of the goals for the winners. Jean-Paul Parise and Bob Barlow scored the others.

Southern Cal. Has Three All-Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — Three stars from the No. 1 college football team in the United States, the University of Southern California, including O. J. Simpson, head the 1967 All-America announced Thursday by The Associated Press.

Ron Yary, offensive tackle, and Adrian Young, a linebacker, joined Simpson, one of the greatest of modern running backs, on the first team.

The only other school to place more than one man on the first team was Notre Dame, represented by Kevin Hardy, 215-pound defensive end, and Tom Schoen, a defensive back.

Simpson was the rushing leader in the U.S. with 1,415 yards despite missing one full game and part of another with injuries, and almost single-handedly beat both Notre Dame and UCLA with second-half explosions.

Wisconsin U. Grid Star Loses Leg!

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mel Walker will play no more football.

His promising collegiate grid career ended Wednesday night. Doctors at Hennepin County General Hospital amputated his left leg just below the knee.

He'll have to spend next autumn learning anew how to walk instead of learning University of Wisconsin football plays.

Melvin A. Walker was recruited by Wisconsin as a quarterback.

As a 20-year-old sophomore this past season, Walker didn't get to play quarterback because the Badgers had a senior and a junior ahead of him.

Such was Walker's all-around talent, however, that he moved to defensive safety and became a regular. Going into the season finale against Minnesota here Nov. 25.

On the sixth play in Minnesota's 21-14 victory over Wisconsin, Mel went high into the air to help break up a Minnesota pass into the Badger end zone. In midair, he collided with a team-mate, then fell hard to the turf.

NDP Non-confidence Motion Meets Defeat

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government easily survived a non-confidence test Thursday night as week after Finance Minister Sharp's "measure" budget and minutes after the announcement of massive federal spending cutbacks.

All opposition parties have criticized the mini-budget, which increased liquor, beer and tobacco taxes 10 per cent on Dec. 1 and will raise income taxes by five per cent Jan. 1.

MPs also feared as Revenue Minister Benson rushed off plans to defer federal construction in dozens of communities, to suspend new work on the Northumberland Strait causeway pending a "thorough review" of the project, and to cut back everything from the anti-poverty program to hog carcass subsidies.

However, conflicting reactions among the opposition parties led to a resounding 126 to 24 defeat of a New Democratic Party non-confidence amendment.

The amendment charged the government with shifting the burden of new taxes on "the ordinary Canadian" when the money could have been raised by cancelling tax exemptions for mining, petroleum and insurance companies.

Only 19 New Democrats, four Progressive Conservatives and one independent MP supported the amendment.

The 106 Liberals who opposed it drew support from 76 Conservatives, three Social Credit MPs and an independent member.

Meanwhile, the NDP already has indicated it won't support a Conservative non-confidence amendment scheduled for a vote Monday night.

The Conservative amendment says the tax increases were brought down "to meet governmental extravagance," and that they contribute to inflation.

NDP spokesmen in the budget debate have said government spending should be increased and spending in the private sector controlled.

Replying Thursday night, Bryce Mackasey (L—Verdun) said the NDP hadn't mentioned that its recommendations included taxation of unemployment insurance benefits, credit unions and co-operatives and trade unions.

The debate continues today, with fireworks expected as MPs digest the effect of the federal austerity program on their ridings.

The Senate meanwhile adjourned until Monday night after giving final passage with out debate to several bills, including an amendment to the Food and Drug Act providing stiff penalties for illegal possession of LSD—lysergic acid diethylamide.

The measure now goes to the Commons.

Wishart and Cotnam Disagree

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart and Dr. H. R. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, took opposite sides Thursday in a controversy over an inquest in Sudbury into the deaths of six persons killed in a car crash.

Dr. Cotnam said he will investigate reports that Sudbury Coroner Dr. J. A. Pidutti publicly criticized a citizen for requesting an inquest into the fiery accident on Highway 17 near Sudbury.

Mr. Wishart later said Thomas Tobey, a New Democratic Party organizer in Sudbury who wrote to the attorney-general's office seeking the inquest, was within his rights but that Dr. Pidutti also should be free to criticize requests he feels are unreasonable.

"Some citizens come forward with suggestions which certainly are worthy of criticism," said Mr. Wishart. "Just because somebody dies violently isn't necessarily a sufficient reason for an inquest to be called."

Mr. Wishart said that when Mr. Tobey's letter was sent to Mr. Wishart, he already had "the machinery in motion" to order the inquest which Dr. Pidutti had decided was unnecessary.

At an inquest Wednesday, Dr. Pidutti told Mr. Tobey, now living in Welland, that he had thoroughly investigated the accident and had concluded no inquest was needed.

The inquest was ordered into the deaths of Raymond Picard, 30, his wife and four of their children.

After being informed that Dr. Cotnam was studying inquest proceedings, Dr. Pidutti said: "That's not my concern. I did my job. I followed instructions and did what I felt was right."

Moose Lodge To Honor Old Member

The Loyal Order of Moose are holding a district convention in the city over the weekend and which will comprise lodges from practically all over Canada. More than 150 delegates are expected and at the convention a signal honor will be paid a member for fifty years, R. C. Patrick, approaching his 82nd birthday and a former barber in this city for many years.

A special enrollment ceremony will be staged with Mr. Patrick the principal figure, incidentally Mr. Patrick is one of the oldest member of his lodge and possibly one of the oldest members in Canada.

A drive has been conducted for new members and they will be initiated at this convention. On Saturday evening the delegates will enjoy a banquet and dance and on Sunday morning a breakfast will be given after which an area meeting will be held.

Northern Townships Elect Councillors

TWEED — About 60 per cent of the eligible voters of Kaladar, Anglesea, and Effingham townships elected four councillors Monday.

Two members of the 1967 council, Edgar Bosley, and Ray Bryden, were returned to office along with two new members, Claude McArthur and Arnold Miller.

Councillor Bryden led the polls with 221 votes, McArthur was next in line with 198, Bosley had 189 and Miller was in fourth place with 146.

Defeated were incumbent councillors, Mrs. Lela Casey, with 96 votes, and Lionel Jamieson with 143, along with two newcomers, Donald Freebairn 133 and Wilfred Lemke, 101.

In newcomer to council, dairyman William Hoffman, Tamworth, led the polls in the Sidney-Tudor Township contest Monday. Mr. Huffman, a long-time secretary-treasurer of the combination school board, received 286 votes, one more vote than incumbent councillor Percival Skinner.

Councillor Paul Burns of Tamworth, who led the polls last year had 246 votes, while Councillor Patrick Garrett of Erinsville landed the fourth seat on council with 242 votes. Defeated was Joseph Kidd of Erinsville, who polled 206 votes.

Reeve Ray Gaffney, returned to office for another two-year term by acclamation said voting on Monday was light compared with other years. With only five candidates running for the four council seats and acclamation of the reeve and school board, as well as a lack of major issues, interest in the election was less than in previous years.

Newfoundland Envelope Of 1857 Brings $40,300

LONDON (CP) — An envelope posted in Newfoundland 110 years ago for sixpence was auctioned Thursday for $40,300, a record price in stamp collecting.

The envelope—known as a cover in philatelic circles—bears a unique strip of three twopenny Newfoundland Company stamps of 1857.

The £15,500 paid by a dealer was the highest price ever for a Newfoundland cover and among the top five figures paid for any cover, says Stamp auctioneer Stanley Gibbons Ltd.

The Newfoundland cover was the highlight halfway through a three-day auction of a classic collection of British Empire stamps put on the block of Lars Amundsen, descendant of the Norwegian explorer who collected laurels for being first to reach the South Pole in 1911 and first to navigate the Northwest Passage over the top of Canada in 1906.

Among other items snapped up by dealers were three stamps from pre-Confederation Canada; an 1851 Canadian 12-penny black for $9,750, and two for $7,500 apiece—a three-penny yellow-green Canadian 7½ pence and an 1857 Vancouver Island five-cent issue.

Historical Society Event Successful

NAPANEE — According to those people who were most active in last Saturday's Historical Society's sale of baked goods, antiques and rummage, the gratifying success was due to a number of factors. The weather was good and the Santa Claus parade added to the normal number of shoppers. Thanks to Jack Grange who volunteered the use of the former "Five to a Dollar Store", the location was ideal.

Although in poor condition the Gun-shock chairs found a ready buyer. When they were donated it was planned to use them in the dining room of the Macpherson House, but they were rejected by the experts in the furnishing committee because they were too modern. They are about the 1870 period, and the Macpherson House must contain furnishings at least 30 years older.

The proceeds of this event will be used in the Macpherson House.

Trout Season May Open January 1

Subject to approval by the Federal government, the trout season for lake trout and speckled trout will open January 1 in Hastings county.

Hastings M.P.P. Clarke T. Rollins said he had been informed of the date change this week by Hon. Rene Brunnelle, minister of Lands and Forests.

County enthusiasts have been asking several years for an advance in the season opening. Several years ago the open season was advanced to March 1.

Youth Found Asphyxiated In Garage

FRANKFORD — Less than four hours after planning a reconciliation with his estranged wife 21-year-old Daniel McLeod was found asphyxiated Wednesday in a rear station operated by his brother.

Shirley McLeod, who has been living at Quinte Estates, said her husband had visited her after leaving work at one o'clock.

He stayed for about three hours and they talked about "getting back together", she told Frankford police chief Gerald Farrington.

McLeod was found at eight a.m. in the closed garage in a station operated by his brother, Wayne, who told police his brother often brought his car in to his own repairs.

Police said the radio was playing in McLeod's car. His body, however, was found in another car in the garage with the ignition turned on but the motor stopped.

At the scene coroner Dr. Brock Nugent of Trenton said death was apparently from accidental asphyxiation. He doubted an inquest would be held.

Behind the Glass

An eight-ender, the ultimate in curling, has been accomplished by Ernie Sutton and his rink and Ernie Sutton and his rink are the latest to join the circle. Mr. Sutton was throwing the rock of George Watson, Al Shuister and Dave Tobe. At the eighth Mr. Sutton was lying six shots. Mr. Reston made his takeout but Sutton came right back with a knockout and stay. The same thing was repeated with the next two rocks and Ernie had his eight end. The rink members will be suitably rewarded by certain firms on Saturday the President's spiel will be played and this is one of the best in the local season. Normally members have signified their intention to compete and the committee in charge will draw the rinks and skips. There will be three draws and suitable prizes will be awarded. The main feature of the spiel will be the dinner to be served during the draws. At the conclusion of the spiel the prizes will be distributed and a social evening will close the function. The president, William Riley, will be skipping a rink and invites all members to be on hand to enjoy the fun and curling during the day.
